

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

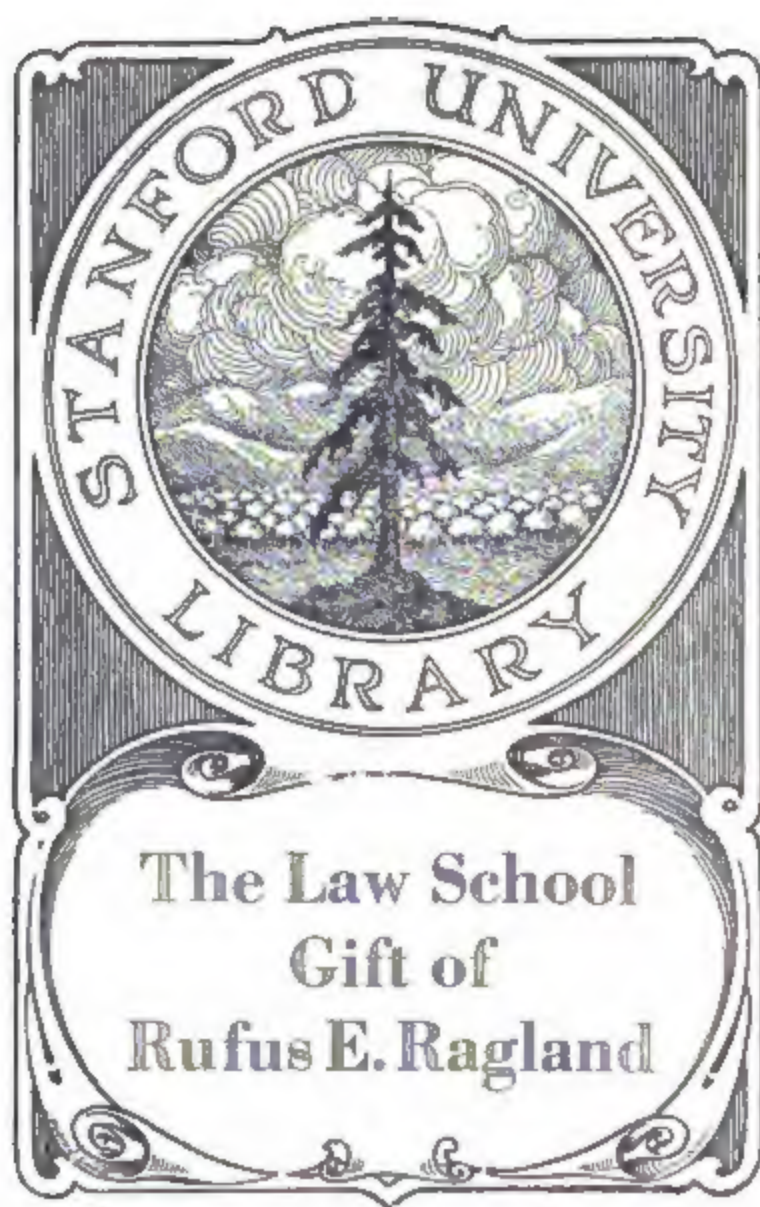

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. FOREWORD.

THE Forty-Ninth Annual Volume of Hubbell's Legal Directory is presented to the profession and the public as a dependable aid in the transaction of legal business throughout the world.

As always, unusual care has been exercised in the preparation of the Directory, and we believe it to be as correct as human agency can make it.

We wish, however, to express in advance our appreciation to those of our subscribers bringing to our notice errors or omissions, for we realize that perfection cannot be obtained without their coöperation.

The policy of the Company has always been a liberal one, and the Directory is revised upon a comprehensive plan, which includes, from time to time, the addition of such subject-matter as we deem of assistance to the many users of the Directory. We refer those not familiar with the Directory, to our Title-Page.

We deem it unnecessary to refer to the care exercised in the selection of the lawyers whose names are listed.

The prominence of the lawyers who revise our Laws and whose names appear at the head of our synopses is a sufficient guarantee of their accuracy.

The Synopsis of the Laws concerning the Jurisdiction and Procedure of the United States Courts has long been a prominent feature of the Directory. As usual, it has been revised with great care for this edition, and we are confident that it will continue to prove of practical value to all who wish an accurate and comprehensive summary of these Laws and the rulings of the Court thereon.

We cannot impress too strongly upon those using the Directory the importance of using the current edition. On account of the numerous changes in the State Laws, the not infrequent retirement from practice, deaths, and removals of attorneys, and at times the necessity of the withdrawal of our former recommendation, the annual revision of the Directory is essential. It is obvious, therefore, that only the Directory we herewith present should be referred to, and former editions should be discarded, or relegated to the bookcase by those of our subscribers whose custom it has been to preserve old volumes. Delay and inconvenience or even loss are thereby reduced to a minimum.

We believe service will be promoted, by those using the Directory, if in sending business or in making an enquiry, mention is made that the name of the lawyer or law firm addressed has been taken from Hubbell's. Hubbell's stamps (furnished free on request) will prove an easy means to this end, but the written statement, that the lawyer's name is taken from Hubbell's, will serve better and help identify the user of the Directory.

Subscribers desiring names of attorneys, other than those published, can telegraph Town and State, together with the word "Tuxedo," and we will (as directed) write or wire information. In emergencies, use long distance 'phone, Rector 4339.

We take pleasure in expressing our appreciation of the invaluable services rendered by the eminent members of the profession who have prepared our Synopses of Laws, etc., to whose careful work the Directory owes much of its usefulness and its standing as an authority.

PART I

LAWYERS

Volume 49.

1919.

In corresponding with our attorneys, do not fail to use our "Subscribers' Stamps" (furnished without charge on application) or write "Your name is taken from Hubbell's." The written statement that the lawyer's name is taken from Hubbell's will serve better and help identify the user of the Directory.

In the cities, every attorney has been rigidly investigated by our personal representative. In the towns, our subscribers have been recommended by two or more bankers, cashiers of banks, or leading merchants of their respective places. These recommendations represent a cumulative tabulation extending over a period of forty-nine years, insuring their absolute reliability and safeguarding against the selection of any attorney whose standing does not merit it.

Our patrons will please remember that the Directory is published ANNUALLY, and that we do not hold ourselves morally responsible for its correctness, nor for the reliability of the attorneys named, after the expiration of the year for which it is published.

Where places are given, and no attorneys named, reference is made to the nearest reliable attorney. Individuals designated thus (§) are also Notaries Public. Figures after names of attorneys designate year admitted to practice.

Places marked thus (*) are county seats. For list of counties, see Court Calendar for each State.

"Cable Ad." with word in gothic type following name or address indicates cable address.

Subscribers desiring names of attorneys, other than those published, can telegraph Town and State, together with the word Tuxedo, and we will (as directed) write or wire information.

Long Distance Telephone: 4339 Rector, New York.
Cable Address, Presspack, New York, W. U. Code.

Messrs. London, Yancey & Brower, of Birmingham.

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — All civil actions in common law courts of record are commenced by summons and complaint. The complaint is filed in the office of the clerk of the court, and the summons is issued by the clerk, accompanied by the complaint. Service is effected by the delivery, by the proper officer, of a copy of each to the defendant.

Freeholders or householders, having a permanent residence in the State, must be sued in the county of their residence, "unless the suit be for the recovery of real property or the possession thereof, or for a trespass thereto, when the suit must be instituted in the county where the land lies," except that, in other actions of tort, suit may be brought in the county of plaintiff's residence, or in the county where the tort was committed.

Branch summons may issue, when there are several defendants residing or found in different counties, and the cause of action is joint, or is joint and several. (Code of Ala. § 5300.) See Corporations ; Costs.

Actions upon contracts, express or implied, by parol or under seal, for the payment of money (other than bills of exchange, promissory notes payable in bank, or at a designated place, and commercial instruments), must be prosecuted in the name of the party really interested, whether he has the legal title or not. Actions on commercial paper must be instituted in the name of the party having the legal title.

In all actions by a transferee or assignee of a contract not a commercial instrument, the assignee or transferee is "subject to any defense the payor, obligor, or debtor may have had against the payee, obligee, or creditor previous to notice of assignment or transfer." (Code of Ala. § 2489.)

"All actions on contracts, express or implied, all personal actions, except for injuries to the person or reputation, survive in favor of and against the personal representatives." (Code of Ala. § 2496.)

Actions for the recovery of, and actions for injuries to, lands survive in favor of or against heirs, devisees, or personal representatives, or against tenants, according to their respective rights. (Code of Ala. § 2497.)

The successful party in all civil actions (with minor exceptions) is entitled to and recovers full costs, for which judgment is rendered. (Code of Ala. § 3662.) All non-residents of the State are required to give security for the costs of suits instituted by them. Neglect or failure to give security when required subjects the suit to dismissal, and the attorney directing the issue of the process to liability for the costs. The security may be given by a deposit of money with the clerk of the court, and the amount may, when necessary, be enlarged by order of court. If judgment is rendered for the defendant, on motion a judgment can be obtained against the security for the costs. (Code of Ala. § 3687.)

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Affidavits. — Ex parte affidavits are not admitted as testimony. Affidavits out of the State may be made before any judge of any court of record, chancellor, judge of the United States courts, a commissioner of this State, or notary public; and in this State before any of the above named, a justice of the peace, register, or clerk of a court.

Aliens. — The Declaration of Rights provides that "Foreigners, who are or may hereafter become bona fide residents of this State, shall enjoy the same rights in respect to possession, enjoyment, and inheritance of property as native-born citizens."

The statutes declare that an alien, resident or non-resident, may take and hold property, real and personal, by purchase, descent, or devise, and may dispose of and transmit the same by sale, descent, or devise, as if he was native-born. Existing rights not being affected, as to property acquired by aliens prior to 25th February, 1875, the same is held by them, their heirs, devisees, or assigns, as if such aliens were native-born. An alien devisee, or next of kin, of any person dying in this State (if an escheat had not been perfected prior to the sixth day of February, 1877), takes to the exclusion of the right of the State to escheat, and of more remote native or naturalized heirs. (Code of Ala. § 2831.)

Appeals. — From judgments in justice's court an appeal may be taken to city or circuit court from any judgment, in five days; from city, circuit, and chancery courts to supreme court from final judgments or decrees in twelve months, and from interlocutory decrees in thirty days; from probate court to supreme court within the times provided as to different matters, from five days to six months. If an appeal is taken in the vacation of the supreme court, it is returnable to the next ensuing term, but if taken during the term it must be made returnable to the first Monday of the term next after the expiration of twenty days from the date of the appeal.

Arrest. — Under the Constitution there can be no imprisonment for debt.

Assignments. — Except as affected by the national bankruptcy act of 1898, the following statute respecting assignments is in force.

Assignments for the security or benefit of creditors are governed by the common law, with the exception that every general assignment or conveyance by a debtor of substantially all his property in payment of a prior debt by which a preference is given inures to the benefit of all the creditors of the grantor equally. A general assignment includes every judgment confessed and attachment procured by a debtor, or other disposition of property by which a debtor conveys all, or substantially all, of his property subject to execution in payment of or as security for a prior debt, or charges such property with the payment of such debt. It inures to the benefit of the existing, not of the subsequent, creditors of the grantor. Deeds of assignment must as soon as executed be filed and recorded in the office of the probate judge of the county in which the property is situated, and are operative as other deeds from the day of delivery to the judge. The assignment making preferences is not by the statute rendered fraudulent or void; the preference of creditors is blotted out, and it remains a security, or trust, for all creditors. Several successive conveyances of substantially all the property of a debtor may, if their execution was within the contemplation of the parties, be taken as one instrument, and operate a general assignment.

Mortgages, or pledges or pawns, made for the security of debts contemporaneously contracted, are not within the operation of the statute.

Mortgages or other security for preëxisting debts are fraudulent and void as to creditors of the grantor "when any creditor provided for thereby is required to make any release, or to do any other act impairing his existing rights, before participating in or receiving the security therein provided for him." (Code of Ala. § 4287.)

An assignee in a general assignment for the benefit of creditors is not regarded as a purchaser for value, or the representative of creditors; he is bound and affected by all the equities, and subject to all the defenses, which would have bound or affected the assignor.

Attachments. — Attachments may issue for the collection of a debt, whether due or not and may be sued out where the property is, without reference to the residences of the parties; for any money demand, the amount of which can be certainly ascertained; to recover damages for the breach of a contract where the damages are not certain or liquidated, or where the action sounds in damages merely; upon affidavit made by the creditor or his agent that the debtor absconds, secretes himself, or resides out of the State, so that process cannot be served upon him, or is about to remove his property out of the State, whereby the plaintiff may lose his debt or be compelled to sue for it in another State; or that the debtor has fraudulently disposed of or is about fraudulently disposing of his property; or that he has money, property, or effects liable to satisfy his debts, which he fraudulently withholds, and stating the amount due, and that the attachment is not sued out for the purpose of vexing or harassing the debtor; and upon the plaintiff's executing bond payable to the defendant in double the amount sworn to be due, an attachment may issue against the estate of the defendant, real and personal. Attachments auxiliary to suits pending may be issued on the same grounds as original attachments, in which case the suits proceed as if commenced by original attachment. (Code of Ala. § 2924.) Attaching creditors are paid in the order of time of the levy, and do not share pro rata.

The plaintiff, his agent or attorney, is required, when the attachment is sued out otherwise than upon the ground that defendant is a non-resident, to enter into a bond in double the amount claimed by the plaintiff with sufficient sureties; if the attachment is on the ground of the non-residence of the defendant, the writ issues at plaintiff's election, with or without bond, and if without bond, should the defendant before the return day thereof make an unqualified appearance in the cause, it is the duty of the clerk to give notice to the plaintiff, and, unless bond is given within twenty-four hours thereafter, the levy shall be discharged. The number of sureties is not fixed by statute, though two are usually required by the officer approving the bond. Sureties need not be the owners of real property. The plaintiff, his agent or attorney, may make the affidavit. Guarantee companies which have qualified according to law are accepted as surety.

A non-resident of the State may sue out an attachment against the property of a non-resident for an existing debt or ascertained liability, but the plaintiff, his agent or attorney, is required, in addition to the oath necessary in other cases, to swear that, according to the best of his knowledge, information, and belief, the defendant has not sufficient property within the State of his residence wherefrom to satisfy the debt; and must also give bond as in other cases, with surety resident in this State. (Code of Ala. § 2930.) Process of attachment may issue against foreign corporations having property in the State, for the recovery of debts, or to recover damages for a breach of contract when the damages are not certain or liquidated, or in cases where the action sounds in damages merely, in the same manner and subject to the same rules as in case of natural persons residing without the State. (Code of Ala. § 2935.) See Garnishment.

When an attachment is sued out against a resident of the State, the cause stands for trial, and judgment may be obtained at first term of court, if notice of the levy is given to the defendant in person or in writing left at his residence in the county. If the residence of the defendant is in another county than that to which the attachment is returnable, written notice posted at the door of the court-house, and a copy sent by mail, addressed to the defendant, to the post-office nearest his residence, is requisite. (Code of Ala. § 2932.) Or, if the defendant resides without the State, the cause stands for trial at first term, if notice of the attachment and levy is given by advertisement for three successive weeks in a newspaper, a copy of which must be sent by mail to the defendant, if his residence is known, or can be ascertained. (Code of Ala. § 2931.) Goods or chattels levied upon by attachment may be replevied by the defendant, or in his absence by a stranger, by the execution of bond with sufficient surety, payable to the plaintiff, in double the value of the property replevied, with condition for the return of the property within thirty days after the rendition of judgment in favor of plaintiff. If the property is not delivered within thirty days after judgment, it is the duty of the sheriff to return the bond forfeited, and then executions may issue thereon against principal and sureties for the value of the property, as fixed by the sheriff or other officer, with interest thereon from date of the bond, and for the costs of the replevy and of the execution. (Code of Ala. § 2955.)

Chattel Mortgages. — The statute denounces as invalid all future mortgages of personal property not in writing and subscribed by the mortgagor. (Code of Ala. § 4288.)

Conveyances of personal property to secure debts, or to provide indemnity, are inoperative and void against creditors and purchasers without notice until recorded, unless the property is brought into this State subject to such incumbrances, in which case they must be recorded in the county into which it is brought within three months of its arrival. (Code of Ala. § 3377); and if such property is removed to a different county from that in which the grantor resides, the conveyance must be recorded within three months from the removal, or it ceases to have effect as to creditors and purchasers from the grantee without notice. (Code of Ala. § 3386.)

Conveyances of personal property to secure debts, or for indemnity, must be recorded in the county where the grantor resides, and also in the county where the property is at the date of the conveyance; if the property is removed to another county, the conveyance must be again recorded within three months from such removal, in the county to which it is removed. (Code of Ala. § 3376.)

No renewal of chattel mortgages is necessary. They may be foreclosed as follows: 1. By selling the property under a power of sale contained in the mortgage. 2. By an action of detinue to recover possession. 3. By bill in equity for foreclosure. The rights of a mortgagee cannot be affected by the mortgagor remaining in possession of mortgaged chattels after forfeiture, except by some act or consent of the mortgagee. All the original rights of the mortgagee are preserved. The reservation of the possession of stock in trade, and of the right to deal therewith, is fraudulent as against the creditors of the mortgagor. See Trust Deeds.

Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons. — Administration of an intestate's estate must be granted in following order, if persons are willing and fit to serve: 1. The husband or widow. 2. The next of kin entitled to share in the distribution of the estate. 3. The largest creditor of the intestate residing within the State. 4. Such other person as the judge of probate may appoint. (Code of Ala. § 2520.) Aliens, resident or non-resident, may act as executors. Non-resident may be appointed administrator of estate of non-resident, when decedent leaves property in this State. Estate to be administered as if belonging to a resident. (Code of Ala. § 2558.) Process may be served on such administrator through the mail. (Code of Ala. § 2563.) Executors and administrators must, except when exempted, give bond in at least double the estimated value of the entire estate. (Code of Ala. § 2540.) Executors may be exempted from giving bond by the will, but any person interested in the estate may, upon proper showing, require bond. (Code of Ala. § 2541.) Executors and administrators must, within one month from grant of letters, give notice of appointment, etc., and notify all persons having claims against the estate to present the same within time allowed by law. (Code of Ala. § 2586.) Foreign representative may sue for or receive property in this State by recording, at any time before judgment, or receiving property, in the office of the probate judge of the county where the suit is brought or the property received, (1) copy of his letters duly authenticated, (2) giving bond with approved sureties. (Code of Ala. § 2825.)

Debts against estates of decedents are to be paid in the following order: 1. Funeral expenses. 2. Expenses of administration. 3. Expenses of last sickness. 4. Taxes due prior to decedent's death. 5. Debts due employees as such for services rendered during the year of the death of the decedent. 6. Other debts. No preference among debts of same class. (Code of Ala. § 2597.)

Executors and administrators must make annual settlements of their administration. They may be required to account at any time if necessary for the interest of the estate. Final settlement may be made at any time after twelve months from the grant of letters, if condition of estate will permit. (Code of Ala. §§ 2666, 2667.)

All claims against the estate of a deceased person must be presented within twelve months after the same have accrued, or within twelve months after the grant of administration, and if not presented within that time are forever barred. Infants and lunatics are allowed eighteen months after the removal of their disabilities to present their claims. All claims must be verified by affidavit of the claimant, or some other person having knowledge, of the correctness of the claim, and that the amount claimed is justly due or to become due after allowing all proper credits. (Code of Ala. § 2590 et seq.)

Presentation is made to the representative, or by filing the claim or a statement thereof in the office of the probate judge of the county where letters were granted, in which case the same must be docketed with a note of the time of presentation.

No suit must be commenced against the representative of an estate until the lapse of six months after the grant of administration; and no judgment must be rendered against such representative until the expiration of twelve months after the grant of administration. (Code of Ala. § 2803.)

Claims against insolvent estates are barred unless filed in the office of the probate judge where such estate is being administered within six months after declaration of insolvency, or after the same accrue, unless it has been filed before insolvency was declared. The claim must be verified. When the claim is filed, verified by the oath of a person out of this State but within the United States, the oath may be made before a notary public, justice of the peace, or any judge of a court of record, or a commissioner of this State; and when made before a justice of the peace it must be certified that such officer was a justice of the peace, and that his attestation is genuine, by some judge of a court of record or a commissioner of this State; when made before either of the other officers specified in this section, no other proof of the taking of such oath is necessary than the certificate of such officer.

When such oath is taken out of the United States it may be taken before any judge of a court of record, mayor or chief magistrate of any county, city, borough, or town, notary public, or diplomatic, consular, or commercial agent of the United States; and no other proof of the taking of such oath is necessary than the certificate of such officer. (Code of Ala. §§ 2776, 2777.) See Exemptions by Statute.

Claims, Proof of. — See Proof of Claims.

Conditional Sales. — Conditional sales may be made of personal property and possession given, the seller retaining title till purchase-money is fully paid. Such contract is, however, void as to purchasers for a valuable consideration, mortgagees, and judgment creditors without notice, unless in writing and recorded in the office of the judge of probate of the county in which the party so obtaining possession resides, and also the county in which the property is delivered, and remains, except when amount less than two hundred dollars, when the same need not be recorded in counties of more than eighty thousand inhabitants. (Code of Ala. § 3394.)

Consignments. — See Frauds.

Constitution. — The present constitution became effective November 28, 1901.

Corporations. — Three or more persons may become incorporated for the purpose of carrying on any lawful business of any kind or nature upon making and filing a certificate in the office of the judge of probate of the county in which the principal place of business of the corporation is to be established, which certificate is to be signed by all the subscribers to the capital stock named therein, and shall set forth (1) the name of the corporation; (2) the objects for which the corporation is formed; (3) the location of its principal office in this State; (4) the amount of capital stock authorized, which in no case shall be less than two thousand dollars; (5) the number of shares in which it is divided; (6) the amount of capital stock with which it will begin business, which shall not be less than twenty-five per cent. of the authorized stock, and in no case less than one thousand dollars (banks cannot be organized with less than twenty-five thousand dollars capital, and insurance companies cannot be organized with less than one hundred thousand dollars capital); (7) the name and address of the officer authorized to receive subscriptions; (8) the names and addresses of the incorporators, and the number of shares subscribed for by each; (9) the names and addresses of the directors and officers chosen; (10) the limit of duration of the corporation. Railroads, railways, navigation and transport companies, and companies formed for the purpose of constructing, operating, or maintaining, or purchasing any work of internal improvement or public utility, will have to make special statements with the certificate. The incorporators may add any other provisions for the internal regulation of the corporation not inconsistent with the general law. The certificate shall have attached to it a statement under oath by the person authorized to receive subscriptions showing the amount of stock secured by contracts for property and services, and the amount paid in cannot be less than twenty per cent. of the whole subscribed for, and in no case less than one thousand dollars. Banks are required to have not less than sixty per cent. of the subscribed capital paid in, and insurance companies not less than one hundred thousand dollars. This certificate shall be filed and recorded in the office of the probate judge, the fees being fifteen cents for each one hundred words and two and one half dollars for examining certificate; a charter fee of one dollar for every one thousand dollars of proposed capital, in no case less than five dollars, and two and one half dollars fee for filing with secretary of state. Upon the filing of this certificate, and payment of the fees, the corporation is organized. The probate judge is required to file a certificate in the office of the secretary of state, giving the name of and all necessary details connected with the corporation. The corporation thus organized has all of the general powers of corporations, but subject to the constitutional provision that no bonded indebtedness shall be created or increased, nor its real estate mortgaged, except by the consent of the majority in value of the capital stock. Meetings of directors and stockholders may be held within or without the State, but when this last is done a record of proceedings is required to be kept in the State. Corporations are specially authorized to carry on their business outside of the State, and they may consolidate, and increase or decrease their stock and bonded indebtedness; alter or amend their charters; renew or extend their corporate existence. Railroads and other corporations may exercise the right of eminent domain in the manner provided by law, except provision for the construction and maintenance of street railroads and telephone and telegraph lines. A railroad corporation is authorized to convey its franchise to a foreign corporation, provided the foreign corporation shall keep an office in this State; railroad corporations are authorized to consolidate with foreign corporations. Street railway, gas, electric, and water companies are authorized to contract with municipal authorities for use of streets, public roads, and public places of the communities, and for supplying them with gas, water, and electricity. Banking and trust companies are authorized to become trustees, executors, administrators, guardians, and receivers. All banks must be on specie basis. Subscriptions to capital stock must be paid in money, but this obligation may be discharged in labor or property at a reasonable valuation thereof, but this can be done only where the subscription contract specifies it. Stockholders are liable for the debts of the corporation only to the extent of unpaid stock. Shares of stock of the corporation are personal property, and transfers or purchases of the company's stock must be noted on the books of the corporation within fifteen days or are void as to subsequent purchasers without notice. Executors and administrators, domestic and foreign, may transfer stock. Shares of stock are subject to levy and sale as other personal property, and the corporation has a lien on the shares for any unpaid debt or liability by one of its stockholders. A corporation must have at least three directors, and a majority constitutes a quorum for the transaction of the business. Non-user for five years works a forfeiture of the franchise. Stockholders' meetings to be held annually, but failure to hold meetings does not work forfeiture. Corporations organized under the act may consolidate or merge by a two thirds majority in value of the capital stock of each corporation. Dissenting stockholders can have their stock appraised and the money value paid to them. The consolidated corporation acquires all the franchises, rights, and property of each of the several corporations consolidated. Preferred stock may be issued by a vote of two thirds of the stockholders at a meeting called for that purpose. The number of directors may be increased or diminished; charters may be changed and the rights, and powers amended by action of the stockholders of the company; all papers being filed in the office of the judge of probate, — the one limitation being that these amendments can only contain such provisions as are consistent with the purposes expressed on the original certificate. The holders of all of the capital stock may dissolve the corporation by voluntary action, or two thirds in value may dissolve it by proceeding in the chancery court. Upon insolvency, creditors or stockholders may apply to the chancery court for an injunction and receiver and for the winding up and dissolution of the corporation. Corporations operating any public utility and enjoying franchises under contract with any city or town, which shall fail, after reasonable notice of default in the performance of their contracts, are subject to special proceedings in the chancery court by the city authorities to compel them to do so, and upon decree ascertaining a default, failure to perform the decree subjects them to dissolution. Corporations whose charters expire by limitation or any other cause, except by judicial decree, still exist as such corporations for a term of five years after dissolution for the purpose of winding up their affairs.

Foreign Corporations. — By Constitution of 1901, section 232, which is a reproduction of article 4, section 4, of the Constitution of 1875, it is provided that "no foreign corporation can do any business in this State without having at least one known place of business, and an authorized agent or agents therein, and without filing with the secretary of state a certified copy of its articles of incorporation, or association," and by statute it is made unlawful for any person to act as agent or transact any business in this State for or on behalf of any foreign corporation which has not a known place of business in the State, and an authorized agent thereat. (Code 1896, §§ 3644, 3645.) It has been decided that a single transaction is a "doing of business" within the State, and no contractual rights based on business done in this State can be enforced by a foreign corporation which has not complied with the constitutional and statutory provisions; but it has also been decided that executed contracts, and absolute conveyances, although made with or to such foreign corporations, are unassailable.

License Tax. — Every foreign corporation, except strictly benevolent, educational, or religious corporations, or banks or banking institutions, or building and loan associations, authorized to do business in the State, is required to pay a license tax of forty cents on each one thousand dollars of the amount of capital actually employed in the State, to the State, and one half of that sum to the county, for the privilege of exercising its corporate franchises; and shall also pay an annual license tax of ten dollars to the secretary of state. (Acts of 1915, page 397.)

Courts, Jurisdiction and Terms of. — See Court Calendar for Alabama.

Deeds. — All persons of the age of twenty-one years not under legal incapacity may alien lands, or any interest therein, immediate or future, certain or uncertain, or may devise the same by will. (Code of Ala. § 3354.) No leasehold estate can be created for a longer term than twenty (Code of Ala. § 3418) years. A married woman, if over the age of eighteen years, may release her dower in the lands of her husband.

Alienation of lands, or of any right or interest therein (other than of the homestead),

"must be written or printed, on parchment or paper, and must be signed at their foot by the contracting party, or his or her agent having written authority; or, if he is not able to sign his name, then his name must be written for him, with the words, 'his mark' written against the same or over it. The execution of such conveyance must be attested by one, or, when the party cannot write, by two witnesses who are able to write, and who must sign their names as witnesses." (Code of Ala. § 3355 et seq.)

The wife may relinquish dower by joining with the husband in a conveyance, attested by two witnesses, or acknowledged before an officer having authority to take the acknowledgment of conveyances; or, subsequent to a conveyance by the husband, by an instrument in writing, executed in the presence of two attesting witnesses, or acknowledged before an officer having authority to take the acknowledgment of conveyances. (Code of Ala. § 3818 et seq.) When the wife has been legally declared insane the husband may convey any of his real estate except the homestead, as if single; but the conveyance shall state that the grantor is a married man and that his wife is insane, and shall have attached to it a copy of the judgment of the court declaring the wife insane. (Code of Ala. § 4495.)

Conveyances by insane persons to bona fide purchasers voidable only. (Code, § 3347.)

Acknowledgment and proofs of conveyances may be written, printed, or pasted on, and may be taken by judges of the supreme and circuit courts and their clerks, chancellors and registers in chancery, judges of the courts of probate and their clerks, justices of the peace, and notaries public (a notary public may be ex-officio a justice of the peace, and when acting as such no seal is necessary — otherwise an official seal is required.) (Code of Ala. § 3358.) The certificate is prima facie proof of officer's authority. (51 Ala. 95.) If taken in other States of the United States, they may be taken by judges and clerks of any federal court, judges and clerks of any court of record in any State, notaries public, or commissioners appointed by the governor of Alabama. Beyond the limits of the United States, such acknowledgments and proofs may be taken by the judge of any court of record, mayor or chief magistrate of any city, town, borough, or county, notaries public, or by any diplomatic, consular, or commercial agent of the United States. (Code, § 3359.) In no case need the United States consul certify the character of the official taking the acknowledgment.

Powers of attorney to convey property may be proven or acknowledged in the same manner and must be received as evidence to the same extent as conveyances.

If the grantor is unknown, his or her identity may be established by evidence satisfactory to the officer taking the acknowledgment.

All instruments purporting on their face to be under seal are taken as sealed instruments. A scroll answers as a seal. (Code of Ala. § 3363.) Consideration of sealed instruments may be impeached and inquired into by plea.

Depositions. — (Code of Ala. § 4030 et seq.) — Evidence in actions at law may be taken by deposition when the witness is a woman, or from age, infirmity, or sickness is unable to attend court, or resides more than one hundred miles from the place of trial, or resides out of, or is absent from, the State, or is about to leave the State and will probably not return until after the trial, or when the claim of defense, or a material part thereof, depends exclusively on the evidence of the witness, or when the witness is the governor of the State, or a state official, or of a profession or calling such as to prevent attendance upon the place of trial. Affidavit setting forth some one of the foregoing causes and that the witness is material must be filed in the cause. Thereupon the clerk must issue a commission to one or more persons to take such deposition and give notice to the opposite party, or his attorney, of the time and place of taking it. If the party on whom the notice is to be served resides out of the county, and has no attorney of record, it is sufficient to file the notice with the papers in the cause for the length of time prescribed. It is the duty of the commissioner to reduce the answers of the witness to writing, or cause it to be done by the witness, or some impartial person, as near as may be in the language of the witness, having first sworn him to speak the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; the deposition when completed must be read over to the witness and by him subscribed. After the signature of the witness, the commissioner appends a certificate of the manner, time, and place of taking the deposition, that the testimony was read to the witness and by the witness signed in his presence, that he has personal knowledge of the identity of the witness as the person named in the commission, or has had proof made of his identity, and that he is not of counsel or of kin to any of the parties to the cause, or in any manner interested in the result thereof. This certificate is signed by the commissioner. The package containing the deposition, sealed and addressed to the clerk of the court, may be sent by mail or private conveyance.

Depositions may be taken stenographically and afterwards transcribed on the typewriter, but such transcript must be signed by the witness in the presence of the commissioner authorized to take the deposition.

Depositions of non-resident witnesses may be taken and perpetuated when suit has commenced, or upon affidavit that affiant is or expects to be a party to the suit.

Depositions of witnesses in chancery causes are taken in the same way, using the same forms. When the witness resides more than one hundred miles from the place of trial, or resides out of or is absent from the State, the testimony must be taken by interrogatories in the following manner: The party after making affidavit may file with the clerk the interrogatories to be propounded to the witness, of which and of the residence of the witness, and of the commissioner to be appointed, he must give the opposite party, or his attorney, notice in writing, who has ten days thereafter to file cross-interrogatories, to which the party filing the interrogatories may file rebutting interrogatories; after the expiration of ten days the clerk must issue a commission to take the deposition, which may be taken at such time and place as the commissioner may appoint. When the witness resides within one hundred miles of the place of trial either party may require an oral examination and must give due notice of such requirement; unless there is such requirement, all testimony in chancery cases must be taken by interrogatories. (Code of Ala. § 3139 et seq.) The commission is issued by the register in chancery, and returned to him.

Executions issue from justice's court after five days, returnable not less than thirty nor more than sixty days; from city court ten days after judgment; from circuit court any time within twenty days after close of term. Every homestead, not exceeding eighty acres of land, the dwelling and appurtenances thereon, to be selected by the owner, and not in a city, town, or village, or in lieu thereof, at the option of the owner, any lot in a city, town, or village, with the dwelling and appurtenances thereon, owned and occupied by any resident of the State, and not exceeding the value of two thousand dollars, shall be exempted from sale on execution, or any other process from a court, for any debt contracted since the 13th day of July, 1868. The right of exemption hereinbefore secured may be waived by an instrument in writing, and, when such waiver relates to realty, the instrument must be signed by both husband and wife, and attested by one witness.

Such exemption does not extend to any mortgage lawfully obtained; but such mortgage or other alienation of such homestead, by the owner thereof, if a married man, shall not be valid without the voluntary signature and assent of the wife of the same. The homestead of a family, after the death of the owner, is exempt from the payment of debts contracted since the 13th of July, 1868, in all cases during the minority of the children; or if the owner dies leaving a widow and no children, the same shall be exempt for her benefit, and the rents and profits thereof shall inure to her benefit.

This exemption does not prevent a laborer's lien for work done and performed for the person claiming an exemption, nor a mechanic's lien for work done on the premises. No mortgage or other alienation of any homestead exempted by this act, by the owner thereof, if a married man, shall be valid without the voluntary signature and assent of the wife acknowledged before an officer authorized by law to take acknowledgments of deeds. (See Deeds.) The wages, salaries, or compensation of laborers, and all employees for personal service, to the amount of twenty-five dollars per month, are exempt. The homestead of a family, not exceeding in value two thousand dollars, if in any city, town, or village, and not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres in quantity and two thousand dollars in value, when the same is not in any city, town, or village, after the death of the owner thereof, and personal property to the value of one thousand dollars, of any resident of this State, male or female, after his or her death, is exempt from the payment of debts, provided such decedent, if a man, leaves surviving him a widow or minor child, and, if a woman, leaves surviving her a minor child or children. In addition to the exemptions heretofore allowed, there are the further exemptions of the wearing apparel of the deceased, the wearing apparel of the widow and children, all yarn and cloth on hand intended for their use and consumption, the family bible and books, all family portraits and miniatures, and such grain, stores, and groceries on hand as may be necessary for the subsistence of the family for twelve months, all of which is to be set apart by three disinterested persons, to be selected, two of them by the widow, if there be one, and one by the judge of probate, and, if there be no widow, then by three such persons to be appointed by the judge of probate, and turned over to the family forever free from administration and the debts of the deceased; and any live stock necessary for the subsistence of the family may be killed for their use at any time before the final settlement of the estate.

Descent and Distribution of Real and Personal Property. — (Code of Ala. § 3754 et seq.) — The real and personal estate of persons dying intestate descends, subject to the payment of debts, the charges against the estate, and the widow's dower, — 1st. To the children of the intestate or their descendants, per stirpes, in equal parts. Personal estate is to be distributed as the real estate, except that if there are no children the widow takes all the personalty. If one child, she takes one half. If there is more than one child, and not more than four children, she is entitled to a child's part; if there are more than four children, to one fifth. 2d. If there be no husband or widow or children or descendants of children, but parent or parents, the estate descends, first, to parents in equal portions. 3d. If but one parent survives, one half goes to the parent and one half to the brothers and sisters of deceased or their descendants; and if there be no brothers or sisters or descendants, the entire estate goes to the surviving parent. 4th. If there are no children of their descendants, or parents, the estate descends to the brothers and sisters or their descendants in equal parts. 5th. And if none of these, then to the next of kin in equal degree in equal parts. If no relations, then to the husband or wife, if capable of taking. 6th. If no relations and no husband or wife, the estate escheats to the State. The lineal descendants in equal degree represent their ancestor, taking the share to which he would be entitled if living. There is no representation among collaterals except with the descendants of the brothers and sisters of the intestate. The degree must be computed according to the civil law. No distinction is made between the whole and the half blood in the same degree unless the inheritance came to the intestate by descent, devise, or gift from or of some one of his ancestors; in which case all those who are not of the blood of such ancestor are excluded from the inheritance as against those of the same degree.

Posthumous children of the intestate inherit as if born in his lifetime. No right of inheritance accrues to any other person unless born at the death of the intestate.

Illegitimate children inherit of their mother in whole or in part as if born in wedlock.

Aliens take and hold property as native citizens. (Code of Ala. § 2831.)

Where an inheritance descends to several, they take as tenants in common.

If a married woman having a separate estate die, the husband is entitled to one half of the personalty of such estate absolutely, and to the use of the realty during life — unless he has been deprived of all control over it by decree of the chancery court.

Divorce. — The court of chancery and other courts having chancery jurisdiction have power to divorce persons from the bonds of matrimony, or from bed and board, upon bill filed in chancery, by the aggrieved party, for the causes following: For impotency; for adultery; for voluntary abandonment from bed and board for two years next preceding the filing of the bill; for imprisonment in the penitentiary for two years, the sentence being for seven years or longer; for the commission of the crime against nature, with mankind or beast, whether before or after marriage; in favor of the wife, for habitual drunkenness of the husband, if not existing at the time of the marriage within the knowledge of the wife; for pregnancy of the wife, in favor of the husband, at the time of marriage and without his knowledge or agency; and in favor of the wife for actual violence committed upon her by the husband, attended with danger to life or health, or when from his conduct there is reasonable apprehension of such violence; in favor of either party when the other has become addicted after marriage to habitual drunkenness, and in favor of the wife when the husband has become addicted after marriage to the habitual use of opium, morphine, cocaine, or other like drugs.

Pending suit for divorce, the court must make an allowance for the support of the wife out of the estate of the husband, having regard to the estate and the condition in life of the parties. When the divorce is granted, if the wife has no separate estate, or if it be insufficient for her maintenance, the chancellor must decree the wife an allowance out of the estate of the husband, taking into consideration the value thereof and the condition of his family; and when the divorce is for the misconduct of the husband, the allowance must be as liberal as the condition of his estate and family will permit.

Appeals can only be taken from decrees of divorce within sixty days, and neither party can remarry within this time. (Code of Ala. §§ 2869-3811.)

Dower. — The widow is entitled to dower of all lands of which the husband was seized in fee during the marriage, or to which another was seized in fee to his use, or to which at the time of his death he had a perfect equity, having paid the purchase-money thereof.

The quantity of her dower interest is as follows: When the husband dies leaving no lineal descendants, and his estate is solvent, one half of all his lands for life; if his estate is insolvent, or he leaves lineal descendants, one third part thereof. (Code of Ala. § 3812 et seq.) For relinquishment of dower, see Deeds.

Evidence. — See Testimony.

Executions. — An execution is not a lien on real estate unless the judgment or decree has been registered in the county where the land lies, and is a lien upon such personal property only as is actually levied upon. An execution on a registered judgment may issue at any time within ten years from date of judgment. See Judgments. (Code, § 4093, 4158.)

Executions issue from justice's court after five days, returnable not less than thirty nor more than sixty days; from city court ten days after judgment; from circuit court any time within twenty days after close of term. Executions may be issued from any court instant, after judgment on affidavit by plaintiff, his agent or attorney, that he is in danger of losing fruit of his judgment. See Stay of Execution; Redemption.

Exemptions. — The personal property of any resident of this State, to the value of one thousand dollars, to be selected by such resident, shall be exempted from sale on execution or other process of any court issued for the collection of any debt contracted since the 13th day of July, 1868. Every homestead, not exceeding eighty acres of land, the dwelling and appurtenances thereon, to be selected by the owner, and not in a city, town, or village, or in lieu thereof, at the option of the owner, any lot in a city, town, or village, with the dwelling and appurtenances thereon, owned and occupied by any resident of the State, and not exceeding the value of two thousand dollars, shall be exempted from sale on execution, or any other process from a court, for any debt contracted since the 13th day of July, 1868. The right of exemption hereinbefore secured may be waived by an instrument in writing, and, when such waiver relates to realty, the instrument must be signed by both husband and wife, and attested by one witness.

Such exemption does not extend to any mortgage lawfully obtained; but such mortgage or other alienation of such homestead, by the owner thereof, if a married man, shall not be valid without the voluntary signature and assent of the wife of the same. The homestead of a family, after the death of the owner, is exempt from the payment of debts contracted since the 13th of July, 1868, in all cases during the minority of the children; or if the owner dies leaving a widow and no children, the same shall be exempt for her benefit, and the rents and profits thereof shall inure to her benefit.

This exemption does not extend to cases of laborers' liens for work done and performed for the person claiming such exemptions, or on a mechanic's lien for work done on the premises.

Exemption by Statute. (Code of Ala. § 4164 et seq.) — The personal property of any resident of this State, to the value of one thousand dollars, to be selected by him. The homestead of every resident, not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres of land, and appurtenances thereon, not exceeding two thousand dollars in value, owned and occupied by such resident, to be selected by the owner thereof, or, in lieu thereof, any lot in a city, town, or village, with the dwelling and appurtenances thereon, said lot not to exceed two thousand dollars in value. This exemption does not prevent a laborer's lien for work done and performed for the person claiming an exemption, nor a mechanic's lien for work done on the premises. No mortgage or other alienation of any homestead exempted by this act, by the owner thereof, if a married man, shall be valid without the voluntary signature and assent of the wife acknowledged before an officer authorized by law to take acknowledgments of deeds. (See Deeds.) The wages, salaries, or compensation of laborers, and all employees for personal service, to the amount of twenty-five dollars per month, are exempt. The homestead of a family, not exceeding in value two thousand dollars, if in any city, town, or village, and not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres in quantity and two thousand dollars in value, when the same is not in any city, town, or village, after the death of the owner thereof, and personal property to the value of one thousand dollars, of any resident of this State, male or female, after his or her death, is exempt from the payment of debts, provided such decedent, if a man, leaves surviving him a widow or minor child, and, if a woman, leaves surviving her a minor child or children. In addition to the exemptions heretofore allowed, there are the further exemptions of the wearing apparel of the deceased, the wearing apparel of the widow and children, all yarn and cloth on hand intended for their use and consumption, the family bible and books, all family portraits and miniatures, and such grain, stores, and groceries on hand as may be necessary for the subsistence of the family for twelve months, all of which is to be set apart by three disinterested persons, to be selected, two of them by the widow, if there be one, and one by the judge of probate, and, if there be no widow, then by three such persons to be appointed by the judge of probate, and turned over to the family forever free from administration and the debts of the deceased; and any live stock necessary for the subsistence of the family may be killed for their use at any time before the final settlement of the estate.

Where an inheritance descends to several, they take as tenants in common.

If a married woman having a separate estate die, the husband is entitled to one half of the personalty of such estate absolutely, and to the use of the realty during life — unless he has been deprived of all control over it by decree of the chancery court.

Divorce. — The court of chancery and other courts having chancery jurisdiction have power to divorce persons from the bonds of matrimony, or from bed and board, upon bill filed in chancery, by the aggrieved party, for the causes following: For impotency; for adultery; for voluntary abandonment from bed and board for two years next preceding the filing of the bill; for imprisonment in the penitentiary for two years, the sentence being for seven years or longer; for the commission of the crime against nature, with mankind or beast, whether before or after marriage; in favor of the wife, for habitual drunkenness of the husband, if not existing at the time of the marriage within the knowledge of the wife; for pregnancy of the wife, in favor of the husband, at the time of marriage and without his knowledge or agency; and in favor of the wife for actual violence committed upon her by the husband, attended with danger to life or health, or when from his conduct there is reasonable apprehension of such violence; in favor of either party when the other has become addicted after marriage to habitual drunkenness, and in favor of the wife when the husband has become addicted after marriage to the habitual use of opium, morphine, cocaine, or other like drugs.

Pending suit for divorce, the court must make an allowance for the support of the wife out of the estate of the husband, having regard to the estate and the condition in life of the parties. When the divorce is granted, if the wife has no separate estate, or if it be insufficient for her maintenance, the chancellor must decree the wife an allowance out of the estate of the husband, taking into consideration the value thereof and the condition of his family; and when the divorce is for the misconduct of the husband, the allowance must be as liberal as the condition of his estate and family will permit.

Frauds, Statute of. — Our statute is substantially the same as the English statute, except that purchase or sale of personal property to any amount by parol is not within the statute. Bankers, factors, consignees, attorneys, common carriers, or any other agent who fraudulently converts or secretes any money, property, or effects received by virtue of such employment are indictable for embezzlement. (Code of Ala. § 4287 et seq.)

Garnishment. — An attachment may be executed by summoning any person indebted to the debtor to answer how much he is or will be indebted to such debtor by any contract then existing, or what property he has in his possession or under his control belonging to such debtor. Judgment creditors, and, in any cause where summons and complaint have issued, the plaintiff, may obtain garnishment process against any one indebted to or having in his possession, or under his control, property, real or personal, upon making affidavit that such process is necessary, and executing bond as in attachment cases, but no bond is required when garnishment is issued on a judgment.

Provisions as to requirements of bonds in attachment suits apply to garnishment proceedings. The affidavit must state, if the garnishment issues on a judgment, that the garnishee is supposed to be indebted to, or have effects of, the defendant in his possession or under his control, and that plaintiff believes process of garnishment against such person to be necessary to obtain satisfaction of such judgment. When garnishment issues on summons and complaint the affidavit must state, in addition to the above facts, the amount due from the defendant to the plaintiff. Debtor may execute bond and discharge garnishment.

Attachments may be executed by garnishing any person indebted to, or having in his possession, or under his control, property belonging to defendant. The plaintiff, his agent or attorney, may make the affidavit required in process of garnishment.

Inheritance Taxes. — No inheritance tax in this State.

Insolvent Laws. — There are no insolvent laws in this State, except the laws regulating the administration of the insolvent estates of deceased persons, whereby it is provided that during the progress of any suit against an executor or administrator he may, at any time before judgment, plead specially that the estate has been declared insolvent, and in such case the other issue must be tried and judgment rendered thereon; and if such judgment is for the plaintiff, and it is shown to the court that such estate has been declared insolvent, the court must make an order to the effect that no execution issue on such judgment, but that the same be certified to the proper probate court; and if after judgment the estate is declared insolvent, the clerk or register of the court, in which judgment was rendered, must certify such judgments to the proper probate court, and no execution shall issue against the executor or administrator personally. See Executions.

Interest. — The rate of interest on all contracts, open accounts, judgments, and decrees is eight per cent. per annum. The principal only can be recovered by law on usurious contracts when usury is pleaded. In such cases, defendant recovers full costs. (Code of Ala. § 4619 et seq.)

Judgments. — Any judgment or decree of court of record becomes a lien on property of defendant in any county of this State for ten years, when a certificate of clerk or register of the court wherein such judgment was rendered is filed with probate judge of the county and registered by him, showing the court which rendered the same, the amount of same and costs, date of rendition, the names of parties, and plaintiff's attorney, with date of filing. Such registration is notice to all persons of the existence of such lien. (Code of Ala. §§ 4156, 4157.) See Executions.

Judgments are proved by a certified transcript, and the mode of proof is not regulated by statute.

Where service has been perfected by leaving a copy of the summons and complaint with the defendant twenty days or more before the return day of the process, judgment may be rendered at the first term to which the summons is made returnable. If the term of the court is but one week, the defendant must within the first day of the term file plea or demurrer to the complaint, and when term more than one week by noon of second day. In justices' courts, which are not courts of record, and which have jurisdiction in civil cases to the amount of one hundred dollars, judgment may be had after three days' notice. See Service.

License. — Commercial travelers, resident or non-resident, are subject to no tax. Any person acting as agent of a foreign insurance company which has not obtained a license is subject to heavy penalties. Corporation upon formation must pay license. See Corporations.

Liens. — Landlords and their assignees have liens on crops grown on the rented premises, for rent for the current year and for supplies and materials furnished the tenant; and for removal of the crop without paying the rent and without consent of the landlord, attachment may issue. (Code of Ala. § 4734.)

Landlords of storehouses, dwelling-houses, and other buildings have a lien for rent on the goods, furniture, and effects of the tenant, superior to all other than a lien for taxes. The lien can be enforced by attachment, when the tenant has fraudulently disposed, or is about fraudulently disposing, of his goods, or has made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors, or a transfer of all or substantially all of his goods, without payment of the rent for the term, and without the consent of the landlord; or, when the rent shall become due, he fails or refuses, on demand, to pay the same, or any installment thereof. A transferee of the claim for rent has a like lien and the like remedy for its enforcement. (Code of Ala. § 4747.)

Every mechanic, firm, association, corporation, or other person who shall do or perform any work or labor upon, or furnish any material, fixtures, engine, boiler, or machinery for, any building, article, or improvement on land, or for altering, repairing, or beautifying the same under or by virtue of any contract with the owner or proprietor thereof, or his agent, architect, trustee, contractor, or sub-contractor, upon complying with the provisions hereafter set out, shall have a lien therefor on such building, article, or improvement, and on the land on which the same is situated, to the extent in ownership of all the right, title, and interest owned therein by such owner or proprietor, and in area of the entire lot or parcel of land, if in a city, town, or village; or if employees of a contractor, or persons furnishing material to him, shall extend only to the amount of any unpaid balance due the contractor by the owner or proprietor; and such employees and material-men shall also have a lien on such unpaid balance. But if the firm, person, or corporation, before furnishing any such material or articles, shall notify the owner or his agent in writing that such certain specified materials or articles will be furnished by him to the contractor for use in the building or in the improvements of the owner at certain specified prices, unless he, the owner, or his agent, objects thereto, the furnisher of such materials or articles shall have his lien for the full price thereof specified in the notice to the owner as provided herein, regardless of whether the amount of the claim for such article or material so furnished exceeds such unpaid balance or not, unless, on the notification above provided being given, the owner or his agent shall notify such furnisher in writing, before the materials or articles are used, that he will not be responsible for the price thereof. Such lien as to the land shall have priority over all other liens, mortgages, or incumbrances created subsequently to the commencement of work; and as to the building or improvement, it shall have priority over all other liens, mortgages, or incumbrances; and the person entitled to such lien may, when there is a prior lien, mortgage, or incumbrance on the land, have it enforced by a sale of the building or improvement, and the purchaser may within a reasonable time thereafter remove the same. When the building or improvement is on leased premises, the lien attaches likewise to such building or improvement and to the unexpired term of the lease; but the lessor of such premises shall have the right to discharge such lien, or to prevent the removal of the building or improvement to which the lien has attached, by paying the value of the same. It shall be the duty of every original contractor within six months, and of every journeyman and day laborer within thirty days, and of every other person entitled to such lien within four months after the indebtedness has occurred, to file in the office of the judge of probate of the county in which the property upon which the lien is sought to be established is situated, a statement in writing, verified by the oath of claimant or of some other person having knowledge of the facts, containing a just and true account of the demand secured by the lien, after all the just credits have been given, a description of the property on which the lien is claimed, and the name of the owner or proprietor thereof, and no error in amount or name of the owner or proprietor shall affect the lien; and unless such statement is so filed the lien shall be lost. If the oath to such statement is made beyond this State, it may be administered by any officer authorized to take acknowledgments and proofs of conveyances beyond this State. The date of filing of such claim shall be indorsed on the statement by the judge of probate and the same shall be recorded. When the land on which the building or improvement is situated is not in a city, town, or village, and exceeds in area one acre, any person having a lien, or his personal representative, may at any time prior to filing his statement in the office of the judge of probate select the one acre which shall be subject to the lien; such selection to include the site of such building or improvement and the lands contiguous thereto, and to constitute but one lot or parcel. Every person except the original contractor who may wish to avail himself of the provisions of this act shall, before filing his statement in the office of the judge of probate, give ten days' notice in writing to the owner or proprietor, or his agent, that he claims a lien on such building or improvement, setting forth the amount thereof, for what and from whom it is owing; and after such notice, any unpaid balance in the hands of the owner or proprietor shall be held subject to such lien; but this provision shall not apply to any materials or articles furnished the owner of which he was notified as provided in the first part of this act. The original contractor shall, when so required, furnish to the owner or proprietor a complete list of all the material-men or others who might have a lien under this act, and, if he fails or refuses to do so, he shall thereby forfeit his right to a lien hereunder. When the amount involved exceeds fifty dollars, actions for the enforcement of such liens may be brought in the circuit court, or court of like jurisdiction, or in the chancery court of the county in which the property is situated; in all other cases, such actions shall be brought before justices of the peace. Liens under this act shall be deemed lost unless suit for the enforcement thereof is commenced within six months after the maturity of the entire indebtedness secured thereby. (Code of Ala. § 4754 et seq.)

Limitations. — Within twenty years, upon a judgment or decree of any court of the State of Alabama, of the United States, or of any State or Territory of the United States. Within ten years, actions founded on any contract or writing under seal, for the recovery of lands, tenements, hereditaments, or the possession thereof; motions and other actions against sheriffs, coroners, constables, and other public officers for nonfeasance, misfeasance, or malfeasance in office. Within six years, actions for trespass to person or liberty, such as false imprisonment or assault and battery, or to real or personal property, for the detention or conversion of personal property; on a promise in writing not under seal, or for the recovery of money upon a loan; upon a stated or liquidated account, or for arrears of rent due upon a parol demise for the use and occupation of land; motions or other actions against the sureties of any public officer, or actions against the sureties of executors, administrators, or guardians for any misfeasance or malfeasance whatever of their principal; the time computed from the act done or omitted by their principal which fixes the liability of the surety; motions and other actions against attorneys at law for failing to pay over money of their clients, or for neglect or omission of duty; any action upon a judgment of a justice of the peace of this State; any action arising from simple contract or specialty, not herein specifically enumerated; all actions founded on equities of redemption, where lands have been sold under a decree of the chancery court, existing in any person not a party to the proceedings, who claims under the mortgagor or grantor, in a deed of trust, within five years. Within four years, all actions or motions against any security to any writ of error, appeal, replevin, or forthcoming bond, executed in any cause, in any of the courts of the United States, or in any other State or country except the State of Alabama. Within three years, actions to recover money due on an open or unliquidated account, computing the time from the date of the last item of the account, or from the time when, by contract or usage, the account is due. An open account, within the meaning of the statute, is one in which some term of the contract is not settled by the agreement of the parties, whether the account consists of one or of many items. The account is regarded as affected by the statute, when there are running or current dealings between the parties, which remain unclosed in the expectation of further transactions. Within two years, action by representative for death by wrongful act. Within one year malicious prosecutions; for criminal conversation, for the seduction of a female, or breach of marriage promise; for a penalty given by statute to the party aggrieved, unless the statute imposing it prescribes a different limitation; for libel or slander; against steamboats and other watercraft commenced by attachment; for any injury to the person or rights of another not arising from contract and not herein specifically enumerated.

The statute of limitations, according to the decision of the supreme court of the State, was suspended during the late war waged between the States of the Federal Union, from the 11th day of January, 1861, to the 21st day of September, 1865.

Infants, insane persons, and persons imprisoned for a term less than life on a criminal charge, have three years after arriving at age, or the removal of the disability, to bring suit, make entry or defense. No action can be commenced after the lapse of twenty years from the accrual of the cause of action. (Code of Ala. § 4846 et seq.)

When any person is absent from the State during the period within which a suit might be brought against him, such period or periods of time must not be computed as a portion of the time necessary to create a bar. (Code of Ala. § 4844.)

The bar created by the statute cannot be removed, except by a partial payment made upon the contract before the bar is complete, or an unconditional promise in writing.

Married Women. — All property of wife at marriage, or to which she may become entitled afterwards, is her separate property and not subject to the liabilities of the husband. The earnings of wife are her separate estate but she is not entitled to compensation for services for husband or family. All damages she may recover for injury to person or property are her separate estate. Husband not liable for contracts made or torts committed before marriage; wife remains liable as if sole. Husband not liable for wife's contract after marriage, nor for torts committed by her, unless he participates; wife alone is liable for contracts made by her as if she were sole. Wife has full legal capacity to contract as if sole, except she shall not directly or indirectly become surety for her husband. Wife must sue alone at law or equity, and be sued alone upon all contracts made by her, or torts committed. Wife cannot alienate or mortgage lands or interest therein without husband joining in conveyance or mortgage. Exception: If husband be non compos, has abandoned wife, is a non-resident of the State, or imprisoned under a two years' sentence, wife may alienate or mortgage her lands as if sole. Personal property may be disposed of by husband and wife by parol or otherwise. If living apart without fault upon her part, or husband non compos, wife disposes of it as if sole. Husband and wife may contract directly with each other, but all transactions between them are subject to rules of law as to persons in confidential relations. Wife cannot directly or indirectly become the surety of the husband. All property of the wife acquired in any manner, and from any person, is her separate estate, subject to the provisions of this act. Exception; Property conveyed to an active trustee for her benefit. Married woman may by will dispose of her separate estate.

The wife, having no separate estate where the husband dies leaving no lineal descendant, and his estate solvent, is entitled to be endowed of one half; or, if he leaves lineal descendants, or his estate insolvent, one third of all lands the husband died seized in fee simple, or to which another was seized for his use, or to which at the time of his death he had a perfect equity, having paid the purchase-money. If she have a separate estate which, exclusive of rents, income, and profits, is equal to, or greater in value than her dower, interest, and distributive share in her husband's estate, estimating her dower interest in his land at seven years' rent of the dower interest, she is not entitled to dower in, or distribution of her husband's estate. If her separate estate is less than such dower, interest, and distributive share, estimated as above, she is entitled to so much as will make it equal.

A woman attains her legal majority at the end of twenty-one years. She may marry without the consent of her parents at the age of eighteen years. Marriage by any woman in the State under twenty-one but over eighteen years of age removes the disability of minority. Contract as to real property by alien married woman has same effect as though she were a resident married woman.

Mechanics' Liens. — See Liens.

Mortgages. — Mortgages are executed and acknowledged in the same manner as deeds. Usually they contain a power of sale authorizing foreclosure without the intervention of the court, by publication of a notice. They may be foreclosed upon failure to pay any portion either of principal or interest, if there be a provision in the mortgage to that effect. They may also be foreclosed by a bill in equity. There are two years for redemption allowed in each case. A woman cannot mortgage her separate estate for the purpose of subjecting it to sale for the payment of the husband's debt. Upon payment of the debt secured by a mortgage the mortgagee must upon request in writing from the mortgagor or his assignee enter satisfaction of the mortgage on the margin of the record within sixty days, under penalty of two hundred dollars. Upon all instruments executed to secure any indebtedness there shall be paid the sum of fifteen cents for each one hundred dollars of said indebtedness or portion thereof, as a tax, and said tax must be collected by the judge of probate before the instrument is allowed to be recorded. (Acts 1907, p. 455.) See Chattel Mortgages; Trust Deeds.

Notaries Public. — Notaries public are appointed by the governor for each county for terms of four years. Removal from county vacates office and governor may remove. They have authority (1) to administer oaths; (2) to take acknowledgments or proof of instruments relating to commerce or navigation; (3) to demand payment of and protest paper governed by commercial law; (4) to exercise such other powers as by the laws of the State or commercial law belong to notaries public. They are required to keep a seal and register. (Code of Ala. § 5162.)

Justices of the peace may act as notaries public, but their certificates must show there was no notary capable of acting. (Code of Ala. § 5172.)

Notaries may also take acknowledgments and proof of conveyances, administer oaths, and take and certify affidavits. No seal is affixed in the State, except on request of a party. (Code of Ala. § 5173.)

Notaries public can act only within their counties.

Notes, Bills of Exchange, etc. — The uniform negotiable instrument law recommended by the American Bar Association is now the law of this State. (Code of Ala. § 4958 et seq.; Acts 1909, p. 126.)

Sunday, Christmas Day, the 1st day of January, Robert E. Lee's birthday the 19th day of January, the 22d day of February, Thomas Jefferson's birthday the 3d day of June, the 4th day of July, the first Monday in September, and the day designated by the governor for public thanksgiving, shall each be deemed a holiday. If any one of these holidays falls on Sunday, the Monday following is the holiday. If any paper entitled to days of grace, by the allowance thereof, or subject to protest, becomes due on a holiday, it must be taken as due on the next succeeding business day. (Code of Ala. § 5144.)

All bonds, contracts, and writing for the payment of money or other thing, or the performance of any act or duty, are assignable by indorsement, so as to authorize an action thereon by each successive indorsee. (Code of Ala. § 5158.)

All contracts and writings, except bills of exchange, promissory notes, payable in money at a bank or private banking house, and paper issued to circulate as money, are subject to all payments, set-offs, and discounts had or possessed against the same previous to notice of the assignment or transfer.

Damages on bills of exchange, whether foreign or inland, for non-acceptance or non-payment, are five per cent. on the sum drawn for. (Code of Ala. § 5145.)

If a note provides for the payment of attorney's fees, the fees are recoverable just the same as the principal, and entered up with the principal in the same judgment.

Judgment notes are not allowed.

Practice. — Practice is regulated by statute, rules prescribed by the supreme court, and, when these do not apply, by the common law. Pleading is very much simplified, and the right of amendment is large.

Proofs of Claims. — In all actions on accounts an itemized statement of the articles constituting the account and the charges made therefor, verified by the affidavit of a person who would be a competent witness on the trial of the cause, made before an officer authorized to take affidavits, that the account is true and correct, and that the amount thereof is due and unpaid, and filed with the clerk or justice of the court in which the action is brought, must be received and read in evidence on the trial of the cause, as if the same were proved by the deposition of the witness, unless within the time allowed by law for pleas to be filed the defendant appear and file an affidavit denying the correctness of the account, or his liability thereon. The complaint in such actions must set forth that the amount claimed is due on an account verified by affidavit, the amount of the claim, and when the same was due. (Code of Ala. § 3970.)

Records. — All conveyances of real property, deeds, mortgages, deeds of trust, or instruments in the nature of mortgages, to secure any debts, are inoperative and void as to purchasers for a valuable consideration, mortgagees, and judgment creditors, without notice unless the same have been recorded before the accrual of the right of such purchaser, mortgagees, or judgment creditors. (Code of Ala. § 3383.)

Redemption. — Where real estate, or any interest therein, is sold under execution, or by virtue of any decree in chancery, or under any deed of trust, or power of sale in a mortgage, the same may be redeemed by the debtor, his vendee, junior mortgagee, or assignee of the equity or statutory right of redemption, wife, widow, child, heir at law, devisee, or his vendee or assignee of the right to redeem under this Code, from the purchaser, or his vendee, within two years thereafter, if, on demand of the purchaser or his vendee, possession of the land is delivered by the debtor within ten days after the sale thereof. The debtor to redeem must pay, or tender to the purchaser or his vendee, the purchase-money, with ten per cent. per annum thereon, and all other lawful charges; and such payment or tender has the effect to reinvest him with the title; and if conveyance has been made to the purchaser, he must, at the cost of the debtor, convey to him such title as he acquired by the purchase.

All judgment creditors of the debtor, who without fraud or collusion had obtained such judgment before the sale of the land, or within two years thereafter, except by confession of the debtor, may redeem the land by paying or tendering the amount bid for such land at the sale and ten per cent. per annum thereon, with all lawful charges, and offering to credit a subsisting judgment with a sum equal to ten per cent. of the amount originally bid. (Code of Ala. § 5746 et seq.) See Tax Laws.

Replevin. — The requirements of bonds in cases of replevy of property, as to sureties, are the same as bonds in attachment suits, supra.

The defendant in attachment, or, in his absence, a stranger, may replevy personal property attached, by giving bond with surety in double amount of the demand. (Code of Ala. § 2955.)

If the defendant in attachment is a non-resident, notice of the attachment and levy must be advertised three successive weeks, and a copy thereof sent by mail to the defendant, if his residence is known or can be ascertained. (Code of Ala. § 2931.)

The action of replevin has never been of use in the State. The action for the recovery of chattels in specie, corresponding to the common law action of detinue, given by statute, is an equivalent remedy to prevent the removal of chattels, or to compel their restoration.

Revision. — Code of 1887 went into effect December 1, 1887, Code of 1896 went into effect February 17, 1898, and Code of 1907 went into effect May 1, 1907.

Sales in Bulk. — Sales of merchandise in bulk, or substantially in bulk, are presumed to be fraudulent as against creditors unless five days before the sale an inventory is made and the name of every creditor is given and notice has been given in person or by mail to each creditor. (Acts 1911, p. 947.)

Service. — All civil actions for the recovery of anything whatever in courts of record must be commenced by service of summons, to be issued by the clerk, accompanied by the complaint of the plaintiff, signed by him or his attorney, and to be served by the sheriff or other officer. In order that a cause may stand for trial, the summons must be executed by the sheriff or other officer at least twenty days before the return day thereof (which is the first day of the court); if less than three days before the return day, it must be returned to the next term of court. (Code of Ala. § 5296 et seq.)

In the chancery courts, some of the circuit courts, and nearly all the city courts defenses must be made within thirty days after the service of summons, and the cause then stands for trial. In the circuit and city court, a trial by jury, unless demanded by the plaintiff, is waived by the defendant, unless demanded when defenses are filed.

Stay of Execution. — Judgments rendered before a justice of the peace may be stayed as follows: by the production of good security in the payment thereof, namely, on all sums less than twenty dollars, thirty days; over twenty dollars, for sixty days. If unpaid, execution issues against all parties to such undertaking; defendant cannot stay the issue of execution from circuit court. The plaintiff may do so, but he loses priority of lien, if other liens in the mean time are obtained. The defendant, by executing bond in double the amount of the judgment, and taking an appeal to the supreme court, can delay the collection of the judgment until its affirmance by the supreme court, but for this he is compelled to pay legal interest and ten per cent. damages as well as all cost of the appeal.

Tax Laws. — (Code of Ala. § 2313 et seq.) — When land is sold for taxes, the collector gives the purchaser a certificate of purchase, containing a description of the land, showing that the land was assessed, to whom assessed, the date of assessment, for what years taxes were due, the amount of the taxes, forfeitures, fees, and costs; that it was advertised, and how long it was offered for sale, and at what time; who became the purchaser and at what price.

Land sold for taxes may be redeemed at any time before the expiration of two years from the date of sale, by the owner, mortgagee, or any person having a beneficial interest therein, by depositing with the judge of probate of the county in which said land was sold the amount of purchase-money and a penalty of fifteen per cent., and interest on the purchase-money at the rate of eight per cent. per annum from the date of sale, cost of the certificate of purchase, all taxes on such land which have accrued subsequently to the sale and one dollar to the judge; land of an infant or lunatic, when sold, may be redeemed at any time within one year after the removal of such disability, upon satisfactory evidence of ownership. Upon redemption, the judge of probate gives the person redeeming, if other than the State, a certificate of redemption containing substantially the same statements as the certificate of purchase.

To lands remaining unredeemed immediately after the expiration of two years from the sale, the probate judge then in office shall make a deed and deliver the same to the purchaser upon the return of the certificate of purchase and the payment of one dollar for the deed. In all controversies and suits in relation to the rights of the purchaser, such deed is prima facie evidence of the facts recited therein. Taxes are assessed for state and county purposes as of October 1 of each year. The returns are required to be made by the taxpayer to the tax assessor, and the assessment is required to be finished by February 1, and a tax-payer becomes delinquent if he has not made his assessment by February 1; after such date five per cent. is added to the value by the assessor, as a penalty. The assessor is required to deliver the assessment roll to the judge of probate by the first Monday in May. After May 1 the back tax commissioner can assess all property not assessed, for which he receives ten per cent. of the tax thereon, to be collected from tax-payer. All taxes become due October 1 and are delinquent January 1, after which they draw interest at eight per cent. per annum.

Testimony. — In suits and proceedings before any court or officer, other than criminal cases, there must be no exclusion of any witness because he is a party, or interested, except that neither party shall testify against the other as to any transaction with or statement by any deceased person, whose estate is interested in the result of the suit, or when such deceased person at the time of such transaction or statement acted in any representative or fiduciary relation to the party against whom such testimony is sought to be introduced. (Code of Ala. § 4007.) See Depositions. Courts of law may on motion and due notice thereof require parties to produce at the trial books or writings in their possession which contain evidence pertinent to the issue in cases and under circumstances where they might be compelled to produce the same by the ordinary rules of proceedings in chancery. (Code of Ala. § 4058.)

Trust Deeds. — Mortgages of real or personal property are usually executed with powers of sale. Such powers of sale can be executed by an assignee or personal representative of any person who by assignment or otherwise becomes entitled to the money secured. Deeds of trust are in use, and in many respects are more available, especially for non-residents.

Wills. — Every person twenty-one years old and of sound mind may devise all his interest in lands, and all persons over eighteen years, and of sound mind, may bequeath all of their personal property "to any person or corporation capable by law of holding real estate." (Code, § 6152.) No will is effectual (except nuncupative wills, by which only five hundred dollars' worth of personal property can be bequeathed) unless the same is in writing (if properly executed, a typewritten will would undoubtedly hold), signed by the testator, or some person in his presence, and by his direction, and attested by at least two witnesses, who must subscribe their names thereto in the presence of the testator. Wills are executed out of the State in the same way as within the State. They are recorded in the office of the judge of the probate court. (Code of Ala. § 6172 et seq.)

ALASKA LAWS.

Messrs. A. R. & R. W. Heilig, of Fairbanks.

The acts of Congress relating to Alaska are contained in the Compiled Laws of the Territory of Alaska, being Senate Document No. 1093, compiled, codified, arranged, annotated, and published under authority of the act of Congress of August 24, 1912, a copy of which can be obtained for $1.50 from the Superintendent of Public Documents at Washington. This volume contains all the statute laws of Alaska, excepting those passed by the Territorial legislature.

The next legislature convenes March 3, 1919, at Juneau.

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — The distinction between actions at law and suits in equity, and the forms of all such actions and suits, are abolished, and there shall be but one form of action for the enforcement or protection of private rights and the redress or prevention of private wrongs, which is denominated a civil action. However, in actions of an equitable nature both issues of law and fact shall be tried by the court. Every action must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest; an assignee of a claim may sue in his own name. An action is commenced by filing a complaint with the clerk of the court; to bar limitations summons must also be issued. The summons is issued by the court or clerk and is served by the marshal or any deputy or by a person specially appointed by the marshal, court, or judge, or by any adult other than plaintiff, by delivering to defendant a copy of the summons and a certified copy of the complaint. In actions in the district court, the defendant, if served within the Territory, is required to appear and answer within thirty days thereafter. The attorney for a non-resident plaintiff, or foreign corporation, is liable for defendant's costs, if the latter prevail, unless before judgment an undertaking with sureties is filed or money deposited with the clerk in lieu thereof. If summons cannot be served personally within the Territory, service may be made by publication in certain cases like divorce, foreclosure, attachment, etc. When publication is ordered, personal service of a copy of the summons and complaint out of the Territory shall be equivalent to publication.

Affidavits. — An affidavit or deposition taken out of Alaska, otherwise than upon commission, must be authenticated as follows: (1) It must be certified by a commissioner appointed by the governor of Alaska to take affidavits and depositions in the State, Territory, District, or country where taken; or (2) it must be certified by a judge of a court of record having a clerk and a seal to have been taken and subscribed before him at a time and place therein specified, and the existence of the court, the fact that such judge is a member thereof, and the genuineness of his signature, must be certified by the clerk of the court, under the seal thereof.

Aliens. — Any alien who is a bona fide resident of the United States, or who has declared his intention to become a citizen, or whose rights are secured by treaty, may acquire and hold lands upon the same terms as a citizen. Any alien may acquire lands by inheritance or in the ordinary course of justice in the collection of debts, and may acquire and enforce liens upon lands, but such lands must be sold within ten years. Any alien may also acquire and hold lots or parcels of land in any incorporated or platted city, town, or village, or in any mine or mining claim, but is not authorized to acquire title from the United States to any of the public lands. (Act of March 2, 1897, 29 Stat. L. 618.)

Appeals — From judgments in justice's court, in civil actions when the sum in controversy is not less than fifty dollars, in cases of forcible entry and unlawful detainer, in criminal cases tried by the justice, or by a municipal magistrate for violation of city ordinance, and from orders and decrees of the probate judge, an appeal lies to the district court. From final judgments in the district court appeals and writs of error may be taken and sued out (1) direct to the supreme court of the United States in prize causes and in all cases which involve the construction or application of the Constitution of the United States, or in which the constitutionality of any law of the United States, or the validity or construction of any treaty made under its authority is drawn in question, or in which the constitution or law of a State is claimed to be in contravention of the Constitution of the United States; and (2) to the United States circuit court of appeals for the ninth circuit in all criminal cases, and in all other civil actions where the amount or value in controversy exceeds five hundred dollars, whose judgment is final. The latter court may certify any proposition of law which has arisen in a case to the supreme court of the United States, which shall give binding instructions upon the proposition. An appeal to the circuit court of appeals may also be taken from any interlocutory order granting or dissolving or refusing to grant or dissolve an injunction, or appointing a receiver. Appeals and writs of error from final orders and judgments must be taken or sued out within one year after their entry; and from interlocutory orders within thirty days from their entry. There is no appeal from judgments in divorce cases. Appeals may be heard in San Francisco, Portland or Seattle.

Arrest. — The defendant may be arrested in the following civil actions: 1. For the recovery of money or damages, when the defendant is about to remove from the Territory with intent to defraud his creditors; for an injury to person; or for willfully injuring or wrongfully taking, detaining, or converting property. 2. For a fine or penalty; or for money or property embezzled or fraudulently misapplied or converted to his own use by a public officer, or by an attorney, or by an officer or agent of a corporation in the course of his employment as such, or by any agent, broker, or other person in a fiduciary capacity; or for any misconduct or neglect in office or in a professional employment. 3. To recover the possession of personal property unjustly detained, when the property or any part thereof has been concealed, removed, or disposed of, so that it cannot be found or taken by the marshal, and with intent that it should not be so found or taken, or with the intent to deprive the plaintiff of the benefit thereof. 4. When the defendant has been guilty of fraud in contracting a debt, or incurring the obligation for which the action is brought, or in concealing or disposing of the property for the taking, detention, or conversion of which the action is brought. 5. When the defendant has removed or disposed of his property, or is about to do so, with intent to defraud his creditors.

No female shall be arrested except for injury to person, character, or property.

At any time after the commencement of an action and before judgment, the plaintiff, in the discretion of the court or judge, is entitled to a writ of arrest on making and filing an affidavit that he has a sufficient cause of action and that the case is one of those above mentioned, and also making and filing an undertaking with sureties, in a sum not less than three hundred dollars and equal to the amount for which he demands judgment, conditioned that plaintiff will pay all costs adjudged and damages sustained if the arrest be wrongful or without sufficient cause, not exceeding the amount specified in the undertaking. The defendant, at any time before execution, may be discharged from arrest upon giving bail or depositing the amount mentioned in the writ, and may, upon notice to plaintiff, apply to vacate the writ or reduce the bail. To qualify as bail a person must be a resident within the Territory and worth the amount specified in the writ of arrest over and above all debts and liabilities, and exclusive of property exempt from execution; but no counselor or attorney at law, marshal, deputy marshal, commissioner, clerk of any court, or other officer of any court may become bail. Surety companies may act as bail. The marshal is liable as bail for an escape. Payment of cost of maintenance of defendant may be required in advance of plaintiff, and such expense may be taxed as costs.

Assignments. — There is no statutory provision relative to assignments for the benefit of creditors, other than the National Bankruptcy Act.

Attachment. — The plaintiff, at the time of issuing the summons or afterwards, may have the property of defendant attached in an action upon a contract, express or implied, for the direct payment of money, and (1) which is not secured by mortgage, lien, or pledge upon real or personal property, or, if so secured, when the security has been rendered nugatory by the act of the defendant; or (2) against a non-resident defendant. The writ issues whenever the plaintiff, or any one in his behalf, files an affidavit showing that defendant is indebted to plaintiff (specifying the amount of indebtedness over and above all legal set-offs or counter-claims) upon a contract, express or implied, for the direct payment of money; that the payment has not been secured by mortgage, lien, or pledge upon real or personal property; and that the sum for which attachment is asked is an actual, bona fide, existing debt due and owing from plaintiff to defendant; and that the attachment is not sought nor the action prosecuted to hinder, delay, or defraud any creditor of the defendant. Plaintiff must also file an undertaking, with one or more sureties, in a sum not less than one hundred dollars, and equal to the amount for which he demands judgment, conditioned that plaintiff will pay all costs adjudged and all damages sustained by reason of the attachment if the same be wrongful or without sufficient cause, not exceeding the amount specified. Affidavits of sureties must also be filed showing that together they are worth double the sum specified in the undertaking over all debts and liabilities and property exempt from execution. Sureties must have qualifications of bail upon arrest. Property attached may be returned to defendant upon an undertaking to redeliver or to pay the demand. All property of defendant in the district not exempt from execution, including rights or shares in the stock of any association or corporation, together with the interest and profits thereon, debts not due, and property bailed, is liable to be attached.

If property attached is claimed by any person other than defendant, by proper affidavit, the marshal may release it unless plaintiff indemnifies him by bond with two sureties; if action be brought against the marshal for wrongful taking, the plaintiff and sureties may be impleaded with him, and if judgment be rendered against him execution shall first exhaust the property of his co-defendants before that of the marshal or his sureties on his official bond can be sold.

Chattel Mortgages. — Any interest in personal property, capable of being transferred, may be mortgaged; but the mortgage is void as against creditors and subsequent purchasers and incumbrancers in good faith and for value, unless possession of the property be delivered to and retained by the mortgagee or the mortgage provide that the property may remain in the possession of the mortgagor and be accompanied by the affidavit of all the parties thereto that the same is made in good faith to secure the amount named therein, and without design to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors, and be acknowledged and filed. The mortgage must be acknowledged by the mortgagor as a conveyance of real property is and be filed in the office of the recorder of the precinct where the mortgagor resides and of the precinct where the property is. Within thirty days next preceding the expiration of one year from the filing a true copy of the mortgage, with a verified statement of the interest of the mortgagee in the property at the time the same is renewed, must be filed in the office where the original was filed, and the lien is thereby extended another year. Chattel mortgages are foreclosed in the same manner as mortgages and liens upon real property, but a clause may be inserted in a mortgage authorizing the marshal to execute the power of sale therein granted to the mortgagee. At such sale the mortgagee may purchase. If the mortgagor, during the existence of the lien of the mortgage, sell the property mortgaged without informing the purchaser of the existence of the mortgage, he forfeits twice the value of the property sold.

Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons — Are payable in the following order: (1) Funeral charges; (2) taxes of whatever nature due the United States; (3) expenses of last sickness; (4) all other taxes of whatever nature; (5) debts preferred by the laws of the United States; (6) debts which at the death of the deceased were a lien upon his property or any right or interest therein according to the priority of their several liens; (7) debts due employees of decedent for wages earned within the ninety days immediately preceding the death of the decedent; (8) all other claims against the estate. The executor or administrator is required, immediately after his appointment, to publish a notice thereof for four weeks or more, requiring all persons having claims against the estate to present them, with the proper vouchers, within six months from the date of such notice, to the executor or administrator; a claim not presented within that time, if not barred by the statute of limitations, may be presented at any time before administration has been completed, but claims presented during the first six months will first be paid in full. Every claim presented must be verified by some one who has personal knowledge of the facts, to the effect that the amount claimed is justly due, that no payments have been made thereon except as stated, and that there is no just counter-claim to the same; written evidence of the claim, if existing, must be presented or its non-production accounted for. If the administrator allows the claim, he shall pay it in due course of administration; if he rejects it, the claimant may present it to the probate judge or to the district court, upon thirty days' notice to the administrator, which court determines the matter in a summary manner without jury trial. No claim rejected by the administrator can be allowed except upon competent or satisfactory evidence other than the testimony of the claimant. When a claim has been disallowed, an action may be commenced against an executor or administrator at any time after the expiration of twelve months from the granting of letters of administration and until the final settlement of the estate and discharge of the administrator.

Conditional Sales. — The "Uniform Law of Sales," adopted by a number of the States, went into effect January 2, 1914.

Corporations. — The Alaska legislature passed an act entitled "Uniform Business Corporation Act," effective January 2, 1914, which provides that three or more adults, two thirds of whom are bona fide residents of Alaska, may form a stock corporation for any lawful business purposes, whose chief business shall be in Alaska, except for the purpose of banking, insurance, brokerage, loan, trust, and guaranty associations; the articles of incorporation shall be made in triplicate, signed by each incorporator, acknowledged by at least three of them, one to be filed in the office of the secretary of the Territory, one with the clerk of the district court of the judicial division in which is intended to be located the principal place of business of the company; the articles must contain the name, indicating that it is a corporation, unlike that of any other domestic or foreign corporation doing business in the Territory; the purpose for which formed; capital stock and how to be paid in; what proportion if any is preferred stock and its preferences; the number of shares, par value of which shall not be less than one dollar, nor more than one hundred dollars; location of principal place of business in the Territory; period of duration if limited; highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which it shall at any time be subject; number of directors, not less than three, with names and post-office address of those selected for the first year; time and place of holding its annual meeting of stockholders; names and residence of those forming the corporation; other provisions regulating the conduct of its affairs, limiting its powers, and those of the directors and stockholders. The articles may be amended by a majority of the stockholders at a regular meeting. The corporation has the usual powers. Transfers of stock are provided for in a "Uniform Stock Transfer Act." Two or more kinds of stock may be created, but preferred stock outstanding shall not exceed two thirds of the capital stock paid for, and may be made subject to redemption at any time after three years from issue, at not less than par; dividends on preferred stock are limited to eight per cent., and may be made cumulative.

No stock shall be issued except for money, labor, or property estimated at its true money value. After sixty days' notice, personally or by mail, to stock subscriber, for failure to pay an installment of the subscription, the directors may forfeit the stock and reissue, or receive new subscriptions for it. Stockholders shall meet annually, and are entitled to one vote, in person or by proxy, for each share held by them; in elections of officers or directors they have the right of cumulative voting. The holder of stock is personally liable to creditors for the amount unpaid on his stock, but except in case of insolvency or bankruptcy proceedings no action can be brought against a stockholder for a debt of the corporation until after judgment against the corporation and return of an unsatisfied execution.

The business shall be managed by not less than three directors, each owning at least one share of stock, elected by the stockholders and taking an oath of office. Vacancies in the board, except by removal, are filled by appointment by the directors. The officers are a president, who must be a director, a secretary, and a treasurer, and other officers, agents, and employees who may be removed at the pleasure of the directors.

If the bonded indebtedness exceeds the amount of the unimpaired paid-in capital stock, or if stock or bonds be issued for property at more than cash value in the reasonable judgment of the directors, or if dividends be made other than from net profits, or if capital be reduced under the guise of loan to stockholders, or if any report, statement, or public notice be not made as required by law or be materially false, the directors assenting thereto shall be jointly and severally liable to creditors for loss or damage arising therefrom, and the officers as well in case of reports, statements, and public notices required by law.

The district court has jurisdiction over the directors and officers, including those of foreign corporations admitted to do business in the Territory, to compel them to account for their official conduct and management; to compel payment by them to the corporation and its creditors of money and property acquired by them or transferred to others, or lost or wasted by mismanagement; to suspend from office any officer or director for abuse of trust; and to remove him upon proof or conviction of gross misconduct; to direct new elections to supply vacancies created by removal at which the person removed or suspended is ineligible; to restrain alienation of property by them if apparently a fraud on the company. The United States attorney of the judicial division or the attorney-general of the Territory may bring actions to invoke foregoing powers of the court.

Stockholders may make by-laws, or vest the power in the directors by the articles of incorporation, and may amend them by majority vote at any regular or special meeting called for such purpose.

The corporation must keep correct books of account in its office, open to any stockholder for inspection within five days of demand therefor; a stock-book open for inspection by them at all times; fifty dollars fine is imposed for each day inspection is refused.

By a two-thirds vote of all the stock the stockholders may amend the articles, and increase or decrease capital stock.

Within thirty days after the time fixed for the annual meeting of stockholders, the corporation must file with the secretary of the Territory, and publish in a newspaper published nearest its place of business, a verified report showing amount and actual issue of capital stock; amount of debts, assets, and names and addresses of all directors and officers. If this be not done, and such failure be continued for ten days after written request by a creditor or stockholder to do so, the officers are liable to a penalty of fifty dollars per day during such neglect or refusal, recoverable by the aggrieved creditor or stockholder.

The majority of the directors, with the consent of two thirds in interest of the stockholders, may dissolve the corporation. Two thirds in interest of the stockholders may also petition the court for a decree of dissolution. Where a corporation is adjudged insolvent, or a return of nulla bona upon execution has been made, or it has suspended its ordinary and lawful business for at least one year, or is a party to an illegal combination in restraint of trade, an action for dissolution may be brought by a United States district attorney, or the attorney-general or by a creditor or stockholder if they fail to bring an action in thirty days after submission of a verified statement of the facts to them.

In case of insolvency or suspension of its ordinary business for want of funds to carry on the same, a receiver may be appointed upon the petition of a creditor or stockholder.

Coöperative associations of not less than five members may be formed under above law to engage in mechanical, manufacturing, agricultural, dairy, mining, or other industrial pursuits. Majority of incorporators must be residents of Alaska. Five directors required. Each member has one vote regardless of interest. Earnings apportioned thus: dividends not exceeding eight per cent. on paid-up capital stock; then ten per cent. for sinking fund; then five per cent. for educational funds to teach coöperation; balance to stockholders.

The legislature of Alaska also passed an act, effective July 1, 1913, providing for the incorporation of colleges, seminaries, churches, libraries, or other benevolent, fraternal, social, religious, educational, charitable, or scientific associations whose chief business shall be in the Territory of Alaska. It may be a joint stock company; if not, its articles must contain terms of admission to membership. The interests of members are equal. Fee for filing articles five dollars.

Fees and Taxes. — The legislature also passed an act, effective July 1, 1913, requiring a domestic or foreign corporation to pay a filing fee of twenty-five dollars; for filing amendments to articles, ten dollars; for filing appointment of agent of foreign corporation, five dollars; for certified copies of articles, amendments, or appointments, or any other docu-leave a husband and issue, the husband receives one half of the residue, and the whole if no issue; (b) if intestate leave a widow and issue, the widow receives one half of the residue, and the whole, if no issue. If there be no husband, widow, or kindred of the intestate all the residue escheats to the Territory of Alaska.

Advancements are not considered a part of intestate's estate in computing the part to be given to the widow, but are so considered so far as regards the division and distribution thereof among his issue. An illegitimate child may inherit or receive the property of his mother, but cannot inherit or receive property as representing his mother. If an illegitimate child die intestate leaving neither husband, widow, nor lawful issue, his property descends to his mother. An adopted child takes and inherits property the same as if he had been born to the parents by adoption, except as to property expressly limited to heirs of the body of the parent by adoption; but he may not take by right of representation.

Whenever any person owning property in any precinct of the Territory disappears, the commissioner of the precinct in which the property is situate may appoint a guardian of the estate upon the application of any relative who would be an heir of such missing person's estate, or of a friend or other person interested in the estate, or upon his own motion. If the missing person be not heard from for six years he is presumed to be dead and his estate administered as if deceased.

Divorce. — A marriage prohibited by law on account of consanguinity of parties, or on account of either having a former husband or wife then living, is, if solemnized within the Territory, absolutely void, and for any of such causes may be declared void from the beginning, at the action of either party. When either of the parties to a marriage was incapable of making such contract or assenting thereto for want of legal age or sufficient understanding, or if consent was obtained by force or fraud, the marriage may be declared void at the action or claim of the party laboring under the disability, or upon whom the force or fraud was imposed or practiced. If the marriage was solemnized in the Territory an action to declare it void may be maintained if the plaintiff is an inhabitant of the Territory at the commencement thereof, otherwise plaintiff must have been an inhabitant of the Territory for three years prior thereto.

The dissolution of the marriage contract may be declared at the action of the injured party for either of the following causes: (1) Impotency existing at the time of the marriage and continuing to the commencement of the action; (2) adultery; (3) conviction of felony; (4) willful desertion for the period of two years; (5) cruel and inhuman treatment calculated to impair health or endanger life; (6) habitual gross drunkenness contracted since marriage and continuing for one year prior to the commencement of the action. Plaintiff must be an inhabitant of the Territory at the commencement of the action and for two years prior thereto. Neither party may marry a third person until the action is determined upon appeal or the time for taking an appeal has expired. No appeal from decree lies. (156 Fed. 473.)

Residence and all causes for divorce shall be determined by the court upon evidence adduced in open court. If duly ordered, service of summons may be made by publication of not less than six weeks and mailing copy of summons and complaint to defendant, if non-resident; defendant shall answer within thirty days after completion of period of publication; when publication is ordered, personal service of a copy of the summons and complaint out of the Territory is equivalent to publication and mailing.

Dower and Curtesy. — The widow of every deceased person is entitled to dower, or the use during her natural life of one third part in value of all the lands whereof her husband died seized of an estate of inheritance.

When any man and his wife are seized in her right of any estate of inheritance in lands, the husband, on the death of his wife, holds the lands for his life as tenant thereof by the curtesy, although such husband and wife may not have had issue born alive.

Evidence. — No person may be excluded as a witness on account of being a party or interested in the event of an action or proceeding, having been convicted of a crime, or his opinions on matters of religious belief. Persons of unsound mind and children under ten years of age who appear incapable of receiving just impressions of the facts respecting which they are examined or of relating them truly may not be witnesses. A husband or wife cannot be examined for or against the other without the other's consent, nor can either at any time be examined as to communications made by one to the other during marriage, but the exception does not apply to an action or proceeding by one against the other or when a crime has been committed by one against the other. An attorney may not, without his client's consent, be examined as to communications made by his client to him or his advice thereon. A priest may not, without the consent of the person making the confession, be examined as to any confession made to him in his professional capacity, in the course of discipline enjoined by the church to which he belongs. A physician or surgeon may not, against the objection of his patient, be examined, in a civil action, or proceeding, as to information acquired in attending the patient which was necessary to enable him to prescribe or act.

Adverse possession of real property for seven years is conclusively presumed to give title thereto except as against the United States.

Private seals, and scrolls as a substitute therefor, are abolished, but the effect when used remains unchanged.

Executions. — See Judgment and Execution.

Exemptions. — 1. Earnings of judgment debtor, for personal services rendered within sixty days next preceding the levy of execution or attachment, when necessary for the use of his family supported in whole or in part by his labor. 2. Books, pictures, and musical instruments owned by any person, to the value of seventy-five dollars. 3. Necessary wearing apparel owned by any person for the use of himself or family, but watches or jewelry exceeding one hundred dollars in value are not exempt. 4. The tools, implements, apparatus, team, vehicle, harness, or library necessary to enable any person to carry on the trade, occupation, or profession by which such person habitually earns his living, to the value of five hundred dollars; also sufficient quantity of food to support such team, if any, for six months; the word "team" being construed to include not more than one yoke of oxen, or a span of horses or mules, or two reindeer, or six dogs. 5. The following property, if owned by the head of a family and in actual use or kept for use by and for his family, or when being removed from one habitation to another on a change of residence: Ten sheep with one year's fleece or the yarn of cloth manufactured therefrom; two cows and five swine; household goods, furniture, and utensils to the value of three hundred dollars; also food sufficient to support such animals, if any, for six months, and provisions actually provided for family use and necessary for the support of such person and family for six months. 6. The seat or pew occupied by the head of a family or his family in a place of public worship. 7. All property of any public or municipal corporation. No article, or the proceeds derived from its sale or exchange, is exempt from execution on a judgment recovered for its price.

Homestead. — The homestead of any family, or the proceeds thereof, is exempt. Such homestead must be the actual abode of, and owned by such family or some member thereof, and not exceed two thousand five hundred dollars in value, nor exceed one hundred and sixty acres in extent if not located in a town or city laid off into blocks or lots, or if located in any such town or city, one fourth of an acre. This exemption does not apply to decrees for the foreclosure of any mortgage properly executed; but if the owners of such homestead be married, the mortgage must be executed by husband and wife.

Garnishment. — See Attachment.

Insolvent Laws. — None. The National Bankruptcy Act applies.

Interest. — The legal rate of interest is eight per cent., but on contracts interest at the rate of twelve per cent. may be charged by express agreement of the parties. If usurious interest has been received or collected, the party paying the same, or his legal representatives, may, by action brought within two years, recover double the amount of such interest. If it is ascertained in any action upon contract that an unauthorized rate of interest has been contracted for, judgment must be rendered against the defendant for the amount due, without interest, and against the plaintiff for costs. If the rate contracted for is eight per cent. or less, the debtor may also agree to pay the taxes upon the debt, credit, or mortgage.

Judgment and Execution. — A judgment is docketed immediately after entry. At any time thereafter while execution may issue a certified transcript of the docket may be filed in the office of the recorder of any recording district, and from the date of docketing a judgment or transcript thereof the judgment is a lien upon all the real property of the defendant within the recording district or districts where docketed, or which he may afterwards acquire therein during the time an execution may issue. If no execution issues within ten years the lien expires, but is renewed if afterwards leave is given to issue execution and a transcript of the docket of the order docketed with the recorder. The judgment of a commissioner's court is not a lien upon real property, but a transcript of such judgment, if for more than ten dollars exclusive of costs, may, within one year after entry, be docketed with the clerk of the district court, and thereupon becomes a lien upon real property as if it were a judgment of the district court.

Execution may issue at any time within five years from the entry of the judgment, and thereafter on order of the court made on motion of the party in whose favor the judgment was given. Such motion must be subscribed and verified as a complaint, and summons must be served upon the judgment debtor or his representatives, to which he or they may demur or answer. The order made must be docketed as a judgment. Execution may be against the property of the judgment debtor, his person, or for the delivery of the possession of real or personal property or such delivery with damages. Execution from the district court is returnable within sixty days; from the commissioner's court within thirty days. Until a levy property is not affected by the execution.

If personal property levied on be claimed by a stranger, the marshal may summon six jurors to try such claim on five days' notice to plaintiff. The verdict shall be a full indemnity to the marshal proceeding in accordance therewith, but shall not preclude claimant from suing to recover possession of the property or for damages for taking it. Even if verdict is for claimant, the marshal must sell if given proper indemnity by plaintiff. If then claimant sues the marshal on the indemnity bond, the sureties and plaintiff must be joined, and execution on any judgment must first be levied against the marshal's co-defendants.

Redemption. — When real property is sold upon execution, unless the estate is less than a leasehold of two years' unexpired term, any lien creditor may redeem within sixty days from the date of the order confirming the sale, on paying the purchase-money, interest, and taxes, and the property may be again redeemed, and as often as any lien creditor or redemptioner may be disposed to redeem, on like conditions. The judgment debtor may redeem prior to confirmation of sale or within twelve months thereafter.

Supplementary Proceedings. — After the issuing of the execution, upon proof to the satisfaction of the court or judge that the judgment debtor has property liable to execution which he refuses to apply toward the satisfaction of the judgment, he may be ordered to appear before the court or judge or a referee and be examined under oath in regard to the same. If it appear that there is such property it shall be ordered applied toward the satisfaction of the judgment or levied upon. An order may also be made restraining the disposition of such property, and disobedience to such order is punishable as a contempt. Instead of the order requiring the attendance of the judgment debtor before the court, judge, or referee for examination, if it be shown that there is danger of the debtor leaving the Territory or concealing himself therein, and that there is reason to believe he has property which he unjustly refuses to apply to the judgment, he may be arrested and brought before the judge or court and examined upon oath, and if the facts just mentioned are proved he may be ordered to enter into an undertaking with one or more sureties that he will from time to time attend before the court or judge, as may be directed, and that he will not, during the pendency of the proceedings, dispose of any of his property not exempt from execution. In default of such undertaking he may be committed to jail.

Liens. — Every mechanic, artisan, machinist, builder, contractor, lumber merchant, laborer, teamster, drayman, and other person performing labor upon or furnishing material of any kind to be used in the construction, development, alteration, or repair, either in whole or in part, of any building, wharf, bridge, flume, ditch, mine, tunnel, fence, machinery, or aqueduct, or any structure or superstructure, has a lien upon the same for the work or labor done or material furnished at the instance of the owner of the building or other improvement or his agent; and every contractor, sub-contractor, architect, builder, or other person having charge of the work, in whole or in part, is, for this purpose, deemed the agent of the owner. The land upon which any building or other improvement is constructed, together with a convenient space about the same, or so much as may be required for the convenient use and occupation thereof, and the mine on which the labor was performed or for which the material was furnished is also subject to a lien, if at the beginning of the work or furnishing of materials the land belonged to the person who caused the building or other improvement to be constructed, altered, or repaired. If such person owned less than a fee-simple estate, then only his interest is subject to the lien. Such lien is preferred to any lien, mortgage, or other incumbrance which attaches subsequent to the time when the building was commenced, or which is unrecorded at that time; and such lien upon any building or other improvement is preferred to all prior liens, mortgages, or other incumbrances upon the land, and in enforcing the lien the building may be sold separately and the purchaser may remove the same within thirty days.

Every original contractor, within ninety days after the completion of his contract, and every other person within sixty days after ceasing to labor or furnish materials must file with the recorder of the precinct in which the building is situated a verified statement of his claim. Suit to enforce the lien must be brought in the district court within six months after the filing of the claim, or if credit be given, within six months after the expiration of such credit; but no lien may be continued in force for a longer time than one year from the time the work is completed by any agreement to give credit. A similar lien upon any lot within the Territory is given to any person who grades, fills in, or otherwise improves the same or the street upon which it abuts. If the proceeds of sale on foreclosure are insufficient to pay all lienholders, the liens of all persons other than the original contractor (and sub-contractors) are first paid in full, then of the sub-contractors, and the remainder is paid to the original contractor. No payment made to the original contractor or sub-contractors before thirty days from the completion of the building discharges the lien of any laborer or material-man unless such payment has been actually distributed among the laborers and material-men. Materials furnished are not subject to attachment or execution on account of any debt of the laborer or material-man furnishing the same, except for the purchase price.

A person bestowing labor on an article of personal property at the request of the owner, a common carrier, warehouseman, or agister, has a lien upon the property upon which he has bestowed labor, care, or attention, or to which he has furnished food, for his reasonable charges, and may retain possession until his charges are paid. If such charges are not paid within thirty days the lienor may proceed to sell the property at public auction, first giving three weeks' notice of the sale. A person performing labor upon saw-logs, spars, piles, or other timber, or permitting another to go upon his timber land and cut the same, has a lien for the work done or the purchase price, but notice of the lien must be filed within thirty days and suit be brought to foreclose the lien within six months after the filing of the notice.

An attorney has a lien for his compensation upon the papers and money of his client in his possession, money in the hands of the adverse party from the time of giving notice of the lien, and upon a judgment to the extent of the costs, or, if there be a special agreement, to the extent of the compensation agreed upon, upon giving notice to the clerk and the adverse party.

Every person performing labor in, on or about a mining claim, has a lien upon the mine, mining machinery, pipe line, dredge, etc., therefor. If the mine is worked by a lessee, the owner may avoid the lien upon his property by recording the lease and posting three notices in conspicuous places on the mining claim, stating that he will not be responsible for any debts contracted by the lessee, but the lien remains upon the leasehold interest and the mineral extracted. The lien must be filed in thirty days after quitting work and continues for six months from filing, when suit must be brought, or, if credit is given, within six months after the expiration of credit, not exceeding one year from time work is completed. A duly recorded mortgage is prior to foregoing lien, so far as subsequent labor or materials is concerned.

Limitations. — Civil actions must be commenced within the following periods after the cause of action accrued: Within ten years: action for the recovery of real property, or the possession thereof; upon a judgment or decree of any court of the United States, or of any State or Territory within the United States; upon a sealed instrument. Within six years: action upon a contract or liability, express or implied, except judgment or sealed instrument; upon a liability created by statute, other than a penalty or forfeiture; for waste or trespass upon real property; for taking, detaining, or injuring personal property, including an action for the specific recovery thereof. Within three years: action against a marshal, coroner, or constable, upon a liability incurred by the doing of an act in his official capacity or in virtue of his office, or by the omission of an official duty, including the non-payment of money collected upon execution, but not an action for an escape; action upon a statute for penalty or forfeiture, where the action is given to the party aggrieved, or to such party and the United States, except the statute prescribe a different limitation. Within two years: action for libel, slander, assault, battery, seduction, false imprisonment, or for any injury to the person or rights of another not arising on contract; upon a statute for a forfeiture or penalty to the United States. Within one year: action against the marshal or other officer for the escape of a person arrested or imprisoned on civil process; upon a statute for the penalty given in whole or in part to the person who will prosecute, but if not commenced within one year by private party may be within two years by the United States. Cause of action upon open, mutual, and current account is deemed to have accrued from the date of the last item. The time that one against whom a cause of action exists is out of the Territory or concealed within is no part of the time limited. Persons insane, within the age of twenty-one years, or imprisoned for less than life when the cause of action accrued may commence suit within two years after disability ceases. A case is taken out of the statute by a promise or acknowledgment in writing signed by the party charged or by payment of principal or interest. If cause of action arose outside of the Territory between non-residents of the Territory, and is barred where the cause of action arose, no action may be maintained in the Territory.

Married Women. — The property and pecuniary rights of every married woman at the time of marriage, or afterwards acquired by gift, devise, or inheritance, or by her own labor, are not subject to the debts or contracts of her husband, and she may manage, sell, convey, or devise the same by will to the same extent and in the same manner that her husband can property belonging to him. For civil injuries damages may be recovered from a married woman alone, and her husband is not responsible therefor. Contracts may be made by a wife, and liabilities incurred, and the same enforced by or against her to the same extent and in the same manner as if she were unmarried. All laws which impose or recognize civil disabilities upon a wife which do not exist as to the husband are repealed. Wife may record list of her property and such list is prima facie evidence of her separate ownership, and property not so registered is deemed prima facie the property of the husband. Neither husband nor wife is liable for the debts or liabilities of the other incurred before marriage. Husband and wife may make conveyances and transfers and create liens between themselves, and either may constitute the other his or her attorney in fact. A woman becomes of age at twenty-one or upon being married according to law.

Mortgages. — Mortgages are executed, acknowledged, and recorded in the same manner as deeds. No covenant is implied for the payment of the sum intended to be secured. Record of assignment is not notice to the mortgagor, his heirs, or personal representatives. Mortgage may be discharged by entry in margin of record signed by mortgagee or his personal representative or assignee and witnessed by the commissioner or deputy, or by certificate executed and acknowledged as other conveyances. Foreclosure is by action of an equitable nature in which judgment is given for amount of debt, costs and attorneys' fees, property mortgaged is ordered sold and proceeds applied upon account of judgment: execution may issue against other property for balance.

Notaries Public — Are appointed and commissioned by the governor of the Territory for a term of four years, and their jurisdiction extends throughout the Territory. Each notary is required to provide and keep a seal having engraved thereon the name of the Territory, the words "Notary public," his surname, and at least the initials of his Christian name, and has authority to demand payment of bills of exchange and promissory notes, and to protest the same for non-acceptance and non-payment, a protest under his hand and seal being prima facie evidence of the matters therein stated; and may also exercise such powers and duties as by the law of nations and according to commercial usages or by the law of any State, government, or country may be performed by notaries, and shall keep a record of such acts and may give certified copies of such records. A notary also has authority to administer oaths and to take affidavits and depositions, and to take acknowledgments of deeds and other instruments in writing and to give a certificate thereof, under his hand, indorsed or attached to such instruments. At the expiration of his term of office, all his official records are to be deposited with the clerk of the district court for the division within which he resides, and thereafter such clerk may give certified copies of such records, and the official character of a notary is certified by such clerk.

The notary must indorse after his official signature the date of the expiration of his commission.

Notes and Bills of Exchange. — The "Uniform Negotiable Instruments Act," adopted, by most of the States, is in force.

Practice. — See Actions.

Proof of Claims sent for Collection. (See Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.) — If action be brought and claim is denied in verified answer, it must be proved by deposition of competent witness if none can attend trial. Defendant's deposition may be taken by plaintiff before trial in nature of discovery.

Recording of Deeds. — An unrecorded conveyance of real property is void as against any subsequent innocent purchaser in good faith and for a valuable consideration whose conveyance is first duly recorded. A commissioner is ex-officio recorder of a recording district, the boundaries of which are fixed by the court. Conveyances of lands not in any recording district are recorded with the clerk of that division of the district court within the limits of which such lands are situated.

Unless a conveyance of real property be recorded at the time of docketing a judgment against the grantor, it is void as against the lien of the judgment. All instruments shall be recorded in the recording district in which the property or subject matter affected by the instrument is situated.

Redemption. — See Judgment and Execution.

Replevin. — The plaintiff, at any time after the commencement of an action to recover the possession of personal property and before judgment, may claim the immediate delivery of such property upon filing an affidavit showing that he is the owner of the same or entitled to the possession thereof; that the property is unlawfully detained by defendant; the alleged cause of detention; that the same has not been taken for a tax assessment or fine, pursuant to a statute, or seized under an execution or attachment against the property of the plaintiff; or, if so seized, that it is exempt; and the actual value of the property. The plaintiff may thereupon, by indorsement upon the affidavit, require the marshal to take the property from the defendant and deliver it to him. Upon receipt of the affidavit and indorsement and an undertaking, with two or more sufficient sureties, for the return of the property to defendant, if return be adjudged, and the payment of such sum as for any reason may be recovered against plaintiff, the marshal shall take the property into his possession and serve upon defendant a copy of the affidavit, indorsement, and undertaking. Defendant may except to the sureties within three days, and at any time before delivery to plaintiff require the return of the property upon giving an undertaking with two or more sufficient sureties for the delivery thereof to plaintiff, if delivery be adjudged, and the payment of such sum as may for any cause be recovered against him. If return is not so required within three days the property must be delivered to plaintiff. Undertaking must be for double the value of the property, and sureties must have qualifications of bail upon arrest.

Reports, Judicial. — Four volumes of reports of decisions by the district judges of Alaska have been published by West Publishing Company of St. Paul, Minnesota, compiled by James Wickersham, formerly judge of the third and fourth divisions, and now delegate to Congress from Alaska.

Revision of Laws. — See first paragraph of this abstract. The first session of the territorial legislature convened at Juneau, the capital, on March 3, 1913, the second on March 1, 1915, the third on March 5, 1917. The laws passed by it are contained in three volumes and can be obtained from the secretary of the Territory at Juneau for five dollars each.

Sales in Bulk. — Purchaser of stock of goods in bulk must, before paying or giving obligation for purchase price demand from vendor sworn statement of names and addresses of, and amounts due, creditors. Unless purchase price is applied pro rata to the payment of creditors such sale is void.

Service of Summons. — See Actions.

Supplementary Proceedings. — See Judgment and Execution.

Taxes. — Every person or corporation prosecuting or attempting to prosecute any of the following lines of business within the Territory must first apply for and obtain license so to do from the district court or a subdivision thereof and pay per annum for such license for the respective lines of trade and business as follows: Salmon canneries four cents per case; salmon salteries, ten cents per barrel; fish oil works, ten cents per barrel; fertilizer works, twenty cents per ton; freight and passenger transportation lines, propelled by mechanical power on inland waters and ocean and coastwise vessels doing local business for hire, one dollar per ton on net tonnage; tramways, ten dollars per mile; saw-mills, ten cents per thousand feet on lumber sawed; quartz mills, three dollars per stamp; mercantile establishments and manufactories doing a business of under four thousand dollars per annum, ten dollars, and in proportion to the amount of business done to five hundred dollars for establishments doing a business of one hundred thousand dollars per annum; in other lines of trade and business the amount is fixed for each and ranges from ten to five hundred dollars. Licenses are issued by the clerk of the division of the district court within the limits of which the business is to be carried on, upon the order of the court. No assessments are made and no report required other than the statements contained in the applications for license. Any person or corporation doing business without first having paid for the license required is deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction is fined; for the first offense, a sum equal to the license required, for the second offense, a sum equal to twice the license required, and for the third offense, three times the license required and imprisonment for not less than thirty days nor more than six months. Each day business is done without a license constitutes a separate offense. A wholesale liquor license costs two thousand dollars and retail licenses from five hundred to one thousand dollars according to the population of the place in which the business is to be carried on. (Sale of intoxicating liquor after December 31, 1917, prohibited by Congress.) The amounts received from all kinds of licenses are paid into the treasury of the United States, except that in incorporated towns the amount collected therein may be returned to the municipality for municipal purposes. Incorporated towns may also impose and collect poll taxes and taxes on real and personal property, possessory rights and improvements; and a license tax on different lines of business, but no property tax shall exceed two per centum of the valuation; and no bonded indebtedness is authorized. From municipal assessments appeals lie to the district court. By municipal ordinance, taxes may be made a lien upon the real and personal property of the person against whom they are levied, and in such case the exemption laws are not applicable. (Act of April 28, 1904.)

Municipal taxes become due at the times fixed by municipal ordinance. Federal licenses are issued for one year and may be issued by the court at any time.

The territorial legislature passed an act, effective August 1, 1917, providing for taxation on lines of business, most of them not included in foregoing act of Congress; providing for a license tax on attorneys at law, doctors, and dentists, ten dollars per annum; automobiles for hire, five dollars per annum; bakeries, fifteen dollars per annum; electric light and power plant, selling light and power to the public, one half of one per cent. of the gross receipts in excess of twenty-five hundred dollars; employment agencies collecting fees from employees, five hundred dollars per annum; salmon canneries, four and one half cents per case on King and Reds or Sockeyes, two and one half cents per case on medium reds, two cents per case on all others; two and one half cents per hundred pounds on all fish salted or mild cured except herring; fixed or floating and "dummy traps," one hundred dollars per annum; cold-storage plants, ranging from five hundred dollars per annum, on a business of one hundred thousand dollars or more per annum, to ten dollars per annum on a business under four thousand dollars per annum; laundries doing a business of over five thousand dollars per annum, and less than ten thousand dollars, fifty dollars per annum; from two thousand dollars to five thousand dollars, twenty-five dollars per annum; over ten thousand dollars, seventy-five dollars per annum; meat markets, ranging from ten dollars per annum for a business of ten thousand dollars per annum, to five hundred dollars per annum for a business of over two hundred thousand dollars per annum; mining, one per cent. of net income in excess of five thousand dollars, net income being cash value of output less operating expenses, repairs, and betterments actually done; ocean and coastwise vessels doing business for hire plying in Alaska waters, registered in Alaska and not registered elsewhere in the United States, and not paying a tax or license elsewhere, and freight and passenger lines propelled by mechanical power registered in the Territory, and not paying a license or tax elsewhere in the United States, and river and lake steamers and barges, as well as transportation lines doing business wholly within the Territory, one dollar per ton on net tonnage, custom-house measurement of such vessel; telephone companies, one half of one per cent. of gross receipts in excess of fifteen hundred dollars; waterworks selling water or power to the public, one half of one per cent. of gross receipts in excess of twenty-five hundred dollars; public messengers, twenty-five dollars per annum; fish oil works, two dollars per barrel; fertiliser from herring, two dollars per ton.

The territorial legislature also passed an act, effective April 30, 1913, providing for taxation by municipal corporations, limited to two per cent. of the assessed valuation. Provision is made for the annual assessment and levy of taxes. Assessments are based upon the actual cash value of the property. Delinquent tax rolls are published four weeks, and thereafter, on a date specified in the notice, they are presented to the district court, which makes an order of sale of the real property. Such sale is by public auction held in the town after four weeks' published notice in a newspaper, or, if there be none, then by posting in three places for thirty days. Real property is sold to the highest bidder and is subject to redemption for two years from date of sale. Certificates of sale bear interest at fifteen per cent. per annum, and entitles the holder, from date of issuance until redeemed, to possession of the tract sold, together with the rents, issues, and profits thereof. Redemption is made by paying the amount of the purchase price, penalty, interest, and costs and all accruing taxes paid by the purchaser. If there be no redemption, the clerk of the town issues a deed to the holder of the certificate. Should the town become purchaser at the sale, it may issue a certificate thereafter to any person who will pay to it the taxes, accrued interest, penalty, and costs.

There is also imposed a poll tax of four dollars per year upon each male person between twenty-one and fifty years of age, within the Territory, with certain exceptions. These are payable to the commissioner of the precinct in which the person resides, between the first Mondays in April and August; the commissioner transmits his receipts to the territorial treasurer. Non-payment of this tax is a misdemeanor punishable by fine or imprisonment.

Testimony. — See Evidence.

Trust Deeds. — No statute.

Wills. — Every person of twenty-one years of age, of sound mind, may dispose of all his or her property by will, saving a widow's dower and a husband's rights as tenant by the curtesy. Will must be in writing, signed by the testator, or under his direction, in his presence, and attested by two or more competent witnesses subscribing their names in the presence of the testator. A will by an unmarried person is revoked by his subsequent marriage. Children or descendants of children not named or provided for in the will take as if testator had died intestate. A mariner at sea or soldier in military service may dispose of his personal property as at common law. Proof of nuncupative will must be made within six months, and the words or their substance reduced to writing within thirty days after they were spoken. A person owning property in, but not an inhabitant of, the Territory may devise or bequeath the same according to the laws of his domicile. If such will be probated without the Territory, copies of the will and the probate thereof, certified by the clerk of the court in which it was probated, with the seal of the court affixed thereto, if there be a seal, together with a certificate of the chief judge or presiding magistrate, that the certificate is in due form, and made by the clerk or other person having the legal custody of the record, may be recorded, admitted in evidence, or contested and annulled as if executed and proved within the Territory.

If the will is in writing and subscribed by the testator, it is deemed legally executed and of the same force and effect as if executed according to the laws of this Territory, if it be executed without the Territory in the mode prescribed by law of the place where executed or of the testator's domicile.

Holographic wills with or without attestation shall be admitted to probate the same as other wills and be proved in the same manner as other private writings.

agent or attorney, that the statement is true, that the debt is just, and that there are no credits or offsets that should be allowed, except as shown by the statement. Creditors not consenting to assignment may garnish assignee for balance in his hands. All conveyances to defraud or prefer title vest in assignee, notwithstanding the transfer. Preferences are void. Grantee may show good faith and valuable consideration.

Attachments. — At time of filing complaint, or any time afterward, plaintiff may have property of defendant attached. The plaintiff must file his affidavit showing that the defendant is indebted to him on an express or implied contract for the direct payment of money, and that such contract was made or is payable in this State, and that the payment of the same has not been fully secured by mortgage, lien, or pledge upon personal or real property, or if originally so secured, that such security, without any fault of the plaintiff, or of the person to whom the security is given, has become valueless, and shall specify the character of the indebtedness; that the same is due the plaintiff over and above all legal set-offs or counter-claims, and that demand has been made for the payment of the amount due; or the affidavit may be that the defendant is indebted to the plaintiff, stating the amount and character of the debt, that the same is due and payable over and above all legal set-offs and counter-claims, and that the defendant is a non-resident of this State or a foreign corporation doing business in this State; or the affidavit may be that an action is pending between the parties, and that the defendant is about to move his property beyond the jurisdiction of the court to avoid the payment of judgment; that the attachment is not sought for a wrongful or malicious purpose, and that the action is not prosecuted to hinder or delay any creditor of the defendant. Upon filing such affidavit with the clerk of the court, or justice of the peace, and a bond in amount equal to claim sued for, such officer shall issue a writ of attachment. The bond must be signed by two sureties.

Clerks of the superior court and justices of the peace may issue writs of garnishment in the following cases: 1. Where an original attachment has been issued. 2. Where the plaintiff sues for debt and makes affidavit that such debt is just, due, and unpaid, and that defendant has not within his knowledge property in his possession within this State subject to execution sufficient to satisfy such debt, and garnishment is not sued out to injure either defendant or garnishee. 3. Where plaintiff has a judgment and makes affidavit that defendant has not within his knowledge property in his possession within this State subject to execution sufficient to satisfy such judgment. In case mentioned in subdivision 2, bond must be executed with two or more good and sufficient sureties in an amount equal to the debt claimed. Application for writ must be made setting forth the fact authorizing its issuance, and must be sworn to. Plaintiff may attach when debt is not due by showing, in addition to the facts necessary to be shown, when debt is due; that defendant is about to remove permanently out of the State, and has refused to secure debt; or that he has secreted his property for the purpose of defrauding creditors; or that he is about to remove his property out of the State without leaving sufficient for the payment of his debts; or that he has disposed of his property, in whole or in part, with intent to defraud his creditors; or that he is about to dispose of his property with intent to defraud his creditors, and that the attachment is not sued out for the purpose of injuring or harassing the defendant, and that the plaintiff will probably lose his debt unless such attachment is issued. No judgment to be rendered until debt shall become due.

Bills of Sale of Cattle — Must describe marks and brands, and be acknowledged before a notary public, and must be recorded.

Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons. — See Administration of Estates.

Conditional Sales. — Evidences of conditional sales should be in writing, and must be acknowledged and recorded.

Consignments. — No special statute on the subject. The Criminal Code provides as follows: "Every person intrusted with any property as bailee, tenant, or lodger, or with any power of attorney for the sale or transfer thereof, who fraudulently converts the same or the proceeds thereof to his own use, or secretes it or them with a fraudulent intent to convert it to his own use, is guilty of embezzlement."

Conveyances. — Conveyances must be in writing, subscribed and acknowledged. Community property may be conveyed by the husband only, provided that the wife must join in all deeds and mortgages of real estate, except unpatented mining claims. Either husband or wife may convey his or her separate property without the other joining in the deed.

Corporations. — Under a law effective May 28, 1912, a corporation commission was created, being made the custodian of all papers, documents, records, and reports required to be filed by domestic and foreign corporations. This commission also has very extensive powers to regulate all public service corporations and their relations with the public, and is also given supervision over all corporations, both foreign and domestic, dealing in stocks, bonds, and other securities; of all associations, copartnerships, corporations, etc., doing business as "Home Coöperative Companies," as well as of all other corporations of whatsoever nature organized or doing business in the State. The commission is also required, whenever any foreign corporation shall, without the consent of the other party to any suit or proceeding brought by or against it in any court of this State, remove such suit or proceeding to any federal court, or institute any proceeding against any citizen of the State in any federal court, to forthwith revoke the license of such company to do or transact any business within the State.

Any number of persons may form corporations for the transaction of any lawful business, with powers as follows: To provide for perpetual succession; to sue and be sued; to have a common seal and alter it; to render shares transferable and prescribe the mode of transferring; to exempt private property from liability; to make contracts, acquire and transfer property and possession as natural persons; to establish by-laws and make rules and regulations. Before commencing business a corporation must adopt articles, which shall be signed and acknowledged as deeds and filed for record in the office of the corporation commission and a certified copy thereof recorded in the office of the county recorder of the county where the principal place of business is. Articles must be published six times in county where principal place of business is located. Articles must contain: 1. Names and post-office addresses of incorporators, name of corporation, and principal place of business, and the name of the corporation must indicate the character of the business to be carried on, and not more than one corporation shall have the same corporate name. 2. COUNTY OF } ss.

Be it remembered that on this day of 19 came before me, a notary public in and for said county and State, and and upon their oaths stated that the signatures of the grantor in the foregoing deed, and of a witness thereto, are genuine, and are in the handwriting of said and respectively.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal of office, on this day of 19 . (Signature and title.)

Depositions. — Depositions may be used on the trial of all issues in any action where the witness does not reside in the county where the action is pending, or is absent from the State, or resides more than thirty miles from the place where the court sits in which the action is pending, and may be taken de bene esse, or upon reasonable notice to the adverse party, or upon interrogatories and commission.

Reasonable notice is one day for each thirty miles of travel, and one day for preparation, where the distance is one hundred miles or less, and two days when it is more.

Where the distance exceeds fifty miles, and the usual mode of travel for the whole or part of the distance is by steamboat, railway, or other public conveyance, the time ordinarily required by such mode of travel, with the days of preparation, shall be deemed sufficient in the notice.

Where more than three days' notice has been given to take a deposition out of the State, the party may, by notice to adverse party, or his attorney, served in one day after service of the first notice, require the deposition to be taken upon interrogatories. Where a deposition is taken upon interrogatories, neither the party nor his agent or attorney shall be present, unless both parties are present or represented, or unless the opposite party, or his agent or attorney, has been seasonably notified of the time and place of the examination, or the party attending has been notified by the adverse party to attend. The court has power to order that depositions taken in another county in the State shall be taken on interrogatories.

The certificate of the officer must state the time and place of taking the deposition; that the witness was duly sworn before he gave his testimony, and that his testimony was written, and read to, and subscribed by him, in the presence of the officer; and also state by whom it was written, and which of the parties, in person, or by agent or attorney, was present at the examination of the witness.

When the depositions are completed, they shall be sealed up by the officer, and directed to the clerk of the court in which the action is pending, with an indorsement thereon, showing them to be depositions, and the style of the case, and either delivered or mailed to the clerk by the officer taking them; except that depositions taken out of the State, sealed and directed as above, may be delivered to the party taking the same, his agent or attorney, to be by him delivered, such person so delivering them taking an oath that they have not been opened by him, or other person, to his knowledge.

The statement of the witness must be written in the presence of the officer taking it, either by the witness or the officer.

Depositions may be taken out of this State before a commissioner appointed by the governor thereof, a judge of a court, a justice of the peace, mayor of a city, notary public, or any other person empowered by a commission directed to him, by consent of the parties or by order of the court.

The deposition of taken on the day of 19 between the hours of eight o'clock A. M. and five o'clock P. M., at the in the city of county of and State of to be read in evidence in an action between plaintiff, and defendant pending in the court of county, Arkansas.

[Certificate.]

STATE OF }
COUNTY OF } ss.

I, a in and for said county, do certify that the foregoing deposition of was taken before me, and was read to and subscribed by him in my presence, at the time and place and in the action mentioned in the caption, the said having been first sworn by me that the evidence he should give in the action should be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, and his statements were reduced to writing by me in his presence (or by him in my presence), the plaintiff alone being present at the examination (or the defendant, or both, or neither in person, or by attorney, being present at the examination, according to the facts).

Witness my hand and seal of office, at on this day of 19 .

Where a deposition is taken out of the State before an officer having no seal, his official character should be certified by a clerk of a court of record of the county.

It is probable that it would be held under our statute that depositions can be taken in shorthand only by consent.

Descent and Distribution of Property. — Real and personal property descend, first, to children or their descendants, in equal parts; second, if there be no children, then to the father, then to the mother; if no mother, then to the brothers or sisters, or their descendants, in equal parts; third, if there be no children, father, mother, brothers, or sisters, nor their descendants, then to the grandfather, grandmother, uncles, aunts, and their descendants, in equal parts, and so on in other cases without rest, passing to the nearest lineal ancestor and their children and descendants, in equal parts. Where there are descendants of the intestate the property descends to them per capita if in equal degree and per stirpes in unequal degree. In case of real estate, if the inheritance was ancestral and came from the father's side, then it will go to the line on the part of the father, not in postponement but in exclusion of the mother's line, and e converso where the inheritance came from the mother's side. If the inheritance is not ancestral, but a new acquisition, then, after a life estate reserved in succession to the father and mother, if alive, it will go in remainder, first to the line of the intestate's paternal uncles and aunts and their descendants, in postponement of the mother's line until the former becomes extinct; and then to the line of the intestate's maternal uncles and aunts and their descendants, unless there should be kindred lineal or collateral, who either in right of propinquity or by right of representation stand in a nearer relationship to the intestate than the uncles and aunts; in which case such nearer kindred would take the inheritance to the exclusion of both of these collateral lines; and in their hands it would become an ancestral estate, and afterwards go in the blood of the relative whence it came in the ordinary course of descent prescribed for ancestral inheritances. The half blood and their descendants take personalty as well as realty, equal with the whole blood, except that they are excluded from real estate when ancestral, if they lack the blood of the transmitting ancestor. Posthumous children of the intestate inherit as if born in the life of the intestate, but other posthumous children not born at his death do not inherit from him. Illegitimate children are capable of inheriting and transmitting an inheritance on the part of the mother. Inheritances are subject to taxes varying from one to eight per cent., dependent on amount and relationship.

Divorce. — The grounds of divorce are impotency; willful desertion for one year without reasonable cause; where either party had a husband or wife living at the time of the marriage; where either is convicted of felony or other infamous crime; habitual drunkenness for one year; such cruel or barbarous treatment or personal indignity as shall render the condition of the applicant intolerable; and adultery. The pleadings are not required to be sworn to, but either party may require answers under oath to interrogatories touching any matter of property. The plaintiff must allege and prove, in addition to a legal ground of divorce, first, a residence in the State for one year next before suit brought; second, that the cause of divorce occurred or existed in this State, or, if out of the State, either that it was a legal cause of divorce in the State where it occurred or existed, or that the plaintiff's residence was then in this State; and third, that the cause of divorce existed or occurred within five years next before the commencement of the suit. The court may allow alimony ad interim and attorney's fees to the wife. On final judgment each party is restored to the undisposed-of property which he or she brought into the marriage. The court may restore to the wife her maiden name. The court may allow the wife reasonable alimony, which may be changed from time to time. Upon divorce at the wife's instance she is entitled to one third of the husband's personalty absolutely, and to one third of his lands for life.

Dower. — A widow is entitled to dower of one third of all lands of which the husband was seized of an estate of inheritance during marriage, not relinquished by her in legal form, during her life; also absolutely to one third part of the personal estate of all kinds of her husband. If the husband died leaving no children, his widow is entitled to dower of one half of the lands and one half of the personalty in her own right, if the estate be a new acquisition, as against collateral heirs; but as against creditors, to one third; and if the estate be ancestral, to one third of the personalty absolutely and a one third life estate in lands.

Evidence. — Witnesses are not excluded on account of interest. Parties may testify in all cases, except that in actions by or against executors, administrators, or guardians, in which judgment may be rendered for or against them, neither party is allowed to testify for or against the other as to any transactions with or statements of the testator, intestate, or ward, unless called to testify thereto by the opposite party. (Const., Schedule, § 2.)

Executions. — Where the execution has not been stayed, sales are made on a credit of three months, on bond and security, such bond having the force of a judgment if forfeited. Advertisement of the sale of lands shall be made for at least twenty days before sale, by posting printed advertisements at the court-house door and five other public places in the county in which the sale is to be made, one of which on the premises to be sold, and by publishing the same, for at least two insertions before the day of sale, in a weekly newspaper published in the county, if one there be. The time and place of the sale of personalty shall be advertised by posting written or printed notices at three of the most public places in the vicinity of the place of sale. Lands to be sold at the court-house door, unless the defendant request the sale to be made on the land.

Executions from the circuit court are returnable in sixty days. From justices' courts they are returnable in thirty days. See Judgments; Redemption.

Exemptions. — The exemption law is contained in the present Constitution, and is as follows: "Section 1. The personal property of any resident of this State, who is not married or the head of a family, in specific articles to be selected by such resident, not exceeding in value the sum of two hundred dollars, in addition to his or her wearing apparel, act of May 8, 1899, gives a redemption of one year from chancery foreclosure unless the right is waived in the mortgage.

Notaries Public — Are appointed by the governor for four years. Their acts must be under seal. Their jurisdiction is confined to their county, save for depositions, affidavits, swearing witnesses, and taking acknowledgments to deeds where it is coextensive with State. Official character of a notary is attested by secretary of state.

Notes and Bills of Exchange — Are governed by the uniform negotiable instruments law. Notes and bills due on Sunday, Christmas, New Year's, Washington's Birthday, Thanksgiving, June 3d, October 12th, January 19th, and the 4th of July are to be presented and protested the day before.

Practice. — The courts practice under a Code of Practice, which code is similar to the Kentucky Code.

Proof of Claims. — In suits on accounts, the affidavits of the plaintiff that the account is just and correct is sufficient to establish the same, unless the defendant shall under oath deny the correctness of the account either in whole or in part; in which case the plaintiff shall be held to prove such part of his account as is thus denied, by other evidence. Claims may be proved out of this State by an affidavit before a commissioner for Arkansas, judge of a court, mayor of a city, notary public, or justice of the peace. If made before an officer having no seal, his official character must be certified by the clerk of a court of record. Non-resident plaintiffs must in all cases give bond with security conditioned for the payment of all costs which may accrue in the action. Suits may be brought by poor persons in forma pauperis. Also see Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Redemption. — Real estate or any interest therein, when sold under execution, may be redeemed by the debtor from the purchaser, or his vendees, within twelve months after the sale, by paying to the clerk of the court where the execution issued the purchase-money; with fifteen per cent. per annum. The sheriff gives the purchaser a certificate of sale, but the purchaser is not entitled to a conveyance or possession of the premises until the time for redeeming has expired. Judgment creditors may also redeem before the expiration of twelve months from time of sale. See Tax Laws.

Replevin. — Personal property may be replevined at the time of the commencement of a suit, or at any time before judgment, by the plaintiff swearing to his ownership of it, its value, that it is wrongfully detained by the defendant, and that it has not been taken for a tax or under any order or judgment of a court, or execution or attachment against the plaintiff, or that, if it has been seized under an execution or attachment against the plaintiff, it is by statute exempt from such seizure, and that the cause of action accrued within three years. The affidavit may be made by an agent or attorney. The plaintiff must also give bond, with one or more sufficient sureties, to the defendant, conditioned that the plaintiff shall duly prosecute his action, return the property, if a return thereof be adjudged, and pay all damages that may be adjudged against him, not exceeding double the value of the property and costs. The defendant may retain the property, by giving bond, until the suit is determined.

Reports, Judicial. — Arkansas Reports from 1 to 126.

Revision. — Last revision of laws in 1904. Last revision of acts, 1907.

Sales in Bulk. — These are void unless an inventory is made ten days before, and all creditors are notified of the terms of the sale personally, or by registered mail, ten days before possession is taken by the purchaser.

Service. — In the circuit or chancery court defense must be filed the first day the court is in session: 1. Where the summons has been served twenty days at any place in the State. 2. Or thirty days out of the State. 3. Where the defendant has been served by publication thirty days. Before a justice of the peace, in actions of fifty dollars and under, the summons must be served on the defendant at least five days before the day set for trial. Where the matter in controversy exceeds fifty dollars, the summons must be served at least ten days before the day of trial.

Stay of Execution. — The defendants (except in certain cases otherwise provided) may, when there is no execution thereon in the hands of a collecting officer, stay any judgment or decree for money for six months, by giving an obligation, with good security, to be approved by the clerk, or justice of the peace, conditioned for the payment of the judgment, interest, and cost.

Any execution on a judgment or decree, which could be stayed before such execution issued, may at any time before sale of property under the same be stayed for six months, by the defendant giving to the officer an obligation, payable to the plaintiff, with good security, for the amount thereof, interest, cost, and half commission of the officers.

No stay is allowed upon a judgment or decree against any collecting officer, or attorney at law, or agent, for a delinquency or default in executing or fulfilling the duties of his office or place, or failing to pay over money collected by him in such capacity, or against a principal by his surety, or a judgment or decree enforcing a lien in favor of a vendor or mortgagee.

After the forfeiture of a stay bond no further stay is allowed.

Supplementary Proceedings. — After return of execution "no property found," the plaintiff may begin an equitable action, and compel a discovery from defendant, and may make any person supposed to have property or money due to the plaintiff a codefendant.

Tax Law. — Taxes must be paid between the first Monday in January and the 10th of April of each year next succeeding that in which they are assessed. If the taxes are not paid within the time required by law twenty-five per cent. penalty is added. Persons redeeming must pay the amount of taxes for which the land was sold, penalty, and costs, taxes afterward paid by the purchaser, and interest on these sums at the rate of ten per cent. per annum. Lands returned as delinquent for taxes may be redeemed within two years after such forfeiture. Lands delinquent are sold by the collector on the second Monday in June. When no one will bid the amount of the taxes, penalty, and costs, the lands are to be struck off to the State. Provided that minors, insane persons, and persons in confinement, shall have the same time for redemption after removal of their disabilities. Between grantor and grantee, taxes are a lien from the first Monday in December.

All taxes are ad valorem, including taxes of corporations. The state tax commission has full powers to assess railway, Pullman-car, express, and telegraph companies, except upon tangible property not part of right of way or used in conduct of business, which local assessors assess as they do other property. Railroads, right of way, and rolling-stock are assessed on first Monday in June, and reports must be filed during May with state tax commission. Pullman-car, express, private car line, and telegraph companies are assessed first Monday in July and are required to report every two years after first Monday in July, 1893. All other corporations are required to report to local assessors, who make an ad valorem assessment as upon other property. Corporations are also required to pay a small franchise tax. All taxes are payable to local collectors.

Wills. — Every person over twenty-one years old may devise realty and personalty, and all persons over eighteen may bequeath goods and chattels by last will and testament. Every will must be executed as follows: First, it must be subscribed by the testator at the end of the will, or by some person for him at his request; second, such subscription shall be made by the testator in the presence of each of the attesting witnesses, or shall be acknowledged by him to have been so made to each of the attesting witnesses; third, at the time of such subscribing or acknowledgment the testator shall declare the instrument so subscribed to be his last will and testament; fourth, there shall be at least two attesting witnesses, each of whom shall sign his name as a witness at the end of the will at the request of the testator; fifth, where the entire body and signature of the will are in the handwriting of the testator it may be established by the unimpeachable evidence of at least three disinterested witnesses to the handwriting and signature of the testator without subscribing witnesses; but no such will shall be pleaded in bar of one subscribed in due form. Nuncupative wills may be made during last illness, and must be proved by two witnesses, and are not good where the estate bequeathed exceeds five hundred dollars. A copy of a foreign will may be admitted to probate in this State if it appears by the copy of the probate in another State that it was so executed as to be a valid will of lands in this State by the laws thereof.

Wills are proved and recorded in the office of the clerk of the probate court of the county in which the testator resided at the time of his death. If he had no known place of residence in this State, and land is devised, then in the county where the land or the greater part thereof lies. If no land is devised, then in the county where he died, or that in which his estate or the greater part thereof shall lie, or where there may be any debt or demand owing to him.

Wills may be written on a typewriter.

There are no restrictions in regard to bequests for charitable or religious purposes.

CALIFORNIA LAWS.

Messrs. Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher, of Los Angeles.

The next regular session of the legislature convenes on the first Monday in January, 1919.

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds, etc.

Actions. — There is but one form of civil action in this State. The common law forms of pleading have been abolished by the Code. (C. C. P. § 307.)

Actions are commenced by filing with the clerk of the court a written complaint. If the action be in a justice's court, it may be by filing a copy of the note, bill, account, or other instrument on which action is brought. See Judgment; Service.

The action must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest, except that an executor or administrator, or trustee of an express trust, or a person expressly authorized by statute, may sue without joining with him the persons for whose benefit the action is prosecuted.

If the complaint, though not verified, contains a copy of the instrument upon which the action is brought, the genuineness and due execution of such instrument are admitted unless the answer denying the same be verified.

If the defense to an action is founded on a written instrument and the answer contains a copy thereof, its genuineness and due execution are deemed admitted unless, in an action in the superior court, within ten days (and in an action in a justice's court, within two days) after receiving a copy of the answer, the plaintiff file with the clerk an affidavit denying the same.

An action affecting the title or possession of real estate, or for the enforcement of a lien thereon, must be commenced in the county in which the same, or some part thereof, is situated. In personal actions, the complaint may be filed in any county in the State, but the defendant has the right to have the action tried in the county of his residence, or in the county in which some one of the defendants resides, if there be more than one defendant. In all cases, however, the court has the right to change the place of trial for the convenience of witnesses, or when satisfied that an impartial trial cannot be had in the county where the action is pending. A non-resident plaintiff or a foreign corporation may be required by the defendant to give security for costs before proceeding further with the action. See, also, Service of Summons.

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See Estates of Deceased Persons.

Affidavits. — Ex parte affidavits may be used to verify a pleading or other paper; to prove the service of a summons, notice, or other paper in a case; to obtain a provisional remedy, the examination of a witness, or a stay of proceedings, or upon a motion, and in some other special cases. In all other cases where a written declaration under oath is used, it must be in the form of a deposition to be used in court.

Affidavits to be used within this State may be taken in the State before any officer authorized to administer oaths.

If taken out of this State, but in the United States, before a commissioner appointed by the governor of this State to take affidavits and depositions in such other State, or before any notary public in another State, or before any judge or clerk of a court of record having a seal.

If taken out of the United States, before an ambassador, minister, consul, or vice-consul or consular agent of the United States, or before any judge of a court of record having a seal, in such foreign country.

When an affidavit is taken before a judge of a court out of this State, the genuineness of the signature of the judge, the existence of the court, and the fact that such judge is a member thereof, must be certified by the clerk of the court, under the seal thereof. The law is silent upon the question whether a notary public's signature and official character shall be certified to by any officer, but provides that courts take judicial notice of the seals of notaries.

Affidavits need not be in any particular form.

Aliens. — Any citizen or alien eligible to citizenship may take, inherit, hold, and dispose of property, real or personal; but if a non-resident alien takes by succession he must appear and claim the property within five years from the time of succession, or the State may then take proceedings to have the proceeds deposited in the state treasury for his benefit. If he does not appear and claim the proceeds within five years after the time of deposit he is then barred. No person capable of succeeding under the statutes of descent is precluded from such succession by reason of the alienage of any relative. By act of May 19, 1913, aliens not eligible to citizenship (and corporations, a majority of whose members or stockholders are such aliens) cannot acquire interests in real property, exceeding a leasehold for a term of three years (except as may be otherwise provided by existing treaties). Interests in real property acquired in violation of this act escheat to the State.

Appeals. — Appeals may be taken from any judgment rendered in a civil action in a police or justice's court to the superior court of the county, within thirty days after rendition of the judgment. (C. C. P. § 974.)

Appeals may be taken to the supreme court from the superior courts in all cases in equity, except such as arise in justices' courts, also in all cases at law which involve the title or possession of real estate or the legality of any tax, impost, assessment, toll, or municipal fine, or in which the demand exclusive of interest, or the value of the property in controversy, amounts to two thousand dollars; also in all such probate matters as may be provided by law; also on questions of law alone in all criminal cases, where judgment of death has been rendered.

Appeals may be taken from the superior courts to the district courts of appeal in all cases at law in which the demand, exclusive of interest, or the value of the property in controversy, amounts to three hundred dollars, also in all cases of forcible and unlawful entry and detainer (except such as arise in justices' courts); in proceedings in insolvency and in actions to prevent or abate a nuisance; in proceedings of mandamus, certiorari, and prohibition, usurpation of office, contesting elections, and eminent domain, and in such other special proceedings as may be provided by law (excepting cases in which appellate jurisdiction is given to the supreme court), also, on questions of law alone, in all criminal cases prosecuted by indictment or information in a court of record, excepting criminal cases where judgment of death has been rendered.

An appeal to either the supreme court or district court of appeal must be taken within sixty days after the entry of the judgment or order appealed from, unless proceedings on motion for new trial are pending, in which case appeal may be taken within thirty days after the termination of such proceedings in the trial court.

Arrest. — The defendant in an action may be arrested in the following cases: 1. In an action for the recovery of money or damages on a cause of action arising on contract express or implied, when about to leave the State with intent to defraud his creditors. 2. For money or property embezzled or fraudulently misapplied or converted. 3. In an action for property where some part of it has been concealed or disposed of to prevent its being taken by sheriff. 4. Where debt was contracted by fraud. 5. Where defendant disposes of property with intent to defraud. 6. In an action for fine or penalty or misconduct in office.

The Constitution (art. I. § 15) forbids imprisonment for debt in civil actions except in cases of fraud, and in civil actions for torts except in cases of willful injury to person or property.

To obtain order for arrest, the plaintiff, or some person for him, must by affidavit show that the case is one mentioned above. Affidavit must be positive, or, if upon information and belief, the facts upon which belief is founded must be stated.

Order for arrest must be obtained from a judge of the court in which the action is brought. Before court makes order it must require undertaking in a sum to be fixed by court, not less than five hundred dollars, to the effect that if arrest is wrongful plaintiff will pay all damages occasioned to defendant thereby. (C. C. P. §§ 479-482.) See Undertakings.

Assignments for the Benefit of Creditors. — Partially suspended by the National Bankruptcy Act of 1898. For the old law, see this Directory for 1900.

Attachment. — At the time of issuing the summons, or at any time afterward, before judgment, the plaintiff may have a writ of attachment against the property of the defendant, in an action upon a contract, express or implied, 1st, for the direct payment of money, where the contract is made or is payable in this State, when not secured by mortgage, lien, or pledge of real or personal property, or, if so secured, when such security has, without any act of the plaintiff or the person to whom the security was given, become valueless; 2d, upon contract whenever the defendant in the action resides out of the State; and 3d, in an action against a non-resident defendant to recover a sum of money as damages arising from an injury to property in the State in consequence of negligence, fraud, or other wrongful act. A non-resident plaintiff is entitled to the writ equally with a resident.

The clerk of the court will issue the writ upon receiving the proper affidavit, and upon receiving a written undertaking on the part of the plaintiff in a sum of not less than two hundred dollars and not exceeding the amount claimed for payment of costs and damages, should the defendant recover judgment or attachment be discharged. (C. C. P. §§ 537-539.) The sureties to the undertaking must be residents and householders or freeholders within this State, or an authorized surety company. See Undertakings. If the plaintiff be the State, or the people of the State, or any state officer in his official capacity, or any county, city, or town, no undertaking is required.

Affidavit for attachment must be made by plaintiff or some person in his behalf. Any competent person can make the affidavit. The affidavit must show that the case is within the statute, as above stated, and that attachment is not sought nor action prosecuted to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors of defendant. (C. C. P. § 538.) See Garnishes Process.

The writ requires the sheriff to attach sufficient of the property of the defendant within his county to satisfy the plaintiff's demand, unless the defendant give him security to satisfy the same, or security equal to the value of the property to be attached. Several writs may be issued to different counties at the same time, and may be telegraphed from the county in which the action is brought to any other counties in the State.

All property and interests in property, real and personal, belonging to the defendant, not exempt from execution, and all debts due the defendant, may be attached, and, if judgment be recovered, sold or collected to satisfy the same. Personal property capable of manual delivery, if attached, must be taken into the custody of the officer. Debts and credits and other personal property not capable of manual delivery are attached by leaving with the person owing such debts, or having in his possession or under his control such credits or other personal property, a copy of the writ and a notice that such property is attached in pursuance thereof. Real property is attached by filing with the recorder of the county where the same is situated a copy of the writ with a description of the property attached, and a notice that it is attached, and leaving a similar notice with the occupant, or, if there be no occupant, by posting the notice in a conspicuous place on said property. If the property stands upon the records in the name of a person other than the defendant, the notice must state that the property and the interest of the defendant therein is attached, and must be given to such person or left at his residence, if it be known and within the county. Notice must also be served on occupant, or if none posted as above. Shares of stock in a corporation are attached by leaving with the proper officer of the corporation a copy of the writ and a notice stating that the stock or interest of the defendant therein is attached pursuant to the writ. If the property attached is perishable, and also when the court is satisfied that it will be for the interest of all parties, it may be sold, as if under execution, and the proceeds held by the sheriff or deposited in court to await the result of the suit.

The attachment first levied upon the property of the defendant has priority over any subsequent attachment, and all attachments are to be satisfied according to their priority.

The lien of the attachment on real property is merged in the lien of the judgment that the plaintiff may recover; but unless judgment is recovered within three years, the lien of the attachment will expire unless renewed by motion within the three years. (C. C. P. § 542-a.) Such lien relates to the date of the attachment and continues for the period of five years from the docketing of the judgment, with priority over all intervening liens or transfers. The sale of the property under execution must be made within the five years in order to preserve this priority of lien.

After the levy of the attachment the defendant may, by order of the court, have the same discharged, upon executing an undertaking to redeliver to the officer the property attached, or, in default thereof, pay its full value to the plaintiff, not exceeding the amount of the judgment.

The lien of the attachment is dissolved by the death of the defendant. The attachment may also be set aside by the court upon the ground that it was improperly issued. If the defendant recover judgment the sureties are liable for his costs, and also for what actual damage he may have sustained by reason of the attachment, not exceeding the amount named in their undertaking. See, also, Deeds, etc.

Blue Sky Law. — See under Corporations.

Chattel Mortgages. — Chattel mortgages may be made upon all growing crops, including grapes and fruit, and upon any and all kinds of personal property, except the following: (1) Personal property not capable of manual delivery; (2) articles of wearing apparel and personal adornment; (3) the stock in trade of a merchant. (C. C. § 2955.) Such mortgage is void against creditors and subsequent purchasers and incumbrancers in good faith and for value unless it is accompanied by the affidavit of all the parties thereto that it is made in good faith, and without any design to hinder, defraud, or delay creditors, and is acknowledged, or proved, or certified, and recorded in like manner as grants of real property. It must be recorded in the county in which the mortgagor resides, and also in the county in which the mortgaged property is situated, or to which it may be removed. A chattel mortgage on property other than that mentioned is valid between the parties, their heirs, legatees, and personal representatives, and others having actual notice. (C. C. § 2973.)

A chattel mortgage may be foreclosed by action at any time after the debt secured becomes due and before it is barred by the statute of limitations, or instead thereof the mortgagee may, after demanding payment from the mortgagor of the sum due and giving notice of the time and place of sale (by posting in three public places of the township or city, for not less than five nor more than ten days), sell the mortgaged property at public auction to the highest bidder. (C. C. §§ 2967, 3005; C. C. P. § 692.)

Claims against the Estates of Deceased Persons. — See Estates of Deceased Persons.

Conditional Sales. — There is no statute in this State regulating such sales, but they are sustained by the courts. (See Bray v. Lowery, 163 Cal. 256.)

Consignments. — Every person intrusted with or having in his control property for the use of any other person, or with any power of attorney for the sale or transfer thereof, who fraudulently appropriates it to any use or purpose not in the due and lawful execution of his trust, or who fraudulently converts the same or the proceeds thereof to his own use, is guilty of embezzlement. The making of false statements to consignor concerning condition, price obtained, or expenditures in connection with consigned property, is misdemeanor. (Pen. C. § 536.)

Corporations. — Corporations are formed under a general law, and cannot be created by special act of the legislature, nor can special powers or privileges be conferred by the legislature upon existing corporations. Private corporations may be formed for any purpose for which individuals may lawfully associate themselves, and they are formed by the voluntary association of three or more persons, a majority of whom must be residents of this State, who subscribe and acknowledge articles of incorporation setting forth the objects and nature of the corporation, and file the same with the county clerk, and a certified copy thereof with the secretary of state. The secretary of state issues to the corporation a certificate of such filing in his office, and thereupon the persons signing said articles, their associates and successors, become a body politic and corporate. Number of directors not less than three. A majority must reside in the State and all of the persons named as directors must sign and acknowledge the articles. By amendment of Code adopted March 18, 1907, the articles may provide for preferred stock, the extent of such preference (which may not affect voting power or liability to creditors) to be stated therein and in the certificate of stock. Stock may be issued without nominal or par value. (C. C. §§ 290 et seq.)

Each stockholder is individually liable for such proportion of all the corporation's debts as the amount of stock or shares owned by him in such corporation at the time the debt or liability was incurred bears to the whole of the stock subscribed, and for a like proportion only of each debt or claim against the corporation, for which joint or several actions lie against any of the stockholders for the proportion of the claim payable by each, and in such action a several judgment must be rendered against each defendant for the amount of his proportion of said debt. (C. C. § 322.) The directors or trustees of corporations and joint stock associations are jointly and severally liable to the creditors and stockholders for all moneys embezzled or misappropriated by the officers of such corporation, or joint-stock association, during the term of office of such director or trustee. (Const. art. 12, § 3.)

There is no provision as to the amount of capital stock to be paid in at the time of organization, except in case of certain kinds of corporations such as railroad, wagon-road, telegraph, banking, insurance and guaranty corporations, corporations authorized to act as trustee, etc. The cost of organization varies, being about ten dollars for official fees in addition to the following charges, based on authorized capitalization, viz.: On a capital stock, up to twenty-five thousand dollars, fifteen dollars; up to seventy-five thousand dollars, twenty-five dollars; up to two hundred thousand dollars, fifty dollars; up to five hundred thousand dollars, seventy-five dollars; up to one million dollars, one hundred dollars; over one million dollars, one hundred dollars, and fifty dollars for each additional five hundred thousand dollars or fraction thereof.

Corporations organized for profit (except such as are taxed upon their gross revenue, as stated under Tax Laws) must also pay an annual license tax graduated according to authorized capitalization, as follows: On a capital stock up to ten thousand dollars, ten dollars; up to twenty thousand dollars, fifteen dollars; up to fifty thousand dollars, twenty dollars; up to one hundred thousand dollars, twenty-five dollars; up to two hundred fifty thousand dollars, fifty dollars; up to five hundred thousand dollars, seventy-five dollars; up to one million dollars, one hundred dollars; up to three million dollars, two hundred dollars; up to five million dollars, three hundred and fifty dollars; up to seven million, five hundred thousand dollars, five hundred and fifty dollars; up to ten million, eight hundred dollars; over ten million dollars, one thousand dollars. Failure to pay this license tax works a total suspension of the power to do business until the tax is paid, with all penalties. As to taxation of corporate property, including franchises, see under Tax Laws.

There are special provisions applicable to railroad, mining, insurance, banking, building and loan, benevolent, and religious corporations, coöperative associations, etc. Public service corporations are also subject to special statutory provisions and to regulation by the state railroad commission.

Blue Sky Law. — A recent statute (Stats. 1917, p. 673), regulating issuance of corporate securities, requires the permit of the commissioner of corporations before such securities, foreign or domestic, can be offered to the public in this State. Certain corporations, however, under jurisdiction of other state departments (public utilities, banks, insurance corporations, etc.), or organized under acts of Congress, are exempted from this act.

Foreign Corporations. — A foreign corporation doing business in this State (other than interstate commerce) pays the same annual license tax as domestic corporations, and must file in the office of the secretary of state an affidavit stating the amount of its authorized capital stock and a certified copy of its articles or charter, or the statutes or executive or governmental act creating it, and a copy, certified by the secretary of state of this State, must be filed in the office of the county clerk where the principal place of business of the foreign corporation is located in this State, and also every county where such corporation owns real property. For such filing with the secretary of state a fee of seventy-five dollars must be paid by corporations organized for profit, and a fee of five dollars by other corporations. All subsequent amendments to articles or charter must also be filed.

All foreign corporations are also required to file with the secretary of state a designation of a resident agent upon whom service of process may be made, and to renew such designation within forty days of death or removal of the person first designated. Failure so to do incurs severe penalties, including denial of resort to courts, protection of statute of limitations, right to acquire or convey real property, etc. Foreign corporations complying with the law have same rights relative to holding of real property as domestic corporations, except as otherwise stated under title Aliens.

Stockholders of foreign corporations doing business in California are liable to creditors to the same extent as are stockholders of California corporations. (See Pinney v. Nelson, 183 U. S. 144.) See, also, Service of Summons.

Courts, Jurisdiction and Terms of. See Court Calendar for California.

Deeds, Acknowledgments, etc. — An estate in real property other than a tenancy at will or for a term not exceeding one year can be transferred only by operation of law, or by an instrument in writing subscribed by the party disposing of the same, or by his agent thereunto authorized by writing. If the grantor be unable to write, his mark is sufficient if his name is written near it by a person who writes his own name as a witness. Provided that when the signature is by mark, it must, in order that the same may be acknowledged, be witnessed by two persons, who must subscribe their own names as witnesses thereto. Such transfer in writing is called a "grant." The word "grant" used in any conveyance of an estate of inheritance or fee simple implies that the grantor has not prior thereto conveyed the same estate or any interest therein, and that such estate is at the time of conveyance free from any incumbrances done, made, or suffered by the grantor or any person claiming under him. Such covenants may be sued upon the same as if expressly inserted in the conveyance.

The following form is a sufficient grant: I, A. B., grant to C. D. all that real property situated in (insert name of county) County, State of California, bounded (or described) as follows: (Here insert description, or, if the land sought to be conveyed has a descriptive name, it may be described by the name, as for instance, "the Norris Ranch.")

Witness my hand this day of A. D. 19 A. B.

Acknowledgments thereto may be either written or printed, and may be attached to or pasted on an instrument.

The secretary of state certifies to the official character of notaries, commissioners, etc.

In order to make a deed available as evidence, its execution must be proved as any other instrument of writing, unless the deed be acknowledged or proved as hereinafter explained, and if so acknowledged or proved, it is received in evidence without further proof.

An instrument so acknowledged or proved may be recorded in the office of the recorder of the county wherein the land is situate, and the record is constructive notice of the contents thereof to subsequent purchasers and mortgagees.

Deeds, though not recorded, are valid and binding between the parties thereto, and also upon all persons having actual notice of the same; but are void as against any subsequent purchaser or mortgagee of the same property, or any part thereof, in good faith and for a valuable consideration, whose conveyance is first duly recorded. An attaching creditor is not protected against such unrecorded deed, if the deed be recorded before any judgment in such action.

The absolute power of alienation of the fee in real estate, or of a term of years, cannot be suspended by any limitation or condition whatever for a longer period than twenty-five years from the creation of the suspension, or during the continuance of the lives of persons in being at the creation of the limitation or condition.

Witnesses are not necessary to the validity of a deed or other instrument affecting title to realty, except wills. Wife should join husband in deeds of community property.

The deed of a married woman has the same effect as if she were unmarried.

Wherever the name of the owner of any real estate is from any cause changed, his conveyance thereof must set forth the name in which he or she derived title to said real estate.

The proof or acknowledgment of an instrument may be made within the State before a judge or clerk of the supreme court, or a judge of the superior court, and, within the city, county, district, or township for which the officer was elected or appointed, before either a clerk of a court of record, a county recorder, a court commissioner, a justice of the peace, or notary public.

If proved or acknowledged out of this State, but in the United States and within the jurisdiction of the officer, it may be before a justice, judge, or clerk of a court of record of the United States, any justice or judge of any court of record of any State, a notary public, or a commissioner appointed by the governor of this State for that purpose; also before any other officer of the State where the acknowledgment is made, authorized by its laws to take such proof or acknowledgment. (C. C. § 1182.)

If taken or made out of the United States, before a minister, commissioner, or chargé d'affaires of the United States resident and accredited in the country where the proof or acknowledgment is made, or a consul, vice-consul, or consular agent of the United States resident in the country where the proof or acknowledgment is made, or a judge of a court of record of the country where the proof or acknowledgment is made, or a commissioner appointed for such purpose by the governor pursuant to special statutes, or a notary public. (C. C. § 1183.) The law is silent upon the question as to whether such notary's certificate requires the United States consul's certification.

Certificates of acknowledgment must be authenticated by the signature of the officer, followed by his title of office, and his official seal affixed, if by the law under which he is acting, he is required to have an official seal. The seal may be made by an impression on the paper, or on wax or other substance attached. In this State a notary public is required to have a seal upon which shall be engraved the words "Notary Public" and the name of the county for which he is appointed, and also the arms of the State.

All distinctions between sealed and unsealed instruments are abolished. (C. C. § 1629.)

A written instrument is presumptive evidence of consideration. (C. C. § 1614.)

An acknowledgment taken out of the State is sufficient if taken in accordance with the laws of the place where made, and provided further the certificate of the clerk of a court of record of the county or district where such acknowledgment is taken that the officer certifying to same is authorized by law so to do, that the signature is true and genuine, and that the acknowledgment is taken in accordance with the laws of the place where made, shall be prima facie evidence of the facts stated in the certificate of said clerk.

The following forms are used: —

Proof of Instruments not acknowledged. — Proof of the execution of a deed or other instrument, when not acknowledged, can be made by the parties executing it, or either of them, if more than one, or by a subscribing witness; or by other witnesses as to the handwriting, where all the parties and witnesses are dead, non-residents of the State, or their residence is unknown.

No particular form of proof by a subscribing witness is specified or required. It must show that the witness was personally known to the officer taking the proof, to be the person whose name is subscribed as a witness, and was sworn, and deposed that the person whose name is subscribed to the instrument as a party is the person described in it, and that such person executed it, and that the witness subscribed his name thereto as a witness. (C. C. §§ 1195-1198.)

If the party making the acknowledgment be unknown, the officer may take the acknowledgment after proof of his identity by a known witness under oath; he must set out the fact that the grantor "was proved by the oath of a credible witness, to be the person named in and who executed the within instrument." With this modification use the same form as for an ordinary acknowledgment.

Torrens Land Law. — A comprehensive law for the registration of land titles, on the "Torrens" plan, was adopted by an initiative vote in 1914 (see Stats. 1915, p. 1932). Registration of land under this law is voluntary, but once registered can be transferred or incumbered only in accordance with the law, the underlying principle of which is to require every instrument or act affecting the title to be entered on the register, and to make a certificate of title, issued by the registrar for a nominal fee, an absolute assurance of title — or as nearly as may be.

Depositions. — The deposition of a witness out of this State shall be taken upon a commission issued from the court in which the action is pending, under its seal, upon an order of the court, or a judge thereof, to any person selected by the parties, or, if they do not agree thereon, to any notary public, judge, justice of the peace, or commissioner selected by the court, judge, or justice, in case the commission is issued to any place within the United States; but if it is issued to any country out of the United States, if the parties do not agree upon the person it may be directed to a minister, ambassador, consul, vice-consul, or consular agent of the United States in such country, or to any person agreed on by the parties.

Such depositions may be taken upon interrogatories prepared by the parties and settled by the judge granting the commission, or when the parties agree or the court so orders the examination may be without written interrogatories. A deposition may be taken stenographically under the direction of a commissioner and typewritten, and then read and signed by the witness. It is the practice, however, to stipulate to that effect. Deposition may be taken in any other form by written stipulation.

Instructions and Forms for taking Depositions. — 1st. The commissioner will subpoena the witness to appear before him at such time and place as he may appoint, and administer the oath to witness.

2d. Either the commissioner or some disinterested person must reduce the answer of witness to writing in the language of the witness.

3d. The heading or title of the depositions should be in this form: —

1st. To the first interrogatory he saith.

2d. To the second interrogatory he saith.

STATE OF NEW YORK,

CITY AND COUNTY OF NEW YORK, } ss.

I, A. B., the commissioner named in said commission, do hereby certify that the witness, Nathan Gibbs, appeared before me, and after being duly sworn, his evidence was taken down, and read over, and corrected by him, after which he subscribed the same in my presence, on the first day of January A. D. 19 at my office in the city, county, and State of New York, and that I have personal knowledge of said witness (or if unacquainted with the witness, "that proof has been made before me of the personal identity of said witness.")

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and official seal the day and year aforesaid. A. B., Commissioner for California in New York.

4th. The commissioner will attach together and fold the commission, interrogatories, answers, and any document deposed to by the witness, in a packet, and seal the same. He will write his name across the seal, and direct it to the clerk or other person designated or agreed upon as follows: —

JAMES JOHNSON } To Esq., Clerk of the Superior Court for County Cal-vs. } ifornia.
CHARLES Y. ALLEN. } Deposition of Nathan Gibbs.

The package may be sent by mail or other usual channel of conveyance.

The deposition when once taken may be read by either party on the trial against any other party giving or receiving the notice, or in any stage of the action or proceeding, or in any other action or proceeding between the same parties on the same subject.

Descent of Real and Personal Property. — When any person dies intestate his property, after payment of debts and expenses of administration, unless otherwise limited by marriage settlement, is distributed as follows: —

If the deceased leaves a surviving husband or wife, and only one child, or the lawful issue of one deceased child, in equal shares to each: if more than one child, one third goes to the surviving consort and the balance to the children in equal shares. The children of a deceased child take by the right of representation; but if all of the descendants are in the same degree of kindred to the decedent they share equally. If the decedent leaves no husband or wife but leaves issue, the whole estate goes to such issue.

If the deceased leaves no issue, the surviving consort takes one half and the other half goes to the decedent's father and mother in equal shares, and if either be dead the whole of said half goes to the other. If there be no father or mother, then one half goes in equal shares to the brothers and sisters of the decedent, and to the children or grandchildren of any deceased brother or sister by right of representation.

If the decedent leaves no issue, nor husband or wife, the estate goes to his father and mother in equal shares, or, if either be dead, then to the other. If there be neither issue, husband, wife, father, nor mother, then in equal shares to the brothers and sisters and to the children or grandchildren of any deceased brother or sister by right of representation.

If deceased leaves a surviving husband or wife, and no issue, father, mother, brother, or sister, nor children or grandchildren of deceased brothers or sisters, the whole estate goes to such survivor.

If the deceased leaves none of the aforementioned, the estate goes to the next of kin in equal degree; and if there are two or more collateral kindred in equal degree, but claiming through different ancestors, those claiming through the nearest ancestor must be preferred.

If the decedent leaves several children, or one child and the issue of one or more children, and any such surviving child dies under age not having been married, all the estate that came to the deceased child by inheritance from such decedent goes in equal shares to the other children of the same parent and to the issue of any such other children who are dead, by right of representation. If at the death of such child who dies under age not having been married, all the other children of his parents are also dead, and any of them have left issue, the estate that came to such child by inheritance from its parent descends to the issue of all the other children of the same parent.

If the decedent be a widow or widower and leaves no issue, and any portion of the estate was common property of such decedent and his or her deceased spouse, such common property shall go to the children of such deceased spouse and the issue thereof, and if none, one half of such property goes to the parents, or if both be dead, to the brothers and sisters (and their issue) of the decedent, and the other one half to the parents, or, if both be dead, to the brothers and sisters (and their issue) of such spouse; and if any portion of the estate came to the decedent by descent or devise from the deceased spouse, such property goes to the issue of such spouse, or if no issue, to the parents, or if both parents be dead, then to the brothers and sisters (and their issue) of such deceased spouse.

If the decedent leaves no husband, wife, or kindred, and there be no heirs to take his estate or any portion thereof under the above clause concerning deceased spouses, the estate reverts to the school fund of the State. (C. C. § 1386.)

The foregoing provisions as to the inheritance of the husband and wife from each other apply only to the separate property of the decedents.

Upon the death of the wife the entire community property without administration belongs to the surviving husband, except such portion as may have been set apart to her by judicial decree for her support and maintenance. Such portion is subject to her testamentary disposition, and in the absence of such disposition goes to her heirs exclusive of her husband. Upon the death of the husband one half of the community property goes to the wife and the other half is subject to the testamentary disposition of the husband, and in the absence of such disposition goes to his descendants; and in the absence of both disposition and descendants is distributed in the same manner as his separate estate. Upon the death of the husband the entire community property is subject to his debts, the family allowance, and expenses of administration.

The degree of kindred is established by the number of generations, and each generation is called a degree. (C. C. § 1389.)

Kindred of the half blood inherit equally with those of the whole blood, except where the estate came to the intestate by descent, devise, or gift of some one of his ancestors, when the half blood is excluded. (C. C. § 1394.)

Whenever testator has a child born, after making will, either in his lifetime or after death, such child being unprovided for by settlement or mentioned in will, such child succeeds to same portion of real and personal estate as he would if testator had died intestate. (C. C. § 1306.)

When any testator omits to provide in will for any child or children, or for issue of any deceased child, unless it appears from said will that such omission was intentional, such child or the issue of such child must have the same share in the estate of such testator as if testator had died intestate, and succeeds accordingly. (C. C. § 1307.)

Succession Tax. See title Inheritance Taxes.

Divorces. — Divorces may be granted in this State for the following grounds: 1st. Adultery. 2d. Extreme cruelty. 3d. Willful desertion for one year. 4th. Willful neglect for one year. 5th. Habitual intemperance for one year. 6th. Conviction of felony.

Plaintiff must have been a resident of this State twelve months before the suit can be brought, and of the county in which it is brought for three months next preceding the commencement of the action; but this requirement does not apply to a cross-complainant.

A defendant is served with summons as in any civil case, but no decree can be rendered

If the party making the acknowledgment be unknown, the officer may take the acknowledgment after proof of his identity by a known witness under oath; he must set out the fact that the grantor "was proved by the oath of a credible witness, to be the person named in and who executed the within instrument." With this modification use the same form as for an ordinary acknowledgment.

Torrens Land Law. — A comprehensive law for the registration of land titles, on the "Torrens" plan, was adopted by an initiative vote in 1914 (see Stats. 1915, p. 1932). Registration of land under this law is voluntary, but once registered can be transferred or incumbered only in accordance with the law, the underlying principle of which is to require every instrument or act affecting the title to be entered on the register, and to make a certificate of title, issued by the registrar for a nominal fee, an absolute assurance of title — or as nearly as may be.

Depositions. — The deposition of a witness out of this State shall be taken upon a commission issued from the court in which the action is pending, under its seal, upon an order of the court, or a judge thereof, to any person selected by the parties, or, if they do not agree thereon, to any notary public, judge, justice of the peace, or commissioner selected by the court, judge, or justice, in case the commission is issued to any place within the United States; but if it is issued to any country out of the United States, if the parties do not agree upon the person it may be directed to a minister, ambassador, consul, vice-consul, or consular agent of the United States in such country, or to any person agreed on by the parties.

Such depositions may be taken upon interrogatories prepared by the parties and settled by the judge granting the commission, or when the parties agree or the court so orders the examination may be without written interrogatories. A deposition may be taken stenographically under the direction of a commissioner and typewritten, and then read and signed by the witness. It is the practice, however, to stipulate to that effect. Deposition may be taken in any other form by written stipulation.

Instructions and Forms for taking Depositions. — 1st. The commissioner will subpoena the witness to appear before him at such time and place as he may appoint, and administer the oath to witness.

2d. Either the commissioner or some disinterested person must reduce the answer of witness to writing in the language of the witness.

(C. C. § 1307.)

Succession Tax. See title Inheritance Taxes.

Divorces. — Divorces may be granted in this State for the following grounds: 1st. Adultery. 2d. Extreme cruelty. 3d. Willful desertion for one year. 4th. Willful neglect for one year. 5th. Habitual intemperance for one year. 6th. Conviction of felony.

Plaintiff must have been a resident of this State twelve months before the suit can be brought, and of the county in which it is brought for three months next preceding the commencement of the action; but this requirement does not apply to a cross-complainant.

A defendant is served with summons as in any civil case, but no decree can be rendered by default; nor on admissions of the defendant; nor on the uncorroborated evidence of the parties. Where any pleading names a co-respondent in a case of adultery, such person must be served with copy of such pleading and may appear as a party to the cause.

In actions for divorce the court must file its decision and conclusions of law as in other cases, and if it determines that no divorce shall be granted, final judgment must thereupon be entered accordingly. If it determines that the divorce ought to be granted, an interlocutory judgment must be entered declaring that the party in whose favor the court decides is entitled to a divorce. This judgment may be appealed from or a motion made for new trial as in case of final judgments in other civil actions. When one year has expired after the entry of such interlocutory judgment, and no appeal therefrom shall have been taken, or motion for a new trial made, the court on motion of either party or upon its own motion may enter the final judgment, which judgment restores the parties to the status of single persons and permits either to remarry. But if any appeal shall have been taken or motion for new trial made, final judgment shall not be entered until such motion or appeal has been finally disposed of, and not then if the motion has been granted or judgment reversed. The death of either party after entry of interlocutory judgment does not impair the power of the court to enter a final judgment, but such entry shall not validate a marriage contracted by either party before the entry of such final judgment.

The court may allow alimony and expenses of litigation to the wife, and order the same to be paid by the husband. The court may enforce such order by imprisonment. From the order directing the payment of alimony an appeal may be taken to the supreme court.

When the husband willfully deserts, or fails to provide for the wife, or when the wife has any cause of action for divorce as provided in the Code, she may, without applying for a divorce, maintain an action against the husband for permanent support and maintenance of herself and her children.

Dower. — There is no dower in California. See Married Women.

Estates of Deceased Persons. — Administration of the estate of a person dying intestate must be granted to some one or more of the persons hereinafter mentioned, the relatives of the deceased being entitled to administer only when they are entitled to succeed to his personal estate, or to some portion thereof; and they are respectively entitled thereto in the following order: The surviving husband or wife, or some competent person whom he or she may request to have appointed; the children; the father or mother; the brothers; the sisters; the grandchildren; the next of kin entitled to share in the distribution of the estate; the public administrator; the creditors; any person legally competent. This order of precedence applies also to relatives of a deceased spouse of the decedent, when entitled to succeed to part of the estate. If the decedent was a member of a partnership at the time of his decease, the surviving partner must in no case be appointed administrator of his estate. But such surviving partner may be an executor. A non-resident cannot act as an administrator, but the surviving spouse, although non-resident, may nominate any competent resident, by petition, as such administrator. Corporations organized under the laws of this State for that purpose may be appointed to act as executor, administrator, guardian, etc.

Bonds are required of such administrator in double the value of the personal property, and of the annual rents of real property; and upon sales of real property by the administrator he is required to give bonds in such amount as the court may order. The same statutes as to bonds apply to executors, but the instrument under which executor is appointed may waive such bonds.

An allowance is made to the widow upon application to the court in such sum as the court may determine and the value of the estate and the necessities of the family will justify. This allowance is made even if the estate be insolvent, but does not extend beyond a period of one year from the time of the issuance of letters, if the estate be insolvent.

Immediately upon receipt of letters testamentary or of administration the executor or administrator must publish in some newspaper of the county a notice to creditors to present their claims with the necessary vouchers. The notice must require the creditor to present his claim to the executor or administrator, or file it with the clerk of court, within ten months, if the estate exceeds ten thousand dollars in value, and within four months if less than that sum, after the first publication of the said notice, and the creditor must so present or file his claim, accompanied by his affidavit, or that of his agent, that the claim is justly due and that no payments have been made thereon, and that there are no offsets against the same to affiant's knowledge. There is no difference in the proof required between residents and non-residents.

Claims. — All claims arising upon contract, whether the same be due, not due, or contingent, must be presented within the time limited in the notice, and any claim not so presented is barred forever; but if the claimant can by affidavit satisfy the court that he had no notice by reason of being out of the State, he may present his claim at any time before a decree of distribution is entered.

The administrator or executor must allow or reject the claim, and if he approve it a judge of the superior court must then approve or reject it; and if approved by the judge it is then filed as a valid claim, and paid in due course of administration. A claim duly presented and allowed by the administrator or executor and the superior judge has the force and effect of a judgment against the estate, but no execution can be issued. It must be paid in due course of administration. After its allowance and approval it bears interest at the legal rate.

If an action be pending against the decedent at the time of his death, the plaintiff must present his claim as in other cases, and no recovery can be had in the action without proof of such presentation.

If judgment has been rendered against the decedent in his lifetime for the recovery of money, no execution can be issued thereon, after death, but it must be presented like any other claim. If an execution has been actually levied upon such judgment before the death, the property levied on may be sold for the satisfaction thereof. A judgment for the recovery of real or personal property, or the enforcement of a lien thereon, may be enforced notwithstanding the death of the defendant.

If a claim is rejected either by the judge or administrator or executor, the claimant must within three months after notice of its rejection, if it be then due, or within two months after it becomes due, bring suit in the proper court, otherwise his claim is forever barred. If he recover judgment it is then filed as other claims for payment.

No claim can be allowed which is barred by the statute of limitations. If the claim is not barred at the death of the debtor, it will not be barred until one year after the issuance of letters testamentary or of administration. During the pendency of proceedings for the settlement of the estate no claim which has been presented and allowed is affected by the statute of limitations.

No suit can be brought upon a claim unless it be first presented for allowance, except that an action may be brought by the holder of a mortgage or lien to enforce the same against the property of the estate subject thereto, when all recourse against any other property of the estate is expressly waived in the complaint. In such action no counsel fees shall be recovered unless the claim be first presented. If, however, a homestead was declared upon the property mortgaged, the claim must in all cases be presented for allowance, and can be enforced against the homestead only after the other property of the estate has been exhausted.

Claims against an estate are paid in the following order, namely: 1. Funeral expenses. 2. Expenses of last sickness. 3. Debts having preference by the laws of the United States. 4. Judgments rendered against the decedent in his lifetime, and mortgages and other liens in the order of their date, so far as the proceeds of the property subject thereto will avail. 5. All other demands against the estate. The wages of an employee for services rendered within sixty days next preceding the death of his employer, not exceeding one hundred dollars, rank in priority next after funeral expenses and expenses of last sickness. Expenses of administration and allowance for support of family for not exceeding one year after death of decedent are payable prior to all claims except funeral expenses and expenses of last sickness. If the estate does not exceed fifteen hundred dollars in net value, and there be a widow or minor children, the court may assign the entire estate for their benefit after the payment of the expenses of the last sickness, funeral expenses, and expenses of administration.

Homesteads. — "Upon the death of either the husband or the wife the court, having jurisdiction of the estate may, upon petition therefor, set apart for the use of the surviving husband or wife, or, in case of his or her death, to the minor children of the decedent, all property exempt from execution, including the homestead selected, designated, and recorded, provided such homestead was selected from the common property or from the separate property of the person selecting or joining in the selection of the same. If none has been selected, designated, and recorded, or, in case the homestead was selected by the survivor out of the separate property of the decedent, the decedent not having joined therein, the court must select, designate, and set apart, and cause to be recorded, a homestead for the use of the surviving husband or wife and the minor children; or, if there be no surviving husband or wife, then for the use of the minor children, out of the common property; or if there be no common property, then out of the real estate belonging to the decedent. When such property (other than a homestead recorded during the lifetime of decedent) is set apart for the use of the family, if the decedent left a widow or surviving husband and no minor child, such property is the property of the widow or surviving husband. If the decedent left also a minor child or children, the one half of such property belongs to the widow or surviving husband and the remainder to the child, or in equal shares to the children, if there be more than one, or to the minor child or children, if there be no surviving spouse.

If the property set apart be a homestead, selected by the court from the separate property of the decedent, the court can only set it apart for a limited period, to be designated in the order, and the property remains subject to administration, subject to such order. If the homestead selected by the husband and wife, or either of them, during coverture, and recorded while both were living, was selected from the community property or from the separate property of the spouse selecting or joining in selection, it vests on the death of the husband or wife absolutely in the survivor; if selected from the separate property of either the husband or wife without his or her consent, it vests upon the death of the person from whose property it was selected, in his or her heirs or devisees, subject to the power of the superior court to assign it for a limited period to the family of the decedent.

In either case, it is not subject to the payment of any debt or liability contracted by or existing against the husband or wife, or either of them, previous to or at the time of the death of such husband or wife, other than incumbrances placed thereon by the joint act of husband and wife, which incumbrances must be paid out of the general assets of the estate, if the funds of the estate be adequate for such purpose.

The surviving husband or wife of any deceased person, or if none, then the children, and if no children, then the parents, and if no parents, then the brothers and sisters of such decedent (or the guardian of any such relative who is incompetent), may, without procuring letters of administration, collect of any bank any sum which such decedent may have left on deposit with such bank at the time of death, not exceeding one thousand dollars. Any bank in which such deposit shall have been made may pay the same upon receiving an affidavit stating that the depositor is dead; and the facts as to survivorship and affiant's required relationship as above, and that the whole amount left by the decedent on deposit in all banks in this State does not exceed one thousand dollars.

Legacies are due and deliverable at the expiration of one year after the testator's decease. At any time after four months from granting letters testamentary or of administration, the court, if satisfied that the estate is but little indebted, may direct that the legacy or share of the estate to which any heir, devisee, or legatee may be entitled be given to him upon the execution by him of a bond conditioned for the payment by him of his proportion of the debts due from the estate. At any time after the expiration of the time limited for the presentation of claims the court, after the payment of the claims presented, and the expenses of administration, may distribute whatever estate remains in the hands of the executor or administrator, among the persons entitled thereto. Legacies bear interest from the time they are due and payable. Unless a will is proved within four years after testator's death, a conveyance by one having the right of succession is valid in favor of a purchaser or incumbrancer in good faith and for value. See Descent of Real Property; Inheritance Taxes.

Evidence. — In general the production and admission of evidence in courts of this State are governed by the rules of evidence as declared by the Code of Civil Procedure. All persons are competent as witnesses except those of unsound mind, children under ten years of age who appear incapable of receiving just impressions of the facts respecting which they are examined, or of relating them truly, and parties or assignors of parties to an action or proceeding, or persons in whose behalf an action is prosecuted against an executor or an administrator, upon a demand or claim against the estate of the deceased, as to any matter of fact occurring before the death of such deceased person, and persons holding certain confidential relations to each other. Except in action by one against the other, or for an injury to marital rights, husband and wife cannot in civil actions be examined against each other without their consent, nor can either during the marriage or afterwards without such consent be examined as to any communication made by one to the other during the marriage.

Certified copies of public writings of this State, including the records of duly acknowledged conveyances and other instruments affecting real property, under the hand and seal of the official custodian, are admissible as evidence in like cases and with like effect as the original writing. (C. C. P. §§ 1893, 1951.)

A copy of the written law, or other public writing, of any State or country, attested by the certificate of the officer having charge of the original, under the public seal of the State or country, is admissible as evidence of such law or writing. (C. C. P. § 1901.)

Execution. — Execution may issue from any court immediately on the rendition of the judgment, or at any time within five years thereafter, and as often within that period as any portion of the judgment remains unsatisfied. Judgments may be enforced after the lapse of five years, by leave of court, upon motion or by judgment for that purpose founded upon supplemental pleadings. To keep a judgment alive, suit should be brought upon it, as upon any other debt, within five years. (C. C. P. § 685.) Judgment notes are not known.

The writ issues on demand of the plaintiff, in the name of the people, sealed with the seal of the court, directed to the sheriff, subscribed by the clerk, referring intelligibly to the judgment, and giving directions for its execution. It is returnable in not less than ten nor more than sixty days after its receipt by the sheriff. (C. C. P. §§ 682, 683.)

Justices' executions are similar to those in other courts except that they are not sealed, and are signed by a justice instead of by a clerk. They may also be renewed by the justice before the expiration of the time fixed for their return. (C. C. P. §§ 902, 903.) See, also, Exemption; Insolvency Laws; Redemption; Stay of Execution; Supplementary Proceedings.

Exemption. — The following property is exempt from execution for any debt, except it be for the purchase price of such property, or a debt secured by mortgage, lien, or pledge thereon, to wit: 1st. Chairs, tables, desks, and books, to the value of two hundred dollars. 2d. Necessary household, table, and kitchen furniture of the debtor, including one sewing-machine, stoves, stove-pipes and stove furniture, wearing apparel, beds, bedding, bedsteads, hanging pictures, oil paintings and drawings drawn or painted by any member of the family, family portraits and their necessary frames, provisions and fuel actually provided for individual or family use sufficient for three months, and three cows and their sucking calves, four hogs with their sucking pigs, and food for such cows and hogs for one month, also one rifle, one shot-gun, one piano. 3d. Farming utensils, or implements of husbandry, not exceeding in value one thousand dollars, of the judgment debtor, also two oxen, or two horses, or two mules and their harness, one cart or buggy and two wagons, and food for such animals for one month, also seed grain or vegetables reserved or on hand for planting within six months, not exceeding two hundred dollars in value; and seventy-five beehives, and one horse and vehicle belonging to any person who is maimed or crippled, the same being necessary to his business. 4th. Tools or implements of a mechanic or artisan, notary's seal, office furniture, and records; instruments and library and necessary office furniture of a surgeon, physician, surveyor, or dentist, necessary to the exercise of their profession; books, professional libraries and office furniture of attorneys, judges, ministers of the gospel, editors, and school and music teachers, and all the indexes, abstracts, books, papers, maps, and office furniture of searcher of records necessary to be used in his profession, and instruments actually used by music teachers in giving instructions; also typewriters used by owner in making his living, also one bicycle. 5th. A miner's cabin, not exceeding five hundred dollars in value, also his sluices, pipes, tools, etc., necessary for his business, not exceeding five hundred dollars in value, and two horses, mules, or oxen, and their harness, and food for the same for one month, when necessary to be used for any windlass, derrick, car, pump, or hoisting gear; and the miner's claim worked by him, and not exceeding one thousand dollars in value. 6th. Two oxen, horses, or mules, and their harness and food for one month, and one cart, wagon, dray, truck, coupé, hack, or carriage for one or two horses, by the use of which a cartman, drayman, truckman, huckster, peddler, hackman, teamster, or other laborer habitually earns his living, and one horse, vehicle, and harness used by physician, surgeon, constable, or minister of the gospel in the legitimate practice of his profession or business, with food for such animals for one month. 7th. One fishing-boat and net not exceeding the value of five hundred dollars, the property of any fisherman, by the lawful use of which he earns a livelihood. 8th. Poultry worth not more than seventy-five dollars. 9th. Seamen and seagoing fishermen's wages and earnings not exceeding three hundred dollars. 10th. Earnings for personal service, rendered within thirty days of levy, if the defendant swears they are necessary for the use of his family residing in the State, and supported in whole or in part by his labor; but only one half of such earnings are exempt where the debt is for necessities of life. 11th. Shares in homestead associations, not exceeding in value one thousand dollars, if the debtor has not a homestead selected. 12th. Nautical instruments and wearing apparel of any master, officer, or seaman of any vessel. 13th. All moneys, benefits, etc., accruing or growing out of any life insurance, if the annual premiums paid do not exceed five hundred dollars; if they exceed that sum, a like exemption exists, which shall bear the same proportion to the moneys, immunities, etc., so accruing or growing out of such insurance that five hundred dollars bears to the whole annual premiums paid. 14th. All fire-engines, etc. 15th. All firearms, etc., required by law to be kept by any person, and one gun selected by the debtor. 16th. All court-houses, jails, public offices, buildings, cemeteries, etc. 17th. All material not exceeding one thousand dollars purchased in good faith for use in or about to be applied in good faith to the construction, alteration, or repair of any building, mining claim, or other improvement, except upon a judgment recovered for its price or foreclosure of a mortgage thereon. 18th. All machinery, etc., necessary for constructing surface or artesian wells to the value of one thousand dollars. 19th. Shares of stock in any building and loan association to value of one thousand dollars. 20th. Moneys derived from United States pension. (C. C. P. § 690.)

Garnishee Process. — Any debtor of a debtor, or person having in possession personal property of such debtor, not capable of manual delivery, may be served with a copy of the execution or attachment, and thereupon he becomes liable to pay to the attaching or execution creditor or to the sheriff for him the amount of his indebtedness, or to deliver to the sheriff the personal property held by him, etc. Garnishees under an execution may also be brought before the court or a referee to answer, under oath, concerning debts due, or property belonging to, the judgment debtor, and may be forbidden to transfer or otherwise dispose of such debt or property until a suit can be prosecuted therefor on behalf of the creditor, and disobedience of such order may be punished as a contempt. See Attachment.

Holidays. — See under Notes and Bills.

Homestead. — A homestead to the extent of five thousand dollars in value, consisting of the dwelling-house where the claimant resides, together with the land on which it is situated, may be selected by the husband or, in the case of his failure to do so, by the wife. Such selection must describe the premises and state their value, and must be acknowledged in the same manner as a conveyance, and filed for record in the county recorder's office. After such filing the premises therein described are exempt from execution or forced sale, except in satisfaction of liens existing prior thereto or created by both husband and wife, and can be aliened or incumbered only by an instrument executed and acknowledged by both husband and wife. Such selection may be made from the community property or from the separate property of the husband, or, with the consent of the wife, from her separate property. If the premises selected exceed five thousand dollars in value, a judgment creditor can apply to the superior court for an appraisal and sale thereof, and have the surplus applied in satisfaction of his judgment. The homestead can be abandoned only by a declaration of abandonment or a grant executed and acknowledged by both husband and wife and filed for record in the recorder's office. A homestead of value of one thousand dollars may be declared by any person not the head of a family.

As to rights of survivorship and setting apart of homesteads in probate proceedings, see under Estates of Decedents.

Inheritance Taxes. — Such tax is exacted (subject to certain exemptions) upon all property (including personal property situated outside of the State) passing from any resident by will or by the intestate or homestead law of this State (or by transfer without adequate consideration made in contemplation of or to take effect upon death); and upon all property within the State, including stock in corporations, so passing from any non-resident. These taxes are payable to the treasurer of the county in which probate proceedings upon the estate are had, and carry a penalty of ten per cent. per annum if not paid within eighteen months after death of decedent. If paid within six months after death a discount of five per cent is allowed. The collection of these taxes is under the general supervision of the state controller, whose office is at Sacramento, the state capital.

The rate of tax depends upon the relationship of the beneficiary and upon the amount received, beneficiaries being divided into four classes, viz.: (1) Husband, wife, lineal issue, lineal ancestor, adopted child, or person standing in the mutually acknowledged relationship of parent and child for ten years, commencing at or before fifteen years of age, and lineal issue of such adopted or acknowledged child; (2) brother or sister (or descendant of brother or sister), wife or widow of son, or husband of daughter; (3) uncle or aunt, by blood, or descendant thereof; (4) other relatives, strangers in blood, corporations, etc. The rates of tax paid by the respective classes are shown by the following table (each rate here mentioned applying, however, only upon the excess above the amount taking the next lower rate; and the lowest rate applying only upon the excess above the exemptions allowed to the respective classes): —

Amount of Bequest, etc.		Classes of Beneficiaries.
		1st.	2d.	3d.	4th.
Up to $25,000		1 per cent.	3 per cent.	4 per cent.	5 per cent.
$25,000 to $50,000		2	6	8	10
$50,000 " $100,000		4	9	10	15
$100,000 " $200,000		7	12	15	20

$500,000 " $1,000,000		12	20	25	30
Above $1,000,000		15	25	30	30

Exemptions. — Bequests, etc., in trust for charitable or benevolent purposes, or to societies, corporations or institutions exempt from property taxes, are exempt from any succession tax; provided such societies, etc. are incorporated in this State, or the property is limited for use in this State; a widow or minor child is entitled to an exemption of twenty-four thousand dollars; and the other persons mentioned in the above-enumerated classes to the following exemptions: First class, ten thousand dollars; second class, two thousand dollars; third class, one thousand dollars; fourth class, five hundred dollars.

Insolvency Laws. — Practically suspended by the national bankruptcy act of 1898. For the old law see this Directory for 1900.

Interest. — Legal interest on moneys after they become due on any instrument of writing, and on moneys lent or due on any settlement of accounts from the day on which the balance is ascertained, and on moneys received to the use of another and detained from him, and on judgments recovered in the courts of this State, is seven per cent. per annum. Parties to any contract (except loans by pawnbrokers, and by "personal property brokers," limited to two per cent. per month) may agree in writing upon any different rate, and also that delinquent installments of interest shall be added to the principal and bear interest at the same rate, and such interest shall be allowed until the entry of judgment. No different agreement for compounding of interest is valid, and in the absence of such a valid agreement no interest upon interest can be recovered. Judgments recovered in the courts of this State bear interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum from rendition, regardless of the rate of interest stipulated for in the obligation on which the judgment may be based.

Judgments. — Where no appearance is made, judgment in actions for money or liquidated damages arising on contract may be entered immediately after the expiration of the time designated in the summons for the appearance of the defendant, or thirty days after completion of service by publication. See title Service of Summons. Judgments may be enforced or carried into execution at any time within five years, or after the lapse of five years by leave of the court, upon motion, or by judgment for that purpose upon supplemental pleadings. A superior court judgment from the time it is docketed becomes a lien upon all the real property owned by the judgment debtor not exempt from execution, or which he may acquire in the county where judgment was rendered. The lien continues five years, unless judgment is previously satisfied, or is superseded by an undertaking on appeal, but any sale of the property under the judgment must be made within five years in order to cut off any intervening liens or transfers. A transcript may be filed in any other county, when it becomes a lien for two years from filing upon any real property of the judgment debtor in such county. Judgments in justices' courts have the same effect from the time a certified abstract is filed in the recorder's office in any county, and this lien may be continued by successive filings of the abstract for a total period of five years. (C. C. P. §§ 671-674, 900.) See Executions.

Attorneys' fees may be taxed up in judgments where provided for in the obligation given; but in actions to foreclose mortgages the amount of the attorney's fee, where one is provided for in the mortgage, must be fixed by the court, any stipulation in the mortgage to the contrary notwithstanding. (St. 1873-74, p. 707.)

License. — It is not necessary for commercial travelers to take out a state license before doing business. The amount on mercantile license is regulated by municipal ordinance and is not uniform throughout the State. There are several state license laws, as, for instance, architects, hospitals, dentists, physicians, etc.

Liens. — Mechanics, material-men, contractors, sub-contractors, machinists, builders, miners, artisans, architects, and laborers of every class performing labor upon or furnishing materials, appliances or power used in the construction, alteration, or repair of any building, wharf, bridge, ditch, flume, aqueduct, well, tunnel, fence, machinery, railroad, wagon-road, or other structure, have liens upon the property upon which they have worked or furnished material, and any person performing labor or furnishing materials used in a mining claim has a lien upon the same (and the works owned and used by the owners for reducing the ores from such mining claim) for the materials furnished and work or labor done. In case of a contract for the work between the owner and his contractor, the owner of the property cannot be charged with any greater liability for the liens than may be owing by him to the original contractor under the terms of the contract, provided the owner shall have filed in the office of the county recorder, with such contract, a bond, with sufficient sureties, for fifty per cent. of the contract price, conditioned for the payment in full of all claims for labor and materials. The owner may withhold from the contractor sufficient funds to satisfy any claims for labor or materials of which he has received notice and may require all persons furnishing materials or labor to give such notice. A claim of lien must be filed in the office of the county recorder within sixty days after completion of the structure, if by the original contractor, or if by a sub-contractor or material-man within thirty days. Suit must be brought in the superior court within ninety days after filing the claim of lien. If the owner does not file a notice of completion or of cessation of labor for thirty days, no objection can be made that a lien is not filed in time; provided that all claims must be filed within ninety days after completion. Such owner's notice must be filed within ten days of the completion of the building, or within forty days after the cessation of work upon an unfinished building.

Every person in possession of personal property belonging to another has a lien thereon for compensation due to him from the owner for services rendered to such property, or for the safe keeping thereof. Liens are allowed for boarding or pasturing horses, and in favor of laundry proprietors, etc. Also, under recent statutes, for the cost of services rendered, under public authority, upon neglect of owner to place premises in sanitary condition, remove weeds, etc. (Stats. 1909, pp. 311, 986; Stats. 1915, p. 841.)

Limitation. — The period prescribed for the commencement of real actions is five years, except that actions may be brought by the State within ten years. Other actions must be commenced: Within five years, 1, upon a judgment or decree of any court of the United States or of this State or any State within the United States; 2, an action for mesne profits of real property. Within four years, 1, upon any contract, obligation, or liability founded upon an instrument in writing; 2, upon a book account, an account stated, or for the balance upon a mutual open and current account. Within three years, an action upon a liability created by statute, other than a penalty or forfeiture; for trespass upon real property; for taking, detaining, injuring, or to recover possession of personal property; an action for relief on the ground of fraud or mistake, the statute running from the time of the discovery by the aggrieved party of the facts constituting the fraud or mistake. Within two years, an action upon a contract, obligation, or liability, not founded upon an instrument in writing (other than actions upon accounts, as above stated), or when evidenced by certificate, abstract, guaranty or policy, of title to real property, (the limitation running from the discovery of loss under such certificate, etc.); an action against a sheriff, coroner, or constable, upon a liability incurred in his official capacity either by doing a wrong or omitting an official duty, other than for an escape, including the nonpayment of money collected upon an execution. Within one year, an action upon a statute, for a penalty or forfeiture; an action upon a statute, or on an undertaking in a criminal action for a forfeiture or penalty to the State; an action for libel, slander, assault, battery, or false imprisonment, or seduction; an action against a sheriff or other officer, for an escape of a person imprisoned on civil process; an action against a municipal corporation for injuries to property caused by a mob or riot; an action for injury to or for the death of one caused by the wrongful act or neglect of another, or by a depositor against a bank for the payment of a forged or raised check. Within six months, an action against a county upon a rejected claim; an action against an officer or officer de facto to recover goods, wares, merchandise, or other property seized by such officer as tax collector, or for any damages arising from such seizure, either to person or property; an action to recover stock sold for a delinquent assessment as provided in § 347 of the Civil Code, or to set aside action taken by majority of trustees of corporation dissolved by operation of law. (C. C. P. §§ 335-341.)

To actions brought to recover money or other property deposited with any bank, banker, trust company, building and loan association, or savings and loan society, there is no limitation. (C. C. P. § 348.)

Demands barred by the statute of limitations are revived by the written promise or acknowledgment by the person to be held bound, signed by him, and in no other manner. Part payment does not prevent running of statute.

After a cause of action has accrued against a person his absence from the State is not part of the time limited for commencing an action against him.

A cause of action which arose in another State or country, and is barred by its laws, is barred in this State also, except in favor of a citizen who has held the cause of action from its accrual. (C. C. P. § 361.)

If at the time the cause of action accrues the person entitled to bring such action be under the age of majority, or insane or imprisoned on a criminal charge, or under execution thereunder for a term less than for life, or a married woman, and her husband be a necessary party in commencing said action, the time of such disability is not part of the time limited for the commencement of such action.

Married Women. — A married woman may hold, convey, and devise real and personal estate as freely as if unmarried. She may enter into any engagement or transaction respecting property which she might if unmarried, but the property of the community is not liable for any of her contracts made after marriage unless secured by a pledge or mortgage thereof executed by her husband. She is personally liable under such contract and may be sued thereon, and her separate property may be taken to satisfy a judgment thereon. Her husband must be joined with her when she is sued except when living separate from him by reason of his desertion of her or their agreement to live separate. Her earnings are not liable for the debts of her husband, and her earnings received while she is living separate from him are her separate property. Her separate property is liable for her debts, whether contracted before or after her marriage, but is not liable for the debts of her husband. The separate property of the husband is not liable for her debts contracted before the marriage. No estate is allowed the husband as tenant by curtesy, nor is any estate in dower allotted to the wife.

All property, both real and personal, of either husband or wife, owned before marriage, and all acquired afterwards by gift, bequest, devise, or descent, with the rents, issues, and profits thereof, is separate property; and may be sold, conveyed, mortgaged, incumbered, or assigned without the consent of the other spouse.

All other property acquired after marriage by either husband or wife, or both, including real property situated in this State, and personal property wherever situated, acquired while domiciled elsewhere, which would not have been the separate property of either if acquired while domiciled in this State, is community property; but whenever any property is conveyed to a married woman by an instrument in writing, the presumption is that the title is thereby vested in her as her separate property; and property conveyed to a married woman and her husband or any other person is presumed to be held by her as tenant in common unless a different intention is expressed in the instrument. These presumptions are conclusive in favor of a purchaser or incumbrancer in good faith for a valuable consideration.

The husband has the management and control of the community personal property with the same absolute power of disposition, other than testamentary, as of his separate estate, except that he cannot dispose of the same without valuable consideration, or sell or encumber household furniture or wearing apparel of family, without written consent of the wife. The husband also has the control of the community real property, but the wife must join in any instrument conveying or encumbering any interest greater than a lease for one year, although an instrument executed by husband alone is valid in favor of bona fide purchaser, etc., ignorant of the marriage. Upon the death of the husband the wife succeeds to one half of the community property, after payment of debts and expenses of administration. In case of divorce, the common property shall be equally divided between husband and wife, except when the divorce is granted on the ground of adultery or extreme cruelty, in which case the court apportions the property in its discretion.

The husband can convey property directly to his wife either by way of gift or in bargain and sale.

The husband and wife may enter into any engagement or transaction respecting property with each other which either might if unmarried, subject only to the general rule as to contracts between parties occupying confidential relations. (C. C. § 158.)

A husband and wife may hold property as joint tenants, tenants in common, or as community property. (C. C. § 161.)

A married woman may transact business as a feme sole upon obtaining leave of the court, after petition, notice, and due proceedings under the law. See Notes and Bills of Exchange.

Women arrive at majority at the age of eighteen years. If a woman marries before arriving at majority the authority of a guardian of her person ceases, but not that of the guardian of her estate.

A married woman may be the executrix of a will. She can be appointed administratrix of an estate. If unmarried at the time of her appointment her authority does not cease upon her marriage. A married woman may dispose of her estate by will without the assent of her husband.

Mortgages. — Mortgages are executed and acknowledged in the same manner as deeds and require the signature of the wife unless the property is separate estate of the husband; and in practice the wife's signature is usually obtained in all cases. Mortgages with the power of sale are valid, but subject to same restrictions on exercise of the powers as trust deeds, q. v. A mortgage is but a lien and does not confer upon the mortgagee the right to possession of the property mortgaged.

A mortgage can be renewed or extended only with the same formalities by which it can be created. Mortgages are foreclosed only by proceedings in equity, in which all parties having interests in the property appearing of record must be made parties. When the debt is barred, the lien of mortgage is also barred.

The same right of redemption after a sale under decree of foreclosure exists as in the case of sales under execution. See Redemptions.

Mortgages are discharged by a satisfaction-piece duly proved, or acknowledged and recorded; or by an entry of satisfaction on the margin of the record, signed by the mortgagee and witnessed by the recorder. Wife need not join unless she be named as a mortgagee. Mortgages, and other obligations securing debts, when land is pledged as security, together with the money represented by such debts, are exempt from taxation in this State. See Chattel Mortgages; Judgments; Trust Deeds.

Notaries Public. — Notaries public are appointed by the governor of the State, and they hold office for four years. They must use a seal in the performance of all acts. Their jurisdiction only extends to the county for which they are appointed. They are required to give bond in the sum of five thousand dollars for indemnity of persons injured by their official misconduct or neglect. (Pol. C. § 799.) Depositions before notaries public may be taken in all pending causes. See Affidavits; Deeds; Depositions.

Notes and Bills of Exchange. — The endorsement, presentation, protest, notice, etc., of bills of exchange and promissory notes are governed by the Civil Code, §§ 3082-3266d (Statutes 1917, pp. 1531 et seq.), being an enactment, without material change, of the uniform Negotiable Instruments Law as proposed and recommended by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws.

The following are legal holidays in this State, viz.: Every Sunday, January 1, February 12, February 22, May 30, July 4, the first Monday in September, September 9, October 12, December 25, every day on which an election is held throughout the State, and every day appointed by the president of the United States or by the governor of this State for a public fast, thanksgiving, or holiday. If January 1, February 12, February 22, May 30, July 4, September 9, October 12, or December 25 falls upon a Sunday, the Monday following is a holiday. Saturday afternoon is a holiday in public offices.

The note of a married woman is binding and may be collected out of her separate property. A promissory note secured by a mortgage on property in this State has been held not negotiable in the sense of the law merchant (Kohn v. Sacramento, etc., Co., 168 Cal. 1), and it is believed that this rule has not been changed by the adoption of the Negotiable Instruments Law.

Pleading and Practice. — The civil practice of the State is conducted under the Code of Civil Procedure, and the criminal practice under the Penal Code. See Actions; Judgments; Service of Summons.

Proof of Claims. — See Claims against the Estates of Deceased Persons.

Records. — See Deeds.

Redemptions. — All real property sold on execution or under foreclosure, except when the estate therein is less than a leasehold for two years' unexpired term, is subject to redemption, and may be redeemed by the following persons, or their successors in interest: —

1st. The judgment debtor or his successor in interest, in the whole or any part of the property.

2d. A creditor, having a lien by judgment or mortgage on the property sold, or on some share or part thereof, subsequent to that on which the property was sold. The persons mentioned in this subdivision are termed redemptioners.

The judgment debtor, or a redemptioner, may redeem the property from the purchaser within twelve months after the sale, on paying the purchaser the amount of his purchase with one per cent. per month thereon up to the time of redemption, together with the amount of any assessment or tax which the purchaser may have paid thereon and interest on the same and any prior lien to that of the redemptioner held by the purchaser. If the property be so redeemed by a redemptioner, another redemptioner may, within sixty days after the last redemption, on paying the sum paid on such last redemption, with two per cent. thereon in addition, and the amount of any assessment or taxes paid thereon, with interest, and any lien held by the said last redemptioner prior to his own, with interest. The property may be again redeemed, and as often as any redemptioner is so disposed, within the same time after the last redemption, and on the same terms.

If no redemption be made within twelve months after the sale, or, if so redeemed, whenever sixty days have elapsed after the last redemption (the twelve months having expired), the purchaser or last redemptioner is entitled to the sheriff's deed, unless the last redemptioner be the debtor, in which case no deed is given. (C. C. P. §§ 701-703.)

Replevin. — The plaintiff, in an action to recover the possession of personal property, may replevin the same at the time of issuing the summons, or at any time before answer, upon making an affidavit showing that the plaintiff is the owner of the property (describing it), or is entitled to the possession thereof; that it is wrongfully detained; the alleged cause of detention according to his best knowledge or information and belief; and that it has not been taken for a tax, assessment, or fine pursuant to a statute; or seized under execution or attachment against the plaintiff; or if so seized, that it is exempt, and also stating the actual value of the property. (C. C. P. §§ 509, 510.) It is also necessary to give an undertaking in double the value of the property, as stated in the affidavit, to prosecute the action, and for the return of the property, if return thereof shall be adjudged. (C. C. P. § 512.) See Undertakings.

The defendant may, within two days after the service on him of the papers in the action, except to the sufficiency of the sureties; and if he fails to do so he waives the right. At any time before the delivery of the property to the plaintiff, the defendant may, if he does not except to the sufficiency of the sureties of the plaintiff, require the return thereof upon giving to the sheriff a written undertaking executed by two or more sufficient sureties, bound in double the value of the property as stated in the affidavit of the plaintiff, if such delivery be adjudged, and for the payment to him of such sum as may, for any cause, be recovered against the defendant. If the property taken is not so claimed by the defendant within five days of the taking thereof, the sheriff is required to deliver the property to the plaintiff. (C. C. P. §§ 513, 514.)

Reports, Judicial. — California, 175 volumes. In addition to several earlier Digests, Messrs. Bancroft-Whitney Company, of San Francisco, have published a Digest, edited by James M. Kerr, covering Volumes 1-167 of these Reports, and annual supplements are being issued by the same publishers.

The Reports of the three District Courts of Appeal are published in a separate series, 35 volumes having been issued. The first 24 volumes are covered by Kerr's Digest above mentioned.

Revision. — The laws of the State were codified in 1872. The codes reported by the commission to revise the laws were enacted into laws by the legislature in 1872, and went into force January 1, 1873. They are the Political Code, Civil Code, Penal Code, and Code of Civil Procedure. The abbreviations used are: Pol. C., Political Code; C. C., Civil Code; C. C. P., Code of Civil Procedure; P. C., Penal Code. An annotated edition of all the codes by James M. Kerr was published in 1905. Two "pony" editions (including also a volume of "General Laws" not incorporated in the Codes) were published in 1915, embodying all amendments by the legislature to and including the session of that year. The present state Constitution was adopted May 7, 1879, and went into full force January 1, 1880. Numerous amendments thereto have since been adopted.

Sales in Bulk. — The statute (C. C. § 3440) prohibits sales in bulk until seven days after recording notice thereof, but no decision has been rendered by the Supreme Court as to its constitutionality.

Service of Summons. — A summons may be issued upon the complaint at any time within a year after it is filed. The summons must be served upon each defendant within the State by delivering to him a copy thereof together with a copy of the complaint. Service upon a foreign corporation doing business within this State may be made upon its managing agent within the State, or upon the person required to be designated for that purpose in writing, filed with the secretary of state; or, in default of such designation, upon the secretary of state. (C. C. § 405.) If the defendant is a non-resident, or has departed from the State, or conceals himself to avoid the service, or cannot be found within the State, or is a foreign corporation having no officer or agent within the State upon whom service can be made, service may be made upon such defendant by a publication of the summons in a newspaper, and, if the residence of such defendant is known, mailing him a copy of summons and complaint. Such service is made upon the order of the court or judge, and the publication, if against a non-resident defendant, must be at least once a week for two months. Service is complete at the expiration of the time fixed for publication. When publication has been ordered, personal service out of the State is equivalent to publication. The defendant is required to appear and answer the complaint within ten days after service, if served within the county where the action is brought; in all other cases, within thirty days. Unless the summons is issued within the year, and served and return made within three years after the commencement of the action, or the defendant appears, the action must be dismissed.

Statutes. — See Revision.

Stay of Execution. — The court in which an action has been tried, except a justice's court, has discretionary power to grant a stay of proceedings for a reasonable time, upon a judgment or order: but such stay cannot exceed thirty days in any case where a bond to secure performance of the judgment or order is required to effect a stay on appeal. (C. C. P. § 681a.) An appeal, when accompanied by a sufficient undertaking, stays execution. (C. C. P. § 942.)

Supplementary Proceedings. — When execution against the judgment debtor has been returned unsatisfied, in whole or in part, the judgment creditor, at any time after such return is made, is entitled to an order from the judge of the court, requiring such debtor to appear and answer concerning his property, before such judge or a referee appointed by him at a time and place specified in the order. The judge or referee may order any property of a judgment debtor, not exempt from execution, in the hands of such debtor or any other person, or due to the judgment debtor, to be applied toward the satisfaction of judgment unless such person claims an interest in the property, or denies the debt. (C. C. P. §§ 714-719.)

Tax Laws. — State and County Taxes. — Pursuant to amendments to the state Constitution, adopted November 8, 1910, radical changes have been made in the tax laws, with the intent of separating the sources of state and local taxes. As exclusive state taxes, railroad and other transportation companies, and telegraph, telephone, gas, electric, and insurance companies are required to pay, annually, certain percentages of their gross earnings, and banks, state and national, a percentage upon the value of their capital stock; and the properties of all such companies are relieved from all local tax and license charges (except for the payment of bonded indebtedness created prior to November 8, 1910). Also all franchises (other than the franchises of the foregoing specified companies) are assessed and taxed exclusively for state purposes. If, however, these sources of revenue prove insufficient for the support of the State, a general tax upon all property in the State (except that specially exempted as below stated) will be levied to supply the deficiency.

Taxes for county purposes are levied according to the following scheme, which also applies to the taxes, if any, to meet deficiency in state revenues, as above mentioned. Most, if not all, cities also levy property taxes according to this plan.

Assessment is made of property within the State according to its value, at noon on the first Monday of March in each year. Property for the purposes of such assessment includes monies, credits, bonds, stocks, dues, and other matters and things capable of private ownership, except fruit and nut bearing trees under four years of age, and grapevines under three years of age. Bonds of public corporations, and all mortgages and other debts for which land is pledged as security, are exempt from taxation. The property of churches and of certain educational institutions is also exempt. (Property taxed exclusively for state purposes, is, as above explained, also exempt from local assessment, except for the payment of certain bonded indebtedness.)

Vessels of more than fifty-ton burden registered at any port of this State are exempt from taxation. Honorably discharged veterans of any war of the United States are entitled to a property exemption of one thousand dollars.

The statute defines value, for taxation, as "the amount at which the property would be taken in payment of a just debt, from a solvent debtor." In practice the assessments usually do not exceed fifty per cent. of market value, and are frequently much lower.

The lien of all taxes attaches on the first Monday in March for the year for which they are assessed. The taxes upon personal property are a lien upon any real estate of the same owner.

The taxes on all personal property so secured by real property, and one half of the taxes on all real property, are due and payable on the third Monday in October, and become delinquent on the first Monday in December next thereafter, and unless paid by that date, fifteen per cent. is added to the amount thereof; and if not paid by the last Monday in April next, an additional five per cent. is added thereto. The remaining one half of the taxes on all real property is due and payable on and after the first Monday in January next, and becomes delinquent on the last Monday in April next thereafter, and unless paid by that date, five per cent. is added to the amount thereof. The assessor can require a verified statement from any person setting forth specifically all the real and personal property owned by such person or in his possession or under his control at noon on the first Monday in March. (Pol. C. § 3629.) This provision is made pursuant to a constitutional provision (Const. art. XIII. § 8) which provides that this statement shall be furnished annually. After demand by assessor, should statement not be given, the assessor may make an arbitrary assessment, which at a certain designated time he reports to the board of supervisors sitting as a board of equalization on or before July 1, and then the board gives ten days' notice to the tax-payer to furnish a list, with a penalty for refusal or neglect to so furnish the list, but in no case can the valuation placed by the assessor be reduced by this board where the tax-payer has neglected to furnish the list to the assessor.

All taxes may be paid at the time the first installment is payable. Taxes on personal property assessed to one owning no real property must be collected by the assessor, and are due and payable immediately after the assessment is made. They become delinquent on the same dates, and are subject to the same penalties, as other personal property taxes, above stated.

On or before the fifth day of June the tax collector must publish a delinquent list containing the names of the persons, description of the property delinquent, amount of taxes, penalties, and costs, with taxes due on personal property, etc., and a notice that unless the taxes, together with the costs and penalties, are paid, the real property upon which the taxes are a lien will be sold. The publication must be made once a week for three successive weeks in some newspaper or a supplement thereto published in the county, and must designate the day and hour when the property will be sold, which sale must be to the State, and not be less than twenty-one nor more than twenty-eight days from the time of the first publication, and the place of sale shall be in the tax collector's office. On the day and hour fixed for the sale all property delinquent upon which taxes and all penalties have not been paid shall, by operation of law and the declaration of the tax collector, be sold to the State. Thereupon the tax collector must make out a certificate for each piece sold, giving the amount and year of assessment and specifying when the State will be entitled to a deed. This certificate must be signed by the tax collector, regularly numbered in a book, and the book filed in the office of the county recorder. Redemption may be made by the owner or any party in interest within five years from the date of sale to the State, or any time prior to a sale by the State. Redemption is made by the person, his heirs, executors, administrators, or successors in interest, before the State shall have disposed of the property, paying to the county treasurer of the county where the real estate may be situate the amount of taxes, penalties, and costs due at the time of sale, with interest at seven per cent. per annum, and also all taxes that were a lien upon the property at the time the taxes became delinquent, and also for each year since the sale for which taxes on the land have not been paid an amount equal to the percentage of taxes for that year upon the value of the real estate as assessed for that year, with interest thereon on the first day of July following each of said years at seven per cent. per annum to the time of redemption, and also all costs and penalties as follows: ten per cent. if redeemed within six months, twenty per cent. if within one year, thirty per cent. if redeemed within two years, forty per cent. if within three years, forty-five per cent. if within four years, fifty per cent. if redeemed within five years or any greater number of years from the same. Partial redemptions may be made.

Corporations. — The property of every corporation (other than those taxed exclusively for state purposes) is assessed direct to the corporation, and there is no assessment of the shares to stockholders except to the extent that the value thereof may represent property owned by the corporation outside the State. The law makes no distinction in taxation between domestic and foreign corporations. For license fees, see under Corporations.

Testimony. — See Evidence.

Torrens Land Law. — See under Deeds.

Trust Deeds — To secure the payment of money are in frequent use in this State, especially by savings banks and other corporations; but as they deprive the debtor of the right of redemption, they are not looked upon with favor by borrowers. The statute (C. C. § 2924) requires notice of intention to exercise power of sale, on default, to be recorded three months before sale, and in addition that same notice of sale be given as on execution.

Undertakings. — In all actions where undertakings with sureties are required (as in attachments, arrests, replevin, etc.), the sureties must be residents of this State, and householders or freeholders therein, and each worth the sum specified in the undertaking over and above all his just debts and liabilities, exclusive of property exempt from execution, but when the amount of the undertaking exceeds three thousand dollars and there are more than two sureties thereon, they may state in their affidavits that they are severally worth amounts less than that expressed in the undertaking, if the whole amount be equivalent to that of two sufficient sureties. (C. C. P. § 1057.) But a corporation organized for the purpose of making, guaranteeing, or becoming a surety upon bonds or undertakings required or authorized by law, may be accepted as sole surety.

Warehouse Receipts. — This State has adopted the "Uniform Warehouse Receipts Act" (Stats. 1909, p. 437) which provides, among other things, for negotiability of warehouse receipts deliverable to bearer, or order.

Wills. — Every person over the age of eighteen years, of sound mind, may, by last will, dispose of all his or her estate, real and personal, but no estate shall be bequeathed or devised to any charitable or benevolent society or corporation, or in trust for charitable uses, unless by will executed at least thirty days before the death of the testator, and the amount of all charitable devises or bequests shall not exceed one third of the estate of the testator leaving legal heirs. These restrictions do not apply to devises or bequests to the State or state institutions. (C. C. § 1313.)

Any married woman may dispose of all her separate estate by will, absolutely, without the consent of her husband, and may alter or revoke her will as if she were single, but said will is to be attested and proven as other wills.

Every will other than a nuncupative will must be in writing, and every will other than a nuncupative will and a holographic will must be executed or attested as follows: it must be subscribed at the end thereof by the testator himself, or some person in his presence, and by his express direction, must subscribe his name thereto. The subscription must be made in the presence of the attesting witnesses or be acknowledged by the testator to them to have been made by his authority; the testator must declare to the attesting witnesses that it is his will, and it must be attested by two or more witnesses, each of whom must sign the same as a witness to the will in the presence of the testator, at the end of the will, at the testator's request. A typewritten will, if properly executed and witnessed, is undoubtedly valid (C. C. § 14); but a holographic will cannot be written on the typewriter. (Estate of Dreyfus, 165 Pac. 941.)

No nuncupative will shall be good when the estate bequeathed exceeds the value of one thousand dollars, nor unless the same be proved by two witnesses who were present at the making thereof, nor unless it be proved that the testator, at the time of pronouncing the same, did bid some one present to bear witness that such was his will, or to that effect, nor unless it was made at a time when the decedent was in actual military service in the field, or doing duty on shipboard at sea, and in either case in actual contemplation, fear, or peril of death; or the decedent must have been at the time in expectation of immediate death from an injury received the same day. (C. C. § 1289.)

A nuncupative will must be reduced to writing within thirty days, and offered for proof within six months after the same was uttered, nor can probate thereof be granted for fourteen days after the death of the testator. (C. C. §§ 1290, 1291.)

A holographic will is one that is entirely written, dated, and signed by the hand of the testator himself, either in or out of this State, and need not be witnessed. (C. C. § 1277.)

A mutual will is valid, but may be revoked by either of the testators. A will may provide for its conditional validity, and will be denied probate if the conditions do not exist.

If after making a will the testator marries and his wife survives him, the will is revoked unless she is provided for therein or it is apparent therefrom that it was his intention not to make provision for her, or unless provision has been made for her by marriage contract; and also if, after making a will, the testator marries and has issue of such marriage, born either before or after his death and the wife or issue survive him; unless provision has been made for such issue by a settlement or in the will, the will is revoked. A will executed by a woman is revoked by her marriage and is not revived by the death of her husband. If a child be born to the testator after the making of his will and is not mentioned in his will or provided for therein or by any settlement, or if the testator omit to provide for any child or the issue of any deceased child, unless it appears that such omission was intentional, such child or issue has the same share of the estate of the testator as though he had died intestate, unless the testator had in his lifetime bestowed upon it an equal proportion of his estate by way of advancement.

A will made out of this State is not valid as a will in this State unless executed according to the provisions of the laws of this State, except that a will made in a State or country in which the testator is domiciled at the time of his death, and valid as a will under the laws of such State or country, is valid in this State so far as the same relates to personal property (C. C. § 1285), subject to the limitations of C. C. § 1313, concerning charitable bequests and devises, as above stated.

Wills duly proved and allowed in any other of the United States, or in a foreign country, may be allowed and recorded in the superior court of any county in California in which the testator may have resided or left estate. (C. C. P. § 1322.)

Contest. — Any person interested may contest the validity of a will offered for probate either before, or within one year after, its admission to probate, and may have a trial by jury of any issues of fact so raised involving: 1, the competency of the decedent to make a last will and testament; 2, the freedom of the decedent at the time of the execution of the will from duress, menace, fraud, or undue influence; 3, the due execution and attestation of the will by the decedent or subscribing witness; or, 4, any other questions substantially affecting the validity of the will. (C. C. P. § 1312.)

Workmen's Compensation. — A comprehensive statute on this subject has been in force since 1913. (See Statutes 1917, pp. 831 et seq.)

COLORADO LAWS.

Messrs. Bartels and Blood of Denver.

The next legislature convenes on the first Wednesday in January, 1919.

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — There is but one form of civil action in this State. Actions are commenced by the filing of a complaint in the office of the clerk of the court in which the action is brought or by service of a summons. At any time within a month after the complaint is filed the plaintiff may have summons issued. Summons is issued by the clerk, under the seal of the court or by an attorney. See Judgments.

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See, also, Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons. Administration shall be granted to the husband or widow or next of kin to the intestate, or some of them, if they will accept the same, and are not disqualified, but in all cases the husband or widow shall have the preference; but if no widow or other relative apply within twenty days after the death of such intestate, administration may be granted to any creditor applying; and in case no creditor applies within ten days next ensuing after the lapse of said twenty days, or in case a written relinquishment is filed by the husband, widow, or next of kin, then administration may be granted to any person whom the judge of probate may think best. The foregoing applies only to counties of less than fifty thousand population. In each county of fifty thousand or more a public administrator is appointed by the county judge for a term of four years, and in case of the death of any person whose estate is subject to administration in such county, intestate and without relations within the State who will accept administration, it is the duty of the county court to issue letters to the public administrator upon his application or that of any other person interested in the estate: provided, however, that if within sixty days of the death of deceased his heirs at law nominate "any other qualified person" as administrator, administration will be granted to such person upon his giving bond and previous letters to the public administrator will be revoked. Under this last proviso a creditor might doubtless be appointed and the question is open whether the heirs at law might not have the right to require the appointment of a non-resident. There is no express statutory disqualification of a non-resident but appointment of non-residents is not practiced and the statutes do provide that when any executor or administrator appointed in this State removes without the limits of the State, the county court shall, upon ten days' notice, remove him and supply the vacancy. This notice may be served by four weeks' publication in a newspaper of the county where the estate is being administered where personal service cannot be had.

State bank and trust companies organized under the statutes of this State, and national banks when authorized by permit granted by the Federal Reserve Board, may be appointed administrators or executors.

The applicant for letters of administration must file an affidavit of some relative or friend of the deceased having personal knowledge of the facts, showing where the deceased was born, his age, race, time of death, his then residence and the names and places of residence of each of his heirs stating their relationship and whether adults or minors. This requirement however may be dispensed with by order of court when the information cannot be obtained.

Each and every administrator shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, enter into bond for the faithful discharge of his duties as required by law and by order of the court, with good and sufficient security, to be approved by the county court in a sum at least equal to and not more than double the value of the personal estate, together with the rents and issues accruing or to accrue during his term of office from the real estate of the deceased. Where the bond is not furnished by an authorized surety company at least two sureties are necessary. Where the will confers authority to sell real estate the executor or administrator must, before making any sale under such authority, apply to the court for an order authorizing the sale and must give a bond at least equal to but not more than double the appraised value of the real estate so ordered to be sold.

Executors, administrators, guardians, and conservators appointed in other States, of the estates of persons not residents of Colorado, may prosecute and defend actions in Colorado in behalf of such estates, but must file in court authenticated copies of letters of administration, etc., and of a bond in double the amount sought to be recovered, but the court may dispense with this requirement where it appears that the interests of the ward or of the estate or its creditors will not be affected by a removal of the assets; must give notice to resident executors, etc. (who shall have the right to initiate actions if they elect to do so); and must publish notice of the pendency of the action in a paper of general circulation for ten days prior to judgment.

Appraisers ("not more than three persons of discretion not related to the decedent or ward or interested in the administration of the estate") are appointed, who are required to make out and certify to the county court an estimate of the value of the personal property of the estate, and separately the value of each of the several items of property allowed to the widow (or orphan children if there be no widow), and it is optional with the widow to take such articles in specie or in money, or part in specie and part in money. Appraisement may be dispensed with when the estate consists only of real estate or money, or when in the opinion of the court it is not necessary. The above provisions apply also to the wife or children of a mental incompetent. In cases where the will does not specifically authorize the sale or mortgaging of real estate, this may nevertheless be done where it shall appear for the best interests of the estate or of the parties in interest therein. The personal representative of the estate files a petition, stating the amount and value of the personal estate, the amount of liabilities, debts, and claims against the estate, the value of all real estate, the nature of the title of the decedent or ward therein, and setting forth specifically the reasons why it is deemed for the best interests of the estate or of the persons interested therein to sell or mortgage any of the real property. If upon the presentation of the petition it shall appear to the judge to be necessary or expedient that real property be mortgaged or sold, he shall order a hearing at a time not less than twenty or more than ninety days from the presentation and filing of the petition. The notice to show cause may be served on persons residing in and who can be found in the State twenty days prior to the date of the hearing. Parties in interest who cannot be personally served may be served by publication for two weeks in a newspaper of general circulation published in the county, together with the mailing of a copy of the notice to all whose addresses may be ascertained (which is made to appear by an affidavit of the petitioner). The order of sale may be entered twenty days after the last publication. The court appoints a guardian ad litem for minor heirs or mental incompetents not otherwise represented. No sale or mortgage shall be ordered until after the real estate shall have been appraised (in the same manner as provided for the appraisement of personal property), or until the personal representative shall have executed a bond in not less than the appraised value, conditioned for the faithful accounting for the proceeds. Any sale shall be at public auction upon notice as may be prescribed by the court; provided, however, that the court may authorize a private sale or mortgage for not less than the appraised value and no notice of such sale is necessary after the entry of the order of sale. Provision is made for re-appraisement in certain cases. A sale is not required for the purpose of paying the widow's allowance, but if the real estate is insufficient to pay the balance of the allowance the court may, after the expiration of the year allowed for presenting claims, enter an order awarding such real estate to the widow. District courts have jurisdiction concurrent with county courts in proceedings for the sale or mortgaging of real property of decedents or mental incompetents.

All executors and administrators shall exhibit accounts of their administration for settlement to the court from which letters were issued, at the first term thereof after the expiration of six months from the date of their letters, and in like manner every six months thereafter, or oftener, if required by the court, until the duties of their administration are fully completed.

Affidavits. — The following officers are authorized to administer oaths and to take affidavits and depositions, to wit: the judges and clerks of courts of record within their respective counties and districts, and justices of the peace within their respective counties, county clerks, and notaries public. Those who desire may affirm, subject to the pains and penalties of perjury. Affidavits taken in other States and Territories to be used in this State shall be taken by a commissioner appointed by the governor of this State, or before a notary public or judge or clerk of a court of record having a seal. When taken in a foreign country, they must be before an ambassador, minister, or consul of the United States, or before any judge or court of record having a seal. (When an affidavit is taken before a judge of another State or foreign country, the existence of the court, the fact that the judge is a member thereof, and the genuineness of the judge's signature, must be certified to by the clerk of the court under its seal.)

Aliens. — Aliens may acquire, inherit, possess, enjoy, and dispose of property real and personal as native-born citizens.

Appeals. — Appeals from courts of record were abolished by the general assembly of 1911, except from the county to the district court. Writs of error lie from the supreme court to every final judgment, decree, or order of any county court, district court, or juvenile court, when an exception thereto is taken within five days. Execution is stayed during this period and upon motion a further stay may be granted for not exceeding thirty days. A writ of error must be sued out within two years, excluding the period of disability of infants, those imprisoned or insane, who were under such disability at the time of the entry of the judgment. The writ of error does not operate as a supersedeas unless so ordered by the supreme court or one of the justices in vacation after inspection of the record, and until the plaintiff in error has entered into a bond conditioned for the prosecution of the writ of error, the payment of costs, and the payment or performance of the judgment if the same be affirmed. The amount of this bond is fixed by the supreme court, and in case of a money judgment is not less than one and one half times the amount of such judgment. The chief justice may in his discretion dispense with or limit the amount of the bond when the plaintiff in error is an executor, administrator, conservator, or guardian, and has given bond as such. The State, the county commissioners of the various counties, cities, towns, and school districts, and all charitable, educational, and reformatory institutions under the patronage or control of the State, and public officers suing or defending in their capacity as such for the benefit of the public, are not required to give bond.

Appeals from judgments of justices of the peace may be taken to the county courts in all cases except upon confession of judgment, provided the appellant within ten days from the rendition of the judgment appealed from, and in cases of forcible entry and unlawful detainer, when execution is wished to be stayed, within forty-eight hours, files a bond with sufficient surety in double the amount of the judgment, and pays the costs of the appeal only. In the county courts the appealed case is tried de novo.

Appeals may be taken from all final judgments of the county court and from all final judgments, decrees, or orders of county courts relating to probate matters, to the district court of the same county, except judgments by confession, judgments in cases of assignments for the benefit of creditors and except in actions which have been appealed from the justices' courts to the county court; provided a proper bond is filed within ten days from the rendition of judgment. It is the duty of the clerk or judge of the county court, upon payment of the costs of the appeal only and within ten days after the appeal is made, to file with the clerk of the district court a transcript, but his failure to do so does not affect the appeal. The appellant must docket the appeal in the district court within thirty days after the transcript is lodged there. The trial in the district court is de novo. Cases may also upon proper showing and filing a bond as on appeal be removed from the justices' courts by certiorari to the district or county courts at any time within six months from rendition of judgment, but only where it is not within the power of the party to take an appeal in the ordinary way.

On appeals from the county court to the district court in probate matters (except from an order fixing the amount of an inheritance tax), as well as on writs of certiorari, no bond is required from an executor, administrator, conservator, or guardian. All appeals from the county court in probate matters have preference over all other cases in the district court. For appeals in eviction cases, see Forcible Entry and Detainer.

Arrests. — Imprisonment for debt is abolished. In actions founded on tort in which the finding is for the plaintiff and the verdict shall state that the defendant was guilty of malice, fraud, or willful deceit, execution may issue against the defendant's body and he may be imprisoned for not more than one year, or until the judgment shall have been paid.

Assignments. — The statute relative to voluntary assignments is still in force, but its application is practically suspended by reason of the national bankruptcy act.

Attachment. — Property may be attached at any time before judgment after the complaint is filed or summons is issued, in cases on contract express or implied, upon the plaintiff filing an undertaking with sufficient sureties in double the amount of the demand, and upon his filing an affidavit of himself, his agent or attorney, stating the nature and amount of the indebtedness, as near as may be, and any one of the following causes of attachment: 1st. That the defendant is not a resident of this State. 2d. That the defendant is a foreign corporation. 3d. That the defendant is a corporation whose chief office or place of business is out of the State. 4th. That the defendant conceals himself or stands in defiance of an officer, so that process of law cannot be served upon him, or that the defendant has for more than four months been absent from the State, or that for such length of time his whereabouts have been unknown, and that the indebtedness mentioned in the affidavit has been due during all the said period. 5th. That the defendant is about to remove his property or effects, or a material part thereof, out of this State with intent to defraud, or hinder, or delay his creditors, or some one or more of them. 6th. That the defendant has fraudulently conveyed, or transferred, or assigned his property or effects, so as to hinder or delay his creditors, or some one or more of them. 7th. That the defendant has fraudulently concealed, or removed, or disposed of his property or effects, so as to hinder or delay his creditors, or some one or more of them. 8th. That the defendant is about to fraudulently convey, or transfer, or assign his property or effects, so as to hinder or delay his creditors, or some one or more of them. 9th. That the defendant is about to fraudulently conceal, or remove, or dispose of his property or effects, so as to hinder or delay his creditors; or that such debtor has departed, or is about to depart, from this State, with the intention of having his effects removed from this State. 10th. That the defendant has failed or refused to pay the price or value of any article or thing delivered to him, which he should have paid for upon the delivery thereof. 11th. That the defendant has failed or refused to pay the price or value of any work or labor done or performed, or for any services rendered by the plaintiff at the instance of the defendant and which should have been paid at the completion of such work, or when such services were fully rendered. 12th. That the defendant fraudulently contracted the debt, or fraudulently incurred the liability respecting which the suit is brought, or by false representations or false pretenses, or by any fraudulent conduct, procured money or property of the plaintiff.

The above applies to courts of record. Grounds to be stated in justices' courts are in effect the same, except: the third above, which is there absent; the eleventh, in which it is not a requisite that payment should have been made upon completion of the services; and the following, which applies only in justices' courts, viz.: that the debt is for farm products, house rent, household furniture and furnishings, fuel, groceries and provisions, clothing and wearing apparel for the debtor or his family or any of them, or for any of said articles.

No judgment can be entered until thirty days after levy of attachment (in justices' courts twenty days after the return day), and in the interval other creditors may institute attachment proceedings, and upon final judgments being rendered the attaching creditors shall be entitled to the money realized from the attachment proceedings in proportion to the amounts of their several judgments; but when a defendant is removing property from the county, and the same is overtaken and ret rned, or while the same is secreted by the defendant, or put out of his hands for the purpose of defrauding his creditors, the court may allow priority to the creditor or creditors through whose diligence the property shall have been secured.

If it satisfactorily appears that the attachment levies upon the property of the defendant are sufficient to render him insolvent, the court or judge shall, upon application, order that writs of attachment may issue in suits on contracts express or implied, not yet due, in order that such attaching creditors may pro rate upon the attached property and the proceeds thereof; but in such cases when judgment is rendered, there shall be a rebatement of interest, if any. Writs of attachment may issue on Sunday or on a legal holiday in urgent cases.

No person who may be attached as garnishee shall be required to set up or plead any exemption for or in behalf of the defendant or judgment debtor.

Chattel Mortgages. — Chattel mortgages filed for record in the office of the county clerk and recorder constitute liens upon the property mortgaged, notwithstanding it remains in possession of the mortgagor, provided this is so stated in the instrument, and such liens remain in force for the following periods, viz.: Not exceeding two years if the principal of the indebtedness secured does not exceed twenty-five hundred dollars, not exceeding five years if said principal be more than twenty-five hundred dollars and not more than twenty thousand dollars, and not exceeding ten years if said principal exceeds twenty thousand dollars. Every chattel mortgage is, however, valid between the parties thereto until the indebtedness is paid or barred by the statute of limitations. The lien of any chattel mortgage which has been admitted to record may at any time within thirty days after the maturity of the last installment of indebtedness secured thereby be extended for the unpaid portion of said indebtedness by the mortgagee or his assignee, by filing with the clerk of the county where the mortgage was filed a sworn statement showing the total payments which have been made on the debt and the amount which still remains unpaid, that such amount is still due to the mortgagee or his assignee, and that he consents to extend the mortgage for not to exceed two years. Successive extensions for two years may be had in like manner until the indebtedness shall be paid or barred by the statute of limitations.

In all cases where mortgages are given to secure more than twenty-five hundred dollars, there shall be filed annually in the recorder's office wherein the mortgage is recorded, a sworn statement of the mortgagees, or one of them, that the mortgage was given in good faith to secure the payment of the money mentioned therein; that said sum of money is still unpaid, or if part has been paid, the sum remaining unpaid. Mortgages upon (or sales of) household goods used by family given or made by a husband or wife residing with the other are not valid unless executed by both jointly. Mortgages of live stock may cover the increase or any part thereof, as may be provided therein. A mortgagor who, during the existence of the lien or title created by the mortgage, disposes of the property mortgaged is deemed guilty of larceny unless the mortgagor notifies the transferee of the incumbrance, and also first notifies the mortgagee of the name and place of residence of the intended transferee. The mortgagee has thirty days after the maturity of the debt in which to take possession. Mortgages must be filed or recorded in order to bind third parties. Any mortgage may be released upon the margin of the record. The form of acknowledgments shall be as follows: "This mortgage was acknowledged before me this day of 19 , by mortgagor." If the mortgagor is a copartnership, the officer shall certify substantially, as follows: "This mortgage was acknowledged before me this day of 19 , by for (naming copartnership), mortgagor." If the mortgagor is a corporation, the officer shall certify substantially as follows: "This mortgage was acknowledged before me this day of 19 , by (president or other head officer) for (naming corporation), mortgagor." See Mortgages.

Claims, Proof of. — See Proof of Claims.

Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons. — See, also Administration; Descent and Distribution; Wills. The clerk of the county court on the first day of each month fixes a day, not less than four weeks thereafter, for the presentation and settlement of claims against all estates in which letters testamentary or of administration or conservatorship have been granted during the preceding month, and gives four weeks' previous notice thereof by publication in some newspaper printed within the county wherein administration is had, requesting that all claims against the estate be presented to the court for allowance on the day named. Estates are liable for costs on all claims exhibited at or before said adjustment day but not after. Persons having filed claims against estates, upon giving the administrator or executor ten days' notice of the time they intend to present the same, may prove such claims against the estate at any term of the court subsequent to the issuing of letters testamentary or of administration and prior to the closing of the estate.

Under a 1915 amendment of the Colorado Wills Act it is provided (ch. 173, § 125) that claims may be filed against estates at any time within six months from the granting of letters. The former act (L. 1911, p. 541), providing a classification of claims, declared that claims not filed within one year should be forever barred — unless the creditor should find property of the deceased not inventoried, and saving to persons under disability the term of one year after the removal of such disability. The 1911 act is not expressly repealed and the compilers of this synopsis do not believe it is impliedly repealed, but urge that the question be avoided by filing claims within six months from the granting of letters.

The court must classify all claims as follows: First class: Moneys received by the deceased in the capacity of executor, administrator, guardian, conservator, or trustee, and not accounted for by him. Second class: Expense of administration and settlement of the estate. Third class: Funeral and other expenses including necessary bills contracted for necessities for the deceased and his family and physician's bill, during last sickness of deceased (but not for more than thirty days immediately preceding the decease). Fourth class: All allowances to the widow, wife, or orphans made as provided by law. (See Descent and Distribution of Property.) Fifth class: All other debts and demands of whatsoever kind, without regard to quality or dignity, exhibited within one year (six months?) from the granting of letters.

If claim is objected to it must be proved up in like manner and by like evidence as in suits at law. No claimant can testify in his own behalf. This rule, however, is subject to the following exceptions, viz.: The claimant may testify as to facts occurring after the death of the deceased; when an agent of the deceased, or any person having an interest in the estate, shall in opposition to the claimant testify as to any conversation or transaction between such agent or interested person and the claimant, or when any other witness in opposition to the claimant testifies as to an admission by the claimant occurring before the death and in the absence of the deceased, the claimant may testify in his own behalf on the same point; and claimant may also testify as to matters contained in a deposition of deceased and admitted in evidence, and as to any conversation or admission or as to any matter connected with the claim, which conversation, admission, or matter occurred before the death and in the presence of the deceased, and also in the presence of any member of the family or any heir, legatee or devisee of the deceased over the age of sixteen years, provided the testimony of such person may be procured at the trial.

The entry of allowance has the force and effect of a judgment.

No mortgage, deed of trust, or other security, real or personal, securing payment of claims against estates of deceased persons, shall be foreclosed within one year from the death of the debtor, except upon order of court, which can be made only after the claim is proved and allowed in the county court.

Two years is the limit of time within which creditors may apply for the administration of the estates of deceased persons, for the purpose of subjecting the property of the deceased to the payment of their claims. This provision, however, does not affect the lien upon the incumbered property of any claim secured by recorded mortgage or deed of trust or by valid pledge accompanied by delivery of possession.

Conditional Sales. — Governed by provisions relating to Chattel Mortgages, which see. Consignments. — No special statutes.

Corporations. — Domestic corporations are formed by three or more persons filing in the office of the secretary of state a certificate of incorporation made, signed, and acknowledged by them, which shall contain the corporate name of the company, the objects for which it is formed, the amount of capital stock, the number of shares, the number of trustees or directors, the names of those who shall manage the affairs for the first year, the name of the place and county in which the principal office shall be kept, and the name of the county or counties in which the principal business shall be carried on, the term of its existence (not to exceed twenty years, but capable of renewal), and if said company is organized for the purpose of carrying on part of its business beyond the limits of this State, the certificate shall also state that fact. Such certificates shall also be filed in the recorder's office of the county or counties in which the business of the company is to be carried on. There must be not less than three nor more than thirteen directors (except that mining companies must not have more than nine directors), but the statute contains no provision as to their residence. Meetings of the board must be held within the State unless otherwise provided by the charter. The fee for filing such certificate in the office of the secretary of state is twenty dollars, and twenty cents for every thousand dollars of capital stock over fifty thousand dollars. Every subsequent increase of capital stock carries a fee of twenty cents for each thousand of such increase. Officers, directors, and stockholders are personally and jointly and severally liable for all corporate debts incurred, while such fees which become due by reason of increase of capital stock remain unpaid. Every domestic corporation amending its articles of association in any other respect must pay a fee of five dollars for every such amendment, except that if the amendment changes the corporate name the fee is twenty-five dollars. The above provisions are not applicable to corporations not for pecuniary profit, nor to corporations for religious, educational, and benevolent purposes. The corporate name of every corporation shall (except banks and corporations not for pecuniary profit) commence with the word "the" and end with the word "corporation," "company," "association," or "society," and shall indicate by its name the business to be carried on. Shares of stock shall be of a par value not more than one hundred dollars each, and are personal property and transferable as may be provided by the by-laws. Stockholders are liable for the debts of the corporation to the extent of their unpaid stock. Corporations are required to keep a stock book showing the condition and ownership of each share, which shall be accessible to the stockholders, creditors, and their representatives. No transfer of stock shall be valid for any purpose whatever, except to render the person to whom it shall be transferred liable for the debts of the company, unless it shall have been entered in the stock book within sixty days from the date of such transfer, by an entry showing to and from whom transferred; or, in case of the pledge of any such stock, a memorandum be made upon the books of the said company, showing to whom and for what amount the stock has been pledged. The certificates of mining corporations shall state whether the stock is assessable or non-assessable. There shall be but one corporation of the same name in this State. Holders of one third of stock may request meeting of stockholders to consider amendments to articles of incorporation. Amendments may be voted upon at any annual or special meeting. In case such voting is to be done at the annual meeting, the published notice of the annual meeting must contain a notification of the proposed amendments, and if the voting is to be done at a special meeting, notice, stating the time and object of such meeting, must be personally delivered, or mailed to each stockholder at least thirty days before the date of the meeting. Stockholders may vote in person or by proxy, and a vote of two thirds of all the stock is necessary to adopt amendments, excepting in the case of corporations other than for pecuniary profit, and not having capital stock, in which case the vote of two thirds of members present is sufficient for the amendment.

Foreign corporations shall, before they can do business in this State, make and file a certificate signed by the president and secretary, duly acknowledged, with the secretary of state and in the office of the recorder of the county in which the business is carried on designating the principal place of business within the State in which the business is to be carried on, and shall also in said certificate designate its agent or agents residing at its principal place of business upon whom process may be served. There is no provision against foreign corporations holding land in Colorado, provided they comply with the laws of this State. Foreign corporations shall also file a copy of their charter, or, in case it is organized under any general incorporation law, a copy of its certificate and of such law, duly certified to and authenticated, with the secretary of state. Foreign corporations whose capital stock does not exceed fifty thousand dollars shall pay a fee of thirty dollars. If the capital stock exceeds fifty thousand dollars, the secretary of state is required to collect thirty cents per thousand upon such excess, and a like fee of thirty cents on each thousand of any subsequent increase. Foreign corporations filing certified copies of the general law of any foreign state shall pay a fee of five dollars. Upon filing a certificate designating its principal place of business, or an agent for the service of process, a foreign corporation is required to pay a fee of five dollars. Corporations shall pay a fee of two dollars and fifty cents for filing and recording each certificate of impression of their corporate seals, and a like fee for filing and recording each certificate of paid-up stock. If such certificate shows that the capital stock of such corporations is in excess of fifty thousand dollars, such corporation shall pay a further fee of five cents for each thousand dollars of capital stock in excess of fifty thousand. Every corporation (except educational, religious, and benevolent corporations and corporations not for profit) is required to have the certificate of the secretary of state that it has paid all fees and taxes required by law, and a fee of five dollars is payable for such certificate.

Mortgages by any foreign corporation, except railroad and telegraph companies, given to secure a debt created in another State, shall not be effective against citizens or corporations of Colorado until all the company's liabilities due to any person or corporation in this State at the time of recording such mortgage have been paid and extinguished: provided that such foreign corporation intending to mortgage may give notice by publication for six weeks in a daily or weekly newspaper within the county where the property intended to be mortgaged is situated, or, if no such newspaper, by posting notice in five public places, requesting its creditors in this State to file their claims, duly verified, with the county clerk. The mortgage will be then effective as against any citizen or corporation of the State who shall fail to file his or its claim. All corporations, alike foreign and domestic, shall within sixty days from January 1 of each year file annual reports with the secretary of state. These reports are too elaborate to admit of the incorporation in this synopsis of their requirements at length. Reference is here made to chapter 102 of Sessions Laws of 1911. A fee of five dollars is payable on filing such reports, except that ditch and canal companies having less than fifty thousand dollars capital stock, corporations not for profit, religious, educational, or benevolent corporations, and corporations having a capital stock of less than ten thousand dollars, pay a fee of one dollar. If any corporation fails to file such report all its officers and directors are personally jointly and severally liable for all debts contracted during the year preceding the time when such report should have been made and filed and for debts contracted thereafter until it is filed, the corporation is barred from maintaining any action in the courts of this State, and the president and secretary are subject to a fine of one thousand dollars. Directors and officers of a corporation which has actually ceased to do business in this State may escape personal liability by filing a resignation with the secretary of state not less than thirty days before the beginning of the year in which the report will be due. Upon failure of any corporation to make the reports required by law for a period of three years, or upon its failure for a like period to pay the required fees it becomes defunct after advertisement by the secretary of state in a list of "moribund corporations" but may be revived by payment of delinquent taxes and fees together with a reinstatement fee of five dollars.

Corporations for insuring titles to real estate may be formed with a capital stock of not less than one hundred thousand dollars in shares of one hundred dollars each, which must all be subscribed for and actually paid in before doing business. The officers and stockholders are

A deed executed according to the above form with the words, "and warrant the title to the same," omitted therefrom has the same force and effect as a bargain and sale deed, without covenants of warranty, at common law and will pass the after-acquired title of the grantor; and the words, "and warrant the title against all persons claiming under me," and included in such deed, is a covenant that the grantor will warrant and defend the title to the grantee, his heirs and assigns, against all persons claiming to hold title by, through, or under the grantor.

A deed executed according to the above form with the word "quitclaim," substituted for "convey," and the words, "warrant the title to the same," omitted therefrom, is a deed of quitclaim and has the same effect as a conveyance as quitclaim deeds now in use.

Mortgages of real property may be in the following form: —

Know all men by these presents: That I _____ of the county of _____ and State of _____ hereby mortgage to _____ of the county of _____ and State of Colorado, to secure the payment of _____ dollars, due as follows: _____ the following described real property situate in _____ county, State of Colorado, to wit: _____ with the appurtenances, and warrant the title to the same.

Every such mortgage, when otherwise properly executed and acknowledged, is deemed and held a good and sufficient mortgage in fee to secure the payment of the moneys therein specified, and if the same contains the words, "and warrants the title to the same," it is construed the same as if full covenants of seizure, in good right to convey, against incumbrances, of quiet enjoyment, and general warranty; but if the words, "and warrant the title to the same," are omitted, no such covenants are implied.

Lands not in possession of the grantor may be conveyed, although there be an adverse possession thereof. Livery of seisin is abolished. No deed, conveyance, grant, or devise, except to executors and trustees, shall be held to convey lands in joint tenancy unless expressly stated in such deed or devise, but the lands so conveyed shall be held by tenancy in common. When one not having the legal estate or interest in realty conveys by a deed purporting to convey an estate in fee simple, and after such conveyance becomes possessed of such legal interest or estate, such estate or interest shall be held in trust for the grantee, and the prior conveyance shall be as valid as if the grantor had the legal estate or interest thereto when it was made. Estates in fee tail are abolished, instead of which the grantee in tail shall hold for life, remainder in fee simple absolute. All estates granted or devised are held to be in fee simple unless expressly limited. Covenants of seisin, peaceable possession, freedom from incumbrances, and warranty contained in any conveyance of real estate, run with the land, but no covenants, expressed or implied, in the deed of any married woman shall bind her on her heirs except so far as to pass to the purchaser all her present estate in the realty therein expressed to be conveyed. No right of action on a warranty exists, in cases where possession of the premises warranted has been actually delivered to the warrantee, unless suit shall have been commenced for possession of such premises and the warrantor after notice shall have refused to defend at his own cost the premises, in such suit. Powers of attorney by virtue of which any conveyance of real estate has been made must be recorded in the office of the recorder of the county in which the conveyance itself is recorded, and are subject to the same rules as deeds as to execution, acknowledgment, and recording. See Records; Married Women. Deeds executed and acknowledged in any foreign language must be accompanied by a sworn translation thereof into English before they can be admitted to record. Such translation may be sworn to before any officer authorized to take acknowledgments of deeds. Private corporations authorized to convey real estate may make conveyances as is provided herein, under their common seal, subscribed by their president or other head officer. Boards of county commissioners of any county, or the common council of any city, or the board of trustees of any town may convey real estate by a commissioner appointed by such bodies for such purpose, such appointment to be entered of record in the proceedings of such bodies, and such commissioners shall affix to such conveyance the seal of such county, city, or town.

Any owner of legal or equitable interests in land, except unpatented land, may apply to have the title of said land registered. The application is made to the district court, and if made by agent the agent's authority must have been executed and recorded in the same manner as required for a deed. No less estate than a fee simple can be registered unless the estate in fee simple itself has been registered. Tax titles cannot be registered, except after actual and undisputed possession for seven years, and payment of all taxes within that time, provided that vacant and unoccupied lands may be registered after payment of taxes by the applicant and his grantors for eight successive years prior to the application. The application must set forth the names of other parties claiming interests, and certain other particulars specified by the statute. The county clerks and recorders are registrars of titles. At the time of filing his application the applicant must also file with the clerk of the court an abstract of title, and the court will enter an order for the examination of the same by a regularly appointed examiner provided for by the act. If the examiner reports favorably, or if the applicant, notwithstanding an adverse report elects to proceed further, summons is issued to all persons named in the application or who may be found by the examiner to have an interest in the lands. Summons is served on non-residents by publication. If no appearance or answer is filed, a decree is entered which is conclusive against the world, except in certain cases provided for by the act and hereafter noted. If answer is filed by any party, those who do not answer are adjudged in default. Writ of error may be prosecuted from the decree in the ordinary manner.

Any interested person not having been served with notice, and not having actual notice of the proceedings, may have the decree of registration opened by application for that purpose made within ninety days of the date of the decree, except when an innocent purchaser has acquired an interest, in which case the decree cannot be opened, but the aggrieved person is admitted to his remedy by action of tort. Writ of error may be prosecuted from the review.

Any person receiving from the registrar a certificate of title in pursuance of the decree of registration, and every subsequent purchaser of registered land who takes a certificate in good faith and for value, shall hold the estate free from all incumbrances, except such as may be noted in the last certificate of title in the registrar's office, and except the following. 1. Any existing lease for a period not exceeding three years when there is actual occupation of the premises under the lease. 2. Public highways embraced in the description of land included in the certificate are excluded from the certificate, as is also any subsisting right of way or other easement for ditches or water rights. 3. Any tax or special assessment for which a sale of the land has not been had at the date of the certificate. 4. Such right of appeal or right to appear and contest the application as is allowed by the act. 5. Liens, claims, or rights arising or existing under the constitution or laws of the United States and which the statutes of this State cannot or do not require to appear of record in the office of the county clerk and recorder.

Any person taking by conveyance, attachment, judgment, or otherwise any interest in the land subsequent to the filing of a copy of the application for registration in the office of the county clerk and recorder must at once appear and answer as a party defendant in the proceeding for registration. The obtaining of a decree of registration and receiving a certificate of title is made by law an agreement running with the land to the effect that the land shall be and forever remain registered land, and henceforth all dealings with the land and all incumbrances thereon are subject to the terms of the act.

Title to registered land in derogation of that of the registered owner cannot be acquired by prescription or adverse possession.

The certificate of registration is based upon the decree of registration and contains the name of the owner, description of the land and of the estate of the owner, and a description of all incumbrances, liens, and interests to which the estate of the owner is subject, and also states the residence of the owner, and, if a minor, his age; and if under disability, the nature of the disability; also whether married or not, and if married, the name of the husband or wife; also any trust condition or limitation attached to the land.

The certificate of title relates back and takes effect as of the date of the decree of registration. Registered land may be dealt with in the same manner as if not registered, and the same forms of deeds, mortgages, etc., may be used as are in use for other lands; but no voluntary instrument or conveyance, except a will and a lease for a term not exceeding three years, shall take effect as a conveyance or bind registered land, but shall operate only as a contract between the parties and as evidence of the authority of the registrar of titles to make registration. The act of registration shall be the operative act to convey or affect the land. When filed with the registrar, conveyances, liens, judgments, etc., operate as notice to all persons from the time of recording, filing, and entering in the same manner as if the land were not registered.

Upon the original registration of land, a fee is paid to the registrar of one tenth of one per cent. of the assessed value of the real estate, to be used for an assurance fund, and any person sustaining loss or damage through any mistake or misfeasance of the registrar or of the examiner of titles or of any deputy, or by mistake or misfeasance of the clerk of the court, and any person wrongfully deprived of any interest in land through the bringing of the same under the provisions of the act or by the registration of any other person as the owner of the land, and who by the provisions of the act is barred from bringing an action for the recovery of such interest in land may bring an action against the treasurer of the county for recovery of damages to be paid out of the assurance fund, but the assurance fund is not liable to pay for any loss or damage occasioned by a breach of trust by any registered owner who is a trustee, or by the improper exercise of any power of sale in a mortgage or trust deed.

Depositions. — The testimony of witnesses may be taken by deposition in an action at any time after the service of a summons, or an appearance of the defendant, or in a special proceeding at any time after a question of fact has arisen therein in any of the following cases, viz.: where the witness is a party to the action, or directly interested therein; where the witness resides outside the county or is about to leave and will probably continue but if either party die within the six months' period the death operates automatically so as to grant an immediate and absolute divorce to the party to whom the divorce might have been granted had the period expired. Within sixty days of the date of the decree, but not thereafter, a writ of error may be prosecuted from the supreme court or court of appeals, in a manner provided by the statute, to review the decree.

Dower. — Dower is abolished. See Descent and Distribution of Property.

Eviction. — See Appeals.

Evidence. — The admission of evidence in civil actions in this State is governed by the rules of the common law as amended by our general laws and Civil Code. The printed statute books and reports of the United States and the several States and Territories may be had as evidence of such acts and decisions. In actions by copartners it is not necessary to prove partnership, or christian names or surnames of partners, joint payees, or obligees; in such cases misnomer, misjoinder, or non-joinder must be pleaded in abatement in the answer by defendant. Contents of lost instruments may be proved by parol, after making proof of loss. Witness is not disqualified by reason of conviction of crime or interest in event of suit, except when adverse party sues or defends as trustee or conservator of an idiot, lunatic, or distracted person, or as the executor, administrator, heir, legatee, or devisee of any deceased person, or as guardian or trustee of any such heir, legatee, or devisee. In such cases the same restrictions apply as to proof of claims against estates of deceased persons. (See that subject.) Provided, that testimony previously given by the defendant under certain statutory provisions for the discovery of assets, etc., may be read in behalf of the defendant so far as the same is relevant to the issue and competent under the general rules of evidence. In proving items contained in books of account, it must appear that it is a book of original entry; that the entries testified to were made by the witness, and are true and just; or that the same were made by a deceased person, or by a disinterested person, a non-resident of the State at the time of the trial, and were made by such deceased or disinterested person in the usual course of trade, and of his duty or employment to the party testifying; and upon such showing the account book and entries are admitted as evidence in the case. A husband cannot testify for or against his wife without her consent, and the wife cannot testify for or against the husband without his consent; nor shall either, during the marriage or afterwards, without the consent of the other, be examined as to communications made by one to the other during the marriage; but this exception does not apply in the case of civil actions or proceedings against each other, nor in criminal proceedings for a crime committed by one against the other, or for the crime of procuration.

A party to any civil action may be examined at the trial by the adverse party as if under cross-examination, and the party compelling such testimony is not bound thereby.

The following persons shall not be witnesses: 1st. Those who are of unsound mind at the time of their production as witnesses. 2d. Children under ten years of age who appear incapable of receiving just impressions of facts respecting which they are examined, or of relating them truly. Attorneys and their secretaries, stenographers and clerks, clergymen, or physicians shall not be examined as to communications made to them while engaged in their professional employment, without the consent of the persons by whom such communications were made, nor shall public officers be examined as to communications made to them in professional confidence when in the judgment of the court public interests would suffer thereby. If a person offers himself as a witness, such offer shall be deemed consent, also the offer of a wife, husband, attorney, physician, or surgeon as a witness shall be deemed a consent to the examination of such person. Judgments of foreign countries may be proved by a copy of the record thereof certified by the clerk with the seal of the court annexed, if there be a court and seal, or by the legal keeper of the record with the seal of his office annexed, if there be a seal, together with a certificate of a judge of the court that the person making the certificate is the clerk of the court, or the legal keeper of the record, and that the signature is genuine; and also with a certificate of the minister or ambassador or consul of the United States in such foreign country that there is such a court, with the nature of the jurisdiction generally, and verifying the signature of the judge and clerk, or other legal keeper of the record.

Judgments of other States or Territories may be proved by a copy of the record thereof certified by the clerk or other person having the legal custody thereof, under the seal of the court, that the same is a true copy of the record, together with a certificate of the judge that the attestation is in due form.

Disputed handwriting may be proved by comparison by witnesses with any handwriting proved to the satisfaction of the court to be genuine.

A mortuary table, established by statute, is admitted as evidence of the expectancy of life, to be taken in connection with evidence of the health, constitution, habits, and occupation of the party.

Executions. — Executions may issue to any county in the State on judgments in courts of record, and shall be made returnable ninety days after date. They are a lien on the goods and chattels of the defendant in the county from the time they are delivered to the officer to be served, who shall indorse such time of receipt on the execution. The plaintiff in execution may elect upon what property he will have the execution levied, except that the land on which the defendant resides shall be taken last. Sales of real estate levied on by virtue of a writ of execution must be had at public vendue, after advertisement of such sale for twenty days. The sheriff must execute to the purchaser a certificate of purchase. The defendant, his heirs, executors, administrators, or grantees, may redeem such real property in six months after the sale by paying the amount bid therefor, with interest at eight per cent. per annum from such sale. After the expiration of six months and before the expiration of nine months from such sale, a judgment creditor may redeem such property by causing execution to be issued to the sheriff on his judgment and paying the amount bid by the prior purchaser thereof, with eight per cent. interest thereon, to the sheriff for the use of such purchaser. The property shall be readvertised for sale by the sheriff, and at such sale the last judgment creditor so redeeming said lands shall be considered to have bid the amount paid by him to the sheriff, and if no higher amount is bid at such last sale a deed shall be executed to such last judgment creditor by the sheriff, and no other redemption shall be allowed. If at said last sale a higher bid shall be made, the sheriff shall execute to such higher bidder a certificate of purchase for a deed within sixty days from such sale, unless such land shall be redeemed by some other judgment creditor within sixty days therefrom. Said land may be successively redeemed by judgment creditors within every period of sixty days in the same manner and form, but if sixty days shall elapse without redemption, the last purchaser shall be entitled to a deed therefor. Certificates of purchase are assignable. Ten days' notice must be given of the sale of chattels on execution in the same manner as in sales of real estate. Executions are levied against corporate stock by leaving a copy of the writ with the president, secretary, cashier, or chief clerk, and it is the duty of such officers (under a severe penalty) to furnish a certificate showing the judgment debtor's interest, and, if required, to allow an inspection of the books.

Executions from justices' courts may issue at once after judgment (except that in cases of unlawful detainer or forcible entry or detainer a writ of possession cannot be issued until after the expiration of forty-eight hours after judgment), and are returnable in thirty days. They may issue to any other county than the county in which the judgment was rendered, provided it appears by the return of the execution issued from the justices' court that the defendant has not personal property within the county sufficient to satisfy the debt. They become a lien on the personal property of defendant from the time of their delivery to the constable. Execution may issue on judgments to enforce the same at any time within twenty years from the entry thereof, but not afterwards unless revived as provided by law; and from and after twenty years from the entry of final judgment the same shall be considered as satisfied in full unless revived as provided by law. See Supplementary Proceedings; Judgments.

Exemptions. — Every householder, being the head of a family, is entitled to a homestead of the value of two thousand dollars exempt from execution and attachment while such homestead is occupied by the owner or his or her family. Entry of homestead is made by writing the word "homestead" on the margin of the recorded title thereof, attested by the recorder with date of entry. (See Deeds.) There is also exempt from execution and attachment the necessary wearing apparel of every person, and the following property of a person being the head of a family (except for the purchase price or for taxes): Family pictures, school-books, and library, a seat or pew in any house of public worship, the sites of burial for the dead, all wearing apparel of the debtor and his family, all beds, bedsteads, and bedding kept and used for the debtor and his family, all stoves and appendages kept for the use of the debtor and his family, all cooking utensils, and all the household furniture not above enumerated not exceeding one hundred dollars in value, the provisions for the debtor and his family necessary for six months, and fuel necessary for six months. The tools and implements or stock in trade of any mechanic, miner, or other person not exceeding two hundred dollars in value, the library and implements of any professional man not exceeding three hundred dollars in value, one bicycle, one sewing-machine, working animals of any person to the value of two hundred dollars, one cow and calf, ten sheep, and food for same for six months, one farm wagon, cart or dray, one plow, one harrow, and other farming implements, including harness and tackle for team not exceeding fifty dollars in value. If the head of the family dies or deserts his family the family is entitled to the exemption. There is also exempt from levy on execution, attachment, or garnishment sixty per cent. of the amount, due at the time of levy, of wages or earnings of the head of the family or his wife, when such family resides in the State and is dependent, in whole or in part, upon such earnings, and all wages are exempt when they do not exceed five dollars per week.

Pension money received from the United States is exempt from all legal process, whether in the actual possession of the pensioner, deposited, or loaned, and whether the pensioner be the head of a family or not. This exemption runs to the pensioner's wife and children, or either of them, in case of his death or absconding.

Forcible Entry and Detainer. — Tenancy from year to year may be terminated by three months' notice; tenancy for six months by one month's notice; monthly tenancy by ten days' notice; tenancy at will by three days' notice. No notice to quit is necessary from or to a tenant whose term is by contract to end at a certain time. A notice is served by delivery on the premises to the tenant (or person in actual occupation), or some member of his family over the age of fifteen years, or by posting on the premises if there is no one in actual occupation. The party holding over after such termination, or the party holding over after default in the payment of rent and service of a three days' notice in writing (requiring, in the alternative, payment of rent or possession) is guilty of unlawful detention. District, county, and justice courts have jurisdiction of such cases. When commenced in a justice court, a verified complaint must be filed as in courts of record, and if the allegations of the complaint are put in issue by a verified answer all papers must be by the justice immediately certified to the district court. In cases of unlawful detainer where the case is brought before a justice of the peace, for default in the payment of rent, the verdict of the jury or judgment of the justice shall specify the amount of rent due and payable and the amount of rent to become due and payable to the plaintiff and times of payment of the same; and upon appeal from such judgment taken by the defendant, unless he shall deposit with such justice the amount found to be due, the appeal shall be deemed not to be perfected, although an undertaking be filed. The defendant by whom the appeal is taken shall also deposit with the clerk of the appellate court the amount of rent found in the judgment of the justice's court to become due, and at such times as the same is due and payable; and in case default in any such payment shall be made by the appellant, on motion of the appellee, the judgment of the justice of the peace shall be affirmed with costs, with the same effect as if the case had been tried on the merits. The same rules as to appeals in unlawful detainer cases apply to cases commenced in courts of record.

Garnishment. — Upon the issuing of a writ of attachment, or at any time thereafter, the plaintiff may have a writ of garnishment issue. Garnishment proceedings may also be had after execution has been issued. Whenever a writ of attachment has been issued from a court of record and delivered to the proper officers, and after diligent search sufficient property has not been found to satisfy the claim of plaintiff, the officer shall summon such person or persons as plaintiff may direct as garnishee, to appear before the court to answer as to the property or effects in his hands belonging to the defendant. Judgment may be rendered against the garnishee according to the facts shown. No person garnisheed is required to plead any exemption in behalf of the defendant or judgment debtor; nor is he required to protect any assignment of property in his possession; in the latter case it being sufficient for the person garnisheed or attached to interplead, showing that the property is claimed by some other person by virtue of an assignment. The court will then order the assignee to defend his claim.

Inheritance Taxes. — See Descent and Distribution of Property.

Insolvent Laws. — See Assignments.

Insurance. — An entire new and elaborate code of insurance laws was adopted by the legislature of 1913, and is contained in chapter 99, Acts of 1913, which see, together with amendments contained in chapter 96, Acts of 1915, and chapters 80 and 81, Acts of 1917.

Interest. — In the absence of any agreement or contract, the legal rate of interest is eight per cent. per annum, but any rate not exceeding two per cent. per month may be agreed upon, except that where the loan does not exceed five hundred dollars, and security is given, interest must not exceed one per cent. per month. All county, town and city, and school orders and warrants and other like evidences and certificates of municipal indebtedness bear six per cent. interest from presentation. No person can engage in the business of loaning money on security or personal credit at a greater rate than twelve per cent. per annum without obtaining a license, for which a fee of fifty dollars is required, and furnishing a bond in the sum of two thousand dollars to be approved by the state bank commissioner.

For interest on inheritance tax see Descent and Distribution of Property. For interest on delinquent taxes, see Taxes.

Judgments. — Judgments are liens on all the goods and chattels of the debtor from the time the execution is delivered to the officer. By filing a transcript of the judgment of a court of record in the office of the clerk and recorder of a county, the judgment becomes a lien on the real property of the debtor in such county for six years from entry of the judgment. Judgments of justices of the peace may be made in effect judgments of the district court by filing with the clerk of the district court a transcript of such judgment, duly certified by the justice. If the judgment creditor is enjoined either by chancery or by the order of any judge or court from issuing execution, or selling thereon, the time during which he is enjoined is taken from the six years above stated. Judgment may be rendered without action upon an agreed state of facts, provided it appears by affidavit that the controversy is real and the proceedings are brought by the parties in good faith to determine the rights of the parties. The defendant may at any time before trial or judgment offer to allow judgment to be taken against him for a sum of money, for property, or to the effect specified in the offer. If the offer be not accepted within five days, and the plaintiff do not recover more than the offer, he shall pay the defendant's costs from the time of offer. Judgments by arbitrators appointed by the parties are valid. The proceedings to obtain such judgments are regulated by the Code of Civil Procedure. Judgments rendered in cases where personal service has not been had on a defendant may be set aside at any time within one year from the rendition thereof on the application of the defendant or his legal representatives, on such terms as may be just, and an answer to the merits may be filed. Judgments by default are entered on failure to appear or plead. In pleading a judgment or other determination of a court or officer of special jurisdiction, it is not necessary to state the facts conferring jurisdiction, but such judgment or determination may be stated to have been duly made or given. The court may upon affidavit or notice, payment of costs, and just terms, relieve a party or his legal representatives from a judgment, order, or other proceeding taken against him through mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect. Application for such relief must be made at the same term in which such judgment, etc., was rendered; but if the party has not been able to apply therefor at the same term, he may upon showing be allowed the relief within a reasonable time, not exceeding six months after the adjournment of the term or, on terms, within one year, if the defendant was not personally served. When a judgment remains unsatisfied in whole or in part, it may be revived by verified petition. Judgment may be given for or against one or more of several plaintiffs, and for or against one or more of several defendants, and may determine the ultimate rights of the parties on each side as between themselves. On trial by jury judgment must be entered by the clerk within twenty-four hours, unless the court orders otherwise. A judgment rendered upon a verdict or decision of fact, where the defendant has died between the rendition of the verdict or decision and entry of judgment, shall not be a lien on the real property of the deceased defendant, but shall be payable in the course of administration of the estate, and becomes a claim of the fourth class against said estate. See Claims against Estates. Satisfaction of a judgment may be entered on the clerk's docket upon an execution returned satisfied, or upon an acknowledgment of the judgment creditor filed with the clerk, made in the same manner as an acknowledgment of a deed, or it may be made within one year after the judgment by the attorney unless a revocation of his authority has been filed previously with the clerk. The court may compel satisfaction of judgment to be entered upon motion when a judgment has been satisfied in fact. When an action is against two or more defendants jointly indebted, the plaintiff may recover judgment against all the defendants jointly indebted and bind the property of the defendant or defendants served and the joint property of all. When the action is against defendants severally liable, the plaintiff may proceed against the defendants served in the same manner as if they were the only defendants. When a judgment is recovered against one or more defendants jointly indebted, a summons may be issued against those defendants not served, to show cause why they should not be bound by the judgment, and in such case a new complaint is not necessary; the summons must be accompanied by an affidavit that the judgment or a part thereof remains unsatisfied. The defendant may in answer to such summons set up any defense except the statute of limitations.

Licenses. — Commercial travelers are not required to take out a license. Licenses are required for peddlers (except of books, papers, and farm produce) and for wage brokers, pawnbrokers, employment agencies, theatres, and others, under special statutory provisions. (See ch. 83, R. S. 1908. See, also, Interest.) Domestic and foreign corporations are required to pay a license fee of two cents upon each thousand dollars of stock. The right to do business is forfeited while such tax (which is due on the 1st of May of each year) is unpaid, and ten per cent. of the tax is added as a penalty for each six months or part of six months that the tax remains unpaid. These provisions do not apply to educational, religious, benevolent, or fraternal societies, or to coöperative associations of those engaged in agriculture and allied industries, or to ditch companies whose irrigation works are used exclusively for irrigating lands owned by such companies or their stockholders. For corporate licenses, see Corporations, Insurance.

Liens. — Mechanics' and others. — All persons (including architects, engineers, and artisans) performing labor or furnishing materials for any structure or improvement upon land at the instance of the owner or his agent shall have a lien upon the property upon which they have bestowed labor or furnished material, together with so much of the lands on which the structure or improvement is situated as may be necessary for its convenient use and occupation. The rank of liens is as follows: First, sub-contractors, being laborers, or mechanics working by the day or piece; second, other sub-contractors and material-men; third, original contractors. The lien shall extend to the entire contract price. If the amount to be paid under contract exceeds five hundred dollars, the contract shall be in writing and filed for record, and, if not so filed for record, labor done and materials furnished by all persons except the contractor shall be deemed to have been done and furnished at the personal instance of the owner, and the lien shall be for the value thereof. The contract price cannot be paid in advance, and at least fifteen per cent. of the whole price shall be made payable at least thirty-five days after the final completion of the work under the contract. As to all liens except that of the contractor, the whole of the contract price shall be payable in money, and cannot be diminished by claims of the owner against the contractor. The original contractor is allowed three months, material-men two months, and laborers by the day or piece one month, after the completion of the structure or improvement, within which to file for record with the county recorder a claim of lien containing a statement of demand, showing just credits and offsets, the name of the owner or reputed owner, the name of the person by whom employed, to whom materials were furnished, with statement of terms and conditions of the contract, and a description of the property to be charged with the lien sufficient for identification, the claim to be verified by oath; and in case of a sub-contractor written notice of the intention to file must be given to the owner, his agent or architect, at or before the filing. Suit to enforce the lien must be instituted and a notice of lis pendens filed with the county recorder within six months after the completion of the building, structure, or other improvement, or other alteration or addition to or repair thereof, or the performance of the last labor or the furnishing of the last materials thereon, in order to hold the property. Cessation of work for thirty days shall be deemed equivalent to a completion. If the contract be in writing, the liens relate back to the commencement of work under the same. If not in writing, the liens relate back to the commencement of the work upon the structure or improvement, and have priority over intervening incumbrances, or prior incumbrances not then recorded, and of which the lienor did not have actual notice. The right to a lien upon mining property does not extend to those working or furnishing materials for a lessee, as against the owner or owners. A party claiming a lien may assign in writing his claim and lien, either before or after filing statement of lien.

Liens are given for feeding, herding, pasturing, or ranching cattle and horses; upon the baggage of a guest or boarder, for board and rent of rooms in a hotel, boarding-house, or house for the rent of rooms; to common carriers of goods and passengers and to warehousemen upon goods carried, transported, or stored on request of the owner; for the price of transportation, and advances and storage; to mechanics, upon articles of personal property, for the repair, making, or alteration thereof at the request of the owner, and attorneys at law have liens for attorneys' fees on all papers and moneys in their hands belonging to their clients, and also, from the time of giving notice thereof, upon moneys of their clients in the hands of adverse parties in proceedings in which they were employed.

Railroad, reservoir, and canal companies are required to take bonds from their contractors, and a right of action upon such bonds is given to laborers, mechanics, farmers, merchants, and others performing labor or furnishing supplies. Such an action must either be commenced within ninety days after the accrual of the last item of indebtedness, or an itemized statement of the indebtedness must within such time be filed with the county clerk and the action commenced within three months thereafter. If the company has failed to take a bond the action may be brought against it for the indebtedness. Or the claimant may deliver a verified statement of the account to the company or its agent, who then gives notice to the contractor and must retain the amount out of moneys due the contractor unless the claim is settled, and the contractor's assent to payment to the claimant is conclusively presumed if he does not object to the claim within ten days after it is filed.

Limitations. — Actions for the recovery of lands are to be brought within twenty years after the right of action accrues. Actions for the recovery of lands which have been in actual occupancy of another under a connected title deducible of record from the State, the United States, or from any officer or person authorized to sell for taxes, or on execution, or under order or decree of court, must be brought within seven years after the possession has been taken; but if the title is acquired after taking possession, then the limitation runs from the date of acquiring such title. As to persons under disability, the time is extended for two years after disability is removed. Persons and their heirs, devisees, and grantees, having been in possession of lands for seven years under claim and color of title, and having paid all legally assessed taxes for that period, are to be deemed owners according to the purport of their paper title. So, also, as to vacant and unoccupied land held under claim and color of title, on which legally assessed taxes have been paid for the same period, unless some one having a better paper title should pay the taxes for one or more years in such term of seven years. Actions founded upon contract, express or implied, upon judgments of courts not of record, for rent, for waste and trespass on land, for taking, detaining, or injuring personal property, and assumpsit, must be begun within six years after cause of action accrued; actions against sheriffs or other officers for escape of persons imprisoned on civil process, within six months from time of escape; actions for assault and battery, for false imprisonment, for slander, for libel, and actions against sheriffs and coroners for misfeasance or nonfeasance, except for escapes, within one year after cause of action accrued. On an account current, the cause of action accrues at time of the last item proved. All other personal actions, not above enumerated, must be begun within three years after accruing of action, except as hereinafter noted. The above limitations apply to set-offs on behalf of defendant in actions on debts or contracts. Actions for penalties or forfeitures of penal statutes brought by the State, or by any person to whom the penalty or forfeiture in whole or in part is given, shall be commenced in one year after the offense is committed, unless the time is limited to a shorter period by the terms of the penal statute upon which the forfeiture is based. Bills of relief on the ground of fraud shall be brought within three years after the discovery of the fraud by the party aggrieved, and, in cases of trust, not cognizable in a court of common law, bills for relief must be brought within five years after the cause has accrued. Actions concerning water rights must be brought in four years; actions brought on account of injury or death of employee must be commenced within two years from the date of accident. Actions to recover lands sold for taxes must be brought within five years after delivery of treasurer's deed, persons under disability having one year after the removal of the disability in which to bring such action.

An action cannot be maintained in this State on a cause of action arising in another State, if there outlawed, except by a citizen of this State who has held the cause from the time it accrued.

Except as above stated, persons under the age of twenty-one years, married women, persons insane, imprisoned, or absent from the United States, may bring any of above actions, within the times respectively limited, after the disability of such infancy, coverture, imprisonment, or absence is removed. That the cause of action accrued without the State upon a contract or agreement, express or implied, or upon any sealed instrument in writing, or judgment or decree of any court, more than six years before the commencement of the action, may be pleaded in bar of the action. If the cause of action arose outside of the State more than six years before, and was put in judgment out of the State more than three months before, the bringing of action thereon in this State, the statute may be pleaded in bar, provided that the defendant is a bona fide resident of this State. A cause of action arising in this State against a bona fide resident cannot be revived when the statute has run by placing it in judgment in another jurisdiction and making that judgment the basis of an action here. Executors and administrators may bring their actions to recover demands due decedents within one year after the granting of letters testamentary or of administration, if demand is barred at the date of such letters, and decedent died before it was barred.

In case of abatement of action begun within the period of limitation, new action may be begun in one year thereafter. The new promise of one coobligor will not render the others liable upon such promise. The effect of payment by defendant is not impaired, but no indorsement of such payment by or on behalf of the plaintiff shall be deemed sufficient proof of such payment. Payment by one coobligor will not take the case out of the statute as to the others.

Redemption of property sold at tax sale is limited to three years. Redemption of property sold under a decree of foreclosure of a mortgage is allowed in the same manner and time as the redemption of lands sold under execution.

Married Women. — A married woman may transact business the same as if sole; may dispose of her personal and real estate, or make any contract in relation to the same without her husband's consent, and may sue and be sued in all matters as if sole, and may convey her real estate without her husband's joining in the deed with her (but see Deeds for rights when property has been registered as a homestead and see the same subject concerning covenants of a married woman); and her acknowledgment to such deed may be taken in the same manner as her husband's. Executions may issue against her property on judgments obtained against her. In a proceeding to condemn the lands of a married woman under the State's right of eminent domain, the husband is a necessary party defendant.

Her separate property acquired by her, or left to her by devise or bequest of any person except her husband, is not bound for her husband's debts, but is liable for family expenses equally with her husband. She can make contracts in her own name, buy goods, give notes in settlement of purchases, and do any business the same as if sole, and bind her own separate property, real and personal. See Chattel Mortgages; Deeds.

A married woman is joint guardian of her children with her husband, with equal powers, rights, and duties. Upon the death of the father or mother of a child under twenty-one years of age and unmarried, the surviving parent may, by deed or will, dispose of the custody and tuition of such child during its minority, or for any less time, to a proper person.

A female may marry at the age of eighteen without the consent of parents or guardian. Her father being dead she may choose her own guardian at the age of fourteen years. For purposes of contracting and conveyancing, women are deemed to be of full age at eighteen. Women have the right to vote at all elections, subject to the same qualifications as to age, etc., required by law to entitle males to vote. See Evidence.

Mechanics' Liens. — See Liens.

Mortgages. — Trust deeds with power of sale to the public trustee are generally in use. Mortgages may be released by entry of satisfaction or receipt on margin of record. Mortgages are foreclosed by suit brought for that purpose. See, also, Chattel Mortgages; Deeds; Trust Deeds.

Notaries Public. — Notaries public are appointed by the governor and hold office for four years, unless sooner removed. They can only exercise their notarial functions in the county for which they are appointed. Their powers are to "receive the proof of acknowledgment of all instruments of writing relating to commerce and navigation, receive and authenticate the acknowledgments of deeds and powers of attorneys, make declarations and protests, and do all acts usually done or performed by notaries public in other States and Territories, and certify the truth of all their official acts under their official seal." They are required to keep a record of their official acts, and to give certified copies of such records upon request on being paid their fees therefor. They are required to take oath and to give bond in the sum of one thousand dollars for the faithful performance of their duties, and the sureties must be certified to by the county clerk as being worth more than the penal sum of the bond over and above their just obligations. Actions on notarial bonds are limited to three years. A notary's official acts must be attested by his notarial seal, which shall consist of an impression upon paper or wax setting forth the name and residence of the notary, and the notary must also designate in writing on all his certificates the date when his commission as notary expires. A copy of each notary's commission is recorded in the office of the county clerk and recorder of the county within which the notary public is authorized to act, and he may therefore certify the official character of the notary. See Deeds.

Notes, Bills of Exchange, etc. — A Negotiable Instruments Law was enacted in 1897 and is the same, except in a few minor details, as the act previously adopted by New York, Connecticut, and Florida. Under this act an instrument is not negotiable if it contains an order or promise to do any act in addition to the payment of money except to sell collateral or to confess judgment in case of default. But the negotiable character of an instrument is not affected by the fact that it gives the holder an election to require something to be done in lieu of the payment of money or by a waiver of the benefit of any law intended for the protection of the obligor. When the instrument is in the hands of a holder in due course a valid delivery by all parties prior to him is conclusively presumed. The signature of a party may be made by a duly authorized agent, and no particular form of appointment is necessary for this purpose, and the agent's authority may be established as in other cases of agency. Every negotiable instrument is deemed prima facie to have been issued for a valuable consideration, and every person whose signature appears thereon to have become a party thereto for value. A preëxisting debt constitutes value. An accommodation party, notwithstanding he is known to be such, is liable to a holder for value.

Except where an indorsement bears date after the maturity of the instrument, every indorsement is deemed prima facie to have been effected before maturity. When an instrument is negotiated back to a prior party he may reissue it, but cannot enforce payment against any intervening party to whom he is personally liable. Where an instrument payable on demand is negotiated an unreasonable length of time after its issue, the holder is not deemed a holder in due course. The maker of a negotiable instrument admits the existence of the payee and his then capacity to indorse. As respects one another indorsers are liable prima facie in the order in which they indorse, but evidence is admissible to show that as between themselves they have agreed otherwise. Joint payees who indorse, or joint indorsers, are deemed to indorse jointly and severally.

Presentment for payment is not necessary to charge the person primarily liable on the instrument, but if by its terms it is payable at a special place and he is willing and able to pay it there at maturity, such ability and willingness are equivalent to a tender of payment on his part. Where the instrument is not payable on demand presentment must be made on the day it falls due, but presentment is not necessary to charge the drawer when he has no right to expect or require that the drawee or acceptor will pay the instrument, or to charge an indorser when the instrument was made or accepted for his accommodation and he has no reason to expect that it will be paid if presented. Presentation is excused when it has been expressly or impliedly waived, where it cannot be made with the exercise of due diligence, or where the drawee is a fictitious person. Any drawer or indorser to whom notice of dishonor is not given is discharged, but the notice when given inures to the benefit of all subsequent holders and all prior parties who have a right of recourse against the party to whom the notice was given. The notice may be oral. It must be given not later than the day following the dishonor. It may be either expressly or impliedly waived and need not be given to the drawer when he is the same person as the drawee or as the person to whom the instrument is presented for payment, or when the drawee is a fictitious person or has not capacity to contract, or when the drawer has countermanded payment or has no right to expect or require that the instrument will be honored.

A person secondarily liable is discharged by any agreement binding upon the holder to postpone the holder's right to enforce the instrument unless made with the consent of the party secondarily liable or unless the right of recourse against him is expressly waived.

A foreign bill of exchange must be protested for nonpayment at the place where it is dishonored, by a notary or by any respectable resident of the place of dishonor in the presence of two or more credible witnesses, and the protest must be annexed to the bill or contain a copy of it. See chapter 95, Revised Statutes of Colorado, 1908.

Some essential features in which the Negotiable Instruments Act changed the prior laws of this State are the following: 1. County and state warrants, due bills, warehouse receipts, etc., are not "negotiable" under the definition in the new statute. Their "assignability" is, however, not affected. 2. An agent executing a note cannot be held personally liable if the principal is named. 3. One putting his name on the back of a note is liable only as indorser, even though he did it prior to delivery to payee, unless he clearly indicates by appropriate words his intention to be bound in some other capacity. 4. Days of grace are abolished. The day of maturity and presentment of commercial paper falling due on Sunday or a holiday is now made the first business day thereafter. 5. The indorser's liability to an indorsee now depends solely upon whether "the necessary proceedings on dishonor are duly taken."

Practice. — The civil practice is regulated by a code of civil procedure; the criminal practice is according to the rules of the common law except where otherwise provided by the criminal code.

The common law of England, so far as the same is applicable and of a general nature, and all acts and statutes of the British Parliament made in aid of, or to supply the defects of the common law prior to the fourth year of James I. (except 43 Elizabeth, c. 6, §2; 13 Elizabeth, c. 8; and 37 Henry VIII. c. 9), and which are of a general nature and not local to that kingdom, is the rule of decision, and is in full force until repealed by legislative authority.

By an act of the legislature of 1913 it is provided that "the supreme court shall prescribe rules of practice and procedure in all courts of record and may change or rescind the same. Such rules shall supersede any statute in conflict therewith. Under authority of this statute the supreme court has adopted rules which modify the previous practice in certain respects, the modifications being covered under specific heads in this synopsis. Inferior courts of record may adopt rules not in conflict with such rules or with statute." (L. 1913, ch. 121.) See Actions.

Proof of Claims. — Claims of residents or non-residents are proved by witness or witnesses in open court or by depositions. The denial of the genuineness and execution of any written instrument upon which suit is brought must be made under oath in cases where a copy of the instrument is set out in the complaint, or they will be taken as admitted. Proof of claims against estates is made by filing a copy of the claim in the county court, or if a promissory note or other instrument of the like kind, the original or a copy sworn to before some officer authorized by the laws of this State to administer oaths. No particular form is prescribed. See Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Records. — The statute does not require deeds and other instruments relating to real estate to be recorded; but unless recorded, creditors and subsequent purchasers without notice cannot be affected thereby. The same operate as notice from the time of filing for record.

Deeds need not be acknowledged in order to entitle them to be recorded. The acknowledgment is necessary only when it is desired to use a certified copy from the record as evidence in place of the original. Unacknowledged deeds may be subsequently acknowledged or proved by attesting witnesses. See Deeds.

Purchasers and incumbrancers of real property without actual notice are not affected by pending litigation affecting it, until notice thereof in writing is filed with the recorder of the county where situated.

Redemption. — See Executions; Mortgages.

Registration of Titles. — See Deeds.

Replevin. — The plaintiff in an action to recover possession of personal property may, at the time of issuing the summons, or at any time before judgment, claim the delivery of such property to him by filing an affidavit, either in person or by some one else for him, showing: 1. That the plaintiff is the owner of the property claimed, particularly describing it, or is lawfully entitled to the possession thereof. 2. That the property is wrongfully detained by the defendant. 3. That the same has not been taken for a tax, assessment, or fine pursuant to a statute, or seized under an execution or attachment against the property of the plaintiff; or, if so seized, that it is by the statute exempt from such seizure. 4. The real value of the property. The plaintiff or his agent shall also file with the clerk a written undertaking, executed by two or more sufficient sureties, approved by the clerk, to the effect that they are bound to the defendant in double the value of the property, as stated in the affidavit, for the prosecution of the action without delay and with effect, and for the return of the property to the defendant, if return thereof be adjudged, and for the payment to him of such sum as may from any cause be recovered against the plaintiff. The defendant, within five days from the service of the writ upon him, may except to the sufficiency of the sureties on the plaintiff's undertaking, or he is deemed to have waived his right so to do. When the defendant excepts, the sureties shall justify on notice before the clerk, and if they fail to do so within five days after such notice, the property shall be returned to the defendant. The clerk is responsible for the sufficiency of the sureties until waiver or justification. If the defendant excepts to the sureties he cannot reclaim the property; but if he does not except to the sureties he may, at any time within forty-eight hours from the taking of the property and the service of the writ, require a return of the property, upon giving to the sheriff a written undertaking, executed by two or more sufficient sureties, to the effect that they are bound to the plaintiff in double the value of the property as stated in the affidavit of the plaintiff, for the delivery thereof to the plaintiff if such delivery thereof be adjudged, and for the payment to him of such sum as may for any cause be recovered against the defendant. The defendant's sureties must justify in the same manner as is provided for the sureties on attachment bonds. If a return of the property should not be demanded by the defendant within forty-eight hours from the service of the writ and the taking of the property, the sheriff shall deliver the property over to the plaintiff. If the property be claimed by a third person and he make affidavit of his title thereto, or the right to the possession thereof, the sheriff shall not be bound to keep the property, or deliver it to the plaintiff unless he shall execute to the sheriff a bond of indemnity. Sureties generally are required to justify before the clerk of the court.

Justices of the peace have jurisdiction in replevin to the amount of three hundred dollars; the affidavit in addition to the matters required in courts of record must state the alleged cause of detention according to the affiant's best knowledge and belief; the undertaking need have but one surety; defendant has twenty-four hours in which to claim a return of the property by giving the required bond on which two sureties are required; the justice and constable are liable on their official bonds for taking an insufficient undertaking.

Reports. — There are fifty-eight volumes of Colorado Reports, containing the decisions of the supreme court (and of the supreme court commission up to and including a part of the September term, 1892), and twenty-five volumes of reports of the court of appeals.

Revision. — There are twenty volumes of session laws, containing the laws passed by the legislature in 1885, 1887, 1889, 1891, 1893, 1894, 1895, 1897, 1899, 1901, 1902, 1903, 1905, 1907, 1909, 1910, 1911, 1913, 1914, and 1915, prior acts being embodied in the General Statutes of 1883.

The legislature of 1891 passed an act providing that the General Statutes of the State of Colorado published in 1891 in two volumes, entitled "Mills' Annotated Statutes of the State of Colorado," edited and annotated by J. Warner Mills, Esq., shall be received in all courts and proceedings and by all officers of this State as prima facie evidence of the originals. A third and supplemental volume was later published, embracing general laws passed between January 1, 1891, and January 1, 1905.

The legislature of 1907 passed an act providing for the compilation in one volume of all existing statutes of the State, together with the Code of Civil Procedure and the constitutions of the United States and of the State of Colorado, the act providing that this volume shall be received in all courts and proceedings and by all officers of the State as prima facie evidence of the originals. This work is known as "The Revised Statutes of Colorado, 1908." The compilation was prepared by Messrs. A. R. Morrison and D. C. Bailey, Jr., of the Denver bar. The legislature of 1913 has passed a similar act relating to the revised edition of Mills' Annotated Statutes, published in 1912 and edited and annotated by John H. Gabriel, Esq., of the Denver bar.

Sales in Bulk. — A sale of any portion of a stock of merchandise otherwise than in the ordinary course of trade, or a sale of an entire stock of merchandise in bulk, is prima facie evidence of fraud as against the seller's creditors unless the seller and the purchaser shall together, at least five days before the sale, make a full detailed inventory showing the quantity, and as far as possible the cost price to the seller, and unless, at least five days before the proposed sale, the purchaser shall inquire for and the seller shall give in writing the names and addresses of and amounts due to each creditor. The purchaser must also, the same length of time prior to the sale, notify each of the seller's creditors of whom he can obtain knowledge, personally or by registered mail, of the proposed sale, the cost price of the merchandise and the price proposed to be paid. Giving false information by the seller to the purchaser is punishable by fine and imprisonment. The above does not apply to sales by executors, receivers, trustees in bankruptcy, or similar officers.

Service. — Summons is served upon individual defendants of full age and capacity by delivering a copy to each defendant named therein; or by leaving a copy of the writ at the usual place of abode of each defendant named therein, with some member of the family in which he resides who is over the age of fifteen years; or at the usual place of business of the defendant to be served (if he have one) with his clerk or bookkeeper, or in certain specified cases by publication. Summons may be served by the sheriff of the county where the defendant may be found, or by his deputy, or by any person not a party to the action. If served within the county where the action is commenced, the defendant must answer or appear in twenty days, if a copy of the complaint is served with the summons, if not, within thirty days. (If served out of the county, or by publication within thirty days, if a copy of the complaint is served with the summons, if not, forty days.) But in actions for divorce the defendant has thirty days to appear, if served anywhere in the State, and fifty days if served outside. Service by publication is regulated by statute. Service on private domestic corporations is had by delivering a copy of the summons to the president or other chief officer of the corporation, or to the secretary, cashier, treasurer, or general agent thereof; but if no such officer can be found in the county, on a stockholder. Service may be had by publication upon any domestic corporation where the sheriff is unable to find any officer, stockholder, or other person upon whom service can be legally had in the place designated in the articles of incorporation. After the return to the court by the sheriff of the summons, together with his affidavit setting forth his efforts at service and reason for failure, the court will, upon application (and being satisfied that due diligence has been used), enter an order for publication. On a foreign corporation or non-resident joint-stock company doing business within this State, service is had by delivering a copy of the summons to any agent thereof who may be found in the county; but if no such agent can be found, to any stockholder in the county. Service is made upon a railroad company, whether domestic or foreign, by delivering a copy to the president, secretary, treasurer, or cashier, and, if none of these can be found in the county, by delivering to any regular or acting ticket agent therein. On a minor under fifteen years old, by delivering a copy of the writ to the minor personally and also to his father, mother, or guardian; if there are none in the State, to the person having care of the minor, or with whom he resides, or by whom he is employed. On a person judicially declared to be of unsound mind, to his guardian, if any has been appointed. Service of justice court process is made in like manner, but in case of individual defendants the summons is returnable not less than five nor more than fifteen days from its date and must be served not less than three days before the return day. In case of corporations the summons is returnable not less than twenty nor more than thirty days from date and must be served not less than ten days prior to the return day.

Stay of Execution. — Executions are stayed by a supersedeas and filing of a sufficient bond. A supersedeas is not allowed in writs of error as of course, but only upon sufficient showing to the supreme court or one of the judges thereof. See Appeals.

Supplementary Proceedings. — When an execution against property of the judgment debtor, or any of several debtors in the same judgment issued to the sheriff of the county where he resides, or, if he does not reside in this State, to the sheriff of the county where the judgment was rendered, is returned unsatisfied in whole or in part, the judgment creditor, at any time after such return is made, shall be entitled to an order from the judge of the court requiring such judgment debtor to appear and answer concerning his property, before such judge or referee appointed by him, at a time and place specified in the order; but no judgment debtor shall be required to so attend before a judge or referee out of the county in which he resides, but if he has no settled residence in the State he may be required to attend in the county where he may be found. After issuing execution against property, and upon proof by affidavit by a party, or otherwise, to the satisfaction of the court or judge thereof, that any judgment debtor has property which he unjustly refuses to apply towards the satisfaction of the judgment, such court or judge may by an order require the judgment debtor to appear at a specified time and place before such judge, or referee appointed by him, to answer concerning the same, and such proceedings may thereupon be had for the publication of the property of the judgment debtor toward the satisfaction of the judgment as are provided upon the return of an execution. See Executions. Instead of the order requiring the attendance of the judgment debtor, the judge may, upon affidavit of the judgment creditor, his agent or attorney, if it appear to him that there is danger of the debtor absconding, order the sheriff to arrest the debtor and bring him before the judge. On being brought before the judge he may be ordered to enter into an undertaking with surety that he will attend from time to time before the judge or referee, as shall be directed during the pendency of the proceedings, and until the final determination thereof; and will not in the mean time dispose of any portion of his property not exempt from execution. In default of entering into such undertaking he may be committed to prison. After issuing or return of an execution against property of a judgment debtor, or any one of several debtors in the same judgment, and upon proof by affidavit or otherwise that any person or corporation has property of or is indebted to the judgment debtor to an amount exceeding fifty dollars, such person or an officer of the corporation may be brought before the judge to answer to the same, and such amount found to be due the judgment debtor shall be applied on the debt.

After the issuing of an execution against property, any person indebted to the judgment debtor may pay to the sheriff the amount of his debt, or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the execution, and the sheriff's receipt shall be a sufficient discharge for the amount so paid.

Taxes. — Taxes are levied for the fiscal year, which ends November 30. The assessor, in January, delivers blank schedules (or mails them to non-residents), and it is the duty of every person, between the 1st of April and the 20th of May, to forward to the assessor a full schedule of all property owned or controlled by him on the first day of April of the current year. A copartnership is treated as an individual for the purposes of this schedule, but each partner is liable for the whole of the taxes assessed against the partnership property. Taxes are due and payable, one half on or before the last day of February, and the remainder on or before the last day of July of the year following that in which they are assessed. No personal demand for taxes is necessary, but it is the duty of every person subject to taxation to attend at the treasurer's office before the expiration of the time limited, and pay his taxes. The treasurer is required to notify each taxpayer of the amount of his tax, but his failure to do so does not invalidate the assessment or levy or the sale of the property for nonpayment. Interest is charged on the first installment as a penalty, if not paid prior to the 1st of March, at the rate of one per cent. per month until the 1st of August, on which day all taxes become delinquent and draw interest thereafter at fifteen per cent. per annum, and the treasurer may make the same by distress and sale, though he is required to receive payment of taxes at any time prior to the date of sale. The county treasurer is required by law, between the 1st of August and the 1st of September of each year, to make out a list of all lands and town lots subject to sale, and to publish the same with an accompanying notice stating that so much of each tract of land or town lot described in said list as may be necessary for that purpose will, on a day specified, thereafter be sold by him at public auction at the county treasurer's office for the taxes and charges thereon and taxes and charges against the owner thereof for personal property.

Ditches and canals are exempt from taxation when they are used exclusively by the owners or stockholders, but are subject to taxation when water is sold therefrom to consumers.

Individuals or corporations owning mining claims are required, between the 1st and 15th of January of each year, to make a full report of the property, stating, among other things, the acreage, the number of tons and value of ore extracted during the preceding year, together with the cost of extraction, transportation, and treatment, and the amount of the net proceeds after deducting the above items. Surface improvements and machinery are listed separately for taxation. The assessor separately determines the gross and net proceeds after receiving these statements, and fixes the value of the mine for taxation at one fourth the gross proceeds, except that in case the net proceeds exceed this figure, the net proceeds are taken to be the value. The above method of determining the value of a mine applies only to mines producing gold, silver, lead, copper, or other precious or valuable metals or minerals. Mines of iron, coal, asphaltum, etc., and non-producing mines of all sorts, are assessed at their value like other property, not to exceed, however, the assessment per acre of the lowest producing mine in the same locality.

For taxes payable by corporations on their stock, see Licenses. For taxes payable by insurance companies, see Insurance.

The treasurer issues a certificate of sale to the purchaser of property at a tax sale, which certificate is assignable. Purchasers may pay subsequent taxes. Unless the purchaser has offered to accept a lower rate than is provided by law, — and the bidder offering to accept the lowest rate is entitled to purchase, — the purchase-money draws interest from the date of the sale at the rate of twenty-four per cent. per annum for the first six months, eighteen per cent. for the second six months, twelve per cent. thereafter, and subsequent taxes paid by the purchaser draw interest at twelve per cent. per annum. Land may be redeemed from a tax sale at any time within three years or prior to the execution of a treasurer's deed, by payment to the county treasurer of the amount for which it was sold, together with interest as above specified, and costs and penalties provided by law, together with the fees allowed for the issuance and recording of the redemptive certificate, and if not so redeemed the purchaser may have a deed from the treasurer which is prima facie evidence of the regularity of the treasurer's acts in that behalf, but in case where the property is valued at one hundred dollars or more, upon application for the deed the county treasurer must, not more than five months nor less than three months before the issuance of the deed, serve notice of such application upon the person in whose name the property is assessed and also upon the person in actual occupancy (or publish notice, where there is no person in possession or where the residence of the party to whom the land was assessed cannot be ascertained). Minors and insane persons have one year after the removal of their disability in which to redeem, and upon redemption they pay for improvements put on subsequent to the sale for the purpose of niary responsibility and deems it sufficient to respond to demand for costs. No bond is required to indemnify the defendant for damages which he may suffer by reason of the attachment. Goods concealed in the hands of agents, so that they cannot be attached, or debts due from any person, are attachable by process of foreign attachment. Attachment holds until the execution is levied, provided the execution be levied within sixty days after final judgment, when personal estate is attached, and within four months when real estate is attached. Where several attachments of the same property are made, the debt and costs of suit of the first attaching creditor must first be fully satisfied, and subsequent attaching creditors in the order of their several attachments. No assignment of future earnings (viz., wages) can prevent their attachment, when earned, unless made to secure a bona fide debt, the amount of which is therein stated with rate of interest and the term definitely limited; nor unless such assignment is duly acknowledged and recorded in the town clerk's office, and a copy thereof left with the employer. (Acts 1905, ch. 78.) A liquor license may be attached.

When the body or estate is attached in a suit in the superior court, court of common pleas, or district court, the plaintiff or his attorney may be cited before the court to state on oath the amount of the plaintiff's claim, and whether he verily believes the same is justly due; if the value of the property attached or the amount for which the body is attached is found to be excessive, the court will order the release of so much of the property or the reduction of so much of the amount for which the body is attached as is not required to secure the payment of the claim and costs, and the plaintiff, in the discretion of the court, may be compelled to pay the costs of the proceeding.

For effect of insolvency proceedings and appointment of receivers on attachments, see Insolvent Laws and Assignments.

Chattel Mortgages.—The owner of machinery, engines, or implements, situated and used in any manufacturing or mechanical establishment, the owner of any presses, types, cases, stereotype plates, or copper plates pertaining to a printing establishment, the owner of a dwelling-house having a family and having household furniture used by him in housekeeping, or the owner of hay deposited in a building, or tobacco in the leaf, or the owner of any piano, organ, or melodeon, or of any musical instrument used by an orchestra or band, may mortgage such machinery, engines, implements, presses, types, cases, stereotype plates or copper plates, furniture, hay, tobacco, piano, organ, melodeon, or musical instrument, any brick, burned or unburned, and being in any kiln or brick yard, provided the deed of mortgage be executed, acknowledged, and recorded in all respects as mortgages of land are required to be; and such mortgage will be good, although the mortgagor shall retain possession of the mortgaged property; and upon breach of condition may be foreclosed by sale by order of court. The above provisions extend to mortgages executed by hotel keepers, of furniture, fixtures, and other personal chattels contained and used in the hotels occupied by them or employed in connection therewith. When movable machinery is mortgaged in connection with real estate, it should be particularly described in a schedule annexed. To be good against third parties, mortgages must be recorded within a reasonable time in the town clerk's office.

Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.—The court of probate grants administration to the husband or wife or next of kin or to both. If they refuse to act or are incapable, or objection is made by any creditor or heir to such appointment, the court may appoint any person whom it deems proper. Non-residents may act. The court upon granting administration requires a probate bond from the administrator. The amount of the bond is usually double the estimated value of the personal property. When a will directs that no bonds be required, the executor is required to furnish bond, usually in double the estimated value of the testator's debts. If there is no indebtedness, a nominal bond is required, generally about one hundred dollars. The court, however, may, upon application, require a larger bond. (Acts 1909, ch. 62.)

The probate court may allow out of the estate of a deceased person such amount as it deems necessary for the support of the widow during the settlement of the estate. When there is not sufficient property exempt from execution to pay the debts, the court may at its discretion set out to the widow any property exempt from execution.

No time is fixed by statute for settlement of an administrator's account. Usually one year is limited for settlement of the estate, but this is not an absolute requirement, and is subject to variation as the necessities of any particular estate may require.

Creditors of the deceased, if the estate is solvent, must present in writing their claims to the executor or administrator within such time as the court of probate shall direct, not exceeding twelve months nor less than six months, notice of which is given upon the sign-post and by publication in a newspaper, or they will be forever debarred. The court may further extend the time for presentation. The court or the executor or administrator may require an oath upon claims presented. If a right of action shall accrue after the death of the deceased, it must be exhibited within four months after it accrues. If any claim is disallowed by the executor or administrator, suit must be brought within four months after notice given of such disallowance. In case any claim is disallowed in whole or in part, the court of probate may, in its discretion, on the creditor's petition, appoint commissioners to pass on said claim and appeal may be taken from the decision of said commissioners. (Public Acts 1913, ch. 173.) In the case of insolvent estates of deceased persons, commissioners are appointed to decide upon claims, and six to twelve months are allowed for the exhibition of such claims, and creditors not exhibiting their claims within the time limited are forever debarred unless they can show some estate not before discovered and not in the inventory. No suits are to be brought against the executor or administrator of an insolvent estate during its settlement, except for debts due the United States, the State, expenses of last sickness, and funeral charges, nor against the executor or administrator of a solvent estate during its settlement unless notice of the disallowance of the claim is given. Claims are to be paid in the following order: 1. Funeral expenses and expenses of settling the estate. 2. Debts due for the last sickness of the deceased. 3. All lawful taxes and all debts due the State, or United States. 4. Claims for wages earned within three months and claims for compensation under Workmen's Compensation Act. (Public Acts, 1913, ch. 138, § 36.) 5. Other preferred claims. 6. All other debts as allowed, in proportion to their respective amounts. Husbands whose wives die intestate may have a lien for betterments on their lands.

Claims, Proof of. — See Proof of Claims.

Conditional Sales. — The courts of Connecticut have recognized the validity of conditional sales, made bona fide, and have protected the interest of vendors as against attaching creditors as well as against the parties. Gen. Stat. 1902, § 834, provides as follows: "Any property sold upon condition, and put by the vendor into the visible possession of the vendee, unless otherwise exempt from execution, may be attached and levied upon and sold or set out on execution in any suit against such vendee, subject to the rights of the vendor to its possession or ownership; the party attaching or levying shall have the same rights which the vendee would otherwise have had, to tender to the vendor performance of the conditions of sale; and all parties deriving title under the execution shall succeed to all the rights of the vendee in relation to such property."

Conditional sales made in other States are not protected against loans, secured by pledge, made in this State by a licensed pawnbroker. (Public Acts 1909, ch. 8.)

All contracts for the sale of personal property, except household furniture, musical instruments, phonographs and phonograph supplies, bicycles, and such property as is by law exempt from attachment and execution, conditioned that the title thereto shall remain in the vendor after delivery, shall be in writing describing the property and all conditions of such sale, acknowledged before some competent authority, and recorded within a reasonable time in the town clerk's office in the town where the vendee resides. All conditional sales of personal property which shall not be made in conformity with these provisions shall be held to be absolute sales, except as between the vendor and the vendee or their personal representatives, and all such property shall be liable to be taken by attachment and execution for the debts of the vendee, in the same manner as any other property not exempted by law. (§§ 4864, 4865.)

As to conditional sales of railway equipments, see § 4866.

Consignments. — The law as to sales and contracts to sell has been codified in the "Sales Act." (Acts 1907, ch. 212.)

Corporations. — The corporation laws of this State, including the Corporation Act of 1901 (Gen. Stat. 1902, ch. 198), have been revised and entirely rewritten. The provisions of the General Statutes of 1902 have been expressly repealed, and the revised law (Laws 1903, ch. 194) substituted therefor. While the provisions of this new law are in many respects the same as in that repealed, the new law should be most carefully consulted.

Corporations under the general law may be formed by any number of persons, not less than three, who, by articles of agreement in writing, shall associate under any name assumed by them for the purpose of engaging in any lawful business. Such corporations shall not have power, however, to transact in this State the business of a bank, savings bank, trust company, building and loan association, insurance company, surety or indemnity company, telegraph, railroad, street railroad, gas, electric light, or water company, or any company which shall need to have the right to take and condemn lands or to occupy the public highways.

Corporations without capital stock may likewise be formed "to promote or carry out any lawful purpose other than that of a mercantile or manufacturing business."

The name of every private corporation which shall hereafter be organized shall indicate that it is a corporation. The name shall be in the English language, and must either (1) commence with "The" and end with "company" or "corporation," or (2) have the word "incorporated" added. The capital stock of any such corporation must be fixed by the articles of association, which must specify definitely the purposes for which such corporation is established. Upon the filing and approval of its certificate of incorporation, corporate existence commences, but no such corporation shall commence business until the amount of capital specified in its certificate of incorporation as the amount of capital with which it will commence business has been paid in (in no case less than one thousand dollars), nor until its certificate of organization (the second certificate) has been filed. The par value of the shares must not be less than five dollars. (Public Acts 1915, ch. 188.) There must be at least two thousand dollars of authorized capital stock. Preferred shares are allowed.

Every corporation having capital stock (except certain specified classes of corporations which are required to make more elaborate reports, e. g. banks, insurance companies, railroads, etc.) is required to file annually a certificate stating the name, residence, and post-office address of each of its officers and directors, the amount of stock not paid for in full with the amount due thereon, the location of its principal office in this State, and the name of the agent in charge thereof upon whom process against the corporation may be served.

For failure to file such report, each corporation shall forfeit twenty-five dollars to the State for each failure. (Public Acts 1917, ch. 194.) This forfeiture may be remitted by the attorney-general. (Public Acts 1913, ch. 99.)

If the failure to make annual reports and pay the forfeitures shall continue for two consecutive years, the corporate rights and powers may be forfeited under the provisions of Public Acts 1909, ch. 200, with privilege of reinstatement within a certain period as stated in said act.

Every stockholder, whether an original subscriber or not, is liable for any balance due on the stock held by him, but after the par value of his stock has been paid, he shall not be liable as such for any payment on such stock or for any debt of the corporation.

Every corporation organized under the general law shall pay to the state treasurer as a tax on its capital stock, and on any authorized increase thereof, fifty cents on each one thousand dollars until it has paid on a total capital stock of five million dollars; and ten cents on each one thousand dollars in excess thereof. This tax is in lieu of all other taxes upon the franchise of the corporation, "but shall not be in lieu of any tax imposed by law upon the property of the corporation or upon the shares of its stock in the hands of its stockholders." See Taxes.

Its property and affairs shall be managed by three or more directors, chosen annually by the stockholders. The name and purposes for which any corporation is organized may be changed by proper proceedings under the statute. It may hold any property necessary or convenient for its business, including real estate and patent rights, and such other property as may be taken in payment of or security for debts due it. The original or duplicate stock books must be kept at its principal office or place of business in this State, and they shall be open for inspection by the stockholders at all times during the usual hours of business. (87 Conn. 483.) A full and detailed report of its financial condition shall be made to the stockholders at least once in each year.

Every corporation organized under the general law may increase or reduce its capital in accordance with the provisions of the statute. In case the reduction of the capital stock shall render it insolvent, the stockholders voting in favor of such reduction, whose names must appear of record, are jointly and severally liable to the amount of such reduction for all debts existing at the time of such vote, after judgment against the corporation and execution thereon has been returned unsatisfied. These requirements as to reduction of stock do not apply to retirement of preferred stock if method, condition, or time of retirement be provided in certificate of issue filed with secretary of state. Names of directors voting for a dividend must appear on the minutes. If such payment renders the corporation insolvent, the directors who have voted in favor thereof are jointly and severally liable to the amount of such payment to a creditor existing at the date of such vote, who shall obtain judgment against the corporation on which execution shall be returned unsatisfied. Stock is transferred by delivery of certificate and assignment by the person appearing by the certificate to be the owner and corporation has no lien upon the shares unless the right thereto is stated in the certificate.

A corporation may be wound up by a three fourths vote of each class of stock. The act also provides for the winding up and dissolution of a corporation on complaint of one or more stockholders owning one tenth or more of the capital stock, if the court shall find that the interests of such stockholders will be best protected by such action, etc., with the further provision that any other stockholder may have the plaintiff's stock appraised, and may then at their option purchase it at the appraisal value, and thus terminate the dissolution proceedings.

In every instance the act itself must be consulted for particulars. So, too, for the provisions of the Connecticut laws as to corporations with special charters, the statutes should be consulted, as well as the special acts.

Foreign Corporations. — Before transacting business in this State, a foreign corporation must file a certified copy of its charter, together with a statement signed and sworn to by its president, treasurer, and a majority of its directors, showing the amount of its authorized capital stock and the amount paid in, and if any part thereof has been paid otherwise than in money such statement shall set forth the particulars. It must appoint by instrument in writing the secretary of state of Connecticut its resident attorney upon whom legal process can be served. This power of attorney must be filed with the secretary of state, together with a fee of ten dollars for filing the certified copy of its charter, and five dollars for filing its statement. Every officer of a foreign corporation, and every agent thereof, transacting business as such within this State, shall be fined not more than one thousand dollars for failure to comply with the above law. Foreign corporations must also file annual statements, and certificates of increase or reduction of capital, similar to those required of domestic corporations. Certain classes of foreign corporations, e. g. insurance companies, building and loan associations, mining or oil companies desiring to sell stock in this State, etc., must comply with various other requirements specified in the statutes before doing business in Connecticut. Foreign trust companies cannot do business in this State, except as executors or testamentary trustees under the will of a deceased resident of Connecticut, and then only after they have fulfilled similar requirements of the statutes.

Courts, Jurisdiction and Terms of. — See Court Calendar for Connecticut.

Deeds. — All conveyances of land must be in writing, subscribed and sealed by the grantor, and attested by two disinterested witnesses and acknowledged to be his free act and deed. Acknowledgments within this State may be made before a judge of a court of record, clerk of the superior, common pleas, or district courts, justice of the peace, commissioner of the superior court, notary public, commissioner of the school fund, town clerk or assistant town clerk; in any other State or Territory, before a commissioner of deeds for Connecticut residing therein, or any officer authorized to take acknowledgments of deeds in such State or Territory; and "in a foreign country, before any ambassador, minister, chargé d'affaires, consul, vice-consul, deputy consul, consul-general, vice-consul-general, deputy-consul-general, consular-agent, vice-consular-agent, commercial agent, or vice-commercial agent of the United States representing or acting as agent of the United States in such foreign country, or before any notary public, or justice of the peace, in such foreign country." (Public Acts, 1905, ch. 63.) But no officer shall have power to take acknowledgments except within the territorial limits in which he may perform the proper duties of his office. It is not necessary for the consul to certify the character of the official taking the acknowledgment. A notarial seal is generally accepted as proving itself. A certificate of the county clerk should be annexed to an acknowledgment by a justice of the peace. The magistrate must be personally acquainted with the grantor. A notary public should have a notarial seal. Official character of notary is certified by the county clerk.

The omission of a notarial seal to a deed acknowledged before a notary public does not invalidate the deed; but in case of such omission there should be some state or court certificate certifying that the party acting is a notary public.

Acknowledgments may be written or printed, either upon original instrument or on paper securely attached thereto.

The word [Seal] and the scroll [L. S.] are, either of them, equivalent to a seal.

[Certificate of Acknowledgment by Husband and Wife, or by Corporation.]

Depositions. — When any witness in a civil cause lives out of the State, or more than twenty miles from the place of trial, is going to sea, or out of the State, is sixty years old, or by age or infirmity is unable to travel to court, or is confined in jail, his deposition may be taken by any judge or clerk of any court, justice of the peace, notary public, or commissioner of the superior court on reasonable notice to the adverse party or his known agent or attorney. Depositions may be taken in any other State or country by a notary public, commissioner for Connecticut, or any magistrate having power to administer oaths and in foreign countries before any foreign minister, secretary of legation, consul, or vice-consul appointed by the United States and residing in the country where the deposition is taken.

When a deposition is taken in the absence of the adverse party, or his agent or attorney, the party taking such deposition shall lodge it with the clerk of the court to which it is addressed, on the first day of the session of said court, for the inspection of the adverse party, unless before that time he has delivered the same, or a copy thereof, to said adverse party. But the court may, in its discretion, direct that said deposition be lodged with the clerk at some subsequent time instead of the time aforesaid.

Depositions to perpetuate testimony may also be taken, when no cause is pending, on application to a judge.

Instructions for taking Depositions. — The opposite party, or his attorney, must have reasonable notice. The notice should be in writing, served by copy, and the original, with proof of service, annexed to the deposition.

Frequently, by agreement of parties, depositions are taken stenographically and afterwards typewritten. Unless the parties agree, the deposition should be taken by the commissioner.

The official character of the magistrate taking the deposition, if a notary or Connecticut commissioner, is proved by his seal.

The official character of a justice of the peace must be proved by a certificate, under seal of the court, the clerk of which is the keeper of the record of the appointment of justices, unless waived by the adverse party.

A. B. vs. C. D. _____ court, _____ county, Connecticut.

I, E. F., of _____ in the county of _____ and State of _____ of lawful age, being duly cautioned and sworn, depose and say (here write the deposition).

The deposition may be written in a narrative form, or in reply to questions first written down. The cross-examination should be headed, "Cross-examination on part of the defendant (or plaintiff)," and the resumption of the direct testimony should be in like manner noted. If there are adjournments they should be noted by the officer from day to day at the close of the day.

Objection to witnesses, or their testimony, should be entered by the officer in a short note in the body of the deposition; but he cannot exclude any question as inadmissible.

Each deposition must have a separate caption, though one certificate, envelope, and direction will answer for several, except when taken by the adverse party under the rule below, when a separate certificate, envelope, and direction for those thus taken are necessary.

Depositions must not be written or dictated by the counsel or agent for either party, though they may be written by the witness himself.

Each witness must sign his own deposition. Every paper referred to in the deposition and annexed to it should be signed by the witness and magistrate.

The officer must then make his certificate substantially in the following form namely :—
[Certificate.]

COUNTY OF H., } ss. TOWN OF I.

January 1, 19 . Then and there personally appeared before me, E. F., signer of the foregoing deposition, and made solemn oath to the truth of the same; which was taken to be used in the cause of A. B. vs. C. D., now pending in the court, within and for county, Connecticut; taken at the request of the (plaintiff or defendant). The reason for taking the same is that the deponent resides out of the State (or is going to sea, or out of the State, or by age, sickness, or bodily infirmity is unable to travel to court, or is sixty years of age and over, as the case may be). The adverse party was duly notified, and was (or was not) present. Subscribed, taken, and sworn to before me.

J. K., Justice of the Peace.

The officer must then fold and seal up the deposition, and on the outside write the direction and further certificate substantially in the following form, namely :—

The deposition of E. F., to be used in said cause, taken and sealed up and directed by me.

J. K., Justice of the Peace.

To the care of Esq.

The deposition may be directed to the care of the attorney or party for whom it was taken, or it may be inclosed in another envelope, and on that directed to its destination, without naming on the outer envelope either the court or the case.

Whenever a party in a civil action shall be notified to appear at the taking of any deposition, the party thus notified may, if he see cause, take depositions at the same time and place designated in such notice, to be used in the same case, without any further notice to the opposite party. And the notice thus given shall be deemed sufficient notice to both parties that depositions will be then and there taken by them.

Under a notice that the depositions of A. B. and others will be taken at a certain place, the depositions of any number of persons other than A. B. can be taken.

Descent and Distribution of Property.— The distribution of intestate estates, after payment of debts and expenses, is as follows: 1. If married prior to April 20, 1877 (unless during marriage the parties thereto did contract as hereinafter set forth), to the wife, one third of the personal estate absolutely, and if there be no children of the intestate or any legal representative of them, one half of the personal estate absolutely, and if not otherwise endowed before marriage, one third of the real estate for life. 2. If married since April 20, 1877 (or if the parties, though married prior to that date, have contracted as hereinafter set forth), to the husband or wife, one third absolutely of all the property of the intestate, real and personal, and if there be no children of the intestate or representatives of children, all the estate absolutely to the extent of two thousand dollars and one half absolutely of the remainder of said estate. 3. Any husband and wife whose marriage took place prior to April 20, 1877, may, during their marriage, enter into a written contract with each other for the mutual abandonment of all rights of either in the property of the other, at common law or under statutes in force at the time of their marriage and until said April 20, 1877, and for the acceptance of the rights given by the provisions of the law then enacted and now in force, as given above and further as set forth under the title of Married Women. Such contracts shall be recorded in the office of the town clerk and in the probate court. Thereafter their rights are governed by the provisions of the new law. 4. All the residue of the real and personal estate in equal proportions, according to its value at the time of distribution, to and among the children, and the legal representatives of any of them who may be dead, excepting children who shall receive estate by settlement of the intestate in his lifetime, equal to the shares of the others, and excepting that children advanced by settlement of portion, not equal to the shares of the rest, shall have only so much of the estate as shall make all the shares equal. If any minor child die intestate, before marriage, without issue, and before any legal distribution of the estate, the portion of such deceased child is distributed as if such child had died in the lifetime of said parent. 5. If there be no children nor any legal representatives of them, the residue of the estate shall be distributed equally to the parents of the intestate, and if there be no parent, then to the brothers and sisters of the intestate of the whole blood, and those who legally represent them, and if there be no such kindred, then equally to the brothers and sisters of the half blood, and those who legally represent them, and if there be no parent and no brother or sister or those who legally represent them, then equally to the next of kin in equal degree, kindred of the whole blood to take in preference to kindred of the half blood, in equal degree, and no representative to be admitted among the collaterals after the representatives of brothers and sisters; but all the real estate of the intestate which came to him by descent, gift, or devise from any kinsman shall belong equally to the brothers and sisters of the intestate and those who legally represent them, of the blood of the person or ancestor from whom such estate came or descended; and in case there be no brothers and sisters, or legal representatives as aforesaid, then equally to the children of such person or ancestor, and those who legally represent them; and if there be no such children or representatives, then equally to the brothers and sisters of such person or ancestor, and those who legally represent them; and if there be none such, then it shall be set off and divided in the same manner as other real estate; and provided, that when such intestate shall be a minor, and shall not have any lineal descendants or brother or sister of the whole blood, or any descendants of such brother or sister, or any parent, such estate (quære, whether this includes personal property) shall be distributed equally to the next of kin to the intestate of the blood of the person or ancestor from whom such estate came or descended; and if there be no such kindred, then to the next of kin of the intestate generally, and in ascertaining the next of kin in all cases the rule of the civil law shall be adopted. If there be no wife, all the estate shall be divided among the children and heirs in manner aforesaid. The part of the real estate which is subject to the widow's dower, if it remain undivided at the expiration of her term, shall be distributed in manner aforesaid. (Gen. Stat. 1902, §§ 391-398.) See Aliens.

Previous to act of 1901 brothers and sisters inherited before parents, and will still do so when any will executed prior to January 1, 1902, fails for any reason to dispose of the whole or any part of the estate of the testator.

For inheritance tax law, see Inheritance Taxes.

Divorce. — Divorces are granted for adultery; fraudulent contract; willful desertion for three years, with total neglect of duty; seven years' absence, during all of which period the absent party has not been heard from; habitual intemperance; intolerable cruelty; sentence to imprisonment for life; any infamous crime, involving a violation of conjugal duty, and punishable by imprisonment in the state prison; and incurable insanity, where both parties are residents of this State and the insane has been legally confined in a hospital or asylum for five years next preceding the bringing of the action. (Public Acts 1915, ch. 283.) The proceeding is by complaint and summons to be served on the respondent. No decree of divorce will be granted at the first term, without proof of actual notice to the adverse party, nor until after ninety days from the day it is returnable. On all such complaints where the adverse party resides out of or is absent from the State, any judge or clerk of the supreme court of errors, or of the superior court, or any county commissioner, may make such order of notice to the adverse party as he may deem reasonable; and such notice having been given and duly proved to the court, it may hear such complaint if it finds that defendant has actually received notice that the complaint is pending; and if it shall not appear that the defendant has had such notice, the court may hear such case, or, if it see cause, order such further notice to be given as it may deem reasonable, and continue the complaint until the order is complied with. If the petitioner has removed to this State from another State, not having had a former domicile here when married here, such petitioner must reside here three years before bringing the petition, unless the cause of divorce shall have arisen subsequently to the removal into this State, or unless the adverse party shall have statedly resided in this State three years next before the date of the petition. After divorce either party may lawfully marry again. In granting a divorce to a married woman, the court may change her name, grant alimony, and may, at discretion, make an order as to the custody, care, and education of the children of the marriage. The court may assign to any woman divorced a reasonable part of the estate of her late husband, not exceeding one third part thereof. All divorces are a vinculo.

Dower. — Dower exists only in real estate of which the husband dies seized. The husband and wife must join in conveying her real estate, unless married since April 20, 1877, or he has abandoned his interest therein. See Married Women. She need not join in conveying his real estate. Married women may dispose of their estate, both real and personal, by will, subject to their husbands' marital rights.

Policies of life insurance for the benefit of a married woman inure to her separate use and benefit, and that of her or her husband's children, independently of her husband and his creditors and representatives, as may be provided in such policy. But if the annual premium on such policy shall exceed five hundred dollars, the amount of such excess paid in fraud of creditors shall, with interest, inure to the benefit of the creditors of the person paying the premium.

Evidence. — See Testimony.

Executions. — An execution may issue when final judgment is rendered. Executions are granted against the goods, lands, and, when the defendant is liable to imprisonment on the same (as in all cases of fraud or torts), against the body of the debtor. No execution issued in an action founded on contract merely, express or implied, can be levied on the body of the debtor, except in actions founded on promises to marry, or misconduct, or neglect in any office or professional employment, or in actions instituted against a person acting in a fiduciary capacity, to recover moneys received by him. Executions may be directed to any proper officers in any county, and are to be made returnable within sixty days. They may at any time be renewed, or alias executions granted by the clerk without application to the court. If either of the parties is dead, a scire facias must be brought to enable the court to issue a new execution. Personal property is sold at the end of twenty-one days after notice on the sign-post, except that perishable property or live stock may be sold at the end of seven days. When real estate is levied on it must be appraised by three indifferent freeholders, and a sufficient quantity set out to the creditor by metes and bounds. An officer is not justified in levying on the body of a debtor if personal estate can be found sufficient to pay the execution, unless the debtor refuses to turn out such property. See Attachment.

Exemptions. — The following property shall be exempted and not liable to be taken by warrant or execution, namely: of the property of any one person, his necessary apparel and bedding, and household furniture necessary for supporting life, arms, military equipments, uniforms, or musical instruments owned by any member of the militia for military purposes, any pension moneys received from the United States while in the hands of the pensioner, implements of the debtor's trade, his library not exceeding five hundred dollars in value, one cow not exceeding one hundred and fifty dollars in value, any number of sheep not exceeding ten nor exceeding in all one hundred and fifty dollars in value, two swine and two hundred pounds of pork, and poultry not exceeding twenty-five dollars in value; of the property of any one person having a wife or family, twenty-five bushels of charcoal, two tons of other coal, two hundred pounds of wheat flour, two cords of wood, two tons of hay, two hundred pounds each of beef and fish, five bushels each of potatoes and turnips, ten bushels each of Indian corn and rye, and the meal or flour manufactured therefrom, twenty pounds each of wool and flax, or the yarn or cloth made therefrom; the horse of any practicing physician or surgeon of a value not exceeding two hundred dollars, and his saddle, bridle, harness, buggy, and bicycle; one boat owned by one person and used by him in the business of planting or taking oyster or clams, or taking shad, together with the sails, tackle, rigging, and implements used in said business not exceeding in value two hundred dollars; one sewing-machine, being the property of any one person using it or having a family; one pew, being the property of any person having a family who ordinarily occupy it; and lots in any burying-ground appropriated by its proprietors for the burial of any person or family. So much of any debt which has accrued by reason of the personal services of the debtor as shall not exceed fifteen dollars, including wages due for the personal services of any minor child under the age of twenty-one years, shall be exempted and not liable to be taken by foreign attachment or execution. (Wages for personal service not exempt against a claim for defendant's personal board, or for the rental of any house or tenement occupied by defendant as a place of residence when rental shall not exceed twenty-five dollars, provided only the true cause of action and the amount due is set forth. (Acts 1915, ch. 196.)) All benefits allowed by any association of persons in this State towards the support of any of its members incapacitated by sickness or infirmity from attending to his usual business shall be exempted, and not liable to be taken by foreign attachment or execution. Moneys or funds received by Grand Army posts by donations for charitable purposes are exempt. All sums due for compensation under Workmen's Compensation Act are also exempt. (Public Acts 1913, ch. 138, § 36.)

Any person owning and actually occupying any dwelling and real estate can file for record, in same manner as a deed, a declaration that he occupies and intends to occupy said dwelling and real estate as a homestead, and from the filing such declaration said property, to the value of one thousand dollars, shall be exempt from execution so long as actually occupied by the owner as a dwelling, and only the excess in value above one thousand dollars can be set off. (Gen. Stat. 1902, §§ 4065, 4066.)

Moneys due on insurance losses for exempt property, whether real or personal, are also exempt.

Garnishee Process. — See Attachment.

Inheritance Taxes. — For particulars governing estates of persons dying prior to August 1, 1913, see Digest for 1913, under Tax Law.

For particulars governing estates of persons dying since August 1, 1913, and prior to May 19, 1915, see Digest for 1915, under Tax Law.

By an act approved May 19, 1915 (Pub. Acts 1915, ch. 332, as amended by Pub. Acts 1917, ch. 356), the estate of every person whose death occurs thereafter shall be taxed as follows: —

All property, except real estate situated outside the State, owned by any resident of Connecticut at the time of his death is taxed. In the case of a non-resident, nothing is taxed here except real estate and tangible personal property situated in Connecticut; that is, money on deposit here, shares of stock, bonds, notes, and other choses in action are not taxed in estates of non-residents.

The probate court fixes the amount of the tax, and the interests of the State in all such cases are represented by the state tax commissioner, who is notified of all such pending matters. The tax, when thus fixed, is paid to the state treasurer. An estate cannot be settled and the final account approved until the tax is paid.

The tax is payable within fourteen months after the death unless the time is extended by the probate court, and carries nine per cent. interest when overdue. The tax is upon the net estate after payment of all claims and expenses.

Property passing by deed, grant, or gift, made in contemplation of death of the donor, or intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment at his death, and certain estates vesting by the exercise of any power of appointment, or by failure to exercise such a power, are likewise taxed.

Estates are divided into three classes, viz.: Class A. The net estate passing to parent, grandparent, husband, wife, lineal descendant, adopted child, adoptive parent, and lineal descendant of any adopted child, in excess of ten thousand dollars, up to fifty thousand dollars, is taxed at one per cent.; in excess of fifty thousand dollars, up to two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, is taxed at two per cent.; in excess of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars up to one million dollars, is taxed at three per cent.; in excess of one million dollars, is taxed at four per cent. Class B. The net estate passing to the husband or wife of a child, to a stepchild, brother or sister, or to the descendant of a brother or sister, in excess of three thousand dollars, up to twenty-five thousand dollars, is taxed at three per cent.; in excess of twenty-five thousand dollars, up to fifty thousand dollars, is taxed at five per cent.; in excess of fifty thousand dollars, up to two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, is taxed at six per cent.; in excess of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, up to one million dollars, is taxed at seven per cent.; in excess of one million dollars is taxed at eight per cent. Class C. The net estate passing in all other cases, and not otherwise exempt, — in excess of five hundred dollars, up to fifty thousand dollars, is taxed at five per cent.; in excess of fifty thousand dollars, up to two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, is taxed at six per cent.; in excess of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars up to one million dollars, is taxed at seven per cent.; in excess of one million dollars is taxed at eight per cent. Only one exemption in each class shall be allowed for the net estate passing to all beneficiaries in that class and the tax on the balance is apportioned among them.

In the case of non-residents, the probate court shall ascertain the proportion of the entire estate wherever situated passing to each of the three classes, and shall compute the tax as if the real estate or tangible personal property in this State passed to the three classes in the same proportion, and the exemptions shall be allowed only to the extent that the estate in Connecticut bears to the entire estate.

All gifts to or in trust for any corporation or institution in Connecticut which receives state aid, or for the use of a municipal corporation for public purposes within this State, and all gifts of paintings, pictures, books, curios, collections, etc., to any institution in Connecticut for preservation and free exhibition, are expressly exempted, except when otherwise provided by law or by the will. The tax is payable out of the property passing to each beneficiary, unless the recipient pays the same to the fiduciary.

The act contains elaborate provisions governing the method of ascertaining and apportioning the tax, and governing the making and paying of the tax in cases of life estates and remainders over.

The act should be consulted for all details. (Public Acts 1915, ch. 332.)

Insolvent Laws and Assignments. — Insolvency statutes suspended by bankruptcy laws of the United States.

By state law, all debts due any laborer or mechanic for personal wages for labor performed within three months are preferred, to the amount of one hundred dollars; also the costs of incomplete levies of executions and attachments, which are dissolved by insolvency proceedings.

Interest. — In the absence of any agreement as to the rate of interest, the rate is six per cent.; and the same rate is allowed in civil actions as damages for the detention of money after it is payable, even though the loan prior to maturity carried a higher rate. No borrower of money is permitted to set off or recover back any money paid by way of interest, discount or damages for the detention of money in excess of the rate of six per cent. (Gen. Stat. §§ 4598-4600.)

But further, acts 1911, ch. 244, now provide that no person (except licensed pawnbrokers) shall directly or indirectly loan money to any one, and charge, receive, or contract for interest at a greater rate than twelve per cent. per annum. (See also Public Acts 1915, ch. 143.) The penalty provided by this new act is imprisonment for not over six months, or a fine of not over one thousand dollars, or both, and, further, that no action shall be brought to collect either principal or interest or on any cause arising from the negotiation of such loan. No expense of inquiry as to responsibility or of negotiation or of collection shall be charged to the borrower, unless the total of such charges and interest for one year shall not exceed twelve per cent. The act does not affect loans by national banks or banks or trust companies under Connecticut law or real estate mortgages exceeding five hundred dollars.

Judgment. — A judgment is not a lien, but may become one. See Liens; Attachments. It carries six per cent. interest. An execution can be prayed out at any time during the life of both parties. When there is no appearance for defendant, judgment may be entered on third day of court and any time thereafter, except in justice court, where it may be entered at end of return hour, provided defendant has been served with process.

When defendant is a resident of this State but absent therefrom at the commencement of action and until after return day, and does not appear, the case shall be continued for thirty days by order of court, and at the end of that period, if no special reason be shown for further delay, judgment by default may be entered.

If defendant is not a resident and does not appear and answer, a postponement for three months shall be secured, and an order of notice obtained. If at the end of that period he does not appear and the court finds that he probably has not received notice, a further continuance for one month shall be had. Then unless special reason be shown, judgment may be entered but no execution shall issue until plaintiff shall have lodged with the clerk a bond with sufficient surety to adverse party in double the sum to refund, if upon writ of error, etc., court finds he is not entitled to recover, and no real estate taken on execution shall be aliened until twelve months after judgment or a decision in plaintiff's favor on new trial.

In actions by foreign attachment, similar postponements shall be had under like circumstances, unless garnishee shall appear to defend his principal.

All continuances shall cease, unless for special reasons, whenever the court shall find that the absent or non-resident defendant or his duly authorized agent or attorney has received twelve days' notice; and in that event all requirements as to bonds, etc., shall not apply.

Where notes contain an agreement to pay a fixed sum as attorneys' fees, that may be included in judgment.

License. — There is no law requiring commercial travelers from other States to procure a license before doing business in this State, but itinerant venders must procure both state and local licenses. Itinerant venders include all persons who engage in temporary or transient business either in one locality or traveling from place to place selling goods, and who for the purpose of carrying on such business lease or occupy premises for the exhibition or sale of such goods. An itinerant vender cannot associate himself with a local dealer for the purpose of evading the law. (Gen. Stat. 1902, ch. 267.)

A newcomer, if prosecuted, may give bond and have action continued for one year to prove his intention to remain permanently. (Acts 1903, ch. 185.)

Liens. — Boarding-house keepers have a lien upon the effects of all boarders, and may sell after sixty days. Any person having a claim for materials furnished or services rendered, exceeding the sum of ten dollars, in the construction, erection, and repair of any building, or in the removal of a building, may have a lien on such building, and the land on which the same may stand, and said premises may be foreclosed, in the same manner as if held by mortgage. No one, other than the original contractor, or a sub-contractor under a written contract, assented to in writing by owner, shall be entitled to claim a lien unless, after starting and not later than sixty days after ceasing to furnish labor or materials, he gives written notice to the owner of his intention to claim such a lien. A certificate, subscribed and sworn to, describing the premises, the amount claimed as a lien thereon, and the date of the commencement of the claim, must be lodged with the town clerk of the town in which such premises are situated, within sixty days after the person performing such services or furnishing such materials has ceased so to do. Mechanics' liens may be dissolved on substitution of bond. (Gen. Stat. 1902, § 4139.) Such lien continues only two years after it is perfected unless foreclosure is commenced. Vessels can be subjected to a lien for moneys due for work or materials furnished in their construction, by recording claim in town clerk's office within ten days after job is done. Persons keeping animals under contract with owner have lien for their contract charge. Mechanics' liens, on claims for materials furnished or services rendered, under any contract with or approved by a railroad corporation owning or managing the railroad, are enforceable. The lien, however, must be lodged with the secretary of state.

An unsatisfied judgment may be made a lien on real estate, which lien may be foreclosed in the same manner as mortgages. To create such a lien a certificate describing the court in which the judgment was rendered, the date thereof, the names of plaintiff and defendant, the amount unsatisfied, and the premises on which a lien is claimed, must be made and recorded in the records of the town where such real estate lies. If upon real estate attached in the suit the lien holds from date of attachment if filed within four months after judgment. See Attachments.

Limitations. — Title to real estate by adverse possession can be gained in fifteen years. Actions upon writings under seal, or promissory notes not negotiable, must be brought within seventeen years, and upon simple contracts within six years; provided that persons legally incapable to bring an action at the accruing of a right of action may bring the same at any time, in the case of specialties within four years, and in the case of simple contracts within three years, after becoming legally capable. Actions founded on express contracts (other than actions of book debt), not in writing, actions of trespass and slander, writs of error and petitions for new trial, must be brought within three years; actions against sheriffs and other officers for neglect of duty within two years; actions for forfeitures on any penal statute, and on bonds for costs or on appeal within one year; prosecutions for treason and state prison offenses within three years, and for other offenses within one year next after the offense is committed; provided that the time when the offender is out of the State shall not be counted. Actions for damages for loss of life from negligence must be commenced within one year from the neglect complained of. Actions for damages for injury to person not resulting in death, or for injury to property caused by negligence, against municipal, railway, and street railway corporations, must be brought within one year from date of injury. No action for damages to person or property against a tramway or railroad company lies unless notice is given to company within six months from date of injury, containing written description of same and time, place, and cause of its occurrence unless the action itself is commenced within said period of six months. The time during which a party against whom there may be a cause of action shall be without the State is excluded from the computation. This applies to non-residents, and prevents most claims against them from being barred by any lapse of time. In cases of fraudulent concealment of cause of action, the statute runs from its discovery. Actions upon negotiable notes fraudulently obtained must be brought within one year after notice given of the fraud, or six months after maturity. Actions against officers of a corporation to recover a debt for which they may be liable, because of their neglect of duty, must be brought within three years after such debt became due.

Married Women. — Real Estate. — The husband acquires a right to the use of the land or real estate of the wife during her life; and if he has a child by her and survives her, then during his own life as tenant by the curtesy. Her interest is never chargeable with the debts of the husband. The interest of a married man in the real estate of his wife, belonging to her at the time of their marriage, or subsequently acquired by devise, descent, gift, or purchase, cannot be taken by attachment or execution against him during the life of the wife, or the life of any child which is the issue of such marriage. All real estate conveyed to a married woman during coverture, in consideration of money or other property acquired by her personal services during such coverture, shall be held by her to her sole and separate use. The proceeds of the sales of the real estate of a married woman which may be invested in the wife's name or in the name of a trustee for her use are not liable for the husband's debts. If a married woman is abandoned by her husband for three years she may convey her real estate upon application to superior court.

Sections 391 and 392 of the General Statutes of 1902, which, however, apply only to marriages contracted since April 20, 1877, or those where husband and wife by written contract recorded in town clerk's office and probate court accept its provisions, has materially changed the law of husband and wife.

A marriage contracted after April 20, 1877, does not give the husband or wife any interest in the property then owned or afterwards acquired by the other, except such share as he or she may have as survivor. Such wife may make contracts with third persons and convey to them her real estate in the same manner as if she were unmarried. It is liable for her debts and jointly with her husband's for articles purchased by either for joint benefit of both, or for her reasonable apparel, or for her support while abandoned by the husband, or which may have gone to the support of the family; but his property, when found, must first be applied to satisfy such joint claim, and she is in equity entitled to indemnity out of her husband's property for her property taken or money she shall have been compelled to pay to satisfy such claim. Under the Act of 1877, on the death of the husband or wife the survivor takes one third in value of property left by the other, debts and charges against the estate having been first paid. The right to the use for life of this third cannot be defeated by will. See Descent and Distribution of Property. A devise or legacy in will of husband or wife to the other is presumed to be in lieu of this statutory share, unless the contrary is stated or clearly appears, subject to election between devise or legacy and this share. These provisions do not apply where by written contract, before marriage or after, either party has received from the other a provision intended to be in lieu of this statutory share, nor in favor of party who abandons the other without sufficient cause and continues abandonment till death (See, also, Dower.)

Personal Estate. — All the personal property of any married woman, married since June 22, 1849, and before April 20, 1877, and all personal property acquired since that day by such married woman, and all property derived from its sale or reinvestment, shall vest in the husband, in trust for the wife, and upon the decease of the husband shall vest in the wife, if living, or, if she has deceased, in her devisees, legatees, or heirs at law, in the same manner as if she had always been a feme sole. If the husband shall have paid debts of the wife before marriage, such amounts are to be allowed him, on application to superior court. The husband is entitled to the rents, profits, and interest of such estate during his life; and such rents, profits, and interest are not liable to be taken by any legal process for his debts during the life of the wife, except for debts contracted by him for the support of the wife and her children after such estate shall have vested in him. But the husband takes no share in the sole and separate estate of the wife, and by failing to assert and exercise his rights, he divests himself and the property virtually becomes sole and separate estate. (Bidwell v. Beckwith, 86 Conn. 462.) No sale or transfer by the husband of any such estate, or of his interest therein, is valid without the written conveyance of the wife, if living, or, if she be dead, those in whom her estate shall have vested. The court of probate may call such trustee to account, may require bonds for the faithful performance of such trust, and may remove such trustee for cause. A husband abandoning his wife abandons his right to her property and the rents and profits of the same, and the wife so abandoned may transact business, and sue and be sued, as a feme sole. The husband is not liable for the wife's debts incurred before marriage, but she is liable and may be sued as if unmarried. A married woman may make contracts in her own name, buy goods, and give notes in settlement for purchases, which will be binding upon her separate estate, real and personal, if these contracts and purchases are made for the benefit of herself, her family, or her estate. The husband may generally be joined or not, at the option of the plaintiff, but is not liable for any debt contracted on the sole personal credit of the wife. A married woman carrying on business may sue alone on causes of action accruing therefrom. (Gen. Stat. 1902, § 593.) A woman married since April 20, 1877, may make contracts with third persons and sign bonds the same as a feme sole, but under the language of the statute it is doubtful if she can become a surety for her husband. Women become of age at twenty-one.

The husband or wife married since April 20, 1877, or who has accepted the provisions of the act of 1877, has the same interest in the personal property of the other as in the real estate, and such wife has the same power to make contracts concerning her personal estate as she has concerning her real estate, and her personal estate is liable to same extent as her realty for her debts. The separate earnings of such wife are her sole property.

Mechanics' Liens. — See Liens.

Mortgages. — Mortgages of real estate are executed, acknowledged, and recorded in the same manner as deeds, and are foreclosed by proceedings in equity, not by sale. Foreclosure suits must be brought in the county or district in which the land is situated. (Acts 1905, ch. 82.) The court limits a reasonable time, generally from two to six months, for redemption; and if the debt is not paid within this period, the equity of redemption is extinguished and the property belongs absolutely to the mortgagee. The court may also order and enforce the delivery of possession to the mortgagee on a foreclosure. But all liens affecting real property from a date subsequent to June 1, 1886, and all mortgages thereof thereafter executed may, on the written motion of any party to the suit, be foreclosed by a decree of sale instead of a strict foreclosure, at the discretion of the court before which the foreclosure proceedings are pending. (Gen. Stat. 1902, § 4141.)

Acts 1911, ch. 261, provides that mortgages of manufacturing, mechanical, or printing establishments may, if so specified, cover after-acquired or substituted property of like nature.

If the maker of the note is to be held personally, he must be made a party to the foreclosure, and the court on motion shall appoint three appraisers, whose appraisal shall be conclusive as to the value of the mortgaged premises.

The mode of discharging mortgages is by a quitclaim deed from the mortgagee, or by a release in the form prescribed by Public Acts 1915, ch. 164.

In cases where title to real estate is incumbered by an old mortgage and the owners of said real estate have been in undisturbed possession for seventeen years after the same became due, the superior court may, in the absence of evidence of any payment thereon, or of any act recognizing the validity of said mortgage within said period, bar all actions thereafter to enforce title thereunder.

Notaries Public. — Notaries public are appointed by the governor and hold office from the date of the commission and for the period of five years from the first of February of the year in which the commission is issued, unless it is sooner revoked by the governor. The notary's commission and oath of office are recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court in the county in which the notary resides, and such clerk may certify to the authority and official acts of the notary. The notary may exercise his functions at any place in the State.

The powers of a notary include the administering of oaths, the taking of acknowledgments of deeds and other instruments, the issuing of subpoenas, and the taking of depositions.

A notary should affix his seal in every case, although in certain cases as a matter of custom it is not required to make the certificate valid, e. g. in the acknowledgment of deeds executed within this State, in which case the powers of a notary are shared with certain other officials who have no official seals. The official seal of a notary is usually accepted as a sufficient authentication of his official character.

Notes and Bills. — The law is now consolidated, this State having in 1897 adopted the uniform Negotiable Instruments Law. (Gen. Stat. 1902, c. 234.) Days of grace are abolished; when day of maturity falls on Sunday or holiday, instrument is payable on next succeeding business day. Instruments falling due on Saturday are to be presented on next succeeding business day, except that instruments payable on demand may at option of holder be presented before twelve o'clock noon. The act must be consulted as to particulars.

Judgment notes (so called) are not allowed.

No particular form of note is recommended. See Interest.

Practice. — The courts practice under Civil Procedure Act of 1879, which provides for a union of legal and equitable remedies in the same action, and one form of civil action for all causes. (Gen. Stat. 1902, c. 49.)

Proof of Claims. — Claims cannot be proved by ex parte affidavits except when presented against insolvent estates, nor then if the commissioners require further evidence. All claims presented against estates of deceased persons must be in writing, and, if required must be sworn to. (Acts 1911, ch. 75.)

Recording of Deeds, etc. — All deeds and mortgages of land must be recorded at length within a reasonable time, by the town clerk of the town where such lands are, and no deed will hold such lands against any but the grantor and his heirs, unless so recorded. See Tax Laws; see, also, Chattel Mortgages.

And a certificate of the distribution of the real estate of person deceased must be recorded in land records of the town within twenty days after distribution made.

No retail merchant shall sell out the whole or a large part of his stock in trade and fixtures at a single transaction and not in the usual course of business, or any interest therein, unless he shall, not less than fourteen days nor more than thirty days prior thereto, record in the town clerk's office in the town where his business is conducted a notice of such intention, which notice shall describe the property in general terms and all conditions of the sale, including the parties thereto; otherwise such sale shall be void as against his creditors at the time of the transaction. (Acts 1915, ch. 119, as amended by Acts 1917, ch. 204.)

Redemption. — See Mortgages; Tax Law.

Replevin — May be maintained to recover any goods or chattels in which plaintiff has a general or special property, with right of immediate possession, with damages for wrongful detention. An affidavit as to the value of the property is required, and bond must be given in double the value sworn to. (Public Acts 1909, ch. 239.)

Reports, Judicial. — Kirby, 1 vol.; Root, 2 vols.; Day, 5 vols.; Connecticut, 92 vols. A digest of these reports, and those of the United States courts for the District of Connecticut (Baldwin's Conn. Digest), was published in 1871, and vol. 2 in 1882. A revised edition (2 vols.) of this Digest was published in 1900. An Index-Digest of all reports from Kirby to 63 Conn., inclusive, was published in 1896 (Andrews and Fowler). A supplementary Index-Digest (William M. Maltbie), covering vols. 64 to 81, has been issued (1909).

Revision. — The last revision of the statutes of the State went into force July 1, 1918. The completed work has not yet been issued (at the time of going to press) and references in this Digest are therefore still made to the revision of 1902 and the Public Acts supplementing the same. In addition thereto there are the Special Laws.

Service. — All processes returnable to the supreme court of errors must be served thirty days before the session of the court. Process in civil actions brought to the superior court shall not be made returnable to any term or session thereof, but shall be made returnable upon the first Tuesday of any month except July and August: provided, that service be completed at least twelve days before such return day. If before the court of common pleas, or district court, process shall be made returnable upon the first Tuesday of any month except July and August (and to the court of common pleas in New Haven County and district court of Waterbury upon the first Tuesday of any month) and served at least twelve days, inclusive, before the session of said court, except that six days are sufficient where defendant resides in city of New Haven and case is returnable to common pleas court in that county; and all process shall be made returnable to the next return day, or the next but one to which it can be so made returnable. If returnable to a justice of the peace, at least six days, inclusive; and all processes returnable to a justice of the peace must be made returnable within thirty days from the day of service. A summons is served by the officer reading the same in the hearing of the defendant, or by leaving an attested copy thereof with him or at his usual place of abode. In case of foreign attachment (see Attachment), the garnishee must be served at least twelve days before the return day.

Stay of Execution. — Execution will be stayed in the case of a judgment rendered against an executor or administrator on the settlement of an insolvent estate; in cases of foreign attachment, when it shall appear on the hearing of the scire facias that the debt due to the principal is not yet payable; upon a judgment for a mortgage in ejectment, pending a foreclosure of the mortgage; and upon a motion for a new trial, or proceedings in error, at the direction of the court.

Tax Law. — Except in the case of a few towns having another date fixed by law, returns are made by the tax-payers during month of October of all taxable property owned by them on October 1 of each year, on uniform form prescribed by state officials. If no list is returned, the assessors make out a list from the best information obtainable and add ten per cent. thereto. Appeal may be taken to board of relief and then to superior court. Taxes are due when called by the collector, generally in the following April or July. If unpaid after one month (general law), interest at the rate of nine per centum per annum is chargeable from date when due. Lien for real estate taxes are inchoate from October 1 in each year until one year after said taxes become due, and may be continued by recording within one year after due on the land records a certificate thereof. Lien becomes invalid after fifteen years unless foreclosure is commenced within that period and notice of suit filed for record. The collector, after duly advertising, may sell at public auction so much of any real estate as is necessary to pay the taxes and costs chargeable against the owner, and give the purchaser a deed, to be lodged in the office of the town clerk where the land lies, to remain unrecorded twelve months; and if the owner from whom the tax was due, or any purchaser, mortgagee, creditor of such owner, or any person having any interest in the estate, shall within twelve months from the time of such sale pay or tender to the purchaser the purchase-money, with twelve per cent. interest, such deed shall be void, and shall be delivered up to the person paying or tendering the money, who shall hold such estate as security in the nature of a mortgage for the money paid and twelve per cent. interest; but if the purchase-money and interest shall not be paid within such time, then the deed shall be recorded, and the title become confirmed in the purchaser, his heirs and assigns forever. A tax lien may be foreclosed in a way similar to that in case of mortgage. Tangible personal property owned by non-residents which is located in any one town of this State more than seven months during any one year is taxed as if owned by a resident, and a list thereof should be returned to the assessors made out by the non-resident or his agent. (Acts 1911, ch. 195.)

The time of assessment varies in different towns and cities, and the time of payment is different in nearly every town. Local advice should be taken.

Foreign corporations transacting a manufacturing or mercantile business in this State are taxed upon their property the same as domestic corporations.

In 1915, the legislature passed a number of new tax laws of importance. One of these taxes railroads, street railways, water, gas, electric, and power companies upon their gross earnings, and exempts the stocks, bonds, and notes of such companies from taxation in the hands of the holders. Corporations in general (other than the foregoing and other than banks, trust companies, insurance, express, car, telegraph, telephone, and cable companies) carrying on business in this State are taxed upon their net income. The returns to the Federal Government are made the basis of computation, and the tax is two per cent. of the net income. In the case of corporations carrying on business in another State as well as in Connecticut, the income upon which the tax is imposed is apportioned upon the basis of property or business done in the two or more States. (Public Acts 1915, ch. 292; amended Acts 1917, ch. 298.) This is in addition to the tax upon the property of these miscellaneous corporations.

This State has also adopted the "post-mortem tax" by which property appearing in a decedent's estate upon which taxes have not been paid may be taxed for five years past, the burden then being upon the estate to show that the property has been taxed or recently acquired. This tax is paid to the State, and remitted by the State in part to the town in which the deceased lived. (Public Acts 1917, ch. 243.)

Testimony. — Parties in interest, or parties convicted of crime, are not disqualified as witnesses; but such interest or conviction may be shown for the purpose of affecting their credit. Wife is competent witness against the husband in suits for necessities furnished her while living apart from him. Any person on trial for crime at his or her option may testify, and the husband or wife of such person may elect or refuse to testify for or against the accused, except that a wife, where she has received personal violence from her husband, may, on his trial therefor, be compelled to testify.

Witnesses in criminal proceedings where the crime is punishable by death or imprisonment may be required under certain conditions to give bond for their appearance at the trial, or be detained. (Acts 1907, ch. 118.)

In suits by or against the representatives of deceased persons, entries and written memoranda and declarations of the deceased relevant to the matter in issue may be received as evidence.

Trade-Marks. — Any person entitled to the exclusive use of any lawful trade-mark shall, upon filing in the office of the secretary of state such sworn certificate as the statute prescribes, become entitled to the exclusive use of such trade-marks so long as he, or his assigns, shall continue to make or sell the goods to which it is appropriated. Such right is assignable in writing, but is only good against assignor and his personal representatives until recorded in office of secretary of state. Copies of the record are prima facie evidence of the right to the exclusive use of such trade-mark. Counterfeiting or imitating such trade-mark by any party knowing the same to have been recorded makes him liable to the owner in double damages, and a further sum not exceeding five hundred dollars, at discretion of the court. A fraudulent use of such trade-mark renders the party liable to fine and imprisonment.

Labels and trade-marks of labor unions may also be registered and protected in a somewhat similar manner. (See Acts 1907, ch. 151.)

The insignia, flag, ribbon, badge, rosette, seal, button, or emblem of any society, association, labor union, or incorporated club may be registered with the secretary of state, and any person not a member who willfully wears the same may then be fined and imprisoned. (Acts 1907, ch. 113.)

Trust Deeds. — There is no statute on the subject; the common law prevails.

Wills. — All persons over eighteen years of age can dispose of all their property, real and personal, by will. A will of a husband or wife can only dispose of his or her property subject to the rights of the survivor. See Married Women. Wills must be in writing, subscribed by the testator, and attested by three witnesses, all of them subscribing in his presence. All wills executed according to the laws of the state or country where they are executed may be admitted to probate in this State. Typewritten will is valid. Subsequent marriage revokes a will, and so does birth of child, unless provision be made in the will for such contingency. Wills must be offered for probate within ten years from the testator's death, and thereafter no will shall be admitted to probate unless the court of probate, upon written petition, and after public notice, shall find that the will should be admitted to probate or except a minor is interested, in which case he shall have one year after reaching maturity to cause said will to be proved. (Gen. Stat. 1902, § 321.) Wills, when duly proved and admitted to probate, are recorded in probate court. There are no limitations as to bequests made to religious or charitable uses.

DELAWARE LAWS.

Messrs. Higgins & Eastburn, of Wilmington.

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — Suits may be brought by process of capias, summons, and, in case of non-resident defendant, by attachment of property. No capias ad respondendum can issue unless plaintiff therein shall have first made and filed an affidavit setting forth the fraudulent transactions of the defendant. The plaintiff is liable for costs in any action not local, where suit shall be brought against any citizen of the State in any other county than that where he resides at the inception thereof. (Del. Laws (1885), 926.)

In actions in the superior court on bills, notes, bonds, or other instruments of writing for the payment of money, or for the recovery of book accounts, and in all actions on judgments, foreign or domestic, recognizances, or mortgages, judgment by default shall be entered, notwithstanding appearance by defendant, unless an affidavit of defense be filed, provided that the plaintiff, or party for whose use suit was brought, file affidavit of demand and copy of cause of action on the first day of the term. (16 Del. Laws (1879), 205.)

If the action is brought before a justice, judgment may be obtained on the return of the writ, which is at the end of five days, unless it is made returnable forthwith, by the affidavit of the plaintiff that he will lose his claim by delay. See Proof of Claims.

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Affidavits. — Affidavits may be executed before the same persons as deeds. See Proof of Claims.

Aliens. — Real and personal property may be taken, acquired, held, and disposed of by an alien in the same manner as by a citizen of the State of Delaware. A good title to real and personal property, situate in the State, may be derived through, from, or in succession to an alien in the same manner and in all respects as through, from, or in succession to a citizen of the State. All conveyances to or from aliens of real or personal property, situate in the State, at any time heretofore made are validated, ratified, and confirmed and vest in the purchasers the same estates and rights as if the conveyance had been made between citizens of the State. (26 Del. Laws (1911), 695, ch. 251.)

Appeals. — Appeals lie from the court of chancery to the supreme court, and must be taken within two years after final decree in chancery; and in case of interlocutory decrees, before the next term after rendering of such decree.

A bill of exceptions to the ruling of the superior court must be drawn up in form and signed during the term in which the exception is proposed, unless the parties otherwise agree with the assent of the court.

An appeal from an orphans' court to the superior court must be filed with prothonotary within one year of the making of the order or decree.

An appeal from a justice of the peace to the superior court must be taken within fifteen days from the day of giving judgment.

Arrests. — No writ of capias ad satisfaciendum shall be issued upon any judgment in a civil action against any free white person until a writ of fi. fa. on said judgment shall have issued, and it shall appear by the return thereon that the defendant has no property within the county sufficient to pay the debt and costs, or an affidavit to the same effect; nor without an affidavit of fraud. The party arrested may have a hearing in vacation before any judge on the specifications of fraud.

No writ of capias ad respondendum shall be issued against any citizen of the State without an affidavit by the plaintiff of fraud, except in actions for libel, slander, or injury to the person or property accompanied by violence. No security is required of the plaintiff. The defendant is discharged on entering special bail, in double the debt, who must own real estate. The superior court or any judge may investigate allegations of fraud and discharge prisoner if they are not sustained.

A non-resident plaintiff cannot arrest on mesne process a non-resident defendant for debt contracted without the limits of the State. Remedy by petition to any judge.

Assignments. — Except as affected by the national bankruptcy act of 1898, the following statutes are in force. Deeds of voluntary assignment for the benefit of creditors should be acknowledged before a notary public and filed in the office of the register of the court of chancery. The assignee must then file in said office, within thirty days after the execution of the deed of assignment, a schedule of the property assigned, with an affidavit that such schedule is correct. The chancellor appoints two disinterested persons as appraisers of the estate, who shall be duly sworn or affirmed, and shall also file in said office their inventory and appraisement with affidavit, whereupon the assignee shall give bond with warrant of attorney in the name of the State of Delaware, with sureties to be approved by the chancellor in double the amount of the appraised value of the estate so assigned. The bond is for the faithful discharge of the trust, and shall inure to the use of persons interested in the property assigned. The assignee shall render an account of his trusteeship every year from the date of the bond, before the register in chancery, until the estate is closed and final account rendered and approved, and may for cause shown be removed by the chancellor and another appointed in his stead.

Any person interested may file exceptions to the accounts within one year from the date of the same. These exceptions will be heard by the chancellor, either in term time or at his chambers. Any order by the chancellor in the premises may be enforced by attachment or imprisonment. There is no provision for giving notice, proving claims, discharging debtor, or subjecting him to a personal examination. Preferential assignments are not allowed. Proving claim in assignment proceedings or accepting a dividend will not operate as a discharge of the debtor, except a release to that effect is especially executed.

Attachments. — A domestic attachment may be issued against an inhabitant after a return of non est to summons or capias delivered to officer ten days before return, and proof of cause of action; or upon affidavit made by plaintiff or other credible person and filed with the prothonotary, "that the defendant is justly indebted to the plaintiff in a sum exceeding fifty dollars, and has absconded from the place of his usual abode or gone out of the State with intent to defraud his creditors or to elude process as is believed." The proceeds of sales of property attached are distributed among all creditors equally, except that the creditors attaching and prosecuting the same to judgment are allowed a double share if such shall not exceed their debt.

A general assignment for the benefit of creditors, or proceedings under the insolvent law will not affect levy, under either execution or attachment, prior to assignment.

No security is required of plaintiff. The defendant to discharge attachment must give real estate security to the value of the property, rights, credits, and moneys attached and the costs. Not more than one sufficient surety is required. Attachment cannot issue on immatured claim.

A foreign attachment for a debt, but not for damages, may be issued, even at the suit of a non-resident plaintiff, against any person not an inhabitant, after a return as above, or upon affidavit as above, "that the defendant resides out of the State, and is justly indebted to the plaintiff in a sum exceeding fifty dollars." It may also be issued against foreign corporations, upon affidavit made by the plaintiff or any other credible person, and filed with the prothonotary, "that the defendant is a corporation not created by or existing under the laws of this State, and is justly indebted to the said plaintiff in a sum of money to be specified in said affidavit, and which shall exceed fifty dollars." The plaintiff has the benefit of his own discovery. Subsequent attaching creditors do not share pro rata with first attaching creditors. The superior court in term, or a judge in vacation, may investigate allegations of affidavit, except as to amount of debt or when it is due, and discharge attachment if no sufficient ground be shown. Fine equal to value of property and imprisonment for one year for secreting, destroying, or removing from the county property levied on or seized under execution or attachment process. (22 Del. Laws (1901), 505, ch. 214.)

The shares of any person in any unincorporated company, with all the rights thereto belonging, may be attached for debts or other demands. Enough shares may be sold to satisfy the debt or demand.

A certified copy of the process shall be left by the officer with the president, cashier, treasurer or any director of the company, who shall give such officer a certificate of the number of shares held, or owned, by the debtor in such company, with the number or other marks distinguishing the same. (Rev. Code of 1893, ch. 70, p. 568; 26 Del. Laws (1911), 370, ch. 175.)

A writ of attachment may be issued in any action against any unincorporated association of persons using a common name (ordinary partnership excepted) upon affidavit by the plaintiff or some creditable person or any officer of any plaintiff corporation, filed with any prothonotary or justice of the peace, alleging the above facts, that the plaintiff has a good cause of action against the defendant and stating the amount of debt or damages claimed. The lands and tenements, goods and chattels, rights and credits, moneys and effects of the defendant association, and of any or all of the individuals composing such association, as if they had been made parties defendant by their individual names, may be attached. (26 Del. Laws (1911), 726, ch. 267.)

Chattel Mortgages. — Mortgages of personal property must be recorded within ten days after their acknowledgment, and when so recorded are a valid lien for five years. They must be renewed every five years, and are enforced by same process as mortgages of real estate, namely, scire facias at law or foreclosure in equity. The law contemplates the mortgagor remaining in possession of the chattels mortgaged. It prohibits the mortgagor removing property from the county. A chattel mortgage on general merchandise does not cover further acquisitions, and a provision to that effect would be void. See Mortgages.

Claims against the Estates of Deceased Persons. — Administration of the goods and chattels, rights and credits of an intestate is granted by the register of wills of the county in which he resided at his death, or by the register of wills of any county wherein he has any estate, to the persons entitled to the residue of the personal estate or some one or more of them; if none be capable who will administer, then to the creditors, or some one or more of them; and if no creditor be capable who will administer, then to any suitable person.

The administrator may be a non-resident of the State; must give bond with surety within the State in double the amount of the personal estate; must give notice requiring all persons having claims against the estate to file the same, by advertisements posted, and, if deemed expedient, published in one or more newspapers for a period of not less than three weeks; and must file an account at the expiration of one year from the granting of administration, unless time be further extended by the register of wills. Order of payment of demands: 1. Funeral expenses. 2. Bills for nursing, medicines, medical attendance during, and necessaries for, last illness of deceased. 3. Wages of servants and laborers (not exceeding one year's wages). 4. Rent for not exceeding one year. 5. Judgments. 6. Recognizances, mortgages, and other obligations of record. 7. Obligations and contracts under seal. 8. Contracts under hand for payment of money on delivery of goods. 9. Other demands.

Any employer in this State, at any time within fifteen days after the death of any employee, may pay all wages due to such deceased employee, not to exceed seventy-five dollars in amount, to the wife, children, father or mother, sister or brother (preference given in the order named) of the deceased without requiring letters of administration to be issued upon the estate of such employee; provided, that if such deceased employee shall not leave a wife, children, father, mother, sister or brother surviving him, then the employer may pay such wages to creditors, as follows: Undertaker, physician, boarding-house keeper and nurse, each his or her pro rata share not exceeding seventy-five dollars due the deceased, upon affidavit of fact furnished without letters of administration being issued. Such payment shall be a full discharge and release to the employer.

Any bank or individual banker, trust company, savings bank or savings society in this State having on deposit to the individual credit of any deceased person a sum of money not exceeding seventy-five dollars may pay at any time, not less than fifteen days after the death of such person, such sum to the wife, children, father, mother, sister, or brother (preference given in the order named) of such deceased person, without requiring letters of administration to be issued upon the estate of the deceased. Such payment to be a full discharge and release for the amounts so paid. (26 Del. Laws (1911), 705, ch. 259.)

The widow of an intestate is entitled to one third part of the residue of the estate after payment of debts, if there be issue of the intestate; or if there be no issue, to one half part; or if there be no kin to the intestate, to the whole of the residue.

The widow of an intestate who dies insolvent is entitled to have laid off to her personal property of the intestate, to be by her selected, not exceeding in value two hundred dollars; and no other allowance can be made to her. (15 Del. Laws (1877), 619.)

Before any debt shall be paid, the person holding the same shall make affidavit "that nothing has been paid or delivered towards satisfaction of said debt except what is mentioned, and that the sum demanded is justly and truly due."

One year from the date of letters is allowed for settling the estate.

There is no difference in the proof of claims by residents and non-residents.

Any release, acquittance, or receipt being executed under hand and seal by any legatee, next of kin, or interested person of full age, to an executor or administrator for any sum of money due by virtue of a will, or upon a testamentary or administration account passed before the register, and acknowledged before the chancellor, or a judge, register of wills, notary public, or justice of the peace of this State, shall, upon delivery to the register, be filed and recorded by such register. Such an instrument executed as aforesaid by a non-resident may be acknowledged or proved before a judge, or a chief magistrate of a city, town, borough, or county and certified under his hand, and in case of the judge, of the seal of his court, and in case of the chief magistrate, under the public seal of the city, town, borough, or county. It may also be acknowledged or proved before a commissioner of deeds of this State and certified under the hand of such officer and the seal of his office. (Rev. Code of Del. (1893), ch. 89, sec. 50; 22 Del. Laws, 961, ch. 447; 25 Del. Laws, 512, ch. 224; 26 Del. Laws (1911), 703, ch. 257.)

Claims, Proof of. — See Proof of Claims.

Conditional Sales. — Conditional sales of personal property are valid in this State; and where delivery of property is made upon agreement that no title shall pass until payment is made or some other thing is done or occurs, no title passes to the party to whom the property is delivered until such payment is made or other thing is done or occurs; and he can pass none to his vendee, no matter how ignorant of the secret contract such vendee may be. (5 Houston, 218.)

Corporations. — Since the adoption of the Constitution of 1897, corporations can be created, amended, renewed, or revived only by general law (except municipal corporations, banks, or corporations for charitable, penal, reformatory, or educational purposes, sustained in whole or in part by the State). At least one thousand dollars of the capital stock must be paid in.

By the general corporation law of March 10, 1899, as amended, three or more persons may associate to establish a corporation for the transaction of any lawful business, or conduct any legitimate object or purpose (saving the purposes of those corporations above excepted), upon making, acknowledging, and filing a certificate of incorporation in the office of the secretary of state, who shall furnish a certified copy of the same, which shall be recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in this State where the principal office of the corporation is to be located. (Revised Stat. 1915, p. 910; 29 Del. Laws, 320.)

Every corporation under said act shall have power: 1, to have succession by its corporate name; 2, to sue and be sued; 3, to make and use a common seal and alter the same at pleasure; 4, to hold, purchase, and convey real and personal estate and to mortgage any such real or personal estate with its franchises and to take the same by devise or bequest; 5, to appoint requisite officers and agents; 6, to make by-laws; 7, to wind up and dissolve itself, or to be wound up and dissolved, according to law; 8, corporations already existing shall possess and exercise all the powers and privileges contained in said act so far as necessary to the objects set forth in their charter or certificate of incorporation; 9, they shall not have power of discounting bills, notes, or other evidences of debt, of receiving deposits of money, of buying gold and silver bullion or foreign coins or bills of exchange, or of issuing bills, notes, or other evidences of debt upon loan or for circulation as money.

A certificate of incorporation shall set forth: 1, the name of the corporation; 2, the place within the county where its principal office or place of business is to be located in this State, giving the street and office number, and the name of its resident agent, giving his street and office number; 3, the nature of the business, objects, or purposes proposed to be transacted, promoted, or carried on; 4, the amount of the total authorized capital stock (not less than two thousand dollars); the number of shares and the par value of each; the amount with which it shall commence business (not less than one thousand dollars); if more than one class of stock, a description of the different classes, with the terms on which they are created (unless original or amended charter or certificate shall so provide, no corporation shall create preferred stock. The terms "general stock" and "common stock" are synonymous (22 Del. Laws (1903), 754, ch. 392, § 3); 5, the names and residences of each of the original subscribers to the capital stock, or, if there be no stock, of the original corporators; 6, whether the corporation is to have perpetual existence, if not, the time when its existence is to commence and when to cease; 7, whether the private property of the stockholders shall be subject to the payment of corporate debt, and if so to what extent. The certificate may contain any provisions for the regulation of the business and conduct of the affairs of the corporation, or creating, defining, limiting, and regulating the powers of the corporation, the directors, and the stockholders, or any classes of the stockholders. Before the payment of any part of its capital, the incorporators named in the original certificate of incorporation may by an amended certificate filed with the secretary of state modify, change, or alter the original certificate of incorporation in whole or in part. Said amended certificate, when recorded in the same county as the original certificate, shall take its place and be deemed to have been filed and recorded on the date of the filing of the original certificate. (22 Del. Laws, 767, § 25.)

Any corporation of this State, whether created by special act or general law, may, from time to time, when and as desired, amend its charter of incorporation, either by addition to its corporate powers and purposes, or diminution thereof; or by substitution of other powers and purposes, in whole or in part, for those prescribed by its charter; or by increasing or decreasing its authorized capital stock; or by changing the number and par value of the shares of its capital stock; or by changing its corporate title (22 Del. Laws, 767, ch. 394, § 26); or by making any other change or alteration in its charter of incorporation that may be desired that would be lawful and proper to insert in an original certificate of incorporation. (25 Del. Laws, 289, ch. 155.)

Any corporation may conduct business in this State, other States, District of Columbia, the Territories and colonies of the United States and foreign countries, and have one or more offices out of the State, and may hold, purchase, mortgage, and convey real and personal property out of the State, provided such powers are included within the objects set forth in its certificate of incorporation. The president, with the secretary or treasurer, shall, upon the written request of any creditor or stockholder, make, under oath or affirmation, and file with the secretary of state within thirty days thereafter, a certificate stating the amount of the installments or calls paid in cash or by the purchase of property and also the total amount of capital stock issued (22 Del. Laws (1903), 766, ch. 394) or be jointly and severally liable for all debts contracted after the making of such payments.

Directors must be chosen annually, by the stockholders. By a vote of the stockholders, they may be divided into one, two, or three classes for terms of one, two, and three years, respectively, the term of one class expiring each year. There must be not less than three directors. All elections of directors shall be by ballot, and shall be held in this State, unless the by-laws otherwise provide. The president, secretary, and treasurer shall be chosen by the directors or stockholders, as the by-laws may direct. The president shall be a director. They shall hold their offices until their successors are chosen and qualified.

After the first election, no stock, transferred within twenty days preceding an election, shall be voted. A complete alphabetical list of stockholders entitled to vote shall be made at least ten days before every election, and shall be subject to the examination of any stockholder at the principal office or place of business for said ten days, and also at the place of election during the whole time thereof. Stockholders may vote by proxy. The annual meeting shall be held on the day and place named in the by-laws, which shall not be changed within sixty days previously, and twenty days' notice of any change shall be given to each stockholder before the election is to be held. The original or duplicate books in which transfers of stock are registered, and those containing the names and addresses of stockholders' and the number of shares held by them respectively, shall at all times, during the usual hours for business, be open to the examination of every stockholder at the principal office or place of business in this State. Every corporation organized under this act shall have the power to purchase, hold, sell, and transfer shares of its own capital stock; provided that no such corporation shall use its funds or property for the purchase of its own shares of capital stock when such use would cause any impairment of the capital of the corporation; and provided further that shares of its own capital stock belonging to the corporation shall not be voted upon directly or indirectly. (25 Del. Laws, 288, ch. 154.) The power to make and alter by-laws shall be in the stockholders, but the power may be conferred in the certificate of incorporation upon the directors; by-laws made by the directors under power so conferred may be altered or repealed by the directors or stockholders. Corporations, by consent of two thirds in interest, may diminish their capital stock at a meeting held for that purpose on twenty days' notice of such meeting, and upon filing an additional certificate. Stock cannot be diminished until all debts not otherwise fully secured shall have been paid and discharged. No corporation shall issue stock, except for money paid, labor done, or personal property, or real estate or leases thereof actually acquired at their actual value. (Const. art. IX. § 3.) Subscriptions to, or purchase of, the capital stock of any corporation organized or to be organized under any law of this State may be paid for, wholly or partially, by cash, by labor done, by personal property, or by real property or leases thereof; and the stock so issued shall be declared and taken to be full paid stock and not liable to any further call, nor shall the holder thereof be liable for any further payments under the provisions of this act. And in the absence of actual fraud in the transaction, the judgment of the directors, as to the value of such labor, property, real estate, or leases, shall be conclusive. (23 Del. Laws, 265, § 14.) Where not otherwise provided by the by-laws, the meetings of stockholders shall be at the principal office in this State. Directors may meet and have offices outside the State if the by-laws or certificate of incorporation so provide. Every corporation shall maintain a principal office and resident agent in this State. Any corporation may change the nature of its business, its name, the par value of its capital stock, or the location of its principal office in this State, extend its corporate existence, create one or more classes of preferred stock, and make such other amendments, change, or alteration as may be desired upon the vote of two thirds in interest of each class of the stockholders having voting power, and on filing an additional certificate with the secretary of state and recording the same. Shares are assessable until fully paid up; when fully paid are non-assessable, and are not liable for debts of the corporation.

The costs of organization are: 1. Fees and taxes to the secretary of state on filing any certificate or other paper, relating to corporations, in the office of the secretary of state, as follows: for certificate of incorporation, ten cents for each thousand dollars of total amount of capital stock authorized, but in no case less than ten dollars; increase of capital stock, ten cents on each thousand dollars of such increase, but in no case less than five dollars; when two or more corporations shall consolidate or merge, ten cents on each thousand dollars of capital stock authorized beyond the total authorized capital of the corporations consolidated or merged, but in no case less than twenty dollars; where the amount of capital stock, either by its original certificate of incorporation or by the amendment thereof, shall exceed two million dollars, five cents on each thousand dollars in excess of two million dollars, but in no case less than ten dollars; for certificate of dissolution, change of name, amended certificate of organization, decrease of capital stock, or decrease of number of shares, ten dollars; all other certificates, five dollars. (24 Del. Laws (1907), 339, 340.) For appeals for commutation of franchise tax, including the receiving, filing and indexing and all necessary certificates, seven dollars; for proceeding for reinstatement, including the receiving, filing and indexing and all necessary certificates, seven dollars. (25 Del. Laws, 542, ch. 240.) 2. To recorder of deeds of the county where the principal office is located, average four dollars.

Companies other than those named below pay an annual franchise tax as follows: for authorized capital stock not exceeding twenty-five thousand dollars, five dollars; exceeding twenty-five thousand dollars but not more than one hundred thousand dollars, ten dollars; exceeding one hundred thousand dollars and not more than three hundred thousand dollars, twenty dollars; exceeding three hundred thousand dollars and not more than five hundred thousand dollars, twenty-five dollars; exceeding five hundred thousand dollars and not more than one million dollars, fifty dollars, and the further sum of twenty-five dollars per annum on each million dollars or part thereof in excess of one million dollars; provided that the company shall pay but one half of the above taxes where it shall show in its annual report that it is not engaged in any business; but in no case shall the tax be less than five dollars for any year. (24 Del. Laws (1907), 87.)

Telegraph, telephone, cable, and express companies one per cent. on gross amount of receipts from business done in the State of Delaware. Companies for distribution of electricity heat or power, or production and distribution of steam heat or power, or production, distribution, or sale of gas, two fifths of one per cent. on gross amount of receipts from business done in this State, and four per cent. on all dividends in excess of four per cent. Oil or pipe line companies, three fifths of one per cent. on gross amount of receipts; but if part of the line is out of the State of Delaware, they shall pay on only a proportionate part of receipts. Insurance companies (other than life), three fourths of one per cent. on gross amount of premiums. Life insurance companies, two per cent. on gross amount of premiums. Parlor, palace, or sleeping car companies, one and one half per cent. on gross amount of receipts from business done in the State of Delaware.

Telegraph, telephone, and cable companies, express companies, gas companies, electric light, heat, and power companies, steam heat and power companies, oil or pipe line companies, insurance companies (other than life), parlor, palace, and sleeping car companies operating wholly outside the State of Delaware, railroads, railways, canals, banking corporations, savings banks, cemeteries, religious, charitable, and educational companies are exempt from annual tax. Manufacturing or mining or mercantile companies, fifty per cent. of whose capital stock actually paid in is invested in a business carried on within this State, are also exempt from annual tax; but companies not having fifty per cent. so invested are entitled to a deduction of the invested capital from the amount of capital stock issued and outstanding.

On or before the first Tuesday of January annually it shall be the duty of the president, treasurer, or other proper officer of every corporation hereafter incorporated of the character specified in the preceding section, to make report to the secretary of state, stating specifically the following particulars, namely: Each telegraph, telephone, cable, or express company not owned by a railroad company and not otherwise taxed, shall state the gross amount of its receipts from business done in this State for the year preceding the making of such report; each gas company and electric light company shall state the amount of its receipts for light or power supplied within this State for the year preceding the making of each report, and the amount of dividends declared or paid during the same time; each company organized for the distribution of heat or power or organized for the purpose of producing or distributing steam heat or power, shall state the amount of its receipts for the distribution of heat or power, or for the production or distribution of steam heat or power within this State for the year preceding the making of such report, and the amount of dividends declared or paid during the same time; each parlor, palace, or sleeping car company shall state the gross amount of its receipts for fare or tolls for transportation of passengers within this State during the same time; each oil or pipe line company engaged in the transportation of oil or crude petroleum shall state the gross amount of its receipts for the transportation of oil or petroleum through its pipes or in and by its tanks or cars in this State during the same time; each fire, marine, live-stock, casualty, or accident insurance company shall state the total amount of premiums received by it for insurance upon the lives of persons resident or property located within the State during the same time.

Every other corporation shall file with the secretary of state on or before the first day of January in each year an annual report, which shall state the location of its principal office in this State; the names of its officers, the amount of its authorized capital, the amount actually paid in, the amount invested in real estate, the tax annually thereon, and the amount invested in manufacturing or mining in this State, or both.

Taxes when determined shall be a debt due from the corporation to the State, for which an action at law may be maintained after the same shall have been in arrears for a period of three months after the same shall have become payable; the attorney-general may petition the chancellor for an injunction to restrain such corporation from the exercise of any franchise or the transaction of any business within this State until the payment of such tax. If any corporation hereafter created shall for two consecutive years neglect or refuse to pay the State any tax which it is required to pay, its charter shall be void, unless the governor shall for good cause shown give further time for the payment of said tax. Corporations incorporated before the adoption of this act are exempt from taxation under its provisions.

Foreign Corporations. — A corporation created and authorized by statute in another State to administer on the estates of deceased persons in that State having done so, may sue as such administrator in the courts of this State. (5 Houst. 416.) Foreign corporations can hold or convey real estate. Corporations engaged in the business of foreign life insurance agency, foreign fire insurance agency, and of foreign insurance agency other than life or fire, must apply to the insurance commissioner for a proper license before doing business in this State. (19 Del. Laws (1891), 49.)

It shall not be lawful for any corporation created by the laws of any other State, or of the United States, except insurance companies, to do any business in this State through or by branch offices, agents, or representatives located in this State until it shall have filed in the office of the secretary of state of this State a certified copy of its charter, and the name or names of its authorized agent or agents in this State, together with a sworn statement of its assets and liabilities, and paid to the secretary of state for the use of the State ten dollars. The certificate of the secretary of state under the seal of his office of the filing of such charter shall be delivered to such agent or agents and be prima facie evidence of such company's right to do business in the State. The secretary of state shall certify to the prothonotary of the superior court of each county in the State the name of the agent or agents of such corporations and state wherein incorporated, and the prothonotary shall enter of record such name or names. All process against such corporations, or orders of the court, rules and notices against such corporations may be served on such agent or agents and be effectual. Foreign corporations may by certificates change the name of the agents on removal or death. Corporations failing to comply with these provisions shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction be fined not less than two hundred dollars or more than five hundred dollars, and any such agent transacting any business within the limits of this State without complying with these provisions shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars for each offense. (22 Del. Laws (1903), ch. 395.)

Courts, Jurisdiction and Terms of. — See Court Calendar for Delaware.

Deeds. — Deeds may be acknowledged, within the State, in the superior court, or before the chancellor or any judge or notary public, or before two justices of the peace for the same county.

Acknowledgment of deeds may be taken, out of the State, before any consul-general, consul, vice-consul, consular agent, or commercial agent of the United States, duly appointed in any foreign country, at the places of their respective official residences, or before any judge of a district or circuit court of the United States, or the chancellor or any judge of a court of record, or the mayor or chief officer of any city or borough, and certified under the hand of such chancellor, judge, mayor, or officer, and the seal of his office, court, city, or borough; or in open court certified under the hand of the clerk and seal of the court; or before a commissioner of deeds appointed by the governor; or before a notary public of any State or Territory or of the District of Columbia. But one witness is necessary to a deed or assignment of a mortgage or other specialty. A scroll answers for a seal. It is not necessary to certify the character of the official taking the acknowledgment.

The certificate of acknowledgment must show that the wife relinquishes her dower, and the private examination must be certified in the words stated in the form as given below. The deed and acknowledgment of the wife alone is good to convey her estate, and the husband need not join except to bar his right as tenant by the curtesy. (22 Del. Laws (1903), 956, ch. 443.) See Married Women.

If the grantor in a deed be unknown, his identity may be proven by the oath of the witness.

Corporations must execute deeds and other conveyances under the corporate seal and hand of the president or a vice president. Presidents of corporations must be duly authorized by resolution of trustees or other managers of the corporation to execute and acknowledge deeds.

The record of deeds dated prior to January 1, 1913, duly signed and sealed by the grantors, will be admitted in evidence as valid, though the acknowledgments thereof be defective. (Del. Laws (1913), chap. 267.)

Descent and Distribution of Property. — Real Property descends: 1st. In equal shares to children of the intestate and the lawful issue of any deceased child by right of representation. 2d. If no lawful issue, then in equal shares to his brothers and sisters, and the lawful issue of any deceased brother or sister by right of representation. Brothers and sisters of the whole blood are preferred. If the intestate received title by descent or devise from his parent or ancestor, the real estate shall first descend to his brothers and sisters of the blood of such parent or ancestor and their lawful issue by right of representation. 3d. If no brother or sister, nor lawful issue of such, then to the father. 4th. If no father, then to the mother. 5th. If no mother, then to the next of kin in equal degree, or their lawful issue, by right of representation. 6th. Intestate real estate is subject to dower, — that is, one half for the term of widow's life, if the intestate leave no child or lawful issue of such child; and one third for said term if he leave any child or lawful issue of such child. And is also subject to curtesy, if the intestate leaves a husband, who shall have had by such intestate, during their marriage, issue born alive. If a married woman die intestate, without having had lawful issue, husband shall hold one half of her real estate (after payment of all her debts) during his life.

Personal Property. — The residue of personal estate after payment of all legal demands is distributed: 1st. Among the children of the intestate and the lawful issue of such children as shall have died before the intestate. 2d. If none, then among the brothers and sisters of the intestate of the whole blood, and the lawful issue of such of them as shall have died before the intestate. 3d. If none, then among the brothers and sisters of the half blood and the lawful issue, etc. 4th. If none, then to the father. 5th. If he be dead, to the mother. 6th. If both be dead, then to the next of kin in equal degree, and the lawful issue of such kin as shall have died before the intestate. Proviso: If the intestate be a married woman at the time of her death, and have no children, or the descendants of such living, the husband shall be entitled to such personal estate absolutely; if such married woman shall leave a child or children living, her personal estate shall be divided among the husband and such child or children, share and share alike; if any such child or children being dead, shall have left issue, such issue shall be entitled to the share of the parent. (20 Del. Laws (1895), 272, ch. 446.) If the intestate leave a widow, she shall have absolutely one third of residue if there be issue; but if there be no issue, then one half; and if no kin, then the whole. Advancement on either real or personal property made by intestate is to be accounted part or whole of share of child or issue of such child. (22 Del. Laws (1903), 960, ch. 446.)

Divorce. — The superior court has sole cognisance of granting divorces for the following causes: 1. From the bonds of matrimony for adultery, desertion for two years, habitual drunkenness for two years, impotency of either party at the time of marriage, extreme cruelty, a conviction after marriage of crime followed by imprisonment for two years. 2. From bonds of matrimony, or from bed and board, at the discretion of the court, for procurement of marriage by fraud, for want of age, — husband being under eighteen or wife under sixteen at the time of marriage, and such marriage not being after those ages voluntarily ratified, or for willful neglect of husband for three years to provide for his wife necessities of life suitable to her condition.

The court may grant alimony to the wife pending her petition for divorce, and the necessary sum to conduct her suit, and may protect her from personal restraint.

Upon divorce granted for aggression of husband, wife is restored to all her real estate, and is allowed out of her husband's real and personal estate such share as the court shall think reasonable. If for wife's aggression, the court may restore the whole or part of her real estate, and also such share of her husband's personal property as may seem reasonable.

If an inhabitant of this State go into any other jurisdiction to obtain a divorce, for any cause occurring here, or for any cause which would not authorize a divorce under the laws of Delaware, a divorce so obtained shall be of no force in Delaware.

No divorce from the bonds of matrimony shall be decreed by the court when the cause assigned therefor in the petition occurred out of this State, and the petitioner was a non-resident thereof at the time of its occurrence, unless for the same or like cause such divorce would be allowed by the laws of the State or country in which it is alleged to have occurred. (19 Del. Laws (1891), 480.)

Dower. — The widow is entitled to one third part of all the lands and tenements whereof her husband was seized at any time during her marriage, and to hold to her as tenant in dower for and during the term of her natural life, free and discharged of all incumbrances suffered or created by the husband after marriage, unless she shall have previously relinquished said right. If the husband die without leaving children, or the issue of children, the widow is entitled to a moiety instead of a third part of the real estate.

Evidence. — See Testimony.

Executions. — Executions may issue immediately after judgment, and may issue to any county. Personal property must be first exhausted before real estate can be levied on. Personalty is bound from the time the writ comes into the sheriff's hands, if an actual levy be made within sixty days thereafter. The lien of such levy remains in full force for three years, as against a subsequent execution levied upon the same goods. Sale takes place at the expiration of thirty days after levy. Notice is given by advertisements posted at least ten days in five or more public places in the county, two of which shall be in the hundred (township or portion of the county) of defendant's residence. Goods and chattels of a tenant are liable for one year's rent in preference to execution.

After exhausting personalty, inquisition is held on lands upon ten days' notice. If the rents for seven years are sufficient to satisfy the debt and costs, a writ of legit may issue under which the lands are delivered to the plaintiff, to be held until the debt is satisfied. If not sufficient, a writ of venditioni exponas issues, and the land is sold upon ten days' notice by advertisements and newspaper publication. When the sale is confirmed by the court, the officer makes a deed.

In New Castle County, wages for one month, not to exceed fifty dollars, of mechanic, laborer, clerk, or other employee shall be a first lien on all real and personal property of employers, and shall be first satisfied out of the proceeds of sale of such property. Notice of claim must be given to the coroner, sheriff, constable, or assignee making the sale, and a copy filed in the office of the prothonotary of the county, to make a lien on real estate. (16 Del. Laws (1879), 215.) See Stay of Execution; Redemption. Fine equal to value of property and imprisonment for one year for secreting or removing from the county property levied on or seized under execution process. (22 Del. Laws (1901), 505, ch. 214.)

Sale of merchandise in bulk by merchants in whole or in part deemed fraudulent and void unless five days prior to sale full inventory thereof be made and selling price in detail be had, and unless purchaser make full and explicit inquiry of seller of names, residences, and places of business of each and all creditors of seller and obtain from seller written answers to such inquiries, and unless purchaser in good faith notify personally or by registered mail each creditor of seller of whom purchaser has knowledge or with reasonable diligence can acquire knowledge of the proposed sale and of the cost price of the merchandise to be sold and the price proposed to be paid by purchaser.

Seller five days before sale must make full and truthful answers in writing to such inquiries or be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and be punished accordingly. (22 Del. Laws (1903), 748, ch. 387.)

Exemptions. — Family bible, school-books, and family library, family pictures, seat or pew in church, lot in burial ground, all wearing apparel of debtor and family, and, in addition to above, tools, implements, and fixtures necessary to carry on a trade or business, not exceeding seventy-five dollars in New Castle and Sussex counties and fifty dollars in Kent County. There is exempted to the head of a family, in addition to above, other personal property (goods and chattels of a merchantable character bought to be sold and trafficked in by the debtor in the transaction of his or her regular business or occupation, excepted) not exceeding two hundred dollars in New Castle County, and not exceeding one hundred and fifty dollars in Kent County, and in the latter county consisting of household goods only; but there is no such additional exemption in Sussex County, and there is no such additional exemption when such exemption would prevent the collection of a debt due or growing due for labor or services (other than professional services) rendered by any clerk, mechanic, or other employee of the debtor. (16 Del. Laws (1879), 214, and 19 Del. Laws (1893), 1131.) Sewing-machines owned and used by seamstresses or private families are exempt from execution on attachment process, and also from distress for rent. (Del. Laws (1881), 708, ch. 538.) In New Castle County ninety per cent. of all wages are exempt from execution attachment, except for board, lodging, or both, not exceeding fifty dollars. Widows in all cases shall have the benefit of the same exemption out of the husband's goods that the husband would have had if living. Funeral expenses, reasonable bills for medicine and medical attendance, nursing, and necessities of last sickness, are paid out of personalty of a deceased person before there is any application to the execution. Above exemptions extended to distress for rent. (22 Del. Laws, 976, ch. 459, March 31, 1903.) Pianos, piano playing attachments, and organs, leased or hired, are exempt from execution, or from distress for rent, due from the person leasing or hiring, after notice or the lease to the landlord. (23 Del. Laws, 447.) They shall be set apart and delivered to the debtor at the time when the levy and appraisal are made. (24 Del. Laws (1907), 646.)

Garnishee Process. — The goods and chattels and choses in action of the defendant in a judgment are liable to attachment process. The garnishee, at the election of the plaintiff, shall answer or plead. See Attachments.

Where the estate passes for the use of a brother or sister, either of the whole or half blood, or of the decedent's parent or grandparent or a lineal descendant of such brother or sister, the tax shall be two per cent. of that value of the estate exceeding one thousand dollars and not exceeding twenty-five thousand dollars; three per cent. of its value exceeding twenty-five thousand dollars and not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars; four per cent. of its value exceeding one hundred thousand dollars and not exceeding two hundred thousand dollars; five per cent. of its value exceeding two hundred thousand dollars. Where the estate passes to any person not within the classes hereinbefore described, the tax is, as follows: On that part of the estate not exceeding twenty-five thousand dollars, five per cent.; on that part exceeding twenty-five thousand dollars and not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars, six per cent.; on that part exceeding one hundred thousand dollars and not exceeding two hundred thousand dollars, seven per cent.; on that part exceeding two hundred thousand dollars, eight per cent. But no such tax shall be imposed upon any property, estate, or interest therein passing to or for the use of, or in trust for, charitable, educational, or religious societies or institutions, or cities or towns for public improvement, or to school districts or library commissions.

Executors or administrators must retain the tax before paying legacies or distributive shares and pay the same to the register of wills within thirteen months from the granting of the letters testamentary or of administration under penalty of forfeiting their commissions, and shall be liable on their official bonds for the amount of the tax.

The estate or interest of every person, body politic or corporate, in all real and personal property taxable under this act, whether in remainder, reversion, or otherwise, or in trust or otherwise, or conditioned upon the happening of a contingency or dependent upon the exercise of a discretion, or subject to a power of appointment, or otherwise, and all annuities taxable as aforesaid shall be valued by the register of wills for the purpose of determining the amount of tax to be collected from such person, body, politic or corporate. Where the property shall pass in trust or otherwise to one or more persons, bodies politic or corporate, for a term of years or greater estate or interest, and with remainder or reversion to one or more other persons, bodies politic or corporate, the estate or interest of each beneficiary shall be valued separately. Where letters testamentary or of administration have been granted on the estate of the donor, grantor, devisor, or intestate from whom the property shall have passed, the register of wills of the county granting letters shall act; otherwise, the register of wills where such property is situate. The tax shall be a lien on the real and personal property, liable as aforesaid where such estate or interest shall be held, at the time the tax is determined, by the first taker thereof, his heirs, assigns, or any other person, and said lien shall not be discharged until the said tax shall be paid in full. The executor or administrator as aforesaid shall collect said tax within thirty days after he has determined the amount thereof from the party liable to pay such tax or their legal representative, provided the right of possession or enjoyment of the property, estate, or interest taxed shall then have accrued; otherwise, within thirty days after such right shall accrue he may enforce the same by a sale under an order of the orphans' court. Interest. — Six per cent. No penalty for usury. Action at law for recovery of excess over six per cent.

Judgments. — No judgment for the recovery of money entered in the superior court shall continue a lien upon lands for a longer term than ten years next following the date of entry of such judgment; or, in case the whole or any part of the money for which such judgment shall be recovered or rendered shall not be due at the time of its entry, the lien can be renewed and continued by a written agreement signed by the plaintiff and defendant, or by scire facias sued out within the ten years, and in case the judgment shall not be renewed and continued as aforesaid within the ten years, but shall thereafter be revived by scire facias, the judgment when so revived is a lien from the time of such revival. (19 Del. Laws (1893), 1127; 20 Ib. 787; 22 Ib. (1903), 971, ch. 457; 23 Ib. ch. 200.)

Judgments of the superior court are liens from the date of entering same upon all lands of the defendant. After twenty years they are presumed to be paid.

Upon a return of nulla bona on execution issued by a justice, a transcript may be filed in the superior court, and the judgment be made a lien on land. The execution then issues out of the superior court.

Judgments rendered in other States have no force here other than as evidence. Suits must be commenced on them here and a fresh judgment obtained. Proof for such recovery must be in the form of a certified copy of the proceedings and judgment rendered in the sister State, duly authenticated under the act of Congress concerning the authentication of records for use in other States.

In the absence of an affidavit of defense, judgments can be recovered at the first term of a court of record after suit brought. As between judgments obtained at the same term of court, that judgment has priority in which suit was first brought.

Judgments may be recovered before justices of the peace after proper proof of claim, at the return of the writ or summons (when a service is obtained), which is at the end of five days, including the day of appearance, or may be "forthwith" if the justice be satisfied, by the oath of the plaintiff or otherwise, that there is danger of losing the benefit of his process.

The agent of such non-resident is required before taking out said license to file with the clerk of the peace a true statement of the aggregate cost of all the goods, wares, or other property which said agent shall have received for sale in said business during the year immediately preceding the date of the license. Said statement must be verified. If the amount of business exceeds five thousand dollars, a sum in addition to the said ten dollars fee of ten cents for each one hundred dollars over and above five thousand dollars is paid for said license. The license is good for one year from the first of June.

Liens. — See Executions; Mechanics' Lien Law.

There is exempted to the head of a family, in addition to above, other personal property (goods and chattels of a merchantable character bought to be sold and trafficked in by the debtor in the transaction of his or her regular business or occupation, excepted) not exceeding two hundred dollars in New Castle County, and not exceeding one hundred and fifty dollars in Kent County, and in the latter county consisting of household goods only; but there is no such additional exemption in Sussex County, and there is no such additional exemption when such exemption would prevent the collection of a debt due or growing due for labor or services (other than professional services) rendered by any clerk, mechanic, or other employee of the debtor. (16 Del. Laws (1879), 214, and 19 Del. Laws (1893), 1131.) Sewing-machines owned and used by seamstresses or private families are exempt from execution on attachment process, and also from distress for rent. (Del. Laws (1881), 708, ch. 538.) In New Castle County ninety per cent. of all wages are exempt from execution attachment, except for board, lodging, or both, not exceeding fifty dollars. Widows in all cases shall have the benefit of the same exemption out of the husband's goods that the husband would have had if living. Funeral expenses, reasonable bills for medicine and medical attendance, nursing, and necessities of last sickness, are paid out of personalty of a deceased person before there is any application to the execution. Above exemptions extended to distress for rent. (22 Del. Laws, 976, ch. 459, March 31, 1903.) Pianos, piano playing attachments, and organs, leased or hired, are exempt from execution, or from distress for rent, due from the person leasing or hiring, after notice of the lease to the landlord. (23 Del. Laws, 447.) They shall be set apart and delivered to the debtor at the time when the levy and appraisement are made. (24 Del. Laws (1907), 646.)

Garnishee Process. — The goods and chattels and choses in action of the defendant in a judgment are liable to attachment process. The garnishee, at the election of the plaintiff, shall answer or plead. See Attachments.

Inheritance Taxes. — Collateral Inheritance Tax. — All property within the jurisdiction of this State, real and personal, and every estate and interest therein, whether belonging to inhabitants of this State or not, which shall after the approval of this act pass by will, or by the intestate laws of this State, or by deed, grant, or gift (except in cases of a bona fide purchase for full consideration in money or money's worth) made or intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment after the death of the grantor or donor, to any person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, in trust or otherwise, as follows: Where the property passes to or for the use of a parent, grandparent, husband, wife, child by birth, wife or widow of a son, or the husband of a daughter, a child by legal adoption, or lineal descendant of the testator, intestate grantor, donor or settlor, the tax on such estate shall be one per cent. of its value exceeding three thousand dollars and not exceeding thirty thousand dollars; two per cent. of its value exceeding thirty thousand dollars and not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars; three per cent. of its value exceeding one hundred thousand dollars and not exceeding two hundred thousand dollars; and four per cent. of its value exceeding two hundred thousand dollars. Where the estate passes for the use of a brother or sister, either of the whole or half blood, or of the decedent's parent or grandparent or a lineal descendant of such brother or sister, the tax shall be two per cent. of that value of the estate exceeding one thousand dollars and not exceeding twenty-five thousand dollars; three per cent. of its value exceeding twenty-five thousand dollars and not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars; four per cent. of its value exceeding one hundred thousand dollars and not exceeding two hundred thousand dollars; five per cent. of its value exceeding two hundred thousand dollars. But no such tax shall be imposed upon any property, estate, or interest therein passing to or for the use of, or in trust for, charitable, educational, or religious societies or institutions, or cities or towns for public improvement, or to school districts or library commissions.

Executors or administrators must retain the tax before paying legacies or distributive shares and pay the same to the register of wills within thirteen months from the granting of the letters testamentary or of administration under penalty of forfeiting their commissions, and shall be liable on their official bonds for the amount of the tax.

The estate or interest of every person, body politic or corporate, in all real and personal property taxable under this act, whether in remainder, reversion, or otherwise, or in trust or otherwise, or conditioned upon the happening of a contingency or dependent upon the exercise of a discretion, or subject to a power of appointment, or otherwise, and all annuities taxable as aforesaid shall be valued by the register of wills for the purpose of determining the amount of tax to be collected from such person, body, politic or corporate. Where the property shall pass in trust or otherwise to one or more persons, bodies politic or corporate, for a term of years or greater estate or interest, and with remainder or reversion to one or more other persons, bodies politic or corporate, the estate or interest of each beneficiary shall be valued separately. Where letters testamentary or of administration have been granted on the estate of the donor, grantor, devisor, or intestate from whom the property shall have passed, the register of wills of the county granting letters shall act; otherwise, the register of wills where such property is situate. The executor or administrator as aforesaid shall collect said tax within thirty days after he has determined the amount thereof from the party liable to pay such tax or their legal representative, provided the right of possession or enjoyment of the property, estate, or interest taxed shall then have accrued; otherwise, within thirty days after such right shall accrue he may enforce the same by a sale under an order of the orphans' court. (19 Del. Laws (1893), 1127; 20 Ib. 787; 22 Ib. (1903), 971, ch. 457; 23 Ib. ch. 200.)

Liens. — See Executions; Mechanics' Lien Law.

Right of entry into any lands, tenements, or hereditaments barred in twenty years. Actual seisin within that time is necessary to maintain an action. (Rev. Code, 1874, p. 727.) Nothing short of a direct acknowledgment or a distinct admission of the existence of the debt as a subsisting demand is sufficient to take it out of the operation of the statute of limitations. (1 Houst. 260.) If after a cause of action shall have accrued against any person he shall depart from and remain out of this State, the time of his absence, until he shall have returned into this State in such manner that, by reasonable diligence, he may be served with process, shall not be taken as any part of the time limited for the commencement of the action. (25 Del. Laws, 533, ch. 234.)

Married Women. — Real and personal property of any female who marries after April 9, 1873, and which she shall own at time of marriage, or that any female now married may receive by gift, grant, devise, or bequest from any person other than her husband, shall be her sole and separate property, and not subject to her husband's debts or control. She may receive wages of her personal labor, maintain action therefor in her own name, deposit any money belonging to her, in her own name, free from her husband's control. She may prosecute and defend suits for preservation and protection of her property as if unmarried, and may make any and all manner of contracts necessary to be made with respect to her own property, and suits may be maintained on such contracts as though the party making them was a feme sole. (14 Del. Laws, ch. 550.) Money or other property of a married woman separate from her husband is not deemed property of her husband, but may be taken for debts contracted by her, and she may while separate sue in her own name for debts contracted and liabilities incurred to her or for redress of personal wrongs, torts, or private injuries. (Del. Laws (1871), 95, ch. 80; Ib. (1885), 944, ch. 611.)

The real and personal property of any married woman, which has been heretofore acquired, now held, or which she may hereafter acquire in any manner whatsoever, from any person other than her husband, shall be her sole and separate property, and the rents, issues, and profits thereof shall not be subject to the disposal of her husband, nor liable for his debts. Where a married woman becomes a purchaser of real estate, she may secure the purchase-money, or part of it, by recognizance, bond, mortgage, or otherwise, as single women may, and her husband need not be a party, or consent to such act of giving security. A married woman above the age of twenty-one years may give a bond with or without a warrant of attorney, just as if she were a feme sole. (16 Del. Laws (1879), 188.) Provided, however, that in case of her entering into recognizance, or giving bond or mortgage, or making other contract for the payment of money, her husband shall not be liable unless he be a party thereto. (Act March 17, 1875; 15 Del. Laws, 289, etc.)

A married woman abandoned by her husband without just cause, and being the owner in her own right of real estate in this State, which was not acquired through her husband or with his means, can convey the same as if single. The acknowledgment of such a conveyance is made before the chancellor, chief justice, or resident judge of the county in which the lands are located, who must add thereto a certificate that it has satisfactorily appeared to him that such married woman has been abandoned by her husband without just cause. (19 Del. Laws, 1118.)

Females are of age at twenty-one years. Guardianship of female minors shall continue until their age of twenty-one years or marriage. See Testimony.

Mechanic's Lien Law. — Any person who has performed work or furnished materials to an amount exceeding twenty-five dollars may obtain a lien. Proceeding is by scire facias. A contractor must file his statement of claim during the thirty days after the expiration of ninety days after the completion of the building or structure, and all other persons shall file their statements within ninety days from the completion of the work or the last delivery of materials by them respectively. The judgment takes priority as a lien from the time the work or the furnishing of materials was begun. The mechanic's lien law extends to the construction or other work done or materials furnished upon any ship or vessel; a bill of particulars must be filed within one year (20 Del. Laws, 709, ch. 591, March 29, 1897) after the vessel has been launched, rigged, furnished, and ready for sea, or after such repairs have been completed. The proceeding is by attachment. There is no priority of lien. All share pro rata. (16 Del. Laws (1879), 206.) See Executions.

No person or persons having performed any work or labor to any amount less than one hundred dollars in or for the erection, alteration, or repair of any house, building, bridge, or structure shall be allowed to file any statement of his claim until after the expiration of twenty days from the last work or labor done by him, but shall file his claim within ten days after the expiration of the twenty days aforesaid. Claim may be filed before any justice of the peace, and if transcript of judgment obtained upon such claim before a justice be entered in the superior court of the county in which the house, building, or structure is situated, within two days from the date of the judgment, it shall become a lien, and shall relate back to the day when such work or labor was commenced, and shall take priority accordingly. (19 Del. Laws (1891), 501.) The execution of every judgment entered in the superior court upon transcript under the provisions of the preceding section, shall be by writ of levari facias.

Mortgages. — Mortgages are executed and acknowledged in the same manner as deeds and are usually accompanied by bonds. They contain no power of sale, and are foreclosed by intervention of a court.

Mortgages take priority according to date of recording in the proper office, and become liens only from date of recording. The lien of a purchase-money mortgage recorded within five days after mortgage is made has preference over any judgment against the mortgagor or other lien of a date prior to the mortgage.

Mortgages are foreclosed by proceedings in the superior court by writ of scire facias, and after judgment sale is made of the premises under a writ of levari facias.

Mortgages are discharged by the entry of satisfaction upon the record, which must be made within sixty days after payment and signed by the holder or his attorney duly constituted, or, when a corporation is the holder, by the cashier, treasurer, or attorney duly constituted, and attested by the recorder of deeds: and upon default damages can be recovered of not less than ten nor more than five hundred dollars, except when special damage to a larger amount shall be alleged and proved. (Rev. Code, 1893, p. 630.) The mortgagor may also obtain a rule from the superior court requiring the mortgagee to show cause why such mortgage shall not be marked satisfied on the record. Upon return of the rule, with sufficient evidence, the court may direct entry of satisfaction on the record. All costs of such proceedings shall be paid as the court may direct. (22 Del. Laws (1901), 501.) See Redemption. All holders of mortgages recorded in the proper office must, at least once every three years, cause to be entered on the margin of the record thereof all payments of principal theretofore made by or in behalf of the mortgagor, or by any one interested in the property covered by the mortgage, either as owner or a lien creditor, on being tendered or paid the legal fee for such entry. This provision shall not apply to mortgages given to or held by a building and loan association or to any mortgage where the conditions of the payment of the principal in any way depends on the earnings of the holders of said mortgage. One hundred dollars penalty for failure to comply. (26 Del. Laws (1911), 702, ch. 256.)

Notaries Public. — Notaries public are appointed by the governor (Const. art. III, § 9) for a term of two years. They shall have a seal and power to take acknowledgments of deeds and other instruments, and to take the private examination of any married woman, party to a deed. Their jurisdiction is confined to the county for which they are appointed.

They must record their commission with the recorder of deeds for the county where they reside, which officer can certify to their official character and term of office.

Notes, Bills of Exchange, etc. — Delaware has adopted the "Uniform Negotiable Instruments Act" and repealed all acts and parts of acts inconsistent therewith. (26 Del. Laws (1911), 399, ch. 191.) All checks, notes, drafts, or bills, foreign or inland, payable without time or at sight, are due and payable on presentment without grace. Days of grace abolished. When a holiday happens on Sunday, paper maturing on Monday must be presented the Saturday before.

Every Saturday which, under existing laws, is not a legal holiday in its entirety, is a legal holiday in the city of Wilmington from and after twelve o'clock noon for banking and trust company purposes; and all bills of exchange, notes, checks, drafts, or other instruments negotiable by the laws of the State which become due and payable, or presentable for payment or acceptance in the city of Wilmington on such half holiday Saturday, but which shall not be paid or accepted before twelve o'clock noon on that day, are to be deemed and taken in said city to become due and payable, or presentable for payment or acceptance on the secular day next succeeding such half holiday Saturday, and no liability shall be incurred by any person by not presenting for payment or acceptance on that day any such bill of exchange, note, check, draft, or other instrument. Any note, check, etc., which is not paid or accepted before twelve o'clock noon on such half holiday Saturday must be presented for payment or acceptance thereof, on the secular day next succeeding such half holiday Saturday, and, in case of non-payment or dishonor, protest must be made and notice given, and all other things done in the same manner as if such note, check, etc., became due and payable, or presentable, on such succeeding secular day; and the rights or liabilities of all persons shall be the same as in other cases of like instruments legally proceeded with. (20 Del. Laws, 86, ch. 67.) Legal holidays are January 1, February 12, February 22, Good Friday, May 30 (Decoration Day), July 4, first Monday in September (or Labor Day), October 12 (or Columbus Day), Thanksgiving Day, and December 25.

Judgment notes are allowed.

Practice. — Practice is under the common law modified to some extent by statute.

Proof of Claims. — Persons sending claims to Delaware should be careful to furnish their attorney with the full name and residence of the party in whose name the suit is to be brought. If the claim belongs to a partnership, the full name and residence of each member of the firm should be furnished. In the case of a claim by a company, the fact should be stated whether the company is incorporated, and if so, under the laws of what State, and the exact corporate name should be given.

Non-residents cannot compel the officers to issue or execute process until the legal fees or the services are paid or tendered to the officer. (12 Del. Laws, 283.) A deposit of ten or fifteen dollars is required in ordinary cases. In suits in the superior court non-resident plaintiffs may be ruled to give security for costs of the action.

All accounts should be made out in detail.

Judgment can be obtained on the last day of the term to which suit is brought in actions upon bills, notes, bonds, or other instruments of writing for the payment of money, book accounts, recognizances in the orphans' court, mortgages and judgments, on filing, by the first day of the term, a copy of the instrument of writing, book entries, or claims, or a certified abstract of a domestic judgment, or mortgage, or recognisance, or a copy of a foreign judgment, certified under the act of Congress, with an affidavit by the plaintiff, or one of them, if there be more than one, stating the sum demanded and that he verily believes the same is justly and truly due, unless the defendant, or one of the defendants, if there be more than one, file an affidavit that he verily believes there is a legal defense to the whole or part of the cause of action, and setting forth the nature and character of the same. If the defendant admits a part to be due, the plaintiff may at his election take judgment for the sum so admitted.

Affidavits on which judgment may be obtained for want of an affidavit of defense may be taken before any judge of a court of record, the mayor or chief magistrate of any city or borough, a commissioner of deeds for Delaware, or before a notary public of any State or Territory or of the District of Columbia, or any consul or vice-consul of the United States, certified under the hand and official seal or seal of court, city, or borough, as the case may be, of the person taking the same. No additional certificate of the character of the officer before whom the affidavit or any acknowledgment is taken is needed. See Actions.

Where a corporation is plaintiff, the affidavit to the account should be executed by the cashier or treasurer of such corporation.

At any time before the delivery of the property to the plaintiff, the defendant may require the return thereof, upon giving security in double the value of the property.

Not more than one sufficient surety is required. Surety must own real property. No affidavit is required. No demand required before bringing suit. (18 Del. Laws, ch. 220.)

Service of Process. — Summons may be served on defendant by stating substance of it to him personally or by leaving copy at his usual place of abode, in presence of a white adult person, six days before the return thereof.

Service by publication in the court of chancery. In cases where upon application of the plaintiff and affidavit filed that the defendant cannot be found to be served with subpoena, chancellor will direct an order for his appearance to be published in one or more newspapers. (Rev. Code, ch. 95.)

Stay of Execution. — On judgments for want of affidavit of defense: six months if security be given within twenty days after judgment.

In suits before magistrates: six months' stay upon defendant pleading his freehold, and nine months' stay upon his giving security.

Supplementary Proceedings. — See Arrest.

If the owner of real estate fails to pay taxes, or does not reside in the hundred (a division of the county corresponding to township) where the land is situated, or is a minor, tenant's personal property may be sold. If not collectible as above, the land may be sold. If the owner is ready at the term of court next after the sale to pay taxes and costs, the sale shall not be approved. And no deed shall be made until the expiration of two years from the time of sale, within which time the owner, his heirs, executors, or administrators, may redeem the land upon payment of the purchase-money and twenty per cent. interest. County taxes in New Castle County become due July 1. On county taxes in New Castle County paid before first day of October an abatement of five per cent. is made; if paid before the first day of December an abatement of three per cent. is made; if paid before the first of January, no abatement is made; and thereafter one per cent. per month is added, and on the first of January the taxes are placed in the hands of collectors of delinquent taxes. Wills are proved in the county in which testator resided at the time of his death, and recorded in the office of the register of wills. Any last will and testament in writing of a person not residing in this State at the time of his death, signed by the testator, and duly admitted to probate or to record without this State and in the place of the testator's domicile, may be duly admitted to probate and recorded in this State, with the same force and effect as if originally proved and allowed in this State, by filing a copy of the will and of the record admitting the same to probate; or if probate be not required or cannot be had under the laws of the State of the testator's domicile, then by a copy of the record of the mere filing of the will in conformity with the laws of such domicile.

The next session of the Congress of the United States begins December 2, 1918.

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — Every action shall be commenced by filing in the clerk's office a libel, information, bill, petition, or declaration, as the case may be, and in case of appeal from or plea of title before the municipal court of the District of Columbia, by filing the papers and a transcript from its docket; and in each case the plaintiff or appellant shall make the deposit towards clerk's costs, required by law, unless such deposit shall be dispensed with by order of the court; whereupon the clerk shall immediately enter the cause upon the proper docket, in order of such filing, and number it accordingly. Provided, that in cases of certiorari from the municipal court on the ground of concurrent jurisdiction, the petitioner shall make a deposit of ten dollars for costs with the clerk. Upon the plaintiff's filing his declaration, he also shall be required to deposit at least ten dollars. (Law Rules of Court, No. 14.) Fees of marshal for service of writ — one dollar for each writ served — must be paid in advance.

The plaintiff may join in his declaration in debt, in separate counts, different claims for liquidated amounts due him, whether founded on judgment, specialty, or simple contract, and also claims for unliquidated damages for breach of contract, whether growing out of specialties or simple contract. He may also join in his declaration in trespass, in separate counts, different claims for damages for torts, whether committed with force or not. He shall also be allowed to join in the same declaration counts sounding in tort and counts sounding in contract when they relate to the same transaction, but not otherwise. (§ 1532, Code.)

Foreign executors or administrators may maintain any suit or action as though letters testamentary had been granted in the District of Columbia; and letters testamentary or of administration, or duly certified copies thereof, shall be evidence of the granting of the same. Security may be required as in the case of resident executors or administrators. (Sec. 329, Code.)

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Affidavits — To be used in court may be taken before a United States commissioner, notary public, or justice of the peace, and should be attested by the official seal of such officer. In the case of a justice of the peace, or a notary public without an official seal, there shall be appended certificate of clerk of court of record that the person administering the oaths is in fact the officer he purports to be.

Affidavits should be entitled with caption of cause in which it is proposed to use them.

Aliens. — Hereafter it shall be unlawful for any person or persons not citizens of the United States, or who have not lawfully declared their intention to become such, or any corporation not created under the laws of the United States, or some State or Territory thereof, to acquire or own real estate in the District of Columbia, except such as may be acquired by inheritance, or where the right so to do is secured by existing treaties. All property held or owned in violation of this act shall be forfeited to the United States. (Sec. 396, Code.) No forfeiture is actually declared until direct proceedings are instituted on behalf of the United States. See, also, Corporations.

By act of Congress approved February 23, 1905, an act entitled "an act to better define and regulate the rights of aliens to hold and own real estate in the territories," approved March 2, 1897 (29 Stat. L. 618), was made applicable to the District of Columbia. (33 Stat. L. 733.) The general act is more liberal in its terms than the provisions of the Code, but is too long to be more than referred to herein.

Alien Ancestors. — In making title by descent it shall be no bar to a party claiming as heir that any ancestor, whether living or dead, through whom he derives his descent from the intestate, is or has been an alien. (Sec. 960, Code.) Aliens, who are citizens or subjects of any government which accords to citizens of the United States the right to prosecute claims against such government in its courts, shall have the privilege of prosecuting claims against the United States in the court of claims, whereof such court, by reason of their subject-matter and character, might take jurisdiction. (Rev. St. U. S. sec. 1068.) By treaty between the United States and Great Britain published August 8, 1900, alien heirs are allowed to sell any real estate which might descend to them within a term of three years.

Appeals. — The appellate jurisdiction of the general term of the supreme court of the District of Columbia having been abolished, appeals now lie to the court of appeals of the District of Columbia, which court shall review the order, judgment, or decree appealed from, and affirm, reverse, or modify the same as shall be just. No order, judgment, or decree of the supreme court of the District, or of any justice thereof, shall be reviewed in the court of appeals unless the appeal be taken and perfected within twenty days, Sundays excluded, after the order, judgment, or decree complained of shall have been made or pronounced. (Court of App. Rules, 10.) See, also, Stay of Execution. Appeals from judgments of the municipal court are to the circuit term of the supreme court of the District, upon bond to be approved by a judge of the municipal court. See Courts.

Any final judgment or decree of the court of appeals may be reexamined and affirmed, reversed, or modified by the supreme court of the United States, upon writ of error or appeal, in the following cases: First. In cases in which the jurisdiction of the trial court is in issue; but when any such case is not otherwise reviewable in the supreme court of the United States, then the question of jurisdiction alone shall be certified to said supreme court for decision. Second. In prize cases. Third. In cases involving the construction or application of the Constitution of the United States, or the constitutionality of any law of the United States, or the validity or construction of any treaty made under its authority. Fourth. In cases in which the constitution or any law of a State is claimed to be in contravention of the Constitution of the United States. Fifth. In cases in which the validity of any authority exercised under the United States, or the existence or scope of any power or duty of an officer of the United States, is drawn in question. Sixth. In cases in which the construction of any law of the United States is drawn in question by the defendant. The judgments and decrees of the said court of appeals (except as hereinafter mentioned) are final in all cases arising under the patent laws, the copyright laws, the revenue laws, the criminal laws, and in admiralty cases; and (except as hereinafter mentioned) the judgments and decrees of said court of appeals are final in all cases not reviewable as hereinbefore provided. (36 U. S. Stat. at Large, Part 1, p. 1159, sec. 250.)

In any case in which the judgment or decree of the said court of appeals is made final, as above provided (sec. 250), the supreme court of the United States may by certiorari or otherwise require any such case to be certified to it for review and determination. The said court of appeals may, in any case in which its judgment or decree is made final as above provided (sec. 250), certify to the supreme court of the United States any question or proposition of law concerning which it desires the instruction of that court for their proper decision, and the said supreme court may either give its instruction on the questions and propositions certified to it, or it may require that the whole record and cause be sent up to it, and thereupon shall decide the whole matter in controversy. (36 U. S. Stat. at Large, part 1, p. 1159, sec. 251.)

A writ of error, an appeal, or a writ of certiorari has to be applied for within three months after entry of the judgment or decree complained of. (39 U. S. Stat. 726.)

Arrest — For civil obligations is abolished. But the court has the power to issue such process as the writ of ne exeat, etc., and also to compel the specific performance of a decree, such as the payment of alimony in divorce cases, by attachment and imprisonment as for contempt.

Assignments. — Except as affected by the National Bankruptcy Act of 1898 (30 U. S. Stat. p. 544), the following law respecting assignments is in force: —

In all cases of voluntary assignments hereafter made for the benefit of creditors the debtor must annex to the instrument of assignment an inventory under oath of his, her, or its estate, real and personal, together with a list of creditors, their residence and place of business and the amount of claim or demands; such inventory not to be conclusive as to amount of debtor's estate; but such assignment shall vest in the assignee or assignees title to all other property of the debtor, except legal exemption when reserved in deed of assignment. The assignee must reside in the District of Columbia, and the assignment must be duly acknowledged and recorded in the land records. All preferences are abolished, and debts and liabilities must be paid pro rata from assets. Any creditor may proceed in equity to attack the assignment as made to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors, without first reducing the debt or claim to a judgment at law, and may prove that he, she, or it is a creditor, and as such entitled to relief. (Secs. 435-444, Code.)

Attachments. — Writs of attachment and garnishment may be issued whenever plaintiff, his agent or attorney, shall file in clerk's office, at commencement or during pendency of suit, an affidavit (supported by testimony of one or more witnesses) showing grounds upon which he bases action, and setting forth that plaintiff has just right to recover against defendant; and also stating either that the defendant is a foreign corporation or is not a resident of the District, or has been absent therefrom for at least six months, and has estate or debts owing to said defendant in said District; or evades service of ordinary process by concealing himself or withdrawing from the District temporarily; or has removed, or is about to remove, some of his property from the District to defeat just demands; or has assigned, disposed of, or secreted, or is about to assign, dispose of, or secrete his property with intent to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors; or that the defendant fraudulently contracted the debt or incurred the obligation respecting which the action is brought. Plaintiff must also file his undertaking with sufficient surety, to be approved by clerk, to make good all costs and damages by reason of wrongful suing out of attachment. One surety is sufficient; real estate owner not necessary, though usual. Attachment cannot issue except upon suit brought; if the right to sue is complete it may issue in the above cases. Subsequent attaching creditors do not share pro rata. First attaching creditor has a lien to the full amount of his demand. If attachment is set aside, the judgment is against the plaintiff and surety in the undertaking to make good all costs and damages sustained by reason of the wrongful suing out of the writ.

If the defendant, his agent or attorney, shall file an affidavit traversing plaintiff's affidavit, the court shall determine whether the facts set forth in the plaintiff's affidavit are true, and whether there was just ground for issuing writ of attachment; and if the facts do not sustain affidavit, the court shall quash writ of attachment or garnishment; and this issue may be tried by a judge at chambers, on three days' notice.

The thing attached shall not be discharged from custody of officer seizing it until defendant shall deliver, either to the officer or to the clerk, to be filed in the cause, his undertaking, with sufficient surety to satisfy and pay final judgment of court against him. If defendant fail to execute such undertaking, the court may sell thing attached whenever satisfied that it is in the interest of the parties it should be sold before final judgment. (Secs. 445-447, Code.)

Interrogatories in writing, with copy of rule of court concerning attachment, may be served on garnishee at time of service of attachment or any other time. And answer thereto under oath to such interrogatories must be filed within ten days, otherwise judgment against garnishee, as in case of condemnation. (Sec. 447, Code.) See Liens.

The municipal court has jurisdiction up to five hundred dollars in attachment on mesne process and in replevin.

Bonds. — By the act approved August 13, 1894, the courts and officers of the United States are authorized to receive as sole surety on any recognizance, stipulation, bond, or undertaking required by law, such corporations chartered for the purpose (guarantee companies) as comply with the requirements of the act. (28 U. S. Stat. p. 279.)

Chattel Mortgages. — See Deeds of Trust, which are in general use.

Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons. — No executor or administrator shall discharge any claim against the deceased (otherwise than at his own risk) unless the same be first passed by the court, or unless the same be duly proved.

Proof of judgment or decree is short copy thereof under seal duly attested, accompanied by official certificate that there is no entry or proceedings showing satisfaction; of specialty, bond, note, or protested bill of exchange, is instrument itself, or proved copy, if it be lost, and protest and such other evidence as would be required were the person alive; if claim for rent, the lease or deposition of some credible witness, or acknowledgment in writing of deceased, establishing contract, time, and sum; if open account, a statement under oath annexed that account is just and true. In each case there must be annexed certificate of some person authorized to administer oath indorsed or annexed to statement of debt that creditor, since death of deceased, has taken before him oath or affirmation that he has not received any part of sum for which judgment was passed, or intended to be secured by the instrument in writing, or for rent, or of money stated to be due, as case may be, except such part as is credited, and in case of other above-mentioned claims than on a judgment, that no security or satisfaction has been given for same except what is credited. If creditor be assignee of original creditor, he must make same oath as above required from original creditor, and that to the best of his knowledge and belief no other person has received any part except such as is credited, and in case of successive assignees there must be same oath as to time of each respective assignment. Assignments of judgment must be produced under hand of assignor.

If the creditor be executor or administrator, he must make oath that it does not appear from any book or writing of his testator that any part of said claim has been discharged except what is credited, and that, to best of deponent's knowledge and belief, no part of said claim has been discharged, and no security or satisfaction given for same except what is credited. (Sec. 338, Code.)

Letters of administration may be granted to surviving husband or wife, and failing such to next of kin, and should none such apply, to creditors of deceased person. Non-residents are competent to act, but aliens are not. Upon letters being granted, administrator must give bond with surety in double the value of the personal property, unless the deceased by his will request that no bond be given, in which case a bond sufficient to cover testator's debts will be required. If the executor or the administrator be entitled to the residue of the estate, provision is made for giving a special bond to pay claims, etc., and he is not then obliged to exhibit any inventory or accounts. Sureties must be freeholders of the District of Columbia.

Notice to creditors must be given by advertisement in some local newspaper of general circulation, requiring all persons to present their claims to the administrator within one year from the date of letters granted. All judgments and decrees of the supreme court are given preference and are first paid pro rata; other debts are to be paid pro rata after discharging judgments and decrees.

If any claim be exhibited to an executor or administrator and be by him disputed or rejected, the claimant must bring suit within nine months thereafter or be forever barred.

Administrators are required to make and file their final accounts within fifteen months from the date of letters of administration. }

If no child or children, or child or children of deceased child or children, the widow takes one half of personalty absolutely. If there be child or children (as above), widow then takes one third of personalty. If the estate be insolvent, widow takes nothing.

Claims, Proof of. — See Proof of Claims.

Conditional Sales. — See Recording of Deeds, etc.

Consignments. — Act of Congress of March 21, 1892, provides that if any factor, commission merchant, consignee, or any person selling goods on commission, or the agent, clerk, or servant of such person, shall convert to his own use in the District of Columbia any provisions, fruit, flour, meat, butter, cheese, or any other goods, merchandise, or property, or the proceeds of the same, and shall fail to pay over the avails or proceeds, less his proper charges, within five days after receiving the money or its equivalent from the purchaser or purchasers of said goods or produce, and after demand made therefor by the person entitled to receive the same, or his or her duly authorized agent, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon information and conviction in the police court of the District of Columbia shall be fined not more than one thousand dollars, or be imprisoned not exceeding six months, or both, in the discretion of the court. (27 U. S. Stat. p. 10. See also sec. 838, Code.)

Corporations. — Corporations may be organized under the provisions of the Code, as follows: Institutions of learning (secs. 574-586); religious societies (secs. 587-598); societies, benevolent, educational, etc. (secs. 599-604); manufacturing, agricultural, mining, mechanical, insurance, mercantile, transportation, market, and savings bank corporations (secs. 605-657); cemetery associations (secs. 658-686); building associations (secs. 667-700); board of trade (secs. 701-709); street railways (secs. 710-712); trust, loan, mortgage, and certain other corporations (secs. 715-748); fraternal associations (secs. 749-765). Savings banks are required to make report to the comptroller of the currency, and the comptroller be authorized to examine these corporations (secs. 713-714). Similar provisions for reports to the comptroller, and examinations by him are made in reference to trust, loan, mortgage, and other similar companies (sec. 720). The general requirements for incorporating are that the persons desiring to incorporate shall execute a certificate before some officer competent to take acknowledgment of deeds, and file the same in the office of the recorder of deeds. The certificate shall state the corporate name and object, the term of existence, amount of the stock and number of shares, number of trustees for the first year and their names, and the name of the place in the District of Columbia where operations of the company are to be carried on. No company incorporated for manufacturing, agricultural, mining, mechanical, insurance, mercantile, transportation, and market purposes, or for a savings bank shall be authorized to transact any business until ten per centum of the capital stock shall have been actually paid in, either in money or in property at its actual value; and it shall be lawful for the trustees to call in and demand from the stockholders the residue of their subscriptions in money or property at such times and in such installments as the trustee shall deem proper, under the penalty of forfeiting the shares of stock subscribed for and all previous payments made thereon, if payment shall not be made by the stockholder within sixty days after a personal demand or a notice requiring such payment shall have been published for six successive weeks in a newspaper in the District. (Sec. 613, Code.)

By act of Congress of February 4, 1905, all corporations hereafter incorporated in the District of Columbia shall pay to the recorder of deeds at the time of filing the certificate of incorporation forty cents on each thousand dollars of the amount of the capital stock of the corporation, provided that the fee so paid shall not be less than twenty-five dollars, and the recorder of deeds is prohibited from filing or recording any certificate of organization of any corporation until it has been proved to his satisfaction that all of the capital stock has been subscribed for in good faith and not less than ten per centum of the par value has been actually paid in cash. (33 U. S. Stat. p. 689.)

Corporations may hold such real estate as may be necessary for their operations. Insurance companies are under the special supervision of a department of insurance, and foreign insurance companies have to comply with certain provisions as to filing and publishing reports, appointing an agent for service of process, etc., before they are permitted to do business in the District. Persons desiring to form trust, loan, mortgage, and similar corporations, have first (before recording their certificate in the office of the recorder of deeds) to make application to the commissioners of the District of Columbia, who shall have power and discretion to grant or refuse to said persons a charter of incorporation upon the terms set forth in the certificate of incorporation. (Sec. 717, Code.) Previous to the presentation of the certificate of incorporation to the commissioners, notice of the intention to apply for such charter shall be inserted in two newspapers of general circulation, printed in the District of Columbia, at least four times a week for three weeks, setting forth briefly the name of the proposed company, its character and object, the names of the proposed incorporators, and the intention to make application for a charter on a specified day. (Sec. 718, Code.)

All the stockholders of every company incorporated for manufacturing, and of every agricultural, mining, mechanical, insurance, mercantile, transportation and market company, and of savings banks, shall be severally individually liable to the creditors of the company in which they are stockholders, for the unpaid amount due upon the shares of stock held by them, respectively, for all debts and contracts made by such company, until the whole amount of capital stock fixed and limited by such company shall have been paid in, and a certificate thereof shall have been made and recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of the District. (Secs. 615-616, Code.) Corporations generally are taxed upon the capital stock of the company, which shall be appraised in bulk at its fair cash value by a board of personal tax appraisers, and the corporation issuing the same shall be liable for the tax thereon according to such value, and shall pay to the collector of taxes of the District of Columbia a sum equal to one and one half per centum on the assessed valuation thereof; but from the assessed valuation of such capital stock shall be deducted the value of any and all real estate owned by such corporation in the District, which real estate shall be separately taxed against said corporation; but business companies which, by reason of or in addition to incorporation, receive no special franchise or privilege, shall be rated, assessed, and taxed as individuals conducting business in similar lines are rated, assessed, and taxed. (Acts of Congress approved July 1, 1902, 32 U. S. Stat. p. 632; and April 28, 1904, 33 U. S. Stat. p. 563.)

Corporations not created by or under the laws of the United States, or some State or Territory of the United States, cannot acquire, hold, or own real estate in the District of Columbia.

Corporations in which more than fifty per cent. of the stock is owned by persons or corporations not citizens of the United States cannot acquire, hold, or own real estate in the District of Columbia. (Act of Congress, March 3, 1887, 24 U. S. Stat. p. 476; and further restrictions as to the power of corporations to hold real estate in the District of Columbia are imposed by the Code of the District.)

Courts, Jurisdiction of. — The court of appeals of the District of Columbia consists of one chief justice and two associate justices.

Any party aggrieved by any final order, judgment, or decree of the supreme court of the District of Columbia may appeal therefrom to the said court of appeals. Appeals also lie from all interlocutory orders of the said supreme court or any justice thereof, whereby the possession of property is changed or affected, such as orders for the appointment of receivers, granting injunctions, dissolving writs of attachment, and the like; and also, upon petition, in the discretion of the court of appeals, from any other interlocutory order.

The jurisdiction to hear and determine appeals from the commissioner of patents is now vested in the court of appeals; and in addition any party aggrieved by the decision of the commissioner of patents in any interference case may appeal therefrom to said court of appeals.

Writs of error and appeal lie to the supreme court of the United States. See Appeals.

The supreme court of the District of Columbia has general jurisdiction in law and equity, and possesses powers and jurisdiction of former circuit court of the District. It holds a district court of the United States for said District, a circuit court for trial of actions at law, special terms respectively as a court of equity, as a probate court and as a criminal court. It is also made a court of bankruptcy under the Bankruptcy Law of 1898 (§§ 1 and 2; 30 U. S. Stat. p. 544). It possesses power to establish, revise, and alter rules for regulation of practice. May issue mandamus to any of the heads of the executive departments. (See, also, Marbury v. Madison, 1 Cranch, 137; Kendall v. United States, 12 Pet. 524.) For terms of court, see United States Court Calendar.

The municipal court has jurisdiction of all civil cases, including attachment and replevin, when the amount claimed or property sought to be recovered shall not exceed five hundred dollars except in cases where the title to real estate is in issue, and actions for malicious prosecution, against officers for misconduct in office, for slander, verbal or written, and breaches of promise to marry. Such jurisdiction shall be exclusive original jurisdiction up to one hundred dollars, and concurrent with the supreme court of the District of Columbia up to five hundred dollars. No appeal shall be allowed in any common law action unless the demand or set-off exceeds five dollars; nor unless the appellant, with surety approved by a judge of the municipal court, enters into an undertaking to satisfy whatever final judgment may be recovered in the appellate court. Proceedings on attachment and replevin before the municipal court are similar to those in the supreme court of the District. (See Attachments ; Replevin.) The municipal court also has jurisdiction of summary proceedings by landlord or owner to evict tenants or occupants. Its judges have no criminal jurisdiction, except, on sworn complaints, or actual view, to issue warrants of arrest returnable before the police court.

Deeds. — Acknowledgment of deeds may be made before any of the following named officers of any State, district, county, or Territory, within the United States, in which person making deed may be, namely, before any judge of court of record and of law; any chancellor of state; any judge of supreme, circuit, district, or territorial courts of the United States; any justices of the peace, and notary public; any commissioner of the circuit court of the District, appointed for that purpose. The officer taking acknowledgment must annex to the deed a certificate of the same under his hand and seal. The word "seal" does not appear to have received a judicial construction in this District; but the practice is to affix a seal by means of some instrument making an impression upon the paper.

When the acknowledgment is made before an officer having an impressed seal, no certificate of the clerk of a court of record or other officer is necessary as to the official character of the officer taking the acknowledgment.

Deeds made in a foreign country may be executed and acknowledged before any judge or notary public, or before any secretary of legation or consular officer of the United States or acting consular officer of the United States as defined by section 1674 of the Revised Statutes, which includes "consuls-general, consuls, deputy-consuls, vice-consuls, and consular agents, and none others."

When acknowledgments are made before an officer in a foreign country other than a secretary of legation or consular officer of the United States, the official character of the person taking the acknowledgment must be certified to by some public officer having cognizance of the facts under his official seal. The practice is to have the certificate made by a secretary of legation or some consular officer of the United States.

Deeds cannot be acknowledged by an attorney (sec. 498, Code); except deeds of corporations. See below.

There is no statutory requirement as to the number of witnesses. It is customary, however, to have a deed attested as signed, sealed, and delivered in the presence of a single witness, generally the officer taking the acknowledgment. See Recording of Deeds, etc.

The president of the United States is authorized to appoint as many commissioners of deeds throughout the United States as he may deem necessary, with power to take acknowledgment of deeds, administer oaths, take depositions, etc. (Sec. 557, Code.)

The form of a deed in fee simple, and which form can be adapted to deeds in trust and other forms of deeds, is as follows: —

This deed, made this day of in the year by me, of witnesseth, that in consideration of (here insert consideration), I, the said do grant unto (here insert grantee's name), of all that (here describe property). Witness my hand and seal. (Signature.) [Seal.]

The form of acknowledgment is as follows: —

I, A B, a justice of the peace (or other officer authorized) in and for the District of Columbia, do hereby certify that C. D., party to a certain deed bearing date on the day of and hereto annexed, personally appeared before me in said District, the said C. D. being personally well known to me as (or proved by the oath of credible witnesses to be) the person who executed the said deed, and acknowledged the same to be his act and deed.

Given under my hand and seal this day of .

A. B. [Seal.]

The wife may relinquish her dower by joining in the deed with her husband or separately. (Sec. 494, Code.)

Corporations may execute deeds by having the seal of the corporation attached and being signed with the name of the corporation, by its president or other officer, and acknowledged as the deed of the corporation by an attorney appointed for that purpose, by a power of attorney embodied in the deed or by some one separate therefrom, under the corporate seal, to be annexed to and recorded with the deed. (Sec. 497, Code.)

Depositions. — On motion made in any common law action in the District, by a party thereto, the court may order a commission to issue to such person or persons as the court may name to take the deposition of any witness residing or being out of the District orally or on interrogatories and cross-interrogatories, to be filed and accompany such commission, as may be provided by the rules of the court, and said commission shall be executed, returned, and published according to the practice in courts of equity; provided, that such depositions shall not be admitted at the trial of the action if, at the time, the witness will be present in the District and his attendance can be obtained by the process of the court. (Sec. 1060, Code.)

In equity causes in the District the testimony of the witnesses may be taken in the manner provided by the rules of the supreme court of the United States for practice in equity, and of the supreme court of the District of Columbia not inconsistent therewith: provided, the court may, in its discretion, for proper cause shown, order the testimony to be taken orally in its presence or under a commission, according to the usages of chancery, or before examiners, upon any reasonable notice as directed in the preceding section, as the court may order and direct; and according to the same usages the court may, upon application by any party interested, direct depositions to be taken in perpetuam rei memoriam, in relation to matters that may be cognizable in the court. (Sec. 1061, Code.)

When a commission is issued by any court of the United States or of any State or Territory or of any place under the jurisdiction of the United States, for taking the testimony of witnesses within the District of Columbia, the same proceedings shall be had in relation thereto as are directed by sections eight hundred and sixty-eight and eight hundred and sixty-nine of the Revised Statutes of the United States, Act of June 30, 1902. (Sec. 1062, Code.)

Testimony de bene esse may be taken under a provision of the Code (sec. 1058), which section is similar to the United States statute relating to the taking of testimony in other courts of the United States. This law provides for taking testimony of witnesses, first, where the witness lives beyond the District of Columbia; second, where the witness is likely to go out of the United States or beyond the District of Columbia and not return in time for trial; third, where the witness is infirm or aged, etc., and fourth, where, during the trial, the witness is unable, by reason of sickness or other cause, to attend the trial.

Descent and Distribution of Property. — Real Estate. Lands of intestate descend, first, to child or children equally. If there be children of a deceased child, these children take (equally) the share of their immediate ancestor. If no child or descendant of such child, and the estate descended to intestate on the part of the father, then it goes to the brothers and sisters of the intestate of the blood of the father, and their descendants equally. If there be no such brothers or sisters or descendants, then it goes to the grandfather on the part of the father; and if no such grandfather living, then it goes to the descendants of such grandfather, and their descendants in equal degree equally; and so on, passing to the next lineal male paternal ancestor, and if none such, to his descendants in equal degree equally, without end; and if no paternal ancestors or descendant from such ancestor, then to the mother of the intestate, and if no mother living, then to her descendants in equal degree equally; and if there be no mother living or descendants from such mother, then to the maternal ancestor and their descendants in the same manner as above directed as to the paternal ancestors and their descendants. (Secs. 940-944, Code.)

If the estate descended to intestate on part of mother, then it follows the mother's line, and afterwards that of the father, in manner above indicated. If the estate vested in intestate by purchase, and was not derived from or through either of his ancestors, and there be no child or descendant of such intestate, then it descends to brothers and sisters of whole blood, and their descendants in equal degree equally; next to brothers and sisters of half blood, and their descendants; next to father of intestate; next to mother; then to grandfather on father's side, or his descendants; then to grandfather on mother's side, or his descendants, and so on, alternating next male paternal ancestor and his descendants, and next male maternal ancestor and his descendants. (Secs. 945-950, Code.) See Wills.

Personal Estate. — Surplus of personal estate of an intestate, after paying debts and expenses of administration, is to be distributed as follows: If the intestate leaves a widow and no child, parent, grandchild, brother, or sister, or the child of a brother or sister of the said intestate, the said widow shall be entitled to the whole. If there be a widow and a child or children, or a descendant or descendants from a child, the widow shall have one third only. If there be a widow and no child or descendants of the intestate, but the said intestate shall leave a father or mother, or brother or sister, or a child of a brother or sister, the widow shall have one half. The surplus, exclusive of the widow's share, or the whole surplus (if there be no widow), shall go as follows: If there be children and no other descendants, the surplus shall be divided equally among them. If there be a child or children and a child or children of a deceased child, the child or children of such deceased child shall take such share as his, her, or their deceased parent would, if living, be entitled to, and every other descendant or descendants in existence at the death of the intestate shall stand in the place of his, her, or their deceased ancestor. If there be a father and no child or descendant, the father shall have the whole; and if there be a mother and no father, child, or descendant, the mother shall have the whole. If there be a brother or sister, or child or descendant of a brother or sister, and no child, descendant, or father or mother of the intestate, the said brother, sister, or child or descendant of a brother or sister shall have the whole. Every brother and sister of the intestate shall be entitled to an equal share, and the child or children, or descendants of a brother or sister of the intestate, shall stand in the place of their deceased parents respectively. After children, descendants, father, mother, brothers, and sisters of the deceased and their descendants, all collateral relations in equal degree shall take, and no representation among such collaterals shall be allowed. If there be no collaterals, a grandfather may take, and if there be two grandfathers they shall take alike; and a grandmother, in case of the death of her husband, the grandfather, shall take as he might have done. If any person entitled to distribution shall die before the same shall be made, his or her share shall go to his or her representatives. Posthumous children of intestate shall take in the same manner as if they had been born before the death of the intestate, but no other posthumous relation shall be considered as entitled to distribution in his or her own right. In the distribution of personal estate there shall be no distinction between the whole and half blood. The illegitimate child or children of any female, and the issue of any such illegitimate child or children, shall be capable to take from their mother, or from each other, or from the descendants of each other, in like manner as if born in lawful wedlock. When an illegitimate child or children shall die leaving no descendants, or brothers or sisters, or the descendants of such brothers or sisters, then and in that case the mother of such illegitimate child or children, if living, shall be entitled as next of kin, and if the mother be dead the next of kin of the mother shall take in like manner as if such illegitimate child or children had been born in lawful wedlock. If there be no widow or relations of the intestate within the fifth degree, which shall be reckoned by counting down from the common ancestor to the more remote, the whole surplus shall belong to the District of Columbia, to be disbursed by the commissioners of the District for the benefit of the poor. (Secs. 374-388, Code.) If the deceased be a married woman, her personal estate, after the payment of her debts, shall be the property of her husband. (Sec. 1160, Code.)

Persons are entitled to administration upon the estates of intestates in the following order:—

If the intestate leave a widow and a child or children, administration, subject to the discretion of the court, shall be granted either to the widow or child, or one or more of the children, qualified to act as administrator. (Sec. 276, Code.) If there be a widow and no child the widow shall be preferred, and next to the widow or children a grandchild shall be preferred. (Sec. 277, Code.) If there be neither widow, nor child, nor grandchild to act, the father shall be preferred; and if there be no father the mother shall be preferred. (Sec. 278, Code.) If there be neither widow, nor child, nor grandchild, nor father, nor mother to act, brothers and sister shall be preferred. (Sec. 279, Code.) If there be neither widow, nor child, nor grandchild, nor father, nor mother, nor brother, nor sister, the next of kin shall be preferred. (Sec. 280, Code.) Males shall be preferred to females in equal degree. (Sec. 281, Code.) Relations of the whole blood shall be preferred to those of the half blood in equal degree, and relations of the half blood shall be preferred to relations of the whole blood in a remoter degree. (Sec. 282, Code.) Relations descending shall be preferred to relations ascending, in the collateral line; that is to say, for example, a nephew shall be preferred to an uncle. (Sec. 283, Code.) None shall be preferred in the ascending line beyond a father or mother, or in the descending line below a grandchild. (Sec. 284, Code.) A feme sole shall be preferred to a married woman in equal degree. (Sec. 285, Code.) Relations on the part of the father shall be preferred to those on the part of the mother, in equal degree. (Sec. 286, Code.) In the appointment of an administrator on the death of a married woman of her estate, her husband shall be entitled to be preferred. (Sec. 1160, Code.) If there be no relations, or those entitled decline or refuse to appear and apply for administration, on proper summons or notice, administration may be granted to the largest creditor applying for the same; and if creditors neglect to apply it may be granted at the discretion of the court. (Sec. 288, Code.) See Wills.

Divorce.—Application for divorce must be by petition on oath or affirmation to the supreme court of the District. A summons is then issued to the defendant. If writ is returned "not found," and it appears by affidavit of a disinterested witness that the defendant is a non-resident, or has been absent from the District six months, the court authorizes notice by publication. A copy of the notice and of the petition must be mailed to the last known address of the defendant. The proof is now taken in open court, and only in exceptional cases the court orders a reference to an examiner or commissioner to take proof; and never to a person named by either party. (Eq. Rule 48, adopted Nov. 15, 1913.) Judgment cannot be rendered on default without proof, nor can admissions in the answer be taken as proof; the ground of the application must be proved by other evidence. Divorce cannot be granted for cause which occurred out of the District, unless the party applying has resided within the District two years next preceding the application. Divorce from the bond of marriage may be granted only where one of the parties has committed adultery during the marriage. Provided, that in such case the innocent party only may remarry, but the divorced parties may remarry thereafter.

Divorce from bed and board may be granted for drunkenness, cruelty, or desertion.

Marriage contracts may be declared void in the following cases: First. Where such marriage was contracted while either of the parties had a former wife or husband living, unless the former marriage had been lawfully dissolved. Second. Where such marriage was contracted during the lunacy of either party (unless there has been voluntary cohabitation after the lunacy) or was procured by fraud or coercion. Third. Where either party was matrimonially incapacitated at the time of marriage and has continued so. Fourth. Where either of the parties had not arrived at the age of legal consent to the contract of marriage (unless there had been voluntary cohabitation after coming to legal age), but in such cases only at the suit of the party not capable of consenting. (Sec. 966, Code.)

Dower. — The dower right of a widow, which has been assigned to her, may be subjected in equity to the payment of her own debts contracted since her husband's death; and if the assignment of dower by metes and bounds be manifestly impracticable, a receiver will be appointed to take charge of and rent the property until the widow's share of the rents and profits shall suffice to satisfy judgments and costs. (1 McArthur, 163.) A married woman is now given dower in the equity of redemption of her husband's real property. See Wills.

Evidence. — Parties and persons interested are competent and compellable to give evidence in civil suits in the District, but not in a case of offense in a criminal proceeding, nor is a person compellable to answer questions tending to criminate himself. In actions by or against executors, administrators, or guardians, neither party shall be allowed to testify against the other as to transactions with or statement by testator, intestate, or ward, unless called to testify thereto by opposite party or required to testify thereto by court. (Sec. 1064, Code.)

Physicians are not allowed to disclose confidential information without the consent of the person afflicted, or of his legal representative, except in certain criminal cases. (Sec. 1072, Code.)

Executions. — After judgment entered, execution may be issued unless motion be made to vacate judgment or set it aside for fraud, deceit, surprise, or irregularity, or resort to review of it upon appeal. No such appeal shall stay execution where judgment for a specific sum, unless appellant gave bond with sufficient surety to be approved by the court on notice to the other party.

Exemptions. — The following property is exempt from execution: Wearing apparel belonging to all persons and to all heads of families being householders; beds, bedding, household furniture, stoves, cooking utensils, etc., not exceeding three hundred dollars in value; provisions for three months' support, whether provided or growing; fuel for three months; mechanics' tools and implements of debtor's trade or business amounting to two hundred dollars in value, with two hundred dollars' worth of stock for carrying on business of debtor or his family; library and implements of professional man or artist to value of three hundred dollars; one horse, one mule, or yoke of oxen; one cart, wagon, or dray, and harness for such team; farming utensils, with food for such team for three months, and, if the debtor be a farmer, any other farming tools of value of one hundred dollars; all family pictures and all family library not exceeding in value four hundred dollars; one cow, one swine, six sheep. (Sec. 1105, Code.)

The earnings, not to exceed one hundred dollars each month, of all actual residents of the District of Columbia, and who are married persons, or who have to provide for the support of a family in the District, for two months next preceding the issuing of any writ or process from any court or justice of the peace, or other officer of and in the District against them, shall be exempt from attachment, levy, seizure, or sale upon such process; and the same shall not be seized, levied on, taken, reached, or sold by attachment, execution, or any other process or proceedings of any court, judge, justice of the peace, or other officer of and in the District. (Sec. 1107, Code.)

Inheritance Taxes. — There is no inheritance tax law in the District of Columbia, except the act of Congress of September 8, 1916, entitled "An act to increase the revenue, and for other purposes" (39 U.S. Stat. 756), as amended (39 U.S. Stat. 1000, and 40 U.S. Stat. 300), which imposes a tax of from one to fifteen per centum upon the net estate of every decedent dying after the passage of this act (as amended, March 3, 1917), whether a resident or non-resident of the United States. Those serving in the military or naval forces of the United States are excepted during the present war. This act is applicable to the District of Columbia, and to all the States and Territories.

Interest. — The rate of interest on judgments or decrees, and loan or forbearance money, goods, or things, in actions where different rate is not specified, is six per centum per annum (Sec. 1178, Code). Sec. 1179 of the Code provides: "The parties to a bond, bill, promissory note, or other instrument of writing for the payment of money at any future time may contract therein for the payment of interest on the principal amount thereof at any rate not exceeding ten per centum per annum." Section 1180 of the Code, however, makes it usury to contract "verbally, to pay a greater rate of interest than six per centum per annum or"

... "in writing, to pay a greater rate than six per centum per annum," the penalty being forfeiture of interest so contracted to be received. There is no case in the courts in which this last mentioned section of the Code (1180) has been construed, or enforced.

If higher rate than the legal rate of interest be paid, the whole interest may be recovered, in suit brought within one year after payment. (Sec. 1181, Code.)

A recent act of Congress, approved February 4, 1913 (37 U.S. Stat. at Large, 657), provides: "That hereafter it shall be unlawful and illegal to engage in the District of Columbia in the business of loaning money upon which a rate of interest greater than six per centum is charged on any security of any kind, direct or collateral, tangible or intangible, without procuring license." Sec. 10 of this act provides: "That nothing contained in this act shall be held to apply to the legitimate business of national banks, licensed bankers, trust companies, savings banks, building and loan associations, or real estate brokers."

Judgments. — Every final judgment at common law and every unconditional final decree in equity for the payment of money from the date when the same shall be rendered, every judgment of a justice of the peace (now the municipal court) when docketed in the clerk's office of the supreme court of the District of Columbia, and every recognizance taken by said supreme court, or a justice thereof, from the time when it shall be declared forfeited, shall be a lien on all the freehold and leasehold estates, legal and equitable, of the defendants bound by such judgment, decree, or recognizance, in any lands, tenements, hereditaments, in the District, whether such estates be in possession or be reversions or remainders, vested or contingent, but such liens on equitable interests shall be enforced by bill in equity. And any recognizance taken in the police court, after being forfeited, may be transmitted to the clerk's office of said supreme court and therein docketed in the same manner as the judgment of a justice of the peace (now the municipal court) as aforesaid, and thereupon shall have the same effect as if taken in the said supreme court; and said lien shall continue as long as such judgment, decree, or recognizance shall be in force or until the same shall be satisfied or discharged. (Sec. 1214, Code.)

The records and judgment proceedings of courts of any State or Territory are proved by attestation of the clerk and seal of the court annexed, if there be a seal, together with the signature of the judge, chief justice, or presiding magistrate, that said attestation is in due form. (Rev. St. U.S. sec. 905.)

Law and Practice. — The law of the District of Columbia is declared by an act entitled "An act to establish a Code of Law in the District of Columbia," approved March 3, 1901, as amended by the acts approved January 31 and June 30, 1902, to be: —

The common law, all British statutes in force in Maryland on the twenty-seventh day of February, eighteen hundred and one, the principles of equity and admiralty, all general acts of Congress not locally inapplicable in the District of Columbia; and all acts of Congress by their terms applicable to the District of Columbia and to other places under the jurisdiction of the United States, in force at the date of the passage of this act remain in force except in so far as the same are inconsistent with, or are replaced by, some provision of the Code. (Sec. 1, Code.)

The government of the District of Columbia is vested in three commissioners appointed by the President of the United States.

Extradition proceedings are conducted by the chief justice or senior justice of the supreme court of the District.

License. — The act of Congress approved July 1, 1902, provides for the issuance of licenses for almost all kinds of businesses, trades, professions, and callings, and for the imposition of a license tax. Applications for licenses are made to the assessor of the District, and no license is granted until payment for the same shall have been made. The license specifies the name of the person, firm, or corporation to which it is issued, the business, trade, profession, or calling for which it is granted, and the location at which said business, trade, profession, or calling is to be carried on. (32 U.S. Stat. p. 622.)

Liens. — Distress for rent is abolished, but the landlord has a "tacit lien" on tenant's goods on the premises, to be enforced by attachment. See also Mechanics' Liens; Judgments.

Limitations. — Actions upon the case, upon simple contract, including bills of exchange and notes not under seal, book debt, or account, actions for debt, detinue, and replevin, and trespass quare clausum, must be brought within three years ensuing the cause of action; action on case for words, actions of trespass, of assault, battery, wounding, and imprisonment, within one year. Action on bill, bond, judgment, or other specialty is barred after the principal debt and creditor have both been dead twelve years, or debt or thing in action has been above twelve years' standing. In case of judgment, however, the limitation does not run from date of judgment if it has been revived by scire facias within twelve years, but from date of such revival.

New promises are to be in writing, according to the provision of the Code in the following language: "In actions of debt or upon the case grounded upon any simple contract, no acknowledgment or promise by words only shall be deemed sufficient evidence of a new or continuing contract whereby to take any case out of the operation of the statute of limitations or to deprive any party of the benefit thereof unless such acknowledgment or promise shall be made or contained by or in some writing to be signed by the party chargeable thereby: provided, that nothing herein contained shall alter or take away or lessen the effect of any payment of any principal or interest made by any person whatsoever." (Sec. 1271, Code.)

of the same by deed, mortgage, lease, will, gift, or otherwise, as fully as if they were unmarried: provided, that no disposition of her real or her personal property, or any portion thereof, by deed, mortgage, bill of sale, or other conveyance, shall be valid if made by a married woman under twenty-one years of age. (Sec. 1154, Code.)

Married women shall have power to engage in any business, and to contract, whether engaged in business or not, and to sue separately upon their contract, and also to sue separately for the recovery, security, or protection of their property, and for torts committed against them, as fully and freely as if they were unmarried; contracts may also be made with them, and they may also be sued separately upon their contracts, whether made before or during marriage, and for wrongs independent of contract committed by them before or during their marriage, as fully as if they were unmarried, and upon judgments recovered against them execution may be issued as if they were unmarried; nor shall any husband be liable upon any contract made by his wife in her own name and upon her own responsibility, nor for any tort committed separately by her out of his presence without his participation or sanction: provided, that no married woman shall have power to make any contract as surety or guarantor or as accommodation drawer, acceptor, maker, or indorser. (Sec. 1155, Code.)

Mechanics' Liens. — Every building erected, improved, added to, or repaired by the owner or his agent, and the lot of ground on which the same is erected, being all the ground used or intended to be used in connection therewith, or necessary to the use and enjoyment thereof, to the extent of the right, title, and interest, at that time existing, of such owner, whether owner in fee or of a less estate, or lessee for a term of years, or vendee in possession under a contract of sale, shall be subject to a lien in favor of the contractor with such owner or his duly authorized agent for the contract price agreed upon between them, or, in the absence of an express contract, for the reasonable value of the work and materials furnished for and about the erection, construction, improvement, or repair of or addition to such building, or the placing of any engine, machinery, or other thing therein or in connection therewith so as to become a fixture, though capable of being detached: provided, that the person claiming the lien shall file the notice herein prescribed. (Sec. 1237, Code.) The proceeding to enforce the lien shall be by bill in equity. Suit must be commenced within one year after the notice is filed. Notice of intention to hold a lien must be filed in the office of the clerk of the supreme court of the District during the construction or within three months after the completion of the work. Any number of persons having liens on the same building may join in one suit. Defendant may file an undertaking with two sureties to pay such judgment as may be recovered and thereby release his property from the lien.

Any person furnishing materials or labor in the construction of any wharf or any permanent fixture thereon, or for filling up any lot, or dredging the channel in front of any wharf or lot, shall be entitled to enforce a lien therefor upon such wharf or lots. (Sec. 1259, Code.)

Any mechanic or artisan who shall make, alter, or repair any article of personal property may have a lien thereon for work done or materials furnished, and may retain such article until such charges are paid, and if not paid within six months may sell such property at public auction. (Sec. 1260, Code.)

Mortgages. — See Trust Deeds.

Notaries Public. — The president of the United States has power to appoint such number of notaries public, residents of said District of Columbia, as in his discretion the business of the District may require. (Sec. 558, Code.) The term of office of notaries public is five years, but they are removable at the discretion of the president. (Sec. 559, Code.) An impressed seal is required to be attached by them on all affidavits, acknowledgments of deeds, and other legal papers. (Sec. 562, Code.) Their jurisdiction extends throughout the District of Columbia. The clerk of the supreme court of the District of Columbia certifies to the official character of a notary.

The president is also empowered to appoint as many commissioners of deeds throughout the United States as he may deem necessary, with power to take the acknowledgment of deeds for the conveyance of property within the District, administer oaths, and take depositions in cases pending in the courts of said District in the manner prescribed by law; to whose acts, properly attested by their hands and seals of office, full faith and credit shall be given. (Sec. 557, Code.)

Notes and Bills of Exchange. — Where money is payable by two or more persons jointly or severally, as by joint obligors, covenanters, makers, drawers, or indorsers, all or any of the parties by whom the money is payable may be included in the same declaration, at the option of the plaintiff. The Code (chapter xlv.) enacts the Negotiable Instruments Law, which was indorsed by the American Bar Association and which has been enacted by the legislatures of many States. This law is very voluminous, and among other things it provides that the addition of a seal to a promissory note or bill of exchange shall not affect the negotiable character of the instrument.

Legal holidays are January 1, February 22, that day upon which the president is inaugurated (March 4 every fourth year), May 30, known as Decoration Day, July 4, the first Monday in September, known as Labor Day, such days as may be set by proclamation of the president (by custom the last Thursday in November) known as Thanksgiving Day, and December 25, and Saturdays after 12 o'clock, M., as a general holiday, although the government departments are not closed. If any legal holiday in the District falls on Sunday, then the day next succeeding shall be a holiday, and any negotiable paper maturing on such holiday shall be payable or presentable for acceptance or payment on the secular or business day next succeeding. (Sec. 1389, Code.)

Days of grace are abolished on all paper made or accepted after January 1, 1897.

Practice. — See Law and Practice.

Proof of Claims. — In any action arising ex contractu, if the plaintiff or his agent shall have filed at time of bringing action an affidavit setting out distinctly cause of action and sum claimed to be due exclusive of all set-offs and just grounds of defense, and shall have served defendant with copies of declaration and said affidavit, he shall be entitled to judgment for the amount so claimed and interest and costs, unless defendant shall file along with his plea affidavit of defense denying plaintiff's right as to whole or some specific part of his claim, and stating also in precise and distinct terms the grounds of defense. And where defendant shall have acknowledged in affidavit of defense his liability for part of plaintiff's claim, plaintiff, if he so elect, may have judgment rendered for the amount so confessed to be due. (73d Law Rule of Court.)

Non-residents forwarding claims for collection in the District should give precise information upon the points above indicated, as well as respecting the names and residences of parties. Disputed claims must be proved by competent oral testimony given at the trial, or by depositions taken with due formality. See Depositions; Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Recording of Deeds, etc. — All deeds, deeds of trust, mortgages, conveyances, covenants, agreements, or any instrument of writing which by law is entitled to be recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds, shall take effect and be valid, as to creditors and as to subsequent purchasers for valuable consideration without notice, from the time when such deed, deed of trust, mortgage, conveyance, covenant, agreement, or instrument in writing, shall, after having been acknowledged, proved, or certified, as the case may be, be delivered to the recorder of deeds for record, and from that time only; and the recorder of deeds shall note on each deed or other instrument of writing required by law to be recorded, the day and hour of delivery of the same to him to be recorded.

Redemption. — There is no provision for redemption of property sold on execution.

Replevin. — At the time of filing a declaration in replevin, the plaintiff, his agent or attorney, shall file an affidavit sworn to before the clerk, stating, according to affiant's information and belief, the plaintiff's right to receive possession of chattels proposed to be replevined, being the same described in the declaration; the seizure and detention of same by defendant, and that said chattels were not subject to such seizure or detention, nor taken upon any writ of replevin. At same time plaintiff must enter into an undertaking with surety approved by clerk, to abide by and perform the judgment of the court in the premises. If the officer's return of the writ be that he has served the defendant, but that he could not get possession of chattels sued for, the plaintiff may prosecute the action for the value of the same and damages for detention, or he may renew the writ in order to get possession of chattels themselves. If the return be that the officer has taken possession of the chattels sued for, but that defendant is not to be found, the court may order the defendant to appear to the action by some fixed day, and of this order plaintiff shall cause notice to be given by publication; and if defendant thereafter fail to appear, the court may proceed as in case of default after personal service. If defendant appear, he may plead not guilty, in which case all special matters of defense may be given in evidence, or he may plead specially. Plaintiff's damages shall be ascertained by a jury, trying the issue, where one is joined, or by a jury of inquest, where there is no issue of fact, and where defendant's plea has been held bad on demurrer. When judgment is for defendant, it is that goods, if delivered to plaintiff, be returned to defendant with damages, or on failure that the defendant recover against plaintiff and latter's surety the damages by him sustained, to be assessed by the jury. If the defendant has eluded the things sued for, the court may instruct the jury, if they find for plaintiff, to assess such damages as may compel the defendant to return the things. Judgment in such cases shall be, that plaintiff recover against defendant for value of the goods as found, to be discharged by the return of the things with damages for detention, which the jury shall assess. (Secs. 1551-1562, Code.)

Revision. — See Law and Practice.

Sales in Bulk. — A statute is in force, but its constitutionality has not been decided by the courts.

Service. — In actions at law, the summons and notice to plead are returnable on the twentieth day, exclusive of Sundays and legal holidays, after the day of the service of the writ and copy of the declaration; or, in case of publication against absent defendants, on the fortieth day, exclusive of Sundays and legal holidays, after the day of the first publication. Writs are issued by the clerk of the court and served by the marshal of the District. The defendant must plead or demur on or before the return day of the writ, and subsequent pleadings must be filed within ten days after the next preceding pleading.

On the equity side of the court the writ of subpoena is the proper process in the first instance to require the defendant to appear. The defendant must enter his or her appearance on or before the tenth day, exclusive of Sundays and legal holidays, after the day of service, and must demur, plead, or answer within twenty days after entering his or her appearance. A term of the equity court begins the first Tuesday in every month, designated "Rule Day."

In an action against a foreign corporation doing business in the District, process may be served on the agent or person conducting its business, or, if he cannot be found, by leaving a copy at its principal place of business in the District.

It is not necessary, in order to maintain a suit against a foreign corporation in the District, that it have any place of business or resident agent therein, provided it transact business therein; and service upon any officer, agent, or employee of any such corporation shall be effectual as to any suits growing out of any contracts entered into or to be performed in whole or in part, in the District, or growing out of any tort committed in the District. (34 U. S. Stat. p. 874.)

Stay of Execution. — Where judgment is for a specific sum, an appeal to the court of appeals of the District of Columbia will not operate to stay execution, unless appellant with surety approved by the court or one of the justices, within twenty days after judgment or decree, files a bond in the form prescribed by the court to pay the final judgment of the court. In other appeals any justice of the court may determine amount and character of security to be given, which must always be sufficient to cover costs of appeal.

Supplementary Proceedings. — There are none as such. However, equitable interests in property real and personal may be reached after judgment in a court of law by proceedings in equity by creditor's bill. See Judgments.

Taxation. — The rate of taxation on real estate and personal property is one dollar and fifty cents on one hundred dollars, payable in the month of May, with the privilege, however, of paying one half of the taxes in the previous month of November, but no penalty attaches for not paying in November. If the yearly tax is not paid in the month of May a penalty of one per cent. per month attaches until the property is sold. No report of the real estate owned by a person need be made, but a report of the personal property has to be made before the first day of August of each year. The valuation placed by the owner on his personal property is subject to review by the board of personal tax appraisers. If no report is made the board of personal tax appraisers fixes the value of the personal property and adds twenty per cent. for failure to make report. The report is made to the board of personal tax appraisers and must be filed by July 31 of each year and must be verified under oath.

Purchasers of real estate at tax sales made by the collector of taxes after proper advertisement, if the property be not redeemed within two years from the date of the sale, are entitled to take a deed from the commissioners of the District of Columbia, vesting in the purchaser a good and valid title.

By Act of Congress, approved March 3, 1917 (District of Columbia Appropriation Act, 39 U. S. Stat. L., pt. 1, p. 1046) a tax of three tenths of one per cent. is placed on moneys and credits (according to their value) of any person, firm, association, or corporation resident or engaged in business within said District.

Testimony. — See Evidence.

Trust Deeds. — With hardly an exception deeds of trust are taken as security for debts or loans; and in practice mortgages are almost unknown. The deeds of trust usually confer power upon the trustee to sell upon default in payment of debt, note, or interest, and after giving notice by advertisement. From sale made under deed of trust there is no redemption, except by suit in equity, in which there is shown some special ground for the intervention of a court of chancery to set aside the sale. Release of deed of trust is by deed of release from trustee.

No bill of sale, deed of trust, or mortgage for property exempt by law from execution, is binding unless signed by wife of debtor.

Wills. — No will, testament, or codicil is effectual for any purposes whatsoever, unless the person making it was, at the time of execution or acknowledgment, of sound and disposing mind, and capable of executing a valid deed or contract. Any male person of full age of twenty-one years, and female of full age of eighteen years, may make valid will as to interest or estate in land, tenements, or incorporeal hereditaments. All devises and bequests of lands or tenements devisable by law must be in writing, and signed by person devising the same, or by some other person in his presence, and by his express direction, and must be attested and subscribed in presence of the deviser by two credible witnesses. Wills of personal property must also now be attested and subscribed in the presence of two credible witnesses. (Sec. 1626, Code.)

Any will devising real estate in the District of Columbia, from which it shall appear that it was the intention of the testator to devise property acquired after the execution of the will, shall operate as a valid devise of such property; and any will hereafter executed (June 30, 1902), which shall by words of general import devise all the real estate of the testator, shall be deemed, taken, and held to operate as a valid devise of any real estate acquired after the execution of said will, unless the contrary intention shall appear therefrom. (Sec. 1628, Code.)

Whenever by will the testator shall request that his executor be not required to give bond, then the bond required shall be only in such sum as may, by the court, be considered sufficient to secure the payment of the testator's debts. This bond may be increased on proper showing to the court, but in no event shall it exceed double the value of the estate. In case of waste the court may require additional bond, or may remove the executor. (Sec. 263, Code.)

Neither the execution nor the validity of any will or testament admitted to probate and record by the probate court shall be impeached or examined collaterally. (Sec. 117, Code.)

Every devise of land or of any estate therein, or bequest of personal estate to the wife of the testator, shall be construed to be intended in bar of her dower in lands or share of the personal estate, respectively, unless it be otherwise expressed in the will. (Sec. 1172, Code.)

A widow shall be barred of her right of dower in the land or share in the personal estate by any such devise or bequest, unless within six months after administration may be granted on her husband's estate she shall file in the probate court a written renunciation to the following effect: —

"I, A. B., widow of late deceased, do hereby renounce and quit all claim to any bequest or devise made to me by the last will of my husband exhibited and proved according to law; and I elect to take in lieu thereof my dower or legal share of the estate of my said husband."

But by renouncing all claim to a devise or bequest, or devises or bequests, of personal property, made to her by the will of her husband, she shall be entitled to one third part of the personal estate of her husband which shall remain after payment of his just debts and claims against him, and no more. (Sec. 1173, Code.)

There is no limitation on the amount that a person can leave to charity by will, except that all devises and bequests for religious purposes shall be made at least one calendar month before the death of the testator. (Sec. 1635, Code.)

A person can will away from his family all of his estate, except that he cannot deprive his widow of her dower, or of her share in his personal estate, without her consent. See Descent and Distribution of Property.

There is a register of wills for the District, who is ex-officio clerk to the special term of the supreme court of the District of Columbia, now called the "probate."

FLORIDA LAWS.

Messrs. Cooper, Cooper & Osborne, of Jacksonville.

The next legislature convenes 1919.

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — The word "action" as used in the statute has been construed to include suits in equity. Actions at law are commenced by filing a præcipe with the clerk; suits in equity, by filing bills. Actions may be maintained by the real party in interest. Actions to recover damages for the death of a person may be maintained by the husband or widow, and, if none, the children; if none, by the executor or administrator. Actions may be instituted in the county in which the cause of action accrued, where the property in litigation is, or where the defendant resides. Process runs throughout the State in all civil actions in the circuit court, and in all actions brought in behalf of the State.

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Affidavits. — After default, final judgment in certain cases may be entered by clerk on proof by affidavit. See Proof of Claims. Oaths may be administered within this State by any clerk or judge of the supreme, circuit, or chancery court, or notary public or justice of the peace, and should be attested by the official seal of the officer administering them. In other States and Territories of the United States, and in the District of Columbia, by any judge or clerk of any supreme, circuit, or chancery court, or by a notary public. In foreign countries, by any judge of a court of last resort, notary public, or by any minister, consul-general, chargé d'affaires, or consul of the United States resident in such country. In all cases oaths should be attested by the seal of the officer taking the oath of acknowledgment. Practicing attorneys at law are authorized to administer oaths in the presence of the judge in open court.

Aliens. — Aliens of any country or nation whatever may purchase, hold, enjoy, sell, convey, or devise any lands and tenements in this State, to the same extent and with the same right as citizens of the United States; nor shall it be, in making title by descent, a bar to a party that any ancestor, through whom he derives his descent from the intestate, is, or has been, an alien. And it is provided by the constitution that "foreigners shall have the same rights as to the ownership, inheritance, and disposition of property in this State as citizens of the State."

Appeals. — Under the revised statutes, appeals are allowed in chancery and in cases arising in probate courts. Appellate power in all cases at law is exercised only upon writ of error. Supersedeas at law or in chancery is obtained only upon filing bond. Appeals in equity or chancery cases must be taken within six months from the date of the final decree. Writs of error must be taken within six months from the date of judgment, except in cases of persons under disability, when the time is extended to six months after the disability ceases. Writs of error are allowed either party, including the State or any officer, from judgments in habeas corpus cases. The appellate court is authorized to enter judgments on supersedeas bonds. Appeals from final decrees only operate as supersedeas as of course if taken within time fixed for writs of error. Appeals from interlocutory orders only operate as a supersedeas where so ordered by the court.

Arrest. — There is no statute law in this State authorizing the arrest of the defendant in civil actions. Section 16 of the Declaration of Rights prescribes that "no person shall be imprisoned for debt except in case of fraud."

Assignment. — See Insolvent Laws.

Attachment. — Attachments may issue under the existing laws of this State, upon the party applying for the same (although he be a non-resident of the State), or his agent or attorney, first making oath in writing that the amount of the debt or sum demanded is actually due, and that he or she has reason to believe the party from whom it is due will fraudulently part with his, her, or their property before judgment can be recovered against him, her, or them (as the case may be), or is actually removing his, her, or their property out of the State of Florida, or about to remove it out of the State, or resides beyond the limits thereof, or is actually removing or about to remove out of the State, or absconds or conceals himself or herself, or is secreting his or her property or fraudulently disposing of the same, or that he or she is actually removing or about to remove beyond the judicial circuit in which he, she, or they reside.

Writs of attachment may also be obtained when the debt or demand is not yet due; provided, that at the time of such application the person against whom the debt or demand is charged shall be actually removing his or her property beyond the limits of this State; or be fraudulently disposing of or secreting the same, for the purpose of avoiding the payment of his or her just debts and demands. Such writ of attachment as is herein provided for shall in no case be issued unless the party applying for the same, or his agent or attorney, shall first make oath in writing that the amount of the debt or demand claimed and charged against the opposite party is actually an existing debt or demand; stating also in said oath, in writing, the time when said debt or demand will actually become due and payable; and also the existence of one or more of the special grounds above enumerated, satisfactory proof of which shall be demanded and produced to the officers granting such attachment.

In cases of attachment against executors or administrators such affidavit shall state the amount of the debt or sum demanded, that the same is an actually existing debt or demand, and the existence of one of the statutory grounds above enumerated.

No attachment shall issue until the party applying for the same, by himself or by his agent or attorney, shall enter into a bond with at least two good and sufficient securities, payable to the defendant in at least double the debt or sum demanded, conditioned to pay all costs and damages the defendant may sustain in consequence of improperly suing out said attachment. It is not necessary that they be freeholders.

Upon additional affidavit that defendant has property in a county other than that in which the suit is instituted, a writ of attachment may issue directed to the sheriff or other proper officer of the county where said property is, and said officer shall execute the writ and hold and dispose of the property as in other cases.

The levy of a writ of attachment shall not operate to dispossess the tenant of any lands or tenements, but a levy upon real or personal property shall bind the property attached, except against preëxisting liens, and levies upon the same property under successive attachments shall have precedence as liens in the order in which they are made. A levy shall, however, bind real estate as against subsequent creditors or purchasers only from the time of the record by the clerk of the circuit court in the lien book of a notice of the levy and a description of the property levied upon.

The property attached may be restored to the defendant upon his giving a bond to the officer levying the attachment, payable to the plaintiff, with two sureties, in double the value of the property levied upon.

The only measure of responsibility on the attachment bond, as expressed by statute, is the requirement that the same shall be "conditioned to pay all costs and damages the defendant may sustain in consequence of improperly suing out said attachment." The damages are matter of proof.

The pleadings and practice in suits commenced by attachments are the same as other suits at law. But where the defendant is a non-resident of the State, constructive service may be obtained on him by publishing a notice to him of such suit in some newspaper published in the county, once a week for two months, or, if there is no such newspaper, by posting notices of such suits. Such notices of attachment suits in courts of justices of the peace are published for one month, or, if the amount of debt claimed does not exceed twenty dollars, may be posted one month in three public places in the county. Amendments are allowed in attachment proceedings, and a new bond shall be given in case old bond is found defective.

Chattel Mortgages.—No chattel mortgage shall be valid or effectual against creditors or subsequent purchasers for a valuable consideration and without notice unless it be recorded, or unless the property included in it be delivered to the mortgagee and continue to remain truly and bona fide in his possession.

To entitle such mortgage to record, its execution must be acknowledged or proved in the manner provided for mortgages of real property.

Conditional bills of sale, intended to secure the payment of a debt, are construed to be mortgages, and must be regularly foreclosed.

A mortgage of a stock of goods by the owner thereof, under which the mortgagor is permitted by the mortgagee to sell the goods at his discretion, or in the usual course of his business, is fraudulent and void as to the creditors of the mortgagor. There is no statute requiring the renewal of chattel mortgages. Giving a second mortgage on personal property without notice to the second mortgagee of the existence of the prior mortgage is punishable by fine or imprisonment or both. They are foreclosed in the same manner as mortgages on realty, except that when the mortgage does not exceed one hundred dollars suit may be commenced in a justice's court and lien is enforced by execution. See Mortgage and Deeds of Trust.

Claims, Proof of.—See Proof of Claims.

Claims against estates of decedents must be presented to the administrator or executor within two years from the date of the first publication of notice by the administrator or executor, and, in case of estates of less value than two thousand dollars, within one year.

Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.—The county judge of each county has jurisdiction. Administration is granted in the county in the State in which the decedent died, or, if he had a place of abode in another county, then in that county. Administration may be granted on the estate of a non-resident decedent, in any county in the State in which he left real or personal property, or debts due to him. The husband or wife is entitled to the administration first, and then others in the order in which they are entitled to distribution of the estate; if they do not apply, administration may be granted to a creditor or other fit person, after giving notice of application. Non-residents may act. If no administrator is appointed in sixty days, the sheriff may administer. Bonds are required of resident and non-resident administrators, in a sufficient amount to secure the estate of decedent. Executors and administrators are required under penalty of forfeiture of commissions to make annual returns on or before the first day of June before the county judge. Such returns shall show a full and correct account of the receipts and expenditures of the estates which they control for the judge's examination and approval. Notice of making such annual return must be given at least two months before filing same, by posting a written advertisement thereof on the court-house door, and also at some other public place in the county. Without such notice, duly proven, no account will be approved by the judge.

Appraisers are appointed by the court to appraise all the personal estate, and this appraisal, signed by the administrator or executor, may be used as the inventory of the estate. Real estate may be sold under the order of the county judge or circuit court to pay debts or for distribution. Such sales are made at public outcry by a commissioner, after publishing four weeks' notice of the sale. Real estate of minors may be sold by the executor, administrator, or guardian under orders of the circuit court or county judge. Executors and administrators are authorized to carry out contracts of their decedents made in relation to the sale of real estate, and execute a deed to the vendee.

Executors and administrators appointed in other States are authorized to sue in this State on the production of duly authenticated copies of the will and letters.

Circuit courts are empowered to authorize curators, administrators, and executors to continue the trade or business of deceased persons when necessary to prevent great loss to the estate.

After paying expenses of administration, executors and administrators pay the debts of the deceased in the following order: First, the necessary funeral expenses; next, debts due for board and lodging during the last sickness of the deceased; next, physician's and surgeon's bills for medicine and attendance during the last sickness of the deceased; next, judgments of record rendered and docketed in the State during the lifetime of the deceased, and all debts due to this State; and finally, all other debts, whether by specialty or otherwise, without distinction of rank.

The administrator must publish a notice to the creditors that their claims be presented within two years. This notice must be published once a week for eight weeks in a newspaper published in the county where the administration was granted.

No executor or administrator can be compelled to pay the debts of the testator or intestate until after the expiration of six months from the taking out letters testamentary or of administration, nor can any legacy or distribution be required until the expiration of the same period, and then only upon bond and security, if required, to refund a due proportion of any debts or demands which may appear afterwards within two years from the granting of letters against the estate.

All debts and demands against the estate of any testator or intestate, which are not presented to the executor or administrator, as the case may be, within the time above stated, will be forever afterwards barred, saving, however, to married women, infants, persons of unsound mind, imprisoned, or beyond the limits of the United States, in the military or naval service thereof during war, a term of two years after their respective disabilities shall be removed. No different proof is required of non-residents than from citizens or residents of the State. The statute prescribes no specific mode of proof, though it is customary to require the claimant to make oath to his claim before a notary public, or some other officer authorized by law to administer oaths.

The oath prescribed by law to be taken by executors, administrators, and guardians, before entering upon their duties as such, may be administered by any officer authorized to administer an oath; provided that when such oath is not administered by the county judge of the county in which the will is probated, and in which the administration or guardianship is granted, the same shall be administered and taken only under and by virtue of a commission issued by such county judge authorizing such officer as may be named therein to administer such oath.

The widow may elect to take either dower or child's part. If she takes dower, it is one third for life in the real estate, and, if there be no children, one half of the personalty absolutely. If there be more than one child, one third of the personalty. If there be no children, the widow is the sole heir of the husband's real estate and personal property. Acceptance under the will of the husband shall not prevent the widow from taking dower or child's part in personalty not disposed of by such will. Dower is allowed the widow, whether the estate is solvent or not.

Conditional Sales. — An agreement in writing to sell personal property, the title to which is reserved by the seller until the purchase-money is paid by the buyer, is a conditional sale, and does not vest title in the buyer until the performance of the condition, to wit, the payment of the purchase-money, notwithstanding that, at the time of making said agreement, possession of the property is delivered by the seller to the purchaser.

In the absence of statutory regulations on the subject, the above decision of the supreme court of Florida, rendered in 1886, is inserted. (Campbell Manufacturing Co. v. Walker, 22 Fla. 412.)

A conditional sale of personal property, by which the title is reserved to the seller until the purchase-money is paid, will be void as to creditors and purchasers for a valuable consideration after the expiration of two years' possession on the part of the purchaser, unless such sale be declared in writing and recorded.

Consignments. — If a consignee or factor deposits or pledges any merchandise, bill of lading, certificate, or order for the delivery of merchandise consigned or intrusted to him as security for money borrowed, or negotiable instrument received by him, and disposes of or applies the same to his own use in violation of good faith and with intent to defraud the owner thereof; or with the like fraudulent intent applies or disposes of any money or negotiable instrument raised or acquired by the sale or other disposition of such merchandise, bill of lading, certificate, or order, to his own use, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or imprisonment in the state penitentiary not exceeding five years. Persons who procure consignments by false representations are punishable by fine of five hundred dollars or six months in jail.

Warehousemen's and wharfingers' receipts are negotiable by indorsement, the effect of which is to transfer to the indorsee the title, right of possession, and remedies of each prior indorser.

Corporations. — Corporations may be organized either by special act of the legislature or under the general law. Corporations to do any general business are organized by publishing a notice of incorporation in a newspaper at the place of business, stating name of the corporation, its place of business, the nature of the business, the amount of stock and how paid in, time of commencement and termination of the corporation, officers, and highest amount of indebtedness and the names and residences of the subscribers. Subscribing incorporators must state the amount of stock subscribed for by each, and total amount must be not less than ten per cent. of capital stock. Each subscriber must acknowledge signature before a notary. The charter then is issued on proper proof of publication, and payment to the secretary of state of two dollars on each thousand dollars of capital stock, provided that no charter fee shall be less than five dollars nor more than two hundred and fifty dollars. The charter must be recorded in the clerk's office in the county where the office is situated. Corporation cannot transact any business until ten per cent. of its capital stock has been paid in and affidavits of treasurer to that effect filed with secretary of state and county clerk. Payment must be in money unless payment in other property or services is authorized in charter at valuation therein specified. Copy of by-laws posted in place of business. Statement of amount of capital stock and indebtedness should be published every six months, and once a year in a newspaper at the state capital. Corporations for religious, educational, charitable, and eleemosynary purposes may be organized under charter granted by the judge of the circuit court after notice of application duly published. Corporations continue for at least three years after attempted dissolution for the purpose of collecting any debts due from them. Suits may be commenced against corporations in any county in which they usually keep an office for transaction of customary business, or where cause of action occurred, or where property in litigation is situated; service is made on such agent. This applies also to foreign corporations. There are special provisions of law in regard to the incorporation of railroad and banking corporations, and as to the terms on which insurance and surety companies may do business in this State.

The individual liability of a stockholder of corporations organized under the general incorporation laws is limited to so much as may remain unpaid upon his or her subscription; all property, whether real or personal, of any stockholder, is exempt from the debts or liabilities of such corporation contracted in its corporate capacity, except the stock or shares of said stockholder of or in said corporation, to the extent mentioned above.

Corporations are made liable in damages for death of person killed by their wrongful act, carelessness, negligence, or default, at suit of widow or husband, minor child or children, executor or administrator, in the order named. Stock in any corporation may be levied upon and sold under execution against the owner thereof. Corporations are taxed on their property at the same rates as individuals. Taxes are payable on first Monday in November of each year.

Foreign corporations must obtain a permit to do business from the secretary of state by paying a charter fee equal to that paid by a domestic corporation and by filing a certified copy of articles of incorporation. Transacting business or buying or selling property in the State before complying is unlawful and will render officers and agents liable to criminal action, and no suit can be maintained on any contract in courts of the State before complying. This act does not apply to corporations doing business in Florida before 1907, or to foreign banking and trust companies.

Courts, Jurisdiction and Terms of. — See Court Calendar for Florida.

Deeds, and the Acknowledgment thereof. — No estate or interest of freehold or for a term of more than two years, or any uncertain interest of, in, or out of any messuages, lands, tenements, or hereditaments, shall be created, made, granted, conveyed, transferred, or released, in other manner than by deed in writing sealed and delivered in the presence of at least two witnesses, by the party creating, making, granting, conveying, transferring, or releasing such estate, interest, or term of years, or by his, her, or their agent thereto lawfully authorized, unless by last will and testament.

A scroll answers the purpose of a seal. Where no words of limitation are expressed in a deed, the fee will pass, or such interest as grantor has.

Any married woman owning real property may sell, convey, or mortgage it, as she might do if she were not married, provided her husband join in such sale, conveyance, or mortgage. A married woman may release dower by joining her husband in the conveyance, or by a separate deed executed in like manner as other conveyances.

To render good and effectual any conveyance, transfer, or mortgage of real property, or any interest therein, or any lease for the term of one year or longer against creditors or subsequent purchasers for a valuable consideration without notice, it must be recorded. No such instrument made or executed in virtue of any power of attorney shall be good or effectual in law or equity as against creditors or subsequent purchasers for a valuable consideration and without notice unless the power of attorney be recorded before the accruing of the right of such creditor or subsequent purchaser.

In order to entitle any of the instruments named in the preceding sections, or any other instruments concerning real property, to such record, the execution thereof must be acknowledged by the party executing the same, or the execution thereof by the said party must be proved by a subscribing witness thereto before the officers and in the manner following: If such acknowledgment or proof be made within this State, it may be made before any judge, clerk, or deputy clerk of any court of record, or a United States commissioner, notary public, or justice of the peace of this State, and the certificate of acknowledgment or proof shall be under the seal of the court or the officer, as the case may be. If the acknowledgment or proof be made out of this State but within the United States, it may be made before a commissioner of deeds appointed by the governor of this State, or before a judge or clerk of any court of the United States or of any State, Territory, or district having a seal, or before a notary public or justice of the peace of such State, Territory, or district having an official seal, and the certificate of acknowledgment or proof shall be under the seal of the court or officer, as the case may be. If the acknowledgment or proof be made in any foreign country, it may be before any commissioner of deeds appointed by the governor of this State to reside in such country, or before any notary public of such foreign country having an official seal, or before any minister, chargé d'affaires consul-general, consul, vice-consul, commercial agent, or vice-commercial agent of the United States appointed to reside in such country, and the certificate of acknowledgment or proof shall be under the seal of the officer. No certificate of the official character of such officer is required from any other officer or authority. Acknowledgment may be in writing or printed or pasted on the instrument.

To render such sale, conveyance, mortgage, or relinquishment, whether of separate estate or of dower, effectual to pass a married woman's estate or right, she must acknowledge before some officer authorized to take acknowledgment of deeds, on a private examination separate and apart from her husband, that she executed the same freely and voluntarily, and without compulsion, constraint, apprehension, or fear of or from her husband, and the officer's certificate shall set forth all the foregoing requirements. A husband may convey title to his wife by deed made direct to her.

The certificate of the officer before whom the acknowledgment or proof shall be taken shall contain and set forth substantially the matter required to be done or proved to make such acknowledgment or proof effectual.

No acknowledgment or proof shall be taken by any officer within or without the United States, unless he shall know, or have satisfactory proof, that the person making the acknowledgment is the individual described in and who executed such instrument, or that the person offering to make such proof is one of the subscribing witnesses to such instrument.

Where the grantors and witnesses of any instrument which may be recorded are dead, or cannot be had, the judge of the circuit court, or the county judge for the county wherein the real property is situated, may take the examination of any competent witness or witnesses, on oath, to prove the handwriting of the witness or witnesses, or, where such proof cannot be had, then to prove the handwriting of the grantor or grantors, which shall be certified by the judge, and the instrument being thus proved may be recorded.

All instruments relating to real and personal property which are authorized or required to be recorded shall be deemed to be recorded from the time the same are filed with the officer whose duty it is to record the same.

Note. — In regard to adjournments in taking depositions there is no regulation by statute or rule of court, but the practice is that commissioners may adjourn from time to time as may be necessary until the commission is executed.

Descent of Property. — By the laws of this State, whenever any person having title to real estate of inheritance shall die intestate as to such estate, it shall descend in parcenary to the male and female kindred as follows: To his children, or their descendants, if any there be. If no children, nor their descendants, then to his father. If no father, then to his mother, brothers, and sisters, and their descendants, or such of them as there be. If no brother, nor sister, nor their descendants, the inheritance shall be divided into moieties, one of which shall go to the paternal, the other to the maternal kindred in the following course, namely, first to the grandfather. If no grandfather, then to the grandmother, uncles, and aunts on the same side, and their descendants, or such of them as there be. If there be no grandmother, uncle, nor aunt, nor their descendants, then to the great-grandfathers, or great-grandfather, if there be but one.

If there be no great-grandfathers, then to the great-grandmothers, or great-grandmother, if there be but one; and the brothers and sisters of the grandfathers and grandmothers, and their descendants, or such of them as there be.

And so in other cases without end, passing to the nearest lineal male ancestors, and, for want of them, to the lineal female ancestors in the same degree, and the descendants of such male and female ancestors, or such of them as there may be. If the decedent be married and leave a wife or husband surviving, but no children, such surviving wife or husband takes the whole of the property, both real and personal. (Laws of 1872 and G. S. 1906.) Also see Dower. If the decedent be a married woman and leave her husband and children surviving, the husband takes the same share as a child.

Whenever infant dies without issue and leaving no husband or wife, property descends to the father, if no father survives, then to mother, if no mother survives, then to brothers and sisters or their descendants, if none of these survive, then according to general statute of descents.

And where from want of issue of the intestate, and the father, mother, brothers, and sisters, and their descendants, the inheritance is before directed to go by moieties to the paternal and maternal kindred; if there should be no such kindred on the one part, the whole shall go to the other part, and if there be no kindred either on the one part or the other, the whole shall go to the kindred of the wife or husband of the intestate in the like course as if such wife or husband had survived the intestate and then died entitled to the estate. And in the cases before mentioned, when the inheritance is directed to pass to the ascending and collateral kindred of the intestate, if part of such collaterals be of the whole blood to the intestate, and other part of the half blood only, those of the half blood shall inherit only half as much as those of the whole blood; but if all be of the half blood, they shall have whole portions, only giving to the ascendants (if any there be) double portions. The distribution of personal property shall be made according to the provisions of the law regulating descents of real estate. An illegitimate child may inherit or transmit inheritance on the part of the mother. There is no collateral inheritance tax.

Divorce. — All divorces are obtainable only by suit in equity, begun by filing a bill after the complainant has resided in the State two years, except that, where the defendant has committed adultery in this State, the complainant being a citizen of this State may obtain divorce at any time without two years' residence. No divorce is granted from bed and board, but only from the bonds of matrimony. Divorces may be obtained only on one or more of the following grounds: —

1. That the parties are within the degrees prohibited by law. 2. That the defendant is naturally impotent. 3. That the defendant has been guilty of adultery, without the collusion of the parties therein. 4. Extreme cruelty. 5. Habitual indulgence in violent or ungovernable temper. 6. Habitual intemperance. 7. Willful, obstinate, and continued desertion for one year. 8. That the defendant has obtained a divorce from the complainant in another State or country. 9. That either party had a wife or husband living at the time of the marriage sought to be annulled. In the case of divorce because either party had husband or wife living at the time of the marriage the marriage is invalid from the beginning, and the issue illegitimate and subject to all the disabilities of such issue.

Suits may be brought against defendants residing out of the State as in other cases in chancery.

The wife, whether complainant or defendant, upon a well founded bill, answer, or petition, may obtain alimony and suit money.

She may also, having grounds upon which she might sue for divorce, obtain alimony and suit money without seeking divorce. Where the husband, having the ability, fails to contribute to the maintenance of his wife or minor children, the wife, whether living with him or apart from him through his fault, may obtain maintenance or contribution. No alimony shall be granted to an adulterous wife.

In suits for divorce or alimony the court may make such order in regard to the custody and maintenance of the children of the marriage as their interests may require. Either husband or wife may testify in divorce suits, but decree cannot be granted on such testimony alone. Desertion by husband of wife or children, or withholding means of support from them, is a criminal offense.

Dower. — The widow is entitled as dower to a life estate in one third of the realty of which her husband died seized and possessed, or of which he was seized and possessed at any time during the coverture (and had conveyed), in which she had not relinquished her dower, and to one third part of the personalty absolutely; and this claim to dower is a preferred one, and superior to that of a creditor. Instead of dower a widow may elect to take a child's part in the estate of her deceased husband, provided she makes her election within twelve months from the probate of the will or granting of letters of administration. Where there are no children, or only one child, wife takes as dower one half of the personalty absolutely; otherwise one third.

If she takes a child's part in lieu of dower, she takes a fee-simple estate in the realty; and an absolute title to the personalty, but subject to the payment of the debts of the husband. Acceptance under the will of the husband shall not prevent the widow from taking dower or child's part in property not disposed of by the will. See Deeds, and the Acknowledgment thereof, as to relinquishment.

Evidence. — See Testimony.

Execution. — The only execution in use in the practice in this State to enforce the satisfaction of a judgment for the payment of money is the writ of fiery facias. Under the writ of fiery facias the lands as well as the goods and chattels of the judgment debtor may be sold. The writ of fiery facias binds the goods and chattels of the judgment debtor from the time it comes into the hands of the sheriff. Execution may issue immediately after judgment rendered. Executions are returnable when satisfied. Officer failing to levy an execution may be compelled to do so by mandamus. Plaintiff is entitled to execution at any time within three years after judgment, and to renew same within twenty years. Execution may be renewed by scire facias, and execution issued thereon at any time within twenty years from date of judgment. Scire facias is served as writs of summons at law. If party be a non-resident, service is obtained by publication for four weeks in a paper published in the county where the writ is to be issued. See Stay of Execution.

Exemptions. — Article X. of the constitution of 1885 provides as follows: "Sec. 1. A homestead to the extent of one hundred and sixty acres of land, or the half of one acre within the limits of any incorporated city or town, owned by the head of a family residing in this State, together with one thousand dollars' worth of personal property, and the improvements on the real estate, shall be exempt from forced sale under process of any court, and the real estate shall not be alienable without the joint consent of husband and wife, when that relation exists. But no property shall be exempt from sale for taxes or assessments or for the payment of obligations contracted for the purchase of said property, or for the erection or repair of improvements on the real estate exempted, or for house, field, or other labor performed on the same. The exemption herein provided for in a city or town shall not extend to more improvements or buildings than the residence and business house of the owner; and no judgment or decree or execution shall be a lien upon exempted property except as provided in this article. Sec. 2. The exemptions provided for in section one shall inure to the widow and heirs of the party entitled to such exemption, and shall apply to all debts, except as specified in said section. Sec. 3. The exemptions provided for in the constitution of this State adopted in 1868 shall apply as to all debts contracted and judgments rendered since the adoption thereof and prior to the adoption of this constitution. Sec. 4. Nothing in this article shall be construed to prevent the holder of a homestead from alienating his or her homestead so exempted by deed or mortgage duly executed by himself or herself, and by husband and wife, if such relation exists; nor, if the holder be without children, to prevent him or her from disposing of his or her homestead by will, in a manner prescribed by law. Sec. 5. No homestead provided for in section one shall be reduced in area on account of its being subsequently included within the limits of an incorporated city or town, without the consent of the owner."

When the homestead is not within the corporate limits of any town or city, the person claiming said exemption shall have the right to set apart that portion of land belonging to him which includes his residence, or not, at his option.

The supreme court in Drucker v. Rosenstein, 19 Fla. 191, decided that "a piece of land never occupied as a dwelling-place or home, and incapable of such occupancy, is not a homestead within the meaning of the constitution and laws of this State."

chasers, unless proceedings are commenced in nine months from that date to reestablish such record.

License. — Commercial agents, known as drummers, are not required to pay a license. See, further, Tax Law.

Lien Law. — Liens prior in dignity to all others accruing thereafter may exist in favor of the following persons, upon the following described real estate, under the circumstances hereinafter mentioned, to wit: In favor of any mechanic, laborer, or person who shall perform by himself or others any labor upon, or in the construction or repair of, any building or any other work or structure, or of additions to or upon any fixtures therein or thereon; upon such building, work, or structure, and the land upon which it stands. In favor of any person performing by himself or others any labor upon any railroad, canal, telegraph or telephone line, wharf, mill, distillery, or other manufactory, whether in the construction, repair, or operation thereof; upon such line, wharf, mill, distillery, or other manufactory, any and all franchises, machinery, and equipments connected therewith or thereon and upon the land upon which they stand. In favor of any person who shall furnish any building material for the construction, repair, or use of any building, fence, railroad, canal or telegraph line, wharf, bridge, mill, distillery, or other manufacturing work or structure; upon the said buildings, lines, or other property, and upon the lands upon which they stand. In favor of any person performing by himself or others any labor upon or in any farm, orchard, grove, garden, park, or other grounds, whether in clearing up, fencing, ditching, or draining, or in maintaining, improving, or cultivating the same; upon such farm, orchard, grove, garden, park, or other grounds.

On personal property as follows: In favor of any person, by himself or others, performing any labor upon or with any engine, machine, apparatus, fixture, or implement; upon such engine, machine, apparatus, fixture, or implement. In favor of any person, by himself or others, cutting, rafting, running, driving, or performing other labor upon logs or timber of any kind; on such logs and timber, and on any article manufactured therefrom. In favor of bookkeepers, clerks, agents, porters, and other employees of merchants and transportation companies and other corporations; upon the stock, fixtures, and other property of such merchants, companies, or corporations. In favor of any person performing labor in or in managing, or overseeing the cultivation or harvesting of crops; upon the crops cultivated or harvested. In favor of any person performing by himself or others any labor or service of any kind on, to, or for the use or benefit of a vessel or water craft, including masters, mates, and members of the crew and persons loading or unloading the vessel, or putting in or taking out ballast; upon such vessel or water craft, her tackle, apparel, and furniture. For manufacture and repairing articles, in favor of any person who shall so manufacture, alter, or repair any article or thing of value; upon such article or thing. In favor of any person who shall furnish any logs, lumber, clay, sand, stone, or other material whatsoever, crude or partially or wholly prepared for use, to any mill or other manufactory, to be manufactured into any article of value; upon such articles furnished and upon all articles manufactured therefrom. In favor of any one who shall furnish any locomotive or stationary engine, water-engine, wind-mill, car, or other machine or parts of machine or instrument for any railroad, telegraph, or telephone line mill, distillery, or other manufactory; upon the articles so furnished. In favor of any shipchandler, storekeeper, or dealer furnishing stores, provisions, rigging, or other materials to or for the use of any ship, vessel, steamboat, or other water craft. In favor of all keepers of livery, sale, or feed stables, for feeding or taking care of any horse or other animal put in their charge; upon such horse or other animal. In favor of owners of stallions, jackasses, or bulls upon the colt or calf of the get of said stallion, jackass, or bull, and also upon the mare, jenny, or cow served by said stallion, jackass, or bull. In favor of keepers of hotels and boarding-houses for the board and lodging of, and moneys advanced to guests; upon the goods and chattels belonging to such guests in such hotel or boarding-house. Upon the non-payment of such sums according to the rules of such hotel or boarding-house, the keeper thereof may instantly eject such guest therefrom. Such lien shall extend to the interest of the person by whose procurement, whether by himself or agent, the work is done or material furnished. As against the owner and those in privity with him, and creditors and purchasers with notice, such lien shall be acquired by any person in privity with such owner by the performance of the labor or the furnishing of materials. Purchasers during construction of work are purchasers with notice. When contract is made with person other than owner, notice must be given the owner of intention to claim lien. As against creditors and purchasers without notice, lien exists from time of record of notice in office of clerk of circuit court and must be filed within three months; or a cautionary notice where one is about to furnish material or do work. Suit to enforce the above lien must be brought within twelve months from the completion of the work or the furnishing of the materials. Property may be released from a lien claimed thereon by filing with the clerk of the circuit court a bond in double the sum claimed. Landlords have a lien on the tenant's crops, or goods or property of any kind brought on the premises. Warehousemen and wharfingers have a lien on goods and chattels left and stored with them. Material-men are now required to give owner immediate notice of claim of lien. Persons making advances of money, goods, or chattels to any person in the business of planting, farming, timber-getting, or any other business shall have a lien on the products of such business to secure such advances.

Limitation of Actions. — No action for the recovery of real property, or the possession thereof, against a person claiming under color of title, may be maintained, unless it appear that the plaintiff or person under whom he claims was seized or possessed of the premises within seven years before the commencement of the action. Where the action is against a person claiming without color of title, the limitation is seven years' adverse possession where person claims title not founded upon written instrument, where lands protected by a substantial inclosure, or where usually cultivated or improved.

No cause of action or defense to an action founded upon the title to real property, or to rents, or to service out of the same, shall be effectual unless it appear that the person prosecuting the action or making the defense, or under whose title the action is prosecuted or the defense is made, or the party through whom such person claims, was seized or possessed of the premises in question within seven years, according as the claim is with or without color of title, before the accruing of the right of action or defense in respect to which such action is prosecuted or defense made, or unless it appears that the title to such premises was derived from the United States or the State of Florida within seven years before the commencement of such action; and the cause of action shall not commence to run until the date of the patent issued by the State or the United States.

All actions other than those for the recovery of real property can only be commenced as follows: Within twenty years: First, on judgments rendered in this State; an action upon any contract, obligation, or liability founded upon an instrument of writing under seal. Within seven years: an action upon a judgment or decree of any court of the United States or of any foreign country. Within five years: an action upon any contract, obligation, or liability founded upon an instrument of writing not under seal. Within four years: any action for relief not specifically provided for in the act (chapter 1869, Acts 1872). Within three years: First, an action upon a liability created by statute, other than a penalty or forfeiture; second, an action for trespass upon real property, third, an action for taking, detaining, or injuring any goods or chattels, including actions for the specific recovery of personal property; fourth, an action for relief on the ground of fraud, the cause of action in such case not to be deemed to have accrued until the discovery by the aggrieved party of the fact constituting the fraud; fifth, an action upon a contract, obligation, or liability not founded upon an instrument of writing, including an action on an open account for goods, wares, and merchandise, and on store accounts. Within two years: First, an action by another than the State upon a statute for a penalty or forfeiture; second, an action for libel, slander, assault, battery, or false imprisonment. Within one year: an action by the State for a penalty or forfeiture under a penal act of the legislature. In an action brought to recover a balance due upon a mutual open and current account, where there have been reciprocal demands between the parties, the cause of action shall be deemed to have accrued from the time of the last item proved in the account, on either side. A promise to pay a debt barred by the statute must be in writing.

All actions for relief not hereinbefore provided for must be commenced within four years after the cause of action shall have accrued.

No person shall avail himself of a disability unless it existed when the cause of action accrued.

When the cause of action has arisen in another State or Territory of the United States, or in a foreign country, and by the laws thereof an action thereon cannot there be maintained against a person, by reason of the lapse of time, no action thereon shall be maintained against him in this State. If an action accrues against a party out of the State, the limitation does not run until he returns to the State, and if he leaves the State after the cause of action accrues, the time of absence is not computed in the period of limitation.

Lunatics. — Guardian, curator, committee, or conservator of insane persons appointed by a foreign court, where they are domiciled, are authorized to manage, control, and dispose of property in this State under the order of a county or circuit judge. The judge of the circuit court may appoint guardians of insane persons to manage property in this State, whether such insane persons are residents of Florida or not.

Married Women. — The Constitution, article XI., provides that all property, real and personal, of a wife, owned by her before marriage, or lawfully acquired afterwards by gift, devise, bequest, descent, or purchase, shall be her separate property, and the same shall not be liable for the debts of her husband without her consent given by some instrument in writing executed according to the law respecting conveyances by married women.

"A married woman's separate real or personal property may be charged in equity and sold, or the uses, rents, and profits thereof sequestered for the purchase-money thereof; or for money or thing due upon any agreement made by her in writing for the benefit of her separate property; or for the price of any property purchased by her, or for labor and material used with her knowledge or assent in the construction of buildings, or repairs, or improvements upon her property, or for agricultural or other labor bestowed thereon with her knowledge and consent."

The property of the wife shall remain in the care and management of the husband, but he shall not charge for his care and management, nor shall a wife be entitled to sue her husband for the rent, hire, issues, proceeds, or profits of her said property. The husband and wife shall join in all sales, transfers, and conveyances of the property of the wife. The husband shall not be liable to pay the debts of the wife contracted before marriage, but the property of the wife shall be subject to such debts. A married woman shall have right to bring suits or actions for or concerning her real estate, without joining her husband or next friend. A married woman's wages and earnings acquired by her in any employment separate from her husband shall be her separate property and subject to her own disposal, as though she were a single woman. Married women may convey property by power of attorney properly executed and acknowledged as requisite for deeds, and recorded.

A married woman residing in the State may become a free dealer, and manage, take charge of, and control her own estate, and contract and be contracted with, sue and be sued, as if unmarried, by making petition in chancery to the judge of the circuit court, who, upon being satisfied, upon testimony taken before a master, as to the capacity and qualifications of such married woman to take charge of and manage her own estate, and to become a free dealer, may grant her a license for that purpose, in accordance with the prayer of the petition, four weeks' notice of such application being published.

It shall not be lawful for any married woman to take charge of and manage her own estate until the order and decree granting such license shall have been published four weeks in succession in some newspaper in the county. Suits in behalf of married women are brought as at the common law. The husband must join, or she must sue by next friend, except as above provided. A wife of a husband adjudged to be insane and who so continues to be insane for one year is permitted to manage, sell, convey, and contract concerning her separate property without her husband joining in or consenting to the same. Deed executed by a married woman, where her husband joins, is valid, although she be a minor. Deeds direct from husband to wife convey the title. See, also, Descent of Property; Dower Testimony; Wills.

Females become of age at twenty-one.

Mortgages and Deeds of Trust. — In order to be admitted to record, they must be proved or acknowledged in the same manner as deeds. They must be recorded in the office prescribed by law, in order to be effectual in law or equity against creditors or subsequent purchasers for valuable consideration without notice.

All deeds of conveyance, obligations conditioned or defeasible, bills of sale, or other instruments of writing conveying or selling property, either real or personal, for the purpose or with the intention of securing the payment of money, whether such deed, bill of sale, or other instrument be the same from the debtor to the creditor or from the debtor to some third person in trust for the creditor, shall be deemed and held as mortgages, and must be recorded and foreclosed as such.

Mortgages are held to be specific liens on the property described, and are not usually accompanied by bond to secure judgment for deficiency. This is provided for by Equity Rule 89, as follows: "In suits in equity for the foreclosure of mortgages a decree may be rendered for any balance that may be found due to the plaintiff over and above the proceeds of the sale or sales, and execution may issue for the collection of the same."

Mortgages may be foreclosed by bill in equity in the circuit court of the county in which the property is situated, if real property, or in which the mortgaged property may be, when it is personal property. In all cases the original mortgage or a certified copy must be attached to and form a part of the bill. Mortgages may be discharged by a satisfaction-piece either indorsed upon the mortgage or separate therefrom, duly proved or acknowledged for record before some officer authorized by the laws of Florida to take acknowledgment of deeds. The wife need not join in such satisfaction-piece.

Mortgages, judgments, or liens may be satisfied by the party entitled to receive payment of same, or in case of judgments by the attorney of record indorsing satisfaction of same on the record, in the presence of the custodian of the records. Where the records have been destroyed, mortgages must be re-recorded or reestablished in one year from June 5, 1905. Mortgage or trust deed of a corporation may include certain of its franchises, which pass to the purchaser under the mortgage or trust deed.

Notaries Public. — Notaries public are appointed by the governor for the term of four years. A woman may hold the office. A notary is appointed either for a county or for the State at large. He may administer oaths, protest commercial paper, take acknowledgments of relinquishments of dower and conveyances by married women, take acknowledgments of deeds and other instruments of writing for record, and may solemnize marriages. All acknowledgments of instruments for record must be attested with his official seal. The notary is required to add to his official signature to any acknowledgment or certificate concerning the sale, mortgage, or transfer of any property, a statement of the time when his commission will expire. In Florida it is not required that the official character of a notary certifying under his official seal be certified to by another official.

Notes and Bills of Exchange. — The law of negotiable instruments was codified by act of the legislature of 1897, which adopted the measure recommended by the commissioners on uniformity of laws in 1896. Days of grace are abolished. Judgment notes are not in use. Homestead and exemptions cannot be waived by stipulations in a promissory note. Provisions for the payment of attorney's fees, exchange, and other similar charges do not affect the negotiability of a note, nor do such charges render the note subject to the usury laws.

Damages on foreign protested bills of exchange are allowed at the rate of five per cent. New Year's Day, Lee's Birthday (January 19). Washington's Birthday, Good Friday, Memorial Day (April 26), June 3 (Jefferson Davis's Birthday), the 4th of July, Labor Day (1st Monday in September), Thanksgiving Day, Christmas Day, general election days and Shrove Tuesday, or Mardi Gras Day in counties where there may be a carnival association shall, as to the presentation, payment, etc., of negotiable paper, be considered as public holidays, and such negotiable paper otherwise presentable for acceptance or payment on the said days shall be deemed to be presentable for acceptance or payment on the secular business day next succeeding such holiday. Whenever any legal holiday shall fall on a Sunday, the Monday next following shall be deemed a public holiday for all or any of the purposes aforesaid.

Consideration need be proved only when denied by the defendant under oath. As between maker and subsequent holder, the bona fides of purchase and consideration only need be proved where defendant shows purchaser knew the original character of the note or bought it under suspicious circumstances.

Co-sureties and accommodation indorsers are bound to each other for a proportional contribution, and if one such is compelled to pay he shall have his remedy against the other by suit for contribution.

Practice. — The first Mondays of each and every month in the circuit court are designated as rule days, for the return of writs and processes, for the entry of judgments by default, and for interlocutory proceedings and orders. The practice as it now exists is based upon the common law, modified so as to assimilate it to the modern English practice.

Proof of Claims. — Persons sending claims to Florida for collection should be careful to furnish their attorney with the full name, surname, and residence of the party in whose name the suit is to be brought. If the claim belongs to a partnership, the full name, surname, and residence of each member of the firm should be furnished. All accounts should be made out in detail, and the attorney furnished at once with the names of the witness or witnesses by whom the claim can be established, and the sale and delivery of the goods proved.

The affidavit of the party is not admissible evidence to prove the value, sale, and delivery of goods, if the suit is defended; in which case the claim must be proved and established by the testimony of witnesses taken upon deposition after notice, if such witness is not within the jurisdiction of the court. But if a default is entered, the clerk shall ascertain the amount which the plaintiff is entitled to recover from the examination of the plaintiff under oath, or other proofs, by affidavit or otherwise, and enter up the judgment so assessed or ascertained.

Affidavit in Proof of Claim upon Default.

v.
RICHARD ROE. } In Circuit Court, County, Florida.
STATE OF COUNTY OF

being duly sworn says that he is (bookkeeper for) (clerk for) (a member of the firm) plaintiff, that the account hereto attached is true and correct, that the goods therein mentioned were sold and delivered as therein stated by John Doe to Richard Roe, at the prices therein charged, that on the day of 19 there was due upon the said account the sum of $ payment of which was demanded when due, and that the said Richard Roe has not paid the same or any part thereof except as therein stated.

(Signature.)

Sworn to and subscribed before me this day of 19 .
(Commissioner of Deeds for Florida.)
(Notary Public.)

As the laws of this State and the rules of court authorize the officers of court to demand prepayment of costs in all cases, twenty-five dollars should be furnished the attorney for this purpose. One unimpeached witness is sufficient to establish the validity of a claim.

Records. — See Deeds; Mortgages; Chattel Mortgages.

Redemption. — By the laws of this State, no redemption is allowed on property sold on execution or foreclosure of mortgage. The title of the purchaser becomes absolute by the sale. See, also, Tax Law.

Replevin. — The action of replevin lies for the recovery of personal property wrongfully taken or detained, upon the plaintiff, or some other credible person in his behalf, making and filing an affidavit with the clerk or justice, stating that the plaintiff is lawfully entitled to the possession of the property, describing it, and that the same has not been taken for any tax, assessment, or fine levied by virtue of any law of this State, nor seized under any execution or attachment against the goods and chattels of such plaintiff liable to execution; and upon the filing a bond by the plaintiff or some competent person in his behalf, with good and sufficient security, to be approved by the clerk or justice, in double the value of the property.

The defendant may at any time within three days after the service of the writ demand a redelivery of the property to abide the issue of the suit, by giving bond, in like manner; otherwise, the property is delivered to the plaintiff.

When the property has been redelivered to the defendant in replevin and the plaintiff maintains his suit, he shall, at his option, get judgment for the property itself or its value; and if the property cannot be found on writ of possession, execution may issue against principal and sureties for the value of the property. Replevin cannot be joined with any other form of action.

Reports. — There have been seventy-one volumes of Florida Reports published, embracing all of the decisions of the supreme court of the State up to and including January term of 1916. An index of the decisions reported from vol. 1 to the first number of vol. 11, inclusive, was prepared by John B. Galbraith, attorney-general, by authority of the general assembly, and published in 1866. An index of the Reports from part 1 of vol. 11 to part 1 of vol. 17 has been prepared by R. M. Call, Esq., and published. An index-digest has been issued by John Wurts, Esq., and also a digest by C. A. Choate, Esq., of the Tallahassee bar. See, also, Southern Reporter Digest. A supplement to Wurt's Digest has recently been published, including vol. 67, Florida Reports.

Revision. — The statute law of the State of Florida in force on the sixth day of January, A. D. 1847, was digested and arranged by Leslie A. Thompson, Esq., and known as "Thompson's Digest." The laws of the State up to the first day of January, A. D. 1872, have been digested by the Hon. Allen Bush. This compilation is known as "Bush's Digest." A digest of the laws has been compiled by James F. McClellan, Esq., of the Marianna bar, by authority of the legislature. This compilation is known as "McClellan's Digest," which embraces all laws in force up to and inclusive of March 11, 1881.

A commission appointed by the governor for that purpose compiled a digest of the laws of Florida in force and submitted the same to the legislature in 1891. This revision was published under title of "Revised Statutes of the State of Florida," and went into effect June 13, 1892. It has since been superseded by the "General Statutes," a revision and compilation prepared by a commission under legislative enactment. The "General Statutes" went into effect December 1, 1906, and include all acts of a general nature passed up to and including the session of 1903, and has an appendix containing the Acts of 1905. The legislature meets biennially. Since the adoption of the "General Statutes," five volumes of Acts have been issued, those of 1907, 1909, 1911, 1913, and 1915.

Service of Summons. — All writs of process upon the institution of any suit in the circuit court shall be made returnable to the next rule day thereafter, unless there shall not be ten days intervening between the day of the issuing of the same and the next rule day, in which case the same shall be made returnable to the rule day in the next succeeding month. If service is made on the defendant ten days before the return day of the writ, he must appear on that day, and then has until the next succeeding rule day to plead. A default may be taken for want of appearance or plea on a rule day and judgment entered by the clerk on proof of claim. In justices' courts summons must be returnable to the next rule day, and served ten days before return day. See Court Calendar for Florida.

Service by Publication. — In actions at law there can be no service by publication, except in suits by attachment and garnishment. In this class of actions, if personal service be not obtained, and property be attached, notice of the institution of the suit must be published for the period of two months.

In suits in chancery, where it is shown by the affidavit of the complainant or his agent to be in the belief of affiant that defendant is either a non-resident of the State, or that his residence is unknown, or if a resident that he has been absent from the State more than sixty days next preceding the application for the order of publication, and there is no person in the State the service of a subpoena upon whom would bind such defendant, or that he conceals himself so that process cannot be served upon him, and such affiant further states his belief that the defendant is over or under twenty-one years of age, or if the age and residence of defendant are unknown, and so states, or if the bill sets forth the facts required to be stated in said affidavit, and is sworn to, it shall be the duty of the clerk or the judge of the court in which the bill is filed to make an order against such defendant, requiring him to appear to said bill before a day to be therein named, not less than thirty nor more than fifty days from the making thereof, if defendant is a resident of the United States, and not less than fifty nor more than eighty days if a non-resident of the United States, or if his residence is unknown. In all suits in chancery affecting or relating to title to real estate in which complainant shall state in sworn bill that there is a person or persons interested whose names are unknown to him and pray for relief against them in such bill he shall be entitled to process by publication. Decrees pro confesso can be entered as in other cases of service by publication. The clerk shall have all orders of publication against defendants published with as little delay as may be, in such newspaper as may be designated in the order, once a week for four consecutive weeks (if the defendant be stated to be a resident of the United States, and once each week for eight consecutive weeks if he be stated to be a non-resident of the United States, or if his residence be stated to be unknown); a copy of which order he must post up at the door of the court-house of the county where the court sits, and shall send by mail another copy to the defendant, where his residence is shown by the bill or affidavit, which copies shall be posted up and sent by mail within twenty days from the making of the order.

The clerk, before decree pro confesso is entered, must certify that publication has been made, and therein state when and how, and whether the notice was posted up or forwarded by mail to the defendant, which certificate shall be prima facie evidence of the facts stated therein. In certain suits in chancery affecting real estate, provision is made for notice to unknown parties in interest by publishing an order to such parties to appear to the bill in not less than twelve weeks from making of the order, and that the order be published for twelve weeks. On such parties failing to appear, decrees pro confesso may be made against them, but on application within one year such parties shall be entitled to a rehearing of the cause.

All official and legal advertisements shall be published in a newspaper within the county where the officer or person is required to make publication; and if no newspaper is published in such county, then by posting at the court-house door and three other public places in the county.

Stay of Execution. — On account of an illegality in the issue of an execution apparent on face of the proceedings, the court may, on application under oath and bond, stay the enforcement of the execution. Third persons may interpose claims for property levied upon under execution. Courts of equity are authorized to enjoin sales of real property under execution or legal process in cases where third party's property is levied upon. All sales of property under execution or other process shall take place on the first Monday of the month, between the hours of eleven and two; provided, in cases where the sales are not complete within the prescribed hours, the same continue until complete.

Tax Law. — The assessment and collection of taxes are provided for by sections 420-596, inclusive, of the General Statutes, as amended by chapters 5596, 5597, 5605, 5607, and 5623 of the Acts of 1907, and chapters 5884, 5885, and 5963, Acts of 1909, chapter 6474, Acts of 1913, and chapter 6841, Acts of 1915. Tax returns or report may be made to the county tax assessor between January 1 and April 1 of each year.

Real and personal property is taxed according to its cash value. A license tax is required of hotel-keepers, liquor-dealers, and a large class of other occupations. (Vide Acts 1913.) The total state tax for 1915 is three and one half mills and for 1916 three mills. The county tax is limited to five mills on the dollar, and seven mills for school purposes, and four mills to pay outstanding indebtedness. In some cases counties are permitted to collect certain special taxes for constructing court-houses and jails and working roads. Taxes are payable from the first day of November to the first day of April. Taxes are delinquent after April 1. Taxes become a lien from the date of the assessment, that is, January 1, of each year.

Any person, or agent or creditor of such person, claiming any land, or part thereof, may at any time after the sale and before a tax deed issues to the purchaser, redeem any parcel of said land, or part or interest in the same, by making affidavit of ownership or agency, and paying to the clerk of the circuit court the amount for which such land, or portion thereof, or interest therein, was sold, with interest at the rate of twenty-five per cent. for first year and eight per cent. thereafter, and fifty cents redemption fees.

Chapter 7272, Acts of 1917, provides that the rate of interest on arrearages of taxes and on all liens and tax-sales certificates which are owing to or held by the State of Florida, or any county, is fixed at eight per cent. per annum from the time said act takes effect in lieu of the interest, penalties, and costs fixed by law; provided that said act shall only apply to the taxes in arrears prior to January, 1917, and which shall be paid and the certificates therefor which shall be redeemed on or before October 1, 1918. (Approved May 28, 1917.)

When purchaser at tax sale goes into actual possession of land, no suit can be brought by former owner or his representative for recovery thereof unless brought within four years after the beginning of such possession. When land is in actual adverse possession of any person other than tax purchaser, such tax purchaser must bring suit for possession thereof, within one year after acquiring the right to a tax title, else he is barred, provided that infants, persons of unsound mind, or under guardianship, or imprisoned, may commence suit within three years after such disability shall cease.

Section 5, article IX. of the Constitution provides that the capitation tax shall not exceed one dollar a year. Railroads running into the State are taxed upon the value of all physical property in Florida, and must in addition pay a license tax of ten dollars upon each mile of track in the State, including side track. Officers of the railroad company are required to make a return annually before the first Monday in March to the comptroller of the portion of the road in Florida and value as of the first of January. Every telegraph line in the State must be returned for taxation to the comptroller, and assessed as in the case of railroads. Sleeping and parlor car companies are required on or before the first Monday in January to make returns of business done between points in this State, and must pay one dollar and fifty cents upon each one hundred dollars of gross receipts. Owner or holder of stock, when company is taxed on capital stock, or when the property of the corporation is assessed and taxes paid on same where located, is not required to pay taxes on stock. Banks and loan and trust companies in this State are required to make return of money, notes, or property belonging to other persons and held for investment. Insurance companies are required to pay two hundred dollars license tax, except plate glass insurance companies which pay only fifty dollars, and each of said companies is required to pay two per cent. on the amount of gross premiums. National banks are required to pay taxes on the shares of their capital stock owned by each stockholder, as the agent of such stockholder, and may retain the amount of such tax out of any dividend that may belong to such stockholder. All other banks must pay a license tax in addition, graded according to capital. Water companies, gas and electric light plants, telephone companies with one hundred instruments or more, express companies and steamboats must pay a license tax. Counties and incorporated cities and towns may impose further license taxes upon the same subjects, except as otherwise provided by the act, not however, to exceed fifty per cent of the state tax.

Testimony. — There is no exclusion of any witness in a civil action because he is a party to or interested in the issue tried, except that no party in interest shall be examined as a witness in regard to any transaction or communication between such witness and the party at the time of such examination deceased, insane, or lunatic, against the legal representative of such deceased, insane, or lunatic party; but this prohibition shall not extend to any transaction or communication, as to which any such legal representative shall be examined in his own behalf, or as to which the testimony of such deceased person or lunatic shall be given in evidence. Husband and wife are competent witnesses in civil causes where either of them is a party. Persons convicted of perjury are excluded from testifying. It is competent for parties to testify in suits for divorce or alimony. Where new trial is awarded and testimony cannot be obtained again, bill of exemption used at former trial may be used again on the new trial. Abstracts of title may be used as evidence in case of destruction of the records and deeds.

Trust Deeds. — See Mortgages.

Warehousemen and Warehouse Receipts. — An act known as the Uniform Warehouse Receipts Act became a law of this State at the last session of the legislature.

Wills and Testaments. — Every person of the age of twenty-one years and upwards, of sound and disposing mind, has the right and power, in this State, by last will and testament in writing, to devise and dispose of his or her lands, tenements, and hereditaments, and of his or her estates, right, title, and interest in the same, in possession, remainder, or reversion, or personal property, unless restricted by the will devises and bequests apply to property owned by the testator at the time of his death. Every such will and testament, to be valid, must be signed by the testator, or by some other person in his or her presence, and by his or her express directions; and wills disposing of real estate must be attested and subscribed in the presence of the testator or testatrix by two or more witnesses.

A married woman may dispose of her property, both real and personal, by last will and testament, in the same manner as if she were not married.

A nuncupative will must be proved by the oath of three witnesses at least who were present at the making thereof, and it must be proved by said witnesses that the testator or testatrix, at the time of pronouncing the same, did desire the persons present, or some of them, to bear witness that such was his or her will, or to that effect, and it must also be made in the time of the last sickness of the deceased. Six months after the speaking of such words, no testimony shall be received to prove any nuncupative will, unless the said testimony, or the substance thereof, was reduced to writing within six days from the making of said will, and sworn to before some judicial officer of the State within six days.

Foreign wills must be executed according to the laws of Florida, in order to operate as a devise of lands in this State. (20 Fla. 858.)

Last wills and testaments, both of real and personal property, may be admitted to probate, upon the oath of any person appointed executor or executrix thereto, or, where no executor or executrix is appointed, or the executor is interested in the estate bequeathed, of any other credible person having no interest under the will, that he or she verily believes the writing exhibited as the last will and testament to be the true last will and testament of the deceased. (Note. — When attesting witness to any will resides beyond the limits of the State, commission may be issued to obtain the evidence of the execution of such will.) Wills executed out of the State are proved under the same law, either by commission or oath before the probate judge.

Probate of wills conforming to the laws of Florida in regard to form and manner of execution, duly granted in other States or foreign countries, may be admitted to record in the county judge's court, and when recorded shall have the same effect, as to the disposition of property thereby devised or bequeathed, as the probate of wills executed in this State. A man may dispose of all his property, both real and personal, by will, except his homestead, where he leaves a wife or child.

GEORGIA LAWS.

Messrs. King & Spalding, of Atlanta.

The next legislature convenes on the fourth Wednesday in June, 1919.

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — Suits must be brought at least twenty days before the term of the court to which they are returnable; except suits in justice's courts, which must be brought ten days before the trial term. All distinctions between legal and equitable procedure are abolished. Jurisdiction of equitable causes of action is vested in the superior courts, but equitable defenses may be made in any court. Cases stand for trial at the term succeeding the return term, except actions for rent, which are triable at the return term, and except suits in justice's courts and in certain city courts, which have a different procedure by special act. In all suits on unconditional contracts in writing the defendant is required to file his defense under oath, otherwise the court renders judgment by default without the intervention of a jury. In all other cases where the plaintiff verifies his petition, the defendant must verify his answer. All allegations of a petition not answered by the defendant are taken as proven. Judgments on verdicts may be entered at any time during the term or within four days after its adjournment.

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Affidavits. — Affidavits made out of this State may be made before any officer of the State or county where oath is made who is authorized by the laws thereof to administer oaths. The official attestation of the officer before whom the oath or affidavit may be made shall be prima facie evidence of the official character of such officer, and that he was authorized by law to administer oaths; provided that this shall not apply to such affidavits as are expressly required by statute to be made before some particular officer within the State.

All pleas or defenses in any court of the State which are required to be under oath may be sworn to before any officer of the State or county where the oath is made, who is authorized by the laws thereof to administer oaths. The official attestation of the officer is prima facie evidence that he was authorized to administer oaths.

Proceedings for equitable relief, when required to be verified by a non-resident complainant or defendant, may also be sworn to before a commissioner of this State, or a commissioner, master, chancellor of a court of equity, or a judge of any court of the State where the oath is made. The officers of this State authorized to administer oaths are the judges and clerks of the courts, commissioners of the State, justices of the peace, and notaries public.

Aliens. — Aliens, the subjects of governments at peace with the United States and this State, are entitled to all the rights of citizens of other States resident in this State, and have the privilege of purchasing, holding, and conveying real estate.

Appeals. — Appeals to the superior courts must be taken within four days from the decision in justices' and county courts, and within four days from the adjournment in courts of ordinary. The appellant is required to pay the accrued costs of courts and to give bond and security for the eventual condemnation money, or he may make an affidavit that he is advised and believes he has good cause of appeal, and that owing to his poverty he is unable to pay the costs or give the security required by law. The name of the appellant may be signed by his attorney at law or in fact to the bond. If the latter, his authority must appear in writing. Sureties in the appeal bond must be worth the amount of the condemnation money over and above their debts and exemptions. No given number of sureties is required, — one or more, as the clerk of the court may accept.

Arrest. — Imprisonment for debt is not allowed; but where a plaintiff in actions for the recovery of personal property shall make affidavit that he has reason to apprehend that said personal property has been or will be eloiigned or moved away, or will not be forthcoming to answer the judgment, etc., the defendant must deliver such property to the sheriff, or other proper officer, or in default must be arrested by such officer and committed to jail, unless he give bond with good security in double the amount claimed in the plaintiff's affidavit or, upon application to the judge, he states on oath that he is neither able to give the security required by law nor to produce the property, and can furnish satisfactory reasons for its non-production; and he shall also traverse the plaintiff's statements in his affidavit.

and the judge, upon the hearing, shall discharge him upon his own recognizance to answer the suit. See also Replevin.

Attorneys, sheriffs, and other officers of court may be imprisoned on attachment for failure to pay over money when so ordered by the court.

Assignments.— The following laws are retained, because there may be cases where they will not be affected by the national bankruptcy act. Where conflicting with such act they are superseded.

Every assignment or transfer by a debtor insolvent at the time, of real or personal property, or choses in action of any description, either in trust or in behalf of creditors, where any trust or benefit is reserved to the assignor or any person for him, is fraudulent in law against creditors, and as to them null and void. Likewise every conveyance of real or personal estate by writing or otherwise, and every bond, suit, judgment, and execution, or contract of any description, had or made with intention to delay or defraud creditors, and such intention known to the party taking, is void as to creditors. So also every voluntary deed or conveyance, not for a valuable consideration, made by a debtor insolvent at the time of such conveyance.

A debtor may prefer one creditor to another, and to that end may bona fide give a lien by mortgage or other legal means, or he may sell in payment of the debt, or he may transfer negotiable papers as collateral security, the surplus in such cases not being reserved for his own benefit nor partner therein. But no limited partnership, where it or he is insolvent or in contemplation of insolvency, can make an assignment with preferences.

A general assignment for the benefit of creditors will not affect a levy made under an attachment prior to such assignment.

Private persons and general partnerships may make assignments for the benefit of creditors, with preferences. Special partnerships and corporations, not municipal, may make assignments for the benefit of creditors, but cannot prefer any debts which are not entitled to priority by the laws of Georgia.

Deeds of assignment must be executed, filed, and recorded as provided in case of other deeds.

Assignment for the benefit of creditors must convey all of the property of every sort held, claimed, or owned by the assignor at the time; it must identify any lands owned by him, or any interest in lands; all goods, wares, and merchandise by general words of description, indicating the location, kind, and quality, and, as near as may be, the purchase price and selling price of the lot as a whole; and shall describe in general terms any shares of capital stock, live stock, and personal property not connected with any mercantile or manufacturing business. The assignee must attach a list of all creditors, with their post-office addresses and amount due each. The assignment must convey all books, books of account, choses in action, notes, judgments, mortgages, and the like, stating their aggregate amount, and the amounts considered good, doubtful, and bad.

At the time of making an assignment, the assignor must make and annex to the assignment an affidavit that the above requirements have been complied with, and that the preferred debts are bona fide, just, due, and unpaid, and that the assignment is not made for the purpose of hindering, delaying, or defrauding creditors. The form of the affidavit is prescribed by statute.

Within fifteen days after the record of the assignment the assignor, together with the assignee, must prepare a complete list of all property of every kind, character, and description, held, claimed, owned, or possessed by the assignor at the time of making the assignment, to which must be attached the affidavit of the assignor that said list is true. The assignee shall also attach an affidavit as to the truth of said list, swearing to the best of his knowledge, information, and belief. Said list must be filed for ten days in the clerk's office of the superior court.

Foreign assignments do not pass property located in this State, unless the assignment conforms to the laws of this State.

The assignee must give bond for the faithful performance of his trust, upon the request of any three creditors of the assignor. The assignee cannot pay preferred debts until after sixty days from the filing of the assignment in the clerk's office. The assignee is required to notify each creditor within thirty days after the filing of the assignment, and to give each creditor notice within thirty days of proceedings attacking the assignment.

Attachments— May issue in the following cases, whether debt is due or not: 1st. When the debtor resides out of the State. 2d. When he is actually removing, or about to remove, without the limits of the county. 3d. When he absconds. 4th. When he conceals himself. 5th. When he resists a legal arrest. 6th. When he is causing his property to be removed beyond the limits of the State. 7th. When a debtor sells, conveys, or conceals his property liable for the payment of his debts, to avoid paying the same, or threatens or prepares so to do, or makes a fraudulent lien thereon, the judge of the superior court on a verified petition setting up such facts and praying an attachment may issue the same. Wages of non-residents earned outside of the State are not subject to attachment.

Attachment lies at any time to recover the purchase-money when due, of property sold, the property itself being liable to seizure, under attachment, and the lien of judgment attaches from date of the levy.

Before attachment can issue it must appear by affidavit of the party seeking it, his agent or attorney, that some of the grounds above enumerated exist; the amount claimed to be due must also appear in the affidavit. Bond with security, approved by the officer issuing the attachment, must accompany the affidavit, for at least double the amount sworn to, conditioned to pay the defendant all damages and costs he may sustain by reason of the attachment, if the plaintiff fails to recover. Any judge of the superior, city, or county court, justice of the peace, or notary public, unless disqualified by some special cause, may administer the affidavit, take the bond, and issue the attachment. A non-resident may obtain attachment against property of non-resident in the State. The attachment, being issued, may be levied on any property of the defendant; garnishment may also be served on persons indebted to the defendant. Property levied on may be replevied, and the garnishment may be dissolved by defendant giving bond with good security to pay the amount the plaintiff may recover in the case. As between attachments the first levied has priority. The lien of an attachment has priority over the lien of an ordinary judgment that has been obtained upon a suit filed after the levy of the attachment, otherwise the levy of the attachment does not give the attachment judgment priority over an ordinary judgment rendered at the same term. See Assignments.

In ordinary suits, either before or after judgment, the process of garnishment may issue against the debtors of the defendant, the plaintiff, his agent, or attorney, making affidavit of the amount claimed to be due, and that he has reason to apprehend the loss of the same, or some part thereof unless garnishment do issue, and also giving bond with good security in at least double the sum sworn to be due, conditioned to pay the defendant all damages and costs he may sustain, if the plaintiff fails in his suit, or it should appear that the sum claimed to be due on his judgment is not due, or the money or property sought to be garnished is not subject to process of garnishment. Persons served with garnishment are required to hold money, property, and effects in their hands belonging to the defendant, subject to the order of the court before which they are summoned to answer. Judgment having been obtained against the defendant, may be entered also against the garnishee if he has effects in his hands; but the garnishing creditor obtains no priority over other creditors who obtain judgment at the same term, and is postponed to creditors who obtain judgment before he does.

Where the garnishee fails to answer at the first term, the case stands continued till the next term, at which time, if he is still in default, the plaintiff may have judgment against him for the whole amount recovered against the defendant.

All persons are exempt from garnishment on one dollar and twenty-five cents per day of their daily, weekly, or monthly wages and on fifty per cent. of the excess thereof, whether in the hands of their employers or others. All wages above this exemption are subject to garnishment.

The maker of negotiable paper in the hands of the plaintiff's debtor is liable to a garnishment. (18 Ga. 650.)

Chattel Mortgages. — See Mortgages.

Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons. — In granting letters of administration, preference is first given to the husband or wife surviving, irrespective of age. The next of kin at the time of the death, according to the laws of relationship and distribution, is next entitled; but if the party died testate, an administrator with will annexed has to be appointed, the party most beneficially interested under the will is given the preference. Relations by consanguinity are preferred to those by affinity. If there be several next of kin equally near in degree, the person selected in writing by those interested as distributees of the estate, and who is capable of accepting the trust, is appointed. If no such preference is expressed, the ordinary exercises his discretion in making the appointment. Where no application for administration is made by the next of kin, a creditor may be appointed, and among creditors as a general rule the one having the greatest interest will be preferred. As a general rule, the person having the right to the estate should be appointed administrator.

Every administrator upon his qualification must give bond with good and sufficient security, to be judged of by the ordinary, in a sum equal to double the amount of the estate to be administered. Every administrator must give six weeks' notice by advertisement in one of the public gazettes of this State, or at three different places of the greatest public resort in the county where the administration was granted, for creditors of the estate to render in an account of their claims. The administrator is allowed twelve months from the date of his qualification to ascertain the condition of the estate. Every administrator is required to make an annual return of his receipts and disbursements during the year preceding his return. Such returns are made to the July term of the court of ordinary in the county having jurisdiction of the administration. Among the necessary expenses of administration and to be preferred above all other debts is a provision for the support of the family, to be ascertained as follows: Upon the death of any person leaving an estate, solvent or insolvent, and leaving a widow or widow and minor child or children, or minor child or children only, it shall be the duty of the ordinary on the application of the widow or the guardian of the child or children or any other person in their behalf, upon notice to the representative of the estate, if there is one, to appoint five discreet appraisers, and it shall be the duty of such appraisers, or a majority of them, to set apart and assign to said widow and children, or children only, either in property or money, a sufficiency from the estate for their support and maintenance for the space of twelve months from the date of the administration, in case there be administration on the estate; such allowance to be estimated according to the condition and standing of the family previous to the death of the owner of the estate, and keeping in view also the solvency of the estate.

If the estate has been distributed to the heirs at law without notice of an existing debt, the creditor can compel them to contribute pro rata to the payment of his debt.

Executors and administrators should pay the debts of estates represented by them at the expiration of the first year after their appointment, as far as possible. Within this time no suit at law can be brought against them.

Debts against deceased persons rank in dignity as follows: 1st. Year's support for family. 2d. Funeral expenses, together with the physician's bill and expenses of last illness. 3d. The necessary expenses of administration. 4th. Taxes or debts due the State or the United States. 5th. Debts due by the deceased as executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee, if he had actual control, possession, and management of the property in trust. 6th. Judgments, mortgages, and other liens created during the lifetime of deceased, to be paid according to priority of lien. 7th. Debts due for rent. 8th. All liquidated demands including foreign judgments, dormant judgments, bonds, and all other obligations in writing for the payment of money, promissory notes, and all debts whose amount was fixed, ascertained, or acknowledged prior to the death of deceased. 9th. Open accounts.

Executors and administrators are authorized to compromise contested or doubtful claims, to submit them to arbitration, and to appoint attorneys in fact.

There is no different proof of claims against estates required of non-residents.

Foreign Administrators. — Whenever a citizen of another State or Territory shall be heir at law of equal, greater, or sole interest of any estate of a deceased citizen of Georgia, such non-resident may act as administrator of such estate, on giving a bond with security in a sum equal to double the value of the estate, to the ordinary where he qualifies. The bondsmen must be residents of the State, and are liable in the first instance for misconduct of their principal. In no other case can a non-resident act as administrator. A citizen of any other State or Territory may act as executor or co-executor of the will of a deceased citizen of the State, when he has the same interest and will give the same bond as in the case of foreign administrators. But administrators of another State may sue in this by filing in the clerk's office of the court in which suit is brought a properly authenticated exemplification of the letters of administration.

Claims, Proof of. — See Proof of Claims.

Conditional Sales. — When personal property is sold and delivered with condition that the title remains in the seller till the purchase price is paid, the condition is not good as against third persons unless put in writing and executed and attested as mortgages of personalty, and recorded as the latter are required to be.

Selling or incumbering property held under conditional purchase without consent of the vendor is punishable by a fine in double the amount of the purchase-money, or imprisonment in chain gang not less than three nor more than twelve months.

Consignments. — If any factor, commission merchant, or other like bailee, with whom goods, wares, or merchandise, etc., are intrusted by any person, shall fraudulently convert the same or any part thereof, or the proceeds of any part thereof, to his own use, without the consent of such person and to his injury, and without paying over the full market price or value thereof on demand, or if after a sale thereof, with the consent of the owner, he fail to account for the proceeds on demand, he is subject to imprisonment and labor in the penitentiary for not less than two nor longer than seven years.

Corporations. — A private corporation for any purpose (banking, insurance, railroad, canal, navigation, express, and telegraph companies excepted) may be created in this State by the superior court of the county in which the corporation desires to transact business, upon the corporator complying with the provisions of §2823, Civil Code 1911. A stockholder in such corporation is bound individually to any creditor thereof for the amount of stock subscribed for by him, until the said subscription is fully paid up, or until said stockholder shall have paid, out of his private property, debts of the corporation to an amount equal to his subscription.

Charters for banking, insurance, railroad, canal, navigation, express, manufacturing, and telegraph companies must be granted by the Secretary of State. There is a general act providing for the incorporation of each of the above classes of companies, which defines their powers and liabilities. Trust companies can also be incorporated by certificate from the Secretary of State. In all companies except companies exercising banking powers, the liability of a stockholder is to the extent of his unpaid subscription only. Stockholders in banks are liable in addition to depositors in a sum equal to the amount of their subscriptions.

Corporations are taxed ad valorem on the value of the property as individuals. Domestic corporations in addition pay an occupation tax according to their total property as follows:—

Not exceeding	$10,000.....	$10
" "	25,000.....	15
" "	50,000.....	20
" "	75,000.....	30
" "	100,000.....	50
" "	300,000.....	100
" "	500,000.....	200
Over	1,000,000.....
and not exceeding	2,000,000.....	500
Over	2,000,000.....	600

Foreign corporations, having a place of business or office in this State, in addition to other taxes, pay the same occupation taxes as domestic corporations, which may be paid to the Comptroller General.

It is also the duty of all corporations, except banks, to make a return annually by the 1st day of November to the Secretary of State, upon blanks furnished by him, embracing the following information: —

Name of company.

When incorporated.

By what authority incorporated.

Where incorporated.

The amount of capital stock of said corporation.

Business of the corporation.

Its principal office.

At the time of making the return, the officer making the same shall remit a fee of one dollar for the first year, and annually thereafter fifty cents, to cover the cost of recording the returns.

For failure or refusal to make said return, the company shall be liable to a penalty of fifty dollars.

There are certain license taxes for bank and railroad presidents and insurance agents.

The costs of organization are simply those of publishing notice of the application for charter, and certain fees to the officer issuing the certificate of incorporation, which vary with different companies, but are not large. There is no tax on the amount of capital stock authorized. In companies chartered by the superior court ten per cent. of the capital stock must be paid in before the corporation can do business. Banks must have a capital of at least twenty-five thousand dollars. Not less than twenty per cent., and in no case less than fifteen thousand dollars must be paid in cash before applying for charter. Canal and express companies must have ten per cent. of subscribed stock paid in before beginning the transaction of business. Insurance companies must have a capital stock of at least one hundred thousand dollars for each class of insurance they propose to engage in, which amount must be paid in cash, or invested in certain required securities. Mutual aid and industrial life insurance companies must at all times own and possess solvent assets, ascertained by deducting therefrom any liabilities for claims other than liabilities upon its policies, contracts of insurance or certificates of membership, to the amount of one dollar and fifty cents for each one hundred dollars of insurance at risk. The removal of a case by a non-resident insurance company from the state to the federal court revokes its authority to do business in the State. Navigation and railroad companies are not required to pay in any portion of their capital stock before proceeding to do business, and the amount of such stock is without minimum or maximum limit. Trust companies are required to have at least one hundred thousand dollars capital stock, of which twenty-five thousand dollars must be paid in before application is made for charter, and one hundred thousand dollars before business is commenced. The maximum capital stock is limited to two million dollars.

The board of directors of corporations are required to be of the following numbers: Banks, not less than three nor more than seven; insurance, trust, and railroad companies, not less than five nor more than fifteen; navigation companies, not less than five nor more than seven. A majority of the directors of navigation and railroad companies must be citizens and residents of Georgia.

Foreign corporations are recognized in Georgia courts only by comity, and, so long as same comity is extended in their courts, to corporations of this State. A corporation not chartered in Georgia may not hold exceeding five thousand acres of land without becoming also a Georgia corporation. This does not apply to corporations lending money and holding titles to land as security. It is a criminal offense for any corporation, domestic or foreign, to contribute to any campaign fund, punishable by fine, and the imprisonment or fine of its officials.

Railroad, sleeping-car, insurance, telegraph, and express companies make returns for taxation by May 1st to the comptroller-general. All other corporations return their property to the tax receiver of the county of their domicile, in the same manner as individuals. Taxes are for the calendar year, and must be paid by December 20 to the tax collector. All corporations, except banks, doing business in this State, are required to make a return, annually, to the secretary of state (who is ex-officio corporation commissioner), through the president or general manager, on or by the 1st day of November, embracing the following information: (1) the name of the company; (2) when incorporated; (3) by what authority incorporated; (4) where incorporated; (5) the amount of capital stock of said corporation; (6) the business of the corporation; (7) its principal office. At the time of making said return the officer making the same shall remit a fee of one dollar for the first year, and annually thereafter fifty cents. The penalty for the failure to make this return promptly is fifty dollars.

Courts, Jurisdiction and Terms of. — See Court Calendar for Georgia.

Deeds. — A deed to land in Georgia must be in writing signed by the maker, attested by at least two witnesses. In order to be admitted to record, if executed in this State, one of these witnesses should be a judge of a court of record, a justice of the peace, notary public, or clerk of the superior court, which last three officers can only act in the counties of their appointment. If executed out of the State, one of these witnesses must be a commissioner of deeds for Georgia, a consul or vice-consul of the United States (the certificates of these officers under their seal being evidence of the fact), a judge of a court of record in the State where executed, with a certificate of the clerk under seal of such court, of the genuineness of the signature of such judge, a clerk of a court of record under the seal of the court, or a notary public of the State and county where executed with his seal of office attached, and if such notary has no seal then his official character shall be certified by a clerk of any court of record in the county of the residence of such notary.

Where neither of the attesting witnesses is such officer, the maker may subsequently acknowledge the execution of such deed before either of such officers. No particular form of acknowledgment is required. The words, "Signed, sealed, and delivered in presence of," preceding the witness' name, is a sufficient certificate of attestation. Acknowledgments may be written, printed, or pasted on instruments.

There is no necessity in Georgia for renunciation of dower by the wife, except where the husband is alienating lands to which he derived title through the wife by marriage. As to marriages contracted since the statute of 1866, this cannot occur. See Married Women. Where, however, land held by the husband under marriage contracted previous to 1866 is being alienated by him, it is sufficient to bar the wife's dower that she make the deed with him. It is proper in such case for the attesting officer to attach a certificate of private examination of the wife as to her voluntary action in signing.

A deed to land held under adverse possession is good. Where a deed is signed by two witnesses neither of whom is an officer, it may be proved for record by either subscribing witness qualifying to the following affidavit before an officer who would be authorized to attest or take acknowledgment of said deed.

[Proof by Subscribing Witness, when Deed is not made before Officer.]

STATE OF }
COUNTY OF } ss.

Before me (name and title) personally came John Stiles, to me known to be the individual whose signature is affixed to the foregoing deed as one of the witnesses thereto, who being sworn says that he was present at the time when said deed was executed, that he saw the same signed, sealed, and delivered by John Doe, whose signature is thereto affixed as grantor; that Richard Niles, the other subscribing witness thereto, was likewise present at said time and witnessed said execution of said deed, and that he the said John Stiles and the said Richard Niles then and there signed the same as attesting witnesses.

JOHN STILES.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this day of 19 . (Signature and title.)

If the subscribing witnesses, neither being such officer, be dead or lunatic, or have removed without the State, or be otherwise incapacitated to make the affidavit, the affidavit of a third person to such death, lunacy, etc., and to the genuineness of the handwriting of the subscribing witnesses, shall be sufficient to admit the deed to record.

A deed not properly attested is good as between the parties, but not as against third parties without actual notice.

Depositions. — Testimony may be taken on interrogatories by commission in the following cases: Where the witness does not reside in the county where the case is pending, females, postmasters, public carriers, physicians, school-teachers, and others the nature of whose business renders their personal attendance manifestly inconvenient to the public or third persons, witnesses who, from the condition of their health, age, or otherwise, cannot attend court, or who are to remove from the county or leave home on business, for a sojourn, or time, which will extend beyond the term of court. There must be two commissioners. Any person may act as such who has sufficient capacity, and who is disinterested, and in no way related to either of the parties, or connected with the case. The attorneys of the parties, and their clerks, and also agents paid to act as such commissioners, are incompetent; but impartial commissioners being selected, the party suing out the commission may make them reasonable compensation for their services; only two dollars a day, however, can be taxed as costs in the case.

None of the parties to the case, nor any attorney or agent of either party, can be present when the commission is executed. The witness cannot write out his own answers unless he does so in the presence of the commissioners; and if he answers from written memoranda, such memoranda should be appended to his testimony, and the fact certified by the commissioners. Depositions written out with typewriter, if properly executed and returned, are admissible in evidence.

Commissioners may adjourn their sittings from day to day.

Instructions for taking Depositions. — 1st. Insert the commissioners' names in the commission, — any two respectable citizens will do.

2d. State the case as you find it. Then comes caption, thus: —

STATE OF }
COUNTY OF } ss.

By virtue of a commission from the court of county, we have caused the person in said commission named, to come before us, who being duly sworn true answers to make to certain interrogatories thereto annexed, deposeth and answereth as follows: —

(Here insert answers of the witness to each interrogatory in order.)

3d. Let the witness sign the answers — then say, "Answered, sworn to, and subscribed before us, this day of 19 ." Then sign your own names, adding the words "Commissioner [L. S.]" after each name.

4th. Seal all up together, using two wafers, — each commissioner writing his name with "Commissioner" across a wafer or seal.

5th. State the case on the package, and address it to the clerk of the court issuing the commission.

6th. If it is to go by mail or express, get the postmaster or express agent to receipt on the package, "Received from one of the commissioners," naming his post-office or express agency.

May be taken by Agreement. — Under the act of 1873, where the parties waive commission in writing, the answers to interrogatories may be taken by any two disinterested persons, authority to administer the usual oaths being given by the act.

A caption, in substance as follows, will be sufficient when the testimony is taken under this act: —

STATE OF COUNTY OF .

By virtue of an agreement between the parties or counsel in the case of vs. pending in the court of county, the undersigned, acting as commissioners, have caused A. B., a witness in said case, to come before us, who, being duly sworn true answers to make to the annexed interrogatories, deposes and answers as follows: —

To first interrogatory he answers, etc.

To first cross-interrogatory he answers, etc.

Answered, subscribed, and sworn to before us, this day of 19 .

E. F., Commissioner. [L. S.]

G. H., Commissioner. [L. S.]

J. K., Witness.

Descent and Distribution of Property. — The following rules determine who are heirs at law of a deceased intestate: 1. On the death of a wife intestate, leaving no children or descendants of children, the husband is sole heir; if there are children or descendants of children, the husband and they share equally, the distribution being per capita as between the husband and children, and per stirpes as between the husband and descendants of children. 2. On the death of a husband intestate leaving no children or descendants of children, the wife is sole heir; if there are children or descendants of children, the wife inherits equally with them, unless the shares exceed five, in which case the wife takes one fifth, and the children, or descendants of children, share the balance equally per capita as to children, per stirpes as to descendants of children. Should the wife choose to take dower, however, she is barred of said shares, so far as the real estate is concerned. 3. Children stand in the first degree from the intestate, and inherit equally all property of every description, accounting for advancements. Posthumous children inherit as other children. Lineal descendants of children stand in place of their deceased parents. 4. Brothers and sisters of the intestate stand in the second degree, and inherit if there is no widow or surviving husband, nor child or descendant. The half blood on the paternal side inherit equally with the whole blood. If there be no brother or sister of the whole or half blood on the paternal side, then those of the half blood on the maternal side inherit. Children or grandchildren of deceased brothers and sisters stand in the place of their parents; but there is no representation further than this among collaterals. 5. The father inherits equally with brothers and sisters, and stands in the same degree. If there be no father, but a mother alive, she inherits as the father would. 6. In all degrees more remote than the foregoing, the paternal and maternal next of kin stand on equal footing. 7. First cousins, uncles, and aunts stand next in degree, and inherit equally. 8. The more remote degrees are determined by the rules of the canon law, as in force in the English courts prior to July 4, 1776.

Upon the death of the owner of any estate in realty, intestate, which estate survives him, the title vests immediately in his heirs at law. The title to all other property owned by him vests in the administrator of his estate for the benefit of heirs and creditors; but both real and personal property are alike bound, and may be controlled by the administrator, for the payment of debts, and the rule of distribution, as stated, applies to both alike.

Divorce. — Grounds of total divorce are as follows: 1. Intermarriage by persons within prohibited degrees of affinity or consanguinity; said prohibited degrees being as follows: a man shall not marry his step-mother, or mother-in-law, or widow of his uncle, or daughter-in-law, or step-daughter, or granddaughter of his wife; nor shall a woman marry her corresponding relatives. 2. Mental incapacity at time of marriage. 3. Impotency at time of marriage. 4. Force, menace, duress, or fraud in obtaining marriage. 5. Pregnancy of the wife at the time of marriage, unknown to the husband. 6. Adultery by either party after marriage. 7. Willful and continued desertion for the term of three years by either party. 8. Conviction of either party for an offense involving moral turpitude, under which he or she is sentenced to imprisonment in the penitentiary for the term of two years or longer. 9. Cruel treatment, or habitual intoxication, by either party. In such cases, it is in the discretion of the jury to grant either a total or partial divorce.

Divorce cases shall be tried in the county where the defendant resides, if a resident of this State. The action for divorce shall be by petition and process, as in ordinary suits, filed and served as in equity cases, and tried in the county where the defendant resides, if a resident of this State; if not, in the county where the plaintiff resides; but if the defendant be a non-resident of this State, service shall be perfected by publication in the public gazette in which the sheriff's advertisements for the county of plaintiff's residence are published (under the direction of the court) twice a month for two months. Must be two verdicts at different terms of the court, for total divorce. Divorces are only granted persons who have been bona fide residents of Georgia for as long as twelve months, before filing petition.

The division of property, when divorce is granted, is determined by the jury rendering the final verdict in the case, according to the condition of the husband and the sources from which the property came into the coverture.

Dower — Is the right of a wife to an estate for life in one third of the lands, according to valuation, including the dwelling-house (which is not to be valued unless in a town or city) of which the husband was seized and possessed at the time of his death, or to which the husband obtained title in right of his wife. Dower may be barred by the following provisions when made prior to marriage, and accepted by the wife: By deed or will, and accepted by the wife after the husband's death, expressly in lieu of dower, or when the intention of the husband is plain and manifest that it shall be in lieu of dower; by the election of the widow to take a child's part of the real estate in lieu of dower; failure to apply for dower within seven years from the death of her husband; by joining in a deed with her husband to lands the title to which came through her; or by adultery of the wife, unpardoned by the husband. See Deeds; Mortgages.

The widow is entitled to the possession of the dwelling-house and furniture from the death of her husband until dower is assigned and her portion of the furniture is set apart. No lien created by the husband in his life-time, though assented to by the wife, shall in any manner interfere with her right to dower.

Evidence. — See Testimony.

Executions — May issue at any time after judgment signed (subject, of course, to the laws of limitation given in regard to the dormancy and extinction of judgment), and are returnable to the next term of the court from which they issue. They may be levied on all the estate, real or personal, covered by the lien of the judgment. See Judgments; Limitations.

Alias executions may be obtained at any time within the statutes of limitation, by order of the judge of the court from which they issued, granted upon affidavit by the party, his agent or attorney, showing the fact of loss of the original, or upon any other satisfactory proof of the same. Such order may be made either in term or vacation.

Sales under executions from the superior courts are made by the sheriffs (or coroners in the event the sheriff is a party), at the court-house of the county where the levy was made, on the first Tuesday in each month, between the hours of 10 A. M. and 4 P. M., at public outcry. Such sales are advertised weekly for four weeks previous to the day of sale.

Sales under execution issuing from the justices' courts are made by the constables on a court day between the hours of 10 A. M., and 4 P. M., after advertisement at least ten days before the sale. Constables are not authorized to levy upon land, unless there is no personal property to be found sufficient to satisfy the debt, which fact must appear by entry on the execution, or unless the defendant may choose to point out land to be levied on, in which case the entry of no personal property may be omitted. See Stay of Execution.

Exemptions. — The Constitution of 1877 provides: "There shall be exempt from levy and sale, by virtue of any process whatever, under the laws of this State, except as hereinafter excepted, of the property of every head of a family, or guardian, or trustee of a family of minor children, or every aged or infirm person, or person having the care and support of dependent female of any age, who is not the head of a family, realty or personalty, or both, to the value in the aggregate of sixteen hundred dollars. No court or ministerial officer in this State shall ever have jurisdiction or authority to enforce any judgment, execution, or decree against the property set apart for such purpose, including such improvements as may be made thereon from time to time, except for taxes, for the purchase-money of the same, for labor done thereon, for material furnished therefor, or for the removal of incumbrances thereon. The debtor shall have the power to waive or renounce in writing his right to this benefit of exemption except as to wearing apparel and not exceeding three hundred dollars' worth of household and kitchen furniture and provisions, to be selected by himself and his wife, if any, and he shall not, after it is set apart, alienate or incumber the property so exempted, but it may be sold by the debtor and his wife, if any, jointly, with the sanction of the judge of the superior court of the county where the debtor resides or the land is situated, the proceeds to be reinvested upon the same uses." The act of 1878 carries out these provisions.

The supreme court of the State has held that these homestead provisions are retroactive, and, so far as they affect debts made prior to the passage of said act, violative of the clause of the Constitution of the United States which denies to the States the right to pass laws impairing the obligation of contracts. That court has also held that a debt contracted for the purchase-money is good against the homestead, in the hands of a transferee, and that a debt for money borrowed and expended, to relieve the homestead from the lien of a judgment for the purchase-money, is good against the homestead. If the debtor, being the head of a family, does not avail himself of these exemptions, he may claim those allowed by prior laws, to wit: Fifty acres of land, and five additional acres for each child under sixteen years of age, — including the dwelling-house, if not worth (with improvements) more than two hundred dollars. This land must not be in a city, town, or village, nor have on it any factory, mill, or other machinery propelled by water or steam, the value of which exceeds two hundred dollars. If the debtor's land lies in a city, town, or village, he is allowed an exemption not exceeding five hundred dollars in value. One farm-horse or mule; one cow and calf; ten head of hogs, and fifty dollars' worth of provisions, and five dollars' worth additional for each child; beds, bedding, and common bedsteads sufficient for the family; one loom, one spinning-wheel, two pair of cards, and one hundred pounds of lint cotton; common tools of trade of himself and wife; ordinary cooking utensils and table crockery; wearing apparel of himself and family; the library of a professional man, in actual practice or business, not to exceed three hundred dollars in value. Also, fifty bushels corn, one thousand pounds fodder, one one-horse wagon, one table, one set of chairs sufficient for use of family, and household and kitchen furniture all not to exceed one hundred and fifty dollars in value. These latter exemptions under prior laws are known as the "short homestead," and can only be claimed when the former homestead is not. The debtor may also waive these in writing, except so much as are excepted by the Constitution of 1877.

Every debtor, or, if he refuses, his wife, seeking the benefit of the preceding exemptions, commencing at the words "fifty acres of land," shall make out a schedule of the property sought to be exempted, and return the same to the ordinary of the county, without making application or publishing the same in a gazette, which schedule shall be recorded in the office of the ordinary, — the county surveyor to survey and plat the land claimed to be exempted. Creditors may dispute the propriety of the survey or the value of the improvements upon application to the ordinary, and have three appraisers appointed to view the survey and value the improvements. If the debtor owns town property exceeding five hundred dollars in value not capable of being so divided as to allow his family that amount, so much of the proceeds of its sale, when sold under execution, will, on notice, be held up by the court to be invested in other lands of that value. Where these exemptions have been made, those provided in the Constitution of the State will not be allowed in addition. Either class of exemptions is allowed, but not both.

By the act of 1876 one family sewing-machine is exempt from levy and sale, whether the person owning the same is the head of a family or not, and this exemption is good against all debts except the purchase-money. (Acts, 1876, p. 35.)

Garnishment. — See Attachments.

Inheritance Taxes. — An inheritance tax is assessed upon all property, real and personal, and upon every estate or interest therein within the jurisdiction of this State, whether belonging to residents or non-residents of the State, which shall pass, on the death of the decedent, by will or by the laws regulating descents or distributions, or by deed, grant, or gift, intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment after the death of the grantor or donor.

A taxable transfer of property, or any beneficial interest therein, under this act, to any father, mother, husband, wife, child, brother, sister, wife or widow of a son, or any child or children adopted as such, in conformity with the laws of Georgia, or to any lineal descendant of such decedent, grantor, donor, or vendor, born in lawful wedlock, is exempt from taxation under this act in an amount not to exceed five thousand dollars. Upon any sum in excess of such exemption, the tax shall be at the rate of one per cent.

On a taxable transfer to any person, corporation, or association, other than those enumerated in the preceding paragraph, there is no exemption, and such taxable transfer is taxed at the rate of five per cent. upon the whole amount.

The value of the property subject to an inheritance tax shall be assessed either by three appraisers, appointed by the judge of the court of ordinary, having jurisdiction of the administration of the estate of the decedent, and such appraisers shall make their report in writing to such judge of the court of ordinary; or, by agreement between the interested parties, including the state and county tax collector of the county in which the estate of the decedent is being administered, the appointment of appraisers may be dispensed with, and the judge of the court of ordinary himself may appraise the property, and make and file a report thereof. When a report, showing the value of the property to be taxed, made in conformity with one of the above-named methods, has been filed with the judge of the court of ordinary, it shall be the judge's duty immediately to calculate and determine the amount of tax due under the law and certify such amount in writing to the tax collector of the county in which the estate of the decedent is being administered. This tax is a lien upon all of the property subject to such tax from the date of the death of decedent until paid.

No provision is made as to what official shall be addressed relative to the assessment and collection of this tax, in case of the death of a non-resident of the State who owns property in Georgia.

Insolvent Laws. — In case any corporation not municipal, or any trader or firm of traders, shall fail to pay at maturity any debt, payment of which has been properly demanded, and is insolvent, the superior court, under a creditor's bill, which can only be filed by one or more creditors whose claims amount to one third of the unsecured debts, may proceed to collect up all the property and assets of such debtor and appropriate the same to the creditors, for which purpose the chancellor may appoint a receiver. Upon such appointment no creditor shall acquire any preference by any judgment or lien, or any suit or attachment under proceedings commenced after filing the bill, nor by assignments or mortgages made thereafter; but the assets shall be divided pro rata among the creditors, preserving existing liens. During the pendency of the proceedings the court may make a suitable allowance for the defendant's support, having regard to his condition and the circumstances of his failure.

Any person or firm shall be considered a trader who is engaged as a business in buying and selling real or personal estate of any kind, or who is a banker or broker or commission merchant or manufacturer manufacturing articles to the extent of five thousand dollars per annum.

In the final decree the court may recommend to the creditors the debtor's discharge from further liability, if there has been an honest and fair surrender of his assets for distribution under the law. (Acts, 1881.) See Assignments. This subject should be considered in connection with the National Bankruptcy Act of 1898.

Interest. — The legal rate of interest, except on contracts specifying in writing a different sum, is seven per cent. It is not lawful to charge more than eight per cent. Parties violating this provision forfeit all interest. Any rate may be agreed on in writing, provided the same is not more than eight per cent. It is misdemeanor to charge more than five per cent. per month.

All judgments in this State bear lawful interest upon the principal amount recovered. (Acts, 1875, p. 105.)

Accounts which by custom become due at the end of the year, bear interest from that time upon the amount actually due.

Judgments — Have a lien, from their date, upon all the property of the defendant, real and personal, not specially exempted; except that a judgment has no lien upon promissory notes in the hands of defendant; nor are choses in action liable to be seized and sold under execution, unless specially so made by statute. Stock in incorporated companies is specially made liable by statute. All judgments of same term rank equally. Property sold after judgment obtained against the vendor is discharged from the lien of such judgment, after four years' possession by the vendee, in the case of real property; or after two years' possession, in the case of personal property; provided the same was sold bona fide and for a valuable consideration. See Interest.

Foreign judgments must be authenticated under the great seal of their respective States.

Judgments, except for rent, are rendered only at second term of superior court; also in county courts, quarterly sessions, having jurisdiction up to three hundred dollars; but at first term of monthly sessions where jurisdiction is not over one hundred dollars. In justices' courts, at first term. Suits should be filed fifteen days before trial, in latter courts. Judgment notes are not allowed. By act of October 1, 1889, judgments, whether of the United States courts or of the state court, obtained in any other county than that of the defendant's residence, have no lien upon the property of the defendant in any other county than that in which the judgment is obtained, unless the execution issued thereon is, within thirty days, entered upon the execution docket of the county of defendant's residence.

Attorneys' fees provided for in notes are taxed in judgment, when not on foreclosure of crop, or other similar liens, provided the holder of the obligation sued on gives notice ten days before suit is brought of intention to sue and the term of court to which suit will be brought and defendant fails to pay on or before return day of said term, otherwise the provision for attorneys' fees is void.

License. — Commercial travelers are not required to take out a license.

Lien Laws. — Mechanics and material-men, who have taken no personal security, shall have a lien on the property (and premises) built or repaired by them, or for which material was furnished in building or repairing. Except that, if the work is done or material furnished on employment of a contractor, or other person than owner, the lien shall only attach upon written notice to the owner of the amount of work done or material furnished; said notice to be given within thirty days of the completion of the work or furnishing of the material. The lien attaches for no greater sum than the balance due the contractor at the time the notice is given. The notice may be given at the beginning, or at any time during the progress of the work. Any other property besides houses, buildings, etc., is subject to a similar lien. This lien is defeated by failure to comply with the following provisions: 1st. The mechanic must substantially comply with his contract. 2d. He must have his lien recorded in the clerk's office of the county where the land lies, within three months from the completion of the work (as to record of liens see title "Records"); and 3d. Must commence his suit to recover his claim within twelve months from the time when the same is due. It is inferior to a claim for purchase-money where only bond for title has been made, and to other general liens of which the mechanic had notice before doing the work or furnishing the material. In the case of real property, delivery of possession to the owner does not affect the lien; in the case of personal property, the lien ceases if property delivered, unless lien is recorded in clerk's office in ten days.

Machinists, putting up, furnishing, or repairing steam-mills, or other machinery, have a lien similar to the mechanic's lien, similarly protected and enforced; as also railroad contractors.

Officers and employees of steamboats, or other water-craft, have a lien of the highest dignity for wages, or any debt due them for personal services in connection with the craft, or for wood or provisions furnished for the same. A summary process is provided for the enforcement of this lien.

Laborers and mechanics have a lien upon the property of their employers, which can be summarily enforced, like the steamboat lien just mentioned.

Millwrights, builders of gold machines, stone-cutters, and marble companies have a similar lien, similarly enforced.

Landlords, besides a general lien on all the property of the debtor acquired by levy of a distress warrant, have a special lien for rent on the crop made on land rented from them, superior to the homestead exemption, and to all other liens except for taxes. They also have a lien on the growing crops, arising either by contract or by operation of law, whenever they furnish their tenants supplies, money, farming utensils, or articles of necessity to make the crop, or clothing, medicines, supplies, provisions, medical services, tuition, or school-books for the family.

The common law liens of attorneys, innkeepers, factors, pawnees, carriers, laundrymen, and others are in force in this State; except the vendor's lien on land, which is abolished.

Attorneys at law have a special lien on all papers and money of their clients in their possession for services rendered. Their liens upon suits, judgments, and decrees for money are superior to all liens, except for taxes, and no person may satisfy the suit, judgment, or decree until the lien or claim of the attorney for his fees is fully paid. Also upon all suits, judgments, or decrees for the recovery of real or personal property, as well as upon the property recovered, attorneys have a lien for their fees superior to all other liens except for taxes. The same liens are allowed attorneys serving in the defense, where property is sued for and the defense is successful. Also see Tax Laws.

Limitations. — Debts and contracts made prior to the first day of June, 1865, and judgments obtained outside of the State prior to that time, are barred, unless suit was brought to collect or enforce the same by or before the first day of January, 1870. So also suits against executors, administrators, guardians, and trustees for neglect or misconduct in the management of estates, etc., if such neglect or mismanagement occurred before the first day of January, 1865, unless such executor, etc., can be shown to have acted fraudulently or corruptly.

Suits on foreign judgments, other than those specified above, must be brought within five years from the date of the judgment.

Judgments rendered in the courts of this State become dormant seven years from their date, if no execution is issued thereon, or if execution being issued, no return is made thereon within seven years, by an officer authorized to execute and return the same, which return must be recorded on the execution docket. But such judgments may be revived if proceedings are commenced for that purpose within three years from the time they become dormant.

Suits on bonds or other instruments under seal, as well as all suits for the enforcement of rights accruing to individuals under statutes, acts of incorporation, or by operation of law, must be brought within twenty years from the accrual of the right of action; on promissory notes or other simple contracts in writing, within six years; open accounts and contracts not in writing, four years; against executors, administrators, guardians, or trustees (except on their bond), within ten years.

All actions for trespass upon, or damages to realty, and for injuries to personalty, must be brought within four years after the right of action accrues. Actions for injuries done to the person must be brought within two years after the right of action accrues. Actions for injuries to reputation must be brought within one year. The disabilities and exceptions prescribed in the limitations to actions on contracts apply also to actions for torts.

All bills of review, and for new trials in equity (unless founded on proof of perjury in the successful party's witness), and all motions to open or set aside judgments, must be brought within three years after the decree or judgment has been rendered.

These limitations apply alike to courts of law and equity. All statutes of limitation were suspended on the 30th of November, 1860 (see Acts of 1860), and so remained until July, 1868.

Statutes of limitation do not ordinarily run against infants, idiots, insane persons, or persons imprisoned, who are such when the cause of action accrues, until the disability is removed. If any of these disabilities happen after the right of action accrues, and is not voluntarily caused or undertaken by the party claiming the benefit thereof, the limitation does not operate during its continuance. Acts of limitation do not run against an estate whilst unrepresented, if not more than five years, nor during the first year after grant of administration. They are suspended by removal of the defendant from the State, until he returns to reside; by fraud on the part of the defendant, or those under whom he claims, which debarred or deterred the plaintiff from bringing action until discovery of the fraud. If the right of action is joint, and not joint and several, the limitation is suspended as to all the parties, if any one of them is under disability.

A new promise to revive a debt already barred must be in writing, but a payment on a note entered in the debtor's handwriting, or any other written acknowledgment of existing liability, is sufficient.

Prescription. — Adverse possession of land for twenty years gives good title by prescription against every one but the State and persons under disability. Adverse possession under written evidence of title for seven years gives a like title by prescription, unless the title be forged or fraudulent, and the notice thereof brought home to the claimant at or before the commencement of his possession.

A like title to personalty is acquired by four years' adverse possession.

Married Women. — All the property of the wife at the time of her marriage shall be, and remain, her separate property; and all property given to, inherited, or acquired by the wife during coverture shall vest in and belong to her, and shall not be liable for the payment of any debt, default, or contract of her husband.

As to her separate estate, the wife may contract, sue, and be sued in her own name as a feme sole.

The wife cannot bind her separate estate by any contract of suretyship or any assumption of her husband's debts, nor can she sell to her husband or trustee for any purpose except by order of the superior court. Where the husband uses the wife's money or property to pay his debts, and the creditor takes with notice, even though the wife consents to such use, she, or her heirs, may afterwards sue for and recover from the creditor the money or property so used.

The wife also, with the children, is entitled to a twelve-month's support in preference to all other claims on the estate, out of the property of her husband from the date of his death.

The husband is bound to support and maintain the wife, and his consent is presumed to her agency in all purchases of necessaries suitable to her condition in life.

A wife's separate property is not liable for debts contracted by her as agent for her husband for support of herself and her children; but is liable for debts contracted by her individually for such support unless the terms of settling the property restrain her from charging it with her contracts.

The wife may act as attorney and agent for the husband.

A woman is legally capable of contracting marriage and of making a will at fourteen years of age; otherwise, she attains majority at twenty-one.

Mechanics' Liens. — See Lien Laws.

Mortgages. — A mortgage in Georgia is only a security for a debt, and passes no title. It may embrace any property, real or personal, in the mortgagor's possession, or to which he has the right of possession. It may also cover a stock of goods or other things in bulk, but changing in specifics, in which case the lien is lost on all articles disposed of previous to the time of foreclosure, and attaches on the purchases made to supply their place.

No particular form is necessary to constitute a mortgage, either on realty or personalty, provided the instrument clearly indicates the creation of a lien, specifies the debt it is given to secure, and describes the property upon which it is to take effect.

Mortgages on land are not good against dower. Wife cannot waive dower against lien.

The mortgage must be executed in the presence of, and attested by, or proved before, a notary public, or justice of any court in the State, or any clerk of the superior court, and a mortgage upon realty must be executed in presence of one other witness, who need not be an officer. As to execution out of the State, the same rules apply as to Deeds, except as to the clerk of a court of record and notary public. A mortgage is good against third parties without notice only from the date same is filed for record.

Notes secured by mortgage, when transferred, carry the mortgage with them. (9 Ga. 87.)

It is customary to discharge recorded mortgages, when paid, by written certificates entered upon the record by the clerk.

Mortgages with power of sale are valid in Georgia.

Chattel mortgages or mortgages on personalty are governed by the same rules as to attestation and record as real mortgages. By act of July 1, 1876, they must be recorded in the county of mortgagor's residence, and if the property is situated in another county, in that county also. See Records.

Mortgages upon realty are foreclosed by petition to the superior court of the county in which the realty lies, upon which a rule nisi is granted, directing the principal, interest, and costs to be paid into court on or before the first day of the next term thereof. The rule is published once a month for four months, or served on the mortgagor, or his agent or attorney, three months previous to the said first day of the next term. If no valid defense be set up, the rule is then made absolute, and judgment obtained, and the property is sold by the sheriff under the same regulations as govern sheriffs' sales under executions. By act of 1881 they may also be foreclosed in equity according to the practice in courts of equity.

A similar method is provided for foreclosing trust deeds to secure debts.

Mortgages upon personal property are foreclosed upon affidavit made by the holder of the mortgage, or his agent or attorney in fact or in law, before any officer of the State authorized to administer oaths (such as notaries public, justices of the peace, judges of superior courts, etc.), or before a commissioner of the State in another State, said affidavit stating the amount of principal and interest due; and that the mortgagor resides in the county where foreclosed, if residing in the State; or, if not then a resident of the State, where he resided at the date of the mortgage. When the mortgage with such affidavit annexed thereto shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county where the mortgagor resides, or where he resided at the date of the mortgage, if not a resident of the State, such clerk shall issue execution for sale of the mortgaged property after levy and advertisement once a week for four weeks. Where the debt is not over one hundred dollars, the mortgage, with affidavit annexed stating the amount due and where the property is, may be filed with, and execution issued by, a justice of the peace of the county where the property is found; which justice shall give notice to the mortgagor of the proceeding, and the constable may sell after advertising sale at three or more public places in his district.

Sales to secure Debts. — A mortgagor may avail himself of the homestead and exemption laws, and have the mortgaged property set apart, as against the debt secured by the mortgage, unless the debt be one of those which are specifically excepted by the Constitution. Debtors may, however, make securities which pass the title, and which therefore preclude the possibility of defeating the debt by taking homestead, etc. The debtor may now make a deed, with or without consent of his wife, to his creditor, and take from the creditor a bond for title, conditioned upon the faithful payment of the debt. Such a deed passes title into the creditor; and upon failure to pay the debt this title becomes absolute until the debt is paid; but usury avoids the deed.

A party may execute a mortgage to secure a debt, and waive in said mortgage the right of homestead, and the waiver will defeat the claim of homestead as against the debt.

By act of 1881, wherever personal property is sold with condition that the title remains in the seller till the purchase-price is paid, such sale to be valid as against third persons must be in writing, executed, attested, and recorded, as in case of chattel mortgages.

Notaries Public for State at Large. — Such notaries are appointed by the state librarian and have the same qualifications, powers, duties, fees, and liabilities as those appointed by judges of the superior court, except that they are authorized to act in any county in the State, instead of only in the county of their residence and appointment. The state librarian is authorized to administer the oath of office and to revoke at any time the license of any notary so appointed.

Notaries Public. — The power to appoint other notaries public is vested in the judges of the superior courts, and may be exercised by them in term-time or vacation. Before entering on the duties of their office, notaries public must take oath before the clerk of the superior court. They hold their offices for four years, revocable at any time by the judges of the superior court, at the end of which time, if continued, they must be renewed on the minutes. The clerk issues to them certificates of their appointment, and keeps a register of their names.

Their notarial acts can only be exercised in the county of their residence and appointment. Removal from the county vacates the office.

For the authentication of their notarial acts each notary must provide a seal of office. No seal is required to his attestation of deeds. He must keep a fair register of all his notarial acts signed by him, together with the date of the transaction.

The fees of a notary public are fixed by law.

They have authority —

1. To take the acknowledgments of all writings relating to commerce or navigation, and to witness such deeds and papers as they are permitted to by law.
2. To demand acceptance and payment of all commercial paper, and to note and protest the same for non-acceptance or non-payment.
3. To certify to all official acts when required.
4. To administer oaths in all matters incident to them as commercial officers, and all other oaths which are not by law required to be administered by a particular officer.
5. To exercise all other powers incumbent upon them by commercial usage or the laws of this State.

The clerk of the superior court of the county in and for which the notary public is appointed is the proper officer to certify the official character of the notary.

Notes, Bills of Exchange, etc. — Promissory notes are negotiable by indorsement of payee or holder, or, if payable to bearer, by transfer and delivery only. All bonds, specialties, or other contracts in writing for the payment of money or any article of property, and all judgments and executions from any court in this State, are negotiable by indorsement or written assignment in the same manner as bills of exchange and promissory notes. Any person indorsing or transferring a negotiable instrument may limit his liability upon such indorsement or transfer, by express restrictions therein. Acceptance of bills must be in writing. As to attorney's fees provided for in notes, see Judgments.

Every transferer of a negotiable instrument, whether by indorsement or delivery, warrants (by implication) that he is the lawful holder and has a right to sell, that the instrument is genuine, and that he has no knowledge of any fact which proves the instrument to be worthless, either by insolvency of the maker, payment, or otherwise.

The bona fide purchaser of a negotiable paper not dishonored, or of money or bank-bills or other recognized currency, will be protected in his title though the seller had none. If the bona fide holder for value received the negotiable instrument before due and without notice of any defect or defense, he is protected from any defense set up by the maker, acceptor, or indorser, except, 1. Non est factum; 2. Gambling, or immoral and illegal consideration; 3. Fraud in its procurement [by the holder thereof]. (37 Ga. 66.) The holder is presumed to be such bona fide and for value. If the holder of the negotiable instrument receives it after due, its non-payment at maturity is notice to him of dishonor, and he takes it subject to all the equities existing between the original parties. If there be several notes constituting one transaction, the fact that one is overdue and unpaid shall be notice to the purchaser as to all.

No days of grace are allowed on sight papers.

It is not necessary to protest any commercial paper in this State, for non-payment, in order to bind the indorser, except in the following cases: 1st. When a paper is made payable on its face at a bank or banker's office. 2d. When it is discounted at a bank or banker's office. 3d. When it is left in a bank or banker's office for collection. And in all such cases days of grace must be allowed. (Acts 1876, p. 18.)

The legal holidays are the 1st and 19th days of January, 22d of February, 26th of April, 3d of June, 4th of July, 1st Monday in September, and 25th of December, and other days appointed by the president or governor. All bills, checks, notes and other evidences of debt maturing on Sunday or on a public holiday shall be payable on the next business day thereafter, and all bills, checks, notes, and other evidences of debt presentable, by their terms, for acceptance or payment on Sunday or on a public holiday shall be presentable for acceptance or payment on the next business day thereafter. By business day is meant a day other than Sunday or a public holiday.

Practice. — The first Code comprising the laws in force in Georgia was prepared by David Irwin, Thomas R. R. Cobb, and Richard H. Clark, and adopted by the legislature of Georgia, to go into operation on the 1st of January, 1863; which Code was revised by David Irwin in 1867, and adopted by the Constitution of the State in 1868. (See Code of 1873, § 5145, Acts of 1858, 1860, 1861, title Code.) In 1873 said Code was again revised and annotated by David Irwin, George N. Lester, and W. B. Hill, and a more elaborate Code was prepared by Lester, Rowell & Hill, and published in 1882. The latest Code was prepared by John L. Hopkins, Clifford Anderson, and J. R. Lamar, and was adopted by the legislature and approved 16th December, 1895. Latest session laws, Code of 1910.

Proof of Claims. — Unliquidated demands of non-residents sued must be proved by evidence taken by commission. See Depositions. Claims against existing persons sent to this State for collection by suit should be accompanied by the full name of each plaintiff. If plaintiff be a partnership, the full name of each partner should be given; if a corporation, the precise style of the corporation as appearing in its charter.

No affidavit or deposition of any kind, other than as above, is necessary (except in the case of claims against deceased persons, which see under that head), and no security for costs is required. Accounts and unliquidated demands should always be itemized.

Records. — Deeds should be recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county where the land lies. By act of October 1, 1889, deeds, mortgages, and liens of all kinds take effect only from the time they are filed for record in the clerk's office as against third persons acting in good faith and without notice. The clerk is required under this act to note on the instrument to be recorded the day and hour in which it is filed for record.

Mortgages should be recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court; if on realty, in the county where the land lies; if on personalty, in the county where the mortgagor resided at the time of execution, if mortgagor was resident of this State; if not, then in the county where the mortgaged property is.

Where the mortgage is upon personal property located in some other county than that of the mortgagor's residence, it must be recorded in the county where the property is located at the time of the execution, in addition to the record in the county of the mortgagor's residence. (Acts, 1876, p. 34.)

Mortgages not recorded within the time required remain valid as against the mortgagor, but are postponed to all other liens created or obtained, or purchases made, prior to the actual record of the mortgage. If, however, the younger lien is created by contract, and the party receiving it has notice of the prior unrecorded mortgage, or a purchaser has like notice, then the lien of the older mortgage shall be held good against them. As to requisites for record of deeds and mortgages, see Deeds and Mortgages.

Every marriage contract, and every voluntary settlement made by the husband on the wife, whether in execution of marriage articles or not, must be recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county of the husband's residence, within three months after the execution thereof. Otherwise bona fide purchasers, creditors, and sureties without notice, who become such before the actual recording of the same, may proceed against the property. If such contract or settlement is made in another State, and the parties subsequently move into this State, the record must be made within three months from such removal. If the property settled be in this State, and the parties reside in another, then the record must be made in the county where the property is, and within the time specified above.

Redemption. — There is no redemption of property sold under execution in Georgia, except in case of tax executions elsewhere referred to.

Replevin. — There is no action of replevin in Georgia. Instead, we have an action by possessory warrant, in which the right of possession of personal property is the only issue tried; and the common law action of trover, in which the plaintiff may have an alternative verdict in damages to be discharged on delivery of the property. Upon affidavit by a party, his agent or attorney in fact or at law, that a personal chattel has been taken, enticed, or carried away by fraud, violence, seduction, or other means, from the possession of the party complaining, or that such chattel, having recently been in his quiet, peaceable, and legally acquired possession, has disappeared without his consent, and, as he believes, has been received or taken possession of by the party complained against, under some pretended claim and without lawful warrant or authority, and that the complaining party does in good faith claim a title to or interest in such chattel or the possession thereof, a judge or justice may issue a warrant for the apprehension of the defendant and the seizure of the chattel. On the hearing the judge or justice may award the property to the plaintiff or defendant showing the best right to the possession, requiring good bond and security in double the value of the property, and hire, if any, for the production of the property under judgment or decree of the court in a suit at law or in equity therefor commenced within the next four years. The defendant, failing to produce the property upon the issue of the possessory warrant, may be committed to jail unless he satisfies the court the property has been in his quiet and peaceable possession for four years. See Arrest.

Reports. — There are one hundred and forty-seven volumes of the Reports of Decisions rendered by the supreme court. The first three volumes are known as Kelly's Reports; the rest, from the 4th to the 116th, are cited as "Georgia Reports." These reports were published by the following reporters: Kelly, Kelly and Cobb, Cobb, Martin, Lester, Bleckley, Hammond, Jackson, Lumpkin, Peoples, Peoples & Stevens, and Stevens & Graham. They increase at the rate of about two volumes per year. In addition to the above, the following reports have also been published: Charlton's (T. U. P.) Reports, from 1805 to 1810, 1 vol.; Charlton's (R. M.) Reports, 1811 to 1837, 1 vol.; Dudley's Reports, from 1821 to 1832, 1 vol.; Georgia Decisions, parts I and II, 1842 to 1843. These latter reports comprise the decisions made by the district judges previous to the establishment of a supreme court.

Digests of the reports have been published by the following gentlemen: Cobb and Lumpkin, 1 volume, comprising 1 to 3 Kelly and 4 to 10 Georgia Reports, with the two Charltons' and Dudley's Reports, and the Georgia Decisions, parts I and II; John M. Millen, Esq., of Savannah, 1 volume, comprising 10 to 20 Georgia Reports; A. O. Bacon, Esq., of Macon, 1 volume, comprising Georgia Reports from 21 to 30, inclusive; also by the same author, in two volumes, a complete digest of the reports from 1 Kelly to 40 Georgia, inclusive; N. E. Harris, Esq., of Macon, 1 volume (continuing Bacon's Digest), from 41 to 50 Georgia, inclusive. An Analytical Index to the Reports from 1 Kelly to 40 Georgia has also been published by Henry Jackson, Esq., the late supreme court reporter, and another by N. E. Harris from 40 to 62; also Van Epp's Digest, from 61 to 82, and Van Epp's and Aiken's Digest from 1 to 100; also 20 volumes of reports of decisions rendered in the Court of Appeals.

Revision. — See Practice.

Sales in Bulk. — A statute has been passed (Laws 1903, p. 92) and declared constitutional. Provides for five days' notice of sale to creditors.

Service. — If returnable to the superior courts, the sheriff or his deputy shall serve a copy of the petition and process (which shall be filed in office twenty days before court) upon each defendant residing in the county, at least fifteen days before the first day of the term, and within five days from the time of receiving the same, and make an entry of such service upon the original petition, and return the same to the clerk.

In the court of ordinary, notice is usually given the defendant by published citation; but if, under the law or in the judgment of the ordinary, other notice is necessary, then the ordinary shall cause a copy of the petition, with a notice of the time of hearing, to be served by the sheriff or some lawful officer, at least ten days before the hearing, and an entry of such service shall be made on the original petition.

In the justices' courts, suit is commenced by written summons, a copy of which shall be served by any constable of the county in which the suit is brought, at least ten days before the first day of the term.

In all cases, leaving a copy at defendant's residence shall be sufficient service.

The defendant may acknowledge service and waive process, in writing, signed by defendant, or some one by him authorized.

Stay of Execution. — Execution issued from the superior court may, within four days after the adjournment thereof, be stayed for sixty days, by defendant giving bond with good security for the payment of the amount and costs within that time.

Execution issued from the justice's court may, within four days after the adjournment thereof, be stayed by the defendant paying all accrued costs, and giving bond and good security for principal and interest due; said stay to be for sixty days, if the principal be more than thirty dollars, and for forty days if the principal be less than thirty dollars. Constables may sell property levied on by them on regular justices' court days, after advertising ten days.

Supplementary Proceedings — Are unknown.

Tax Law. — Property is liable for assessment for state and county taxes on a day between the first days of January and April, fixed annually. Taxes are payable on the first of October, and lien therefor attaches from prior date. Liens of municipal corporations attach from time of assessment. The returns of all railroad and insurance and express companies, and agents of foreign companies, authorized in this State, shall be made to the comptroller-general by the first day of May in each year, and the taxes thereof paid to the state treasurer by the first day of October, and not later than December twentieth of each year. All other companies or persons taxed shall make their returns to the receiver of tax returns of the respective counties. Real estate is returned in county where located; other property at taxpayer's domicile. Sales of property for taxes are regulated by the same rules governing judicial sales. Owners of wild or unimproved lands are required to make returns to the comptroller-general or to the tax receiver of the county where the land lies. If the tax on such lands is not paid, the comptroller-general, after giving sixty days' notice by newspaper publication, is required to issue execution for such tax, under which the sheriff of the county where the lands lie is required to sell the same. In other cases tax sales must be advertised thirty days; and in all cases, whether for state and county taxes, or for municipal taxes, tax assessments for paving streets, laying sewers, etc., one year is allowed the owner to redeem the land sold; he paying the purchaser the purchase-money and ten per cent premium thereon and costs.

Testimony. — The rules of evidence are ordinarily the same as those at common law. The only difference worthy of remark is, that parties to suits and persons interested are permitted to testify, except where one of the original parties to the contract or cause of action is dead or insane, or where an executor or administrator is a party, on a contract of deceased, in either of which events the opposite party cannot testify.

Title to Land. — The Torrens system of registering land titles, known as "The Land Registration Act," becomes effective in Georgia, January 1, 1918.

Trust Deeds — Are executed and recorded as other deeds. See Mortgages.

Wills. — All wills (except nuncupative wills) disposing of realty or personalty must be in writing (typewriting is sufficient), signed by the testator or by some person for him, in his presence and by his express directions; and must be attested and subscribed in the presence of the testator by three or more competent witnesses. A witness may attest by his mark provided he can swear to it; but one witness cannot subscribe the name of another, even in his presence and by his direction. Wills executed by persons residing without this State, disposing of real or personal property in Georgia, are admitted to probate in any county in which such property is situated, provided the will is in writing and executed according to the laws of Georgia, the probate being subject to the same defenses and objections as in cases of domestic wills. Any foreign will, which has been admitted to probate in the State of the United States where the testator resided, may be admitted to probate in this State upon production of the probate proceedings certified according to the act of Congress, subject to the right of parties interested to resist probate on any proper grounds. A foreign will properly probated in a country without the United States, where testator resided, may be admitted to probate in this State, subject to the right to resist probate, upon production of a certified copy of such will and authenticated copy of the proceedings, under the seal of the court. A foreign will is not valid as to realty in Georgia unless executed as required by the laws of Georgia, but when so executed and probated in another State conveys real estate in Georgia to the legatees or distributees named therein, and is admissible in evidence without probate in Georgia when certified under act of Congress showing probate in such other State and is recorded in the county in Georgia in which the land is situated. Such will executed according to the law of the place of execution is valid as to personalty in Georgia. A minor over fourteen years of age can dispose of property real and personal by will. Nuncupative wills must be proven by the oath of at least three competent witnesses present at the making thereof. Testator must have requested the persons or some of them to bear witness that such was his will. The will must have been made at the time of the last sickness of the testator, and at his home or where he has resided for at least ten days before making the will, except where he was surprised by sickness away from his home and died before returning. Application for probate of such a will must be made within six months after the death of the testator, and the substance of the will must be reduced to writing within thirty days after the speaking of the same. Any person leaving a wife or child or descendants of children may not devise more than one third of his estate to any charitable, religious, or civil institution, and such devise must be made and executed at least ninety days before the testator's death. A testator, by his will, may bequeath his entire estate to strangers, to the exclusion of his wife and children, but in such case the will should be closely scrutinised, and, upon the slightest evidence of aberration of intellect, or collusion or fraud, or any undue influence or unfair dealing, probate should be refused.

HAWAII LAWS.

Messrs. Thompson & Cathcart, of Honolulu.

The legislature next convenes on the third Wednesday in February, 1919.

ABBREVIATIONS. — When references are to Revised Laws of Hawaii, the section or chapter only is given; when to Session Laws, the book and page. St. L. indicates United States Statutes at Large; am. indicates amended by.

By the Act to provide a government for the Territory of Hawaii (31 St. L. 141), the Constitution and, except as in said act otherwise provided, all laws of the United States not locally inapplicable, have the same force and effect in that Territory as elsewhere in the United States. (31 St. L. 141; 36 St. L. 443.) Revised Statutes of the United States, §§ 1841-1891, inclusive, 1910, 1912, are especially excepted. The common law of England, as ascertained by English and American decisions, is in general, and except as otherwise provided by law, Hawaiian usage, or judicial precedent, the common law of Hawaii. (§ 1.)

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — All civil actions in common law courts of record are commenced by the filing of a verified complaint, and the issuance of summons. (§§ 2342-2345.) In district courts (corresponding with courts of justices of the peace) the substance of the plaintiff's cause of action may be set forth in the summons without further declaration. (§ 2337.) Service is effected by delivery to the defendant of a copy of summons and complaint, to which is annexed a literal copy of the voucher, if any, upon which it is predicated, or in case the defendant cannot be found, by leaving a copy with some agent or person transacting the defendant's business, or at the defendant's last place of residence. (§ 2354.) Copartnerships may be sued by the firm name, and service upon one partner is binding upon the firm, and any judgment recovered against the firm may be enforced against the firm property and against the individual property of any of the partners served or appearing. (Laws 1915, p. 300.) Corporations are served through any officer or director within the jurisdiction, or in want thereof by leaving a copy with the treasurer of the Territory or the register of public accounts. (§§ 3385-3386.) The city and county of Honolulu and the several counties may be served through their respective county attorneys or deputies, county clerks, auditors, or treasurers, or any of the supervisors, respectively, in the order here given. (§ 2217.) In case of courts of record, the copy of summons and complaint served must be certified. (§ 2354.) Service may be made by publication under certain conditions in case the defendant was never an inhabitant of the Territory of Hawaii, or has removed therefrom, or cannot there be found. (§ 2356.) Service by publication in attachment cases is provided for. (Laws 1917, p. 94.)

The assignee of any non-negotiable chose in action may sue in his own name. (§ 2372.)

Several causes of action may be united in the same complaint when they all rise out of: 1, contracts, express or implied; 2, claims to recover real property with or without damage for withholding thereof, or for waste committed thereon, and the rents and profits; 3, claims to receive personal property with or without damage for withholding thereof; 4, claims against a trustee by virtue of contract or by operation of law; 5, injuries to character; 6, injuries to person; or 7, injuries to property. But the causes so united shall all belong to one only of these classes and shall affect all the parties to the action. In any action for summary possession the plaintiff may join actions for rent, profits, damages, and waste where these arise out of and refer to the land or premises whose possession is sought. (Laws 1915, p. 220.)

The successful party in all civil actions is entitled to costs, for which judgment is rendered. (Ch. 143.)

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Affidavits. — Ex parte affidavits are not admitted in evidence. But where any action in any district court or defense thereto is founded upon an open account supported by the party, his agent, or attorney in fact, to the effect that such account is just, true, and correct, that all the goods have been delivered, that it is due, and that all just and lawful offsets, payments, and credits have been allowed, the same is taken as prima facie evidence thereof, unless the party resisting such claim shall file with his answer or plea a counter affidavit stating the items which are unjust or incorrect, and particularizing wherein the same are just, true, and correct, and in default of said counter affidavit there can be no denial of the account or of any item therein. (§ 2339.)

Affidavits out of the Territory may be taken before any notary public, judge of a court of record of any country, consular officer or agent or vice-consular or vice-commercial agent of the United States.

Aliens. — Aliens are naturalised under the general laws of the United States.

Appeals, Exceptions, Error. — Appeals in all matters, civil or criminal, may be had from decisions of district magistrate to the circuit court of the same circuit by filing notice of appeal within five days and paying costs within ten days, or giving bond for one hundred dollars if jury trial is desired, otherwise for twenty dollars. Appeals solely on points of law may be had from district courts to the circuit or supreme court on the same terms as above, the points of law to be stated in the notice of appeal. (§ 2507.) Appeals may be had from decisions, judgments, orders or decrees of circuit judges in chambers, to the supreme court (except where appellant is entitled to appeal to a jury), by filing notice of appeal within five days, and paying all costs accrued and giving bond for fifty dollars for payment of all costs further to accrue in case of defeat (or depositing money to the same amount) within ten days after the filing of the decision, judgment, order, or decree appealed from. (§ 2508.) Appeals may be allowed upon like terms as to filing of bond and payment of costs, by the circuit judge in his discretion from decrees overruling demurrers, or from interlocutory judgments, orders, or decrees, wherever he thinks the same advisable for the more speedy termination of litigation. (§ 2508.) An appeal duly perfected operates as an arrest of judgment and stay of execution, but upon good cause shown the judgment may be enforced unless bond is given for prosecution of the appeal without delay and for payment or performance of the judgment. (§ 2510.)

Questions of law may be reserved by the circuit court or judge for consideration of the supreme court, but the supreme court may in its discretion return the same for decision in the first instance by the circuit court or judge. (§ 2511.)

Exceptions to any opinions, direction, instruction, ruling, or order in a case at term (as distinguished from a case before a judge at chambers) may be had if reduced to writing and presented within ten days, but further time may be allowed in the discretion of the judge, and if such exceptions are reported by a stenographer or entered in the judge's minutes, they need not be presented within ten days, but may be allowed and signed by the judge and filed at any time, and any such exceptions may be incorporated in a bill of exceptions at any time within twenty days, or such further time as the judge may allow, after the verdict, or, when there is no verdict after judgment rendered, or in case of exceptions taken subsequently to verdict or judgment, after the opinion, direction, ruling, or order to which exceptions are taken.

Upon the allowance of such bill of exceptions and the deposit of twenty-five dollars or a bond of the same amount, the questions arising thereon are considered in the supreme court, but judgment may be entered except for the stay of proceedings above noted under the subject of appeals.

Bill of exceptions upon like terms may be allowed from decisions overruling demurrers, or from other interlocutory orders, decisions, or judgments, in the discretion of the judge, for the more speedy termination of the case. (§§ 2513-2514.)

A writ of error may be had by any party deeming himself aggrieved by the decision by any justice, judge, or magistrate, or by the decision of any court except the supreme court, or by the verdict of a jury, at any time before execution thereon is fully satisfied, within six months from the rendition of judgment. (§ 2518.) No writ issues for defect of form merely in the declaration or for any matter held for the benefit of plaintiff in error. (§ 2522.) A deposit of twenty-five dollars is required to cover costs, also a bond conditional for payment of judgment in the original court in case of failure to sustain the writ, and the appellate court may order additional bond upon motion. (§ 2527.)

Arrest. — There is no provision for arrest of defendant in a civil action, though a defendant in a criminal suit depending on facts which might be the basis of a civil action may be subject to arrest, as, for instance, in case of the obtaining of money or other property by fraud or false pretense. (See ch. 233.)

Assignments. — There is no statute relating to the substantive law of assignments. The assignee of any non-negotiable chose in action, assigned in writing, may maintain thereon in his own name any action which, but for the assignment, might be maintained by the assignor, subject, however, to all equities and set-offs existing in favor of the party liable against the assignor and which existed at the time of the assignment or at any time thereafter until notice thereof was given to the party liable. (§ 2372.)

Attachment. — The plaintiff in any action upon a contract, express or implied, may, on commencing suit, or at any time afterward before judgment, have the property of the defendant, or of any one or more of several defendants, which is not exempt from execution, attached as security for the satisfaction of such judgment as he may recover. The writ does not issue against the Territory of Hawaii or any county or municipal corporation. It is issued by the clerk of a court of record, or by the district magistrate, in the court in which the action is pending, upon the making and filing by the plaintiff, or some one in his behalf, of an affidavit showing that the defendant is indebted to the plaintiff (specifying the amount of such indebtedness above all just credits and offsets) and that the attachment is not sought and the action is not prosecuted to hinder, delay, or defraud any creditor of defendant. Before the writ issues, the plaintiff, or some one in his behalf, must give bond or undertaking with one or more sureties in at least double the amount for which judgment is asked, and in no case less than fifty dollars in a district court or three hundred dollars in any other court, conditional for prosecution of the action without delay, payment of all costs, and payment of all damages not exceeding the sum named in the bond or undertaking, which the defendant may sustain by reason of the attachment, should the same be wrongfully, oppressively, or maliciously sued out, and in case the defendant be declared a bankrupt, pay all charges, damages, and expenses incurred by the attaching officer by reason of such attachment. With the bond must be filed the affidavit of the sureties that they are, taken together, worth the sum specified in the bond or undertaking over and above all debts and liabilities and property exempt from execution. The defendant may before judgment move for additional security, because of the removal of any surety from the Territory or because of insufficiency of the surety. A reasonable attorney's fee of not more than fifty dollars is allowed the prevailing defendant. If the writ be maliciously sued out, the defendant may recover exemplary damages; if wrongfully sued out, the actual damages and an attorney's fee aforesaid. (See ch. 156.) Service by publication in attachment cases provided for. (Laws 1917, p. 94.)

As to exemptions from attachment, see Executions.

Chattel Mortgages. — In order to be valid, all chattel mortgages must be recorded in the office of the registrar of conveyances (at Honolulu), in default of which such instruments are not binding to the detriment of third parties. (§§ 3119-3120.)

Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons. — In the appointment of administrators of the property of deceased persons the following order of priority is observed: 1, the husband (or wife) of the deceased wife (or husband); 2, the major children; 3, the brothers and sisters; 4, the cousins german; 5, any bona fide creditor applying. But the judge may for cause disregard this order of priority. (§ 2490.) Immediately upon appointment, the executor or administrator must advertise in some newspaper as ordered by court, at least once a week for four weeks, a notice to all creditors to present their claims, or duly authenticated copies thereof, with proper vouchers, if any exist, even if the claim is secured by mortgage of real estate, to such executor or administrator at his residence or place of business, within six months from the first day of such publication, and if not presented within such time, they are forever barred. (§ 2493 as amended by Laws 1917, p. 347.) Claims barred by the statute of limitations may not be paid. (§ 2494.) On rejection of any claim, the executor or administrator must give written notice to the creditor, and suit must be brought upon the claim against the executor or administrator within two months after such notice is given, or within two months after the same becomes due, or it is forever barred. (§ 2495.) Executors and administrators are in no case liable to suit until the expiration of six calendar months after probate or the granting of letters of administration, except in case of rejected claims. (§ 2496.)

Conditional Sales. — No statutory provisions.

Consignments. — No statutory provisions.

Corporations. — Five or more persons, a majority of whom are resident in the Territory, may become incorporated for the purpose of carrying on any lawful business, except banking and professional business, by filing in the office of the territorial treasurer articles of association, duly acknowledged, showing: 1, the name of the corporation, followed by the word "Limited"; 2, the place of its principal office; 3, the purpose of the company; 4, the amount of the capital stock, and if subsequent extension is provided for, the limit of such extension; 5, the number and designation of officers proposed; and also at the same time filing an affidavit of the president, secretary, and treasurer setting forth the number of shares, amount of capital stock, the names of subscribers for stock, and the amount paid in. When the object is to take over and conduct any existing agricultural, grazing, manufacturing, shipping, or trading business, the affidavit shall also contain a full description of the property intended to represent the capital stock, a detailed valuation of each item of said property, and a copy of the conveyance to be made by the owner or owners of said business to the proposed corporation. (§§ 3272-3273.) No corporation may engage in business in the Territory unless three fourths of the shares have been subscribed for, nor unless ten per cent. of the capital stock shall have been paid in or unless the corporation shall have acquired property of a value equal to ten per cent. of its capital. (§ 3275.) Upon filing the articles of association and affidavit, the persons who have subscribed the articles, their associates, successors, and assigns, are deemed to be a body corporate of the name provided, having corporate existence for the term agreed upon, not to exceed fifty years, with all the powers and liabilities provided by law and subject to all general laws thereafter to be enacted. (§ 3276.) The articles are required to be recorded in the office of the treasurer of the Territory. (§ 3274.)

Corporations may also be created by charter, in which case the treasurer, by and with the consent of the governor, grants to all who file petitions in conformity with the foregoing provisions charters of incorporation for cemetery associations, and charters other corporations, either aggregate or sole, ecclesiastical or lay, municipal corporations excepted. (§ 3279.) Applications for charters are made by written petition to the treasurer of the Territory, accompanied by proofs that three fourths of the shares have been subscribed for, and in case of joint-stock companies there must also be filed with the treasurer a certificate showing the location of the company, the object of the corporation, the amount of stock with the limit of extensions, if any, the proposed duration of the company, the time within which it is to organize, whether the liability of stockholders is proposed to be limited to the amount of their stock or otherwise, and also whether the whole or any part of the stock is to be paid in before commencing business, and if so, what part. (§ 3282.) Amendments to charters and to articles of association may be granted by the treasurer with the approval of the governor. (§ 3283.)

Wherever the capital stock is divided into shares, transfer of the shares may be made by indorsement and delivery of the certificate. No such transfer is valid except between the parties thereto, until a new certificate shall have been obtained by surrender of the old one, or the transfer recorded on the books of the company so as to show the date of transfer, the parties, their places of abode, and the number and description of the shares transferred. (§ 3286.) Every certificate issued shall plainly state how much of the par value has been paid in. (§ 3287.) Two or more classes of stock may be issued with such preferences, voting powers, restrictions, and qualifications thereof as shall be fixed in the charter or articles of association, or any amendment thereof, by vote of three fourths of all its stock, or three fourths of each class of stock, if more than one, outstanding and entitled to vote. (§ 3289.) The reduction of capital stock is specially provided for. (§ 3291.)

Every corporation created in the Territory has powers: 1, to have succession by its corporate name for the period limited in its charter or articles or by-laws; 2, to sue and be sued in any court; 3, to make, use, and alter a common seal; 4, to hold, purchase, and convey real and personal estate, not exceeding the amount limited by its charter or articles, including shares in other corporations, as the purpose of the corporation shall require, and to mortgage the same to secure any debt of the corporation; 5, to appoint subordinate officers and agents; 6, to make by-laws not inconsistent with law for the management of its property, the election and removal of its officers, the regulation of its affairs, and the transfer of its stock. (§ 3296.) And it has also such powers, and only such, as are necessary to the exercise of those above enumerated, and of such subordinate powers as are expressly given by law or in the charter granted or by law provided. (§ 3297.) Except as otherwise provided in case of banking corporations, no corporation has the power of discounting notes or other evidences of debt, or receiving deposits, or buying gold, silver, bullion, or foreign coin, buying or selling exchange, or issuing notes or other evidences of debt except so far as the exigencies of the particular business for which it was incorporated shall require. Nor may any corporation, when authorized expressly by legislative enactment, issue bills or other evidences of debt for circulation or money. (§ 3298.) Nor may any corporation pledge or hypothecate any of the shares of its unissued capital stock or in any manner dispose of the same as collateral security. (Laws 1915, p. 126.)

To satisfy the claims of creditors, each stockholder is liable to pay the amount remaining due on the shares held by him. (§ 3300.) The amount of debts which any corporation may contract shall at no time exceed the amount of its capital stock. (§ 3301.)

Corporations not eleemosynary, religious, literary, educational, or promoting amateur athletics are required to present annually to the treasurer of the Territory a full exhibit of their affairs. (§ 3304.)

The fees required to be paid on filing certificate or other papers relative to corporations are: Certificate of incorporation, twenty cents for each thousand dollars of the total amount of capital stock, but in no case less than thirty-five dollars; increase of capital stock, twenty cents for each thousand dollars of the increase authorized, but in no case less than twenty dollars. These fees are not required of corporations not organized for pecuniary profit. A stamp tax of twenty-five dollars and fee for recording have also to be paid. (§ 3305.)

Banking corporations, railways, and insurance companies are governed by special provisions of statute. (Ch. 182, as to banks; ch. 52, as to railways; ch. 88, as to insurance companies.)

See Foreign Corporations.

(In case the corporation or association has no corporate seal, omit the words, "the seal affixed to said instrument is the corporate seal of said corporation (or association), and that" and add, at the end of the affidavit clause, the words, " and that said corporation (or association) has no corporate seal.")

(In all cases add signature and title of the officer taking the acknowledgment.)

The foregoing forms are provided by §§ 3095, 3099-3106, enacted to accord with the uniform provisions of a number of States; the act provides, however, that the forms formerly provided may also be used. They are as follows (after the caption aforesaid):

1. On this day of A. D. personally appeared before me A. B., known to me to be the person described in and who executed the foregoing instrument, who acknowledged to me that he executed the same freely and voluntarily and for the uses and purposes therein set forth. (§§ 3095, 3097, 3099-3106.)

On this day of A. D. personally appeared before me, A. B., satisfactorily proved to me to be the person described in and who executed the within instrument, by the oath of C. D., a credible witness for that purpose, to me known and by me duly sworn, and he, the said A. B., acknowledged that he executed the same freely and voluntarily for the uses and purposes therein set forth. (§ 3098.)

The acknowledgment of a married woman when required by law may be taken in the same form as if she were sole and without any examination separate and apart from her husband. (§ 3099.)

The proof or acknowledgment of any deed or other written instrument required to be proved or acknowledged in order to enable the same to be recorded or read in evidence, when made by any person without this Territory and within any other State, Territory, or District of the United States, may be made before any officer of such State, Territory, or District authorized by the laws thereof to take proof and acknowledgment of deeds. But to entitle any conveyance or written instrument acknowledged or proved as last aforesaid to be read in evidence or recorded in the Territory, there must be indorsed, subjoined, or attached to the certificate of proof or acknowledgment, signed by such officer aforesaid, a certificate of the secretary of the State or Territory in which such officer resides, under the seal of such State or Territory, or the certificate of the clerk of a court of record of such State, Territory, or District in the county in which said officer resides, or in which he took such proof or acknowledgment, under the seal of such court, stating that such officer was, at the time of taking such proof or acknowledgment, duly authorized to take acknowledgments and proofs of deeds of lands in said State, Territory, or District, and that said secretary of state or clerk of court is well acquainted with the handwriting of such officer, and that he verily believes that the signature affixed to such certificate is genuine. Said authentication shall be in substantially the following form: —

(Begin with a caption specifying the State, Territory, or District, and county or place, where the authentication is made.)

I, clerk of the in and for said county, which court is a court of record, having a seal (or I, the secretary of state of such State or Territory), do hereby certify that by and before whom the foregoing acknowledgment (or proof) was taken, was, at the time of taking the same, a notary public (or other officer) residing (or authorized to act) in said county, and was duly authorized by the laws of said State (Territory or District) to take and certify acknowledgments or proofs of deeds in said State (Territory or District), and further that I am well acquainted with the handwriting of said and that I verily believe that the signature to said certificate of acknowledgment (or proof) is genuine.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of the said court (or State) this day of 19 . (§ 3101.)

The proof or acknowledgment of any deed or other instrument required to be proved or acknowledged in order to entitle the same to be recorded or read in evidence, when made by any person without the United States, may be made before any officer now authorized thereto by the laws of this Territory, or before any minister, consul, vice-consul, chargé d'affaires, consular or commercial agent, vice-consular or vice-commercial agent of the United States, resident in any foreign country or port, and when certified by him under his seal of office it shall be entitled to be recorded in the Territory, and may be read in evidence in any court in the Territory, in the same manner and with like effect as if duly proved or acknowledged within the Territory. (§ 3102.)

No acknowledgment of any conveyance or other instrument whereby any real estate is conveyed or may be affected shall be taken, unless the person offering to make such acknowledgment shall be personally known to the officer taking the same to be the person whose name is subscribed to such conveyance or instrument as a party thereto, or shall be proved to be such by the oath or affirmation of a credible witness known to the officer. (§ 3103.)

Every officer who shall take the acknowledgment of any instrument shall indorse, subjoin, or attach a certificate thereof, signed by himself, on the instrument. Every judge who shall take the proof of any instrument shall indorse, subjoin, or attach a certificate thereof, signed by himself, on the instrument, giving the names of the witnesses examined before him, their places of residence, and the substance of the evidence given by them. (§ 3104.)

To entitle any conveyance or other instrument to be recorded, it shall be acknowledged by the party or parties executing the same, before the registrar of conveyances, or his deputy, or before a judge of a court of record or a notary public of this Territory. But if any party to an instrument executed within this Territory shall die or depart from the Territory without having acknowledged his deed, or shall refuse to acknowledge it, the deed may be entered as of record on proof of its execution by a subscribing witness thereto before any judge of a court of record in the Territory. If all the subscribing witnesses to such conveyance or other instrument shall be dead or out of the Territory, the same may be proved before any court of record in the Territory by proving the handwriting of the grantor and any subscribing witness. (§ 3105.)

All interlineations, erasures, or changes in any instrument must be noted by the officer taking the acknowledgment, who shall place his initials in the margin of the instrument opposite each such interlineation, erasure, or change, and shall note at the foot of the instrument, before the acknowledging clause, what each such interlineation, erasure, or change consists of and the number of the page and line where it occurs. (§ 3106.) The form commonly in use in such cases is: —

"I hereby certify that the word 'his' in line 17 of page 2 of the foregoing instrument was changed to 'her' before acknowledgment thereof. John Doe, Notary Public, District of Honolulu, First Judicial Circuit, Territory of Hawaii. (Seal.)"

All deeds, leases for a term of more than one year, or other conveyances of real estate within the Territory, shall be recorded in the office of the registrar of conveyances, and every such conveyance not so recorded shall be void as against any subsequent purchaser in good faith and for a valuable consideration, not having actual notice of such conveyance of the same real estate, or any portion thereof, whose conveyance shall be first duly recorded. (§ 3118.)

All indentures of apprenticeship, articles of marriage settlement, powers of attorney for the transfer of real estate within the Territory, and agreements of adoption, shall, in order to their validity, be recorded in the office of the registrar of conveyances, in default of which no such instrument shall be binding to the detriment of third parties, or conclusive upon their rights and interests. (§ 3119.)

Every mortgage or other conveyance of personal property, not accompanied by immediate possession and followed by actual, continued change of possession, is void as against creditors of the mortgagor and subsequent purchasers or mortgagees in good faith and for valuable consideration unless recorded. (§ 3120.)

Conveyances to two or more. — All grants, conveyances, and devises of land, or of any interest therein, made to two or more persons, are construed to create estates in common and not in joint tenancy or by entirety, unless it shall manifestly appear from the tenor of the instrument that it was intended to create an estate in joint tenancy or by entirety, provided, however, that the foregoing provision shall not apply to grants, conveyances, or devises to executors or trustees. (§ 3132.) See Evidence; Married Women.

Depositions. — Depositions may be taken of witnesses residing in a foreign country or state or in some other circuit than that in which the cause is pending, upon oath by interrogatories or otherwise. (§ 2566.) But no deposition may be read in evidence without the consent of the party against whom the same may be offered, unless it appears to the satisfaction of the court, or persons having by law or consent of parties authority to receive evidence, that the deponent is beyond the jurisdiction of the court, or is resident in another circuit, or dead, or unable from permanent sickness, or other permanent infirmity, to attend; in all or any of which cases the deposition certified under the hand of the commissioner or other person taking the same may be received in evidence without proof of the signature to such certificate, but saving all just exceptions. (§ 2569.)

The district magistrate of any district may in any civil action issue a commission for the examination of any witness residing in any other district of the Territory. Such commission is directed to the district magistrate of the district where the witness resides, and such deposition is taken under oath upon such interrogatories and cross-interrogatories as may be propounded. (§ 2571.)

When a witness whose testimony is desired in any civil cause pending in the Territory lives on another island from that on which the trial is to be held, or is about to go out of the Territory and not return in time for the trial, or is so sick, infirm, or aged as to make it probable that he will not be able to attend trial, his deposition may be taken without commission, at any time after the cause is commenced by service of process, or after it is submitted to arbitrators or referees, upon application to any district magistrate, circuit judge, or clerk of a court of record, who shall issue notice to the adverse party to appear before said district magistrate, circuit judge, or clerk at a time and place appointed. Such notice may be served on the agent or attorney of the adverse party, or on any one of several parties, or at the abode of the adverse party. Not less than twenty-four hours shall be allowed after the notice before the time for taking the deposition, and not less than one day additional, exclusive of Sundays, for every twenty-five miles of travel of the opposite party, if he shall live more than twenty-five miles from the place of taking the deposition. The deponent must be sworn; the deposition must be written by the officer or some impartial person by him appointed and in his presence and under his direction, and must be carefully read to or by the deponent and then be subscribed by him. The officer must certify to the time and manner of the taking of the deposition, the person at whose request and the cause or suit for which taken, stating also whether the adverse party attended, and if not, stating what notice, if any, was given to him. The deposition is subject to all legal objections, and may be used after discontinuance or nonsuit in any other suit afterward commenced for the same cause between the same parties. (§§ 2573-2583.)

The testimony of any witness may be perpetuated, on petition filed with the clerk of any court of record, setting forth the claim, interest, or title in or to the subject on which the petitioner wishes to perpetuate evidence, the names and residences of all other persons known to him or being interested therein, the names of the proposed witnesses, and the obstacles preventing the immediate commencement of an action, and also praying for an order requiring the adverse party to attend at a time and place therein to be specified to take the testimony desired. And in a subsequent trial between the parties or their privies or successors in interest touching the matter or controversy in question, the deposition may be given in evidence where the witnesses are dead or insane or their attendance for an examination cannot be required or obtained; subject, however, to all legal objections for irrelevancy or incompetency. (§§ 2585-2588.) See Evidence.

Descent and Distribution. — Subject to debts, dower, and curtesy, the property of a person dying intestate descends as follows: 1. Equally among the children and the issue of any deceased child per stirpes; and if there be no surviving child, to all the other lineal descendants of the deceased per stirpes. 2. If the deceased leaves no issue, one half to the widow (or husband, as the case may be) and the other half to the father and mother as tenants in common; and if the deceased leave no widow (or husband) or issue, the whole to the father and mother, or either of them if one only be living. 3. If the deceased leave no issue nor father nor mother, one half to the widow (or husband) and the other half to the brothers and sisters and their children per stirpes. 4. If the intestate leaves none of the said relatives surviving, nor widow (or husband), the estate descends in equal shares to the next of kin in equal degree; but no person is entitled by the right of representation to the shares of such next of kin as shall have died: provided that if the estate come through either parent of the deceased, the brothers and sisters of that parent and their respective heirs shall be preferred to those of the other parent. (§ 3246.)

If the intestate dies leaving several children, and the issue of one or more others, and any such surviving child shall die under age and not having been married, all the estate that came to the deceased child by inheritance from the deceased parent descends in equal shares to the other children of the same parent and to the issue of any such other deceased children per stirpes. If at the death of such child who dies under age and not having married, all the other children of the deceased parent shall also be dead, and any of them shall have left issue, the estate that came to such deceased child by inheritance from his said parent descends to all the issue of the other children of the same parent; and if all of the said issue are in the same degree of kindred to the said child they share the estate equally, otherwise per stirpes. (§ 3247.)

Illegitimate children are regarded as heirs of their mother. (§ 3248.) If an illegitimate child dies without leaving lawful issue or a widow, the estate descends to the mother, but if the deceased leaves a widow, she takes one half and the mother the other half; if the mother is dead the widow takes one half and the other half goes to the brothers and sisters in equal shares, the children of any deceased brother or sister taking per stirpes. In default of surviving brothers or sisters or their issue, said one half goes to the brothers and sisters of the mother in equal shares, the issue of any such brother or sister deceased taking per stirpes; and in default of any such relatives, such half, and the whole if he leave no widow, goes to the next of kin (§ 3249), in which it will be noted the words "illegitimate person" is used throughout in the masculine sense, but would probably be construed as meaning females also. See Revised Laws, § 14, on construction of laws.

Kindred of the half blood inherit equally with those of the whole blood in the same degree, provided that where the inheritance came to the intestate by descent, devise, or gift of some of his ancestors, all who are not of the blood of such ancestor are excluded. (§ 3250.)

Divorce, Separation, and Annulment of Marriage. — Any circuit judge may by decree of nullity declare void the marriage contract for any of the following causes, existing at the time of marriage: 1, relationship nearer than the fourth degree of consanguinity; 2, non-age of either or both of the parties; 3, existence of undivorced husband or wife; 4, idiocy or lunacy; 5, impotency or physical incompetence. (§ 2916.) Suit to annul marriage may be brought by the parent, guardian, or friend of a party under legal age, but not by a party who was himself or herself of legal age at the time of the marriage, nor by the party when it appears the parties freely cohabited after attaining legal age. (§ 2917.) The ground of undivorced husband or wife living, may be taken advantage of by either of the parties or by the former husband or wife. (§ 2918.) The ground of mental incompetency may be taken advantage of by the same party, or any relative of the idiot or lunatic, or any next friend admitted as such by order of the judge, or by the lunatic himself after restoration to reason; but there may be no order of nullity where the parties freely cohabit after restoration of the lunatic to sanity. (§ 2921.) Physical incapacity may be taken advantage of by the injured party at any time within two years after marriage. (§ 2924.) There may be no sentence of nullity solely on the declarations or confessions of the parties. (§ 2925.) The children of any illegal marriage aforesaid inherit as if legitimate (§ 2920), except that in case of consanguinity they are illegitimate. (§ 2923.)

Divorce may be granted for the following causes: 1. Adultery; willful and utter desertion for one year; sentence to imprisonment for life or for seven years or more; contraction of incurable leprosy. 2. Extreme cruelty; habitual intemperance; non-support of wife by husband able to provide suitable maintenance, continued for not less than sixty days' period. But if the party applying for divorce on any ground under this subdivision (2) shall not insist upon divorce from the bonds of matrimony, a divorce from bed and board only shall be granted, and the relation of the parties regulated by the law of separation. (§ 2926.)

Jurisdiction is vested in the circuit judge or judges severally of the circuit in which the parties last lived together as husband and wife, or in case they shall not have so lived together in the Territory, upon the circuit judge or judges severally of the circuit in which the applicant lives. No divorce is granted for any cause unless the applicant has resided in the Territory for two years next preceding the application. (§ 2927.) All proceedings must be commenced by libel signed by the applicant and sworn to, setting forth the marriage of the parties and the cause for divorce. The summons directs the libelee to appear thirty days after service before the circuit judge at chambers to answer the libel, and the judge may not entertain jurisdiction until at least thirty days. The summons and libel are served by delivery of certified copies thereof to the libelee personally. No person is entitled to a divorce unless the libelee is served personally with process, if within the Territory, or shall have entered an appearance in the case: provided that if it appears by return of the summons or by affidavit or otherwise to the satisfaction of the judge that the libelee is without the Territory, the judge may authorize notice of the pending of the libel and of the time and place of hearing to be given to the libelee personally by such person and in such manner as he may designate, or if it further appears to his satisfaction by affidavit or otherwise that the libellant does not know the address or residence of the libelee and has not been able to ascertain either after due and reasonable inquiry and search for six months after the filing of the libel, the judge may authorize such notice to be given by publication thereof at least once a week for six successive weeks in a newspaper or newspapers suitable for the advertisement of notice of judicial proceedings published in the Territory, and may hear and determine the case at or after the time specified in such notice, which shall not be less than thirty days after the giving of such personal notice or the last publication of such published notice, as the case may be. (§§ 2928-2929.)

On the hearing of every libel for divorce the judge must require exact proof, notwithstanding consent of parties, and the admission of the respondent is incompetent except to prove the marriage; and where the ground of divorce is the disease of leprosy, proof that the libelee has been declared according to law to be a leper is prima facie proof that the libelee has an incurable case of leprosy. (§ 2931.)

No divorce shall be granted for adultery: 1, where there is reasonable cause to believe the offense to have been committed by the procurement or with the connivance of the libellant; 2, in case of forgiveness by the injured party, shown by express proof or by the voluntary cohabitation of the parties with knowledge of the adultery; 3, where libel is not filed within one year after discovery of the offense; 4, where there is reasonable cause to believe the libellant guilty of any act which would entitle the libelee, if innocent, to a divorce, which last ground (4) is not, however, applied except in case of a libel for divorce founded on adultery. (§ 2932.)

Where the wife is under restraint or in destitute circumstances, she may be allowed temporary alimony. She may also have reasonable amounts for compensation of witnesses and expense of trial. (§ 2935.) Permanent alimony is also allowed, having regard to the ability of the husband, the character and situation of the parties, and the circumstances of the case. (§ 2936.)

After divorce for adultery or other offense amounting thereto, either party may marry again at any time. Divorce for adultery of the husband shall not affect the legitimacy of the issue of the marriage; in case of divorce for the wife's adultery, the legitimacy of the children is presumed until the contrary is shown. (§ 2939-2941.)

Upon divorce for adultery, or other offense amounting thereto, of the husband, the wife becomes the absolute owner of all real property theretofore owned by her, of all personal property in her possession given to her by her husband, acquired by her own industry, given her by demise or otherwise, or to which she may be entitled by decease of any relative. (§ 2942.) The wife forfeits her dower in her husband's realty, and all share in his personalty, in case of divorce for her own adultery or other offense amounting thereto. (§ 2943.)

A separation from bed and board forever or for a limited time may be decreed by a circuit judge for any of the following causes: 1, excessive and habitual ill-treatment; 2, habitual drunkenness; 3, refusal or neglect of the husband to provide his wife with the necessaries of life. (§ 2944.) Ill-conduct of the complainant, if satisfactorily proved, may be a justification for dismissing the suit. (§ 2945.) During separation the wife has the status of a feme sole. (§ 2947.)

A cross-libel may be filed and affirmative relief granted thereon. (§ 2930.)

Dower, and other Provisions for Widow. — Every woman is endowed of one third part of all lands owned by her husband at any time during marriage, in fee simple, in freehold, or for the term of fifty years or more, so long as twenty-five years of the term remains unexpired; she is also entitled, by way of dower, to an absolute property in one third of all his movable effects in possession, or reducible to possession, at the time of his death, after the payment of all his just debts. (§ 2977.) In case of exchange of lands the wife must make her election, within six months after the death of her husband, as to which lands she will take dower in, and if such election is not made she has dower in the lands received in exchange. (§ 2978.) She has dower in lands mortgaged before marriage and in lands mortgaged for purchase-money as against every one except the mortgagee and those claiming under him (§§ 2979-2980), and in the latter case she is entitled to dower in one third of the surplus after satisfaction of the mortgage. (§ 2981.) She has no dower in lands held by her husband as mortgagee. (§ 2982.) She may, with the children or other heirs of the deceased, continue to occupy lands of which her husband died seized, or to receive one third of the rents and profits thereof, so long as the heirs do not object, without having her dower assigned (§ 2983), and she may remain in the husband's house sixty days after his death without being chargeable for rent therefor, and in the mean time have her reasonable sustenance out of his estate. (§ 2984.) The widow (with the minor children, if any), until letters are granted and the inventory is returned, is entitled to remain in possession of the homestead, of all the wearing apparel of the family, and of all the household furniture, and is also entitled to reasonable provision for support. (§ 2491.)

The wife's dower is barred by divorce for misconduct (§ 2985), also by her joining with her husband in a deed conveying land, or by a separate deed releasing the same, or she may delegate to an attorney in fact other than her husband the powers to execute such release, either by general or special power of attorney. (§ 2986.) Dower in lands may also be barred by a jointure settled on her before her marriage, provided such jointure consists of an estate in lands for the life of the wife at least, to take effect immediately on the husband's death; her assent to such jointure being expressed, if she be of full age, by her becoming a party to the conveyance by which the same is settled, and if she be a minor, by the joining with her father or guardian in such conveyance (§ 2987), or any provision in lieu of dower, if assented to as last aforesaid, shall be a bar to her right of dower in all lands. (§ 2988.) If such jointure or pecuniary provision be made before marriage without the assent of the intended wife, or if it be made after marriage, it shall bar her dower unless within six months after her receiving notice of her husband's death she elect to be endowed of the lands of her husband. (§ 2989.)

If any provision be made for a widow in the will of her husband, she must, within six months after probate of the will, make her election in writing filed in the court having jurisdiction of his estate, to take under the will, or to be endowed of his estate as provided by law, but she may not be entitled to both, unless such plainly appears by the will to have been the intent. If she fail to make her election within said time, she is cited to appear before close of administration, and, on failure to appear, is conclusively presumed to have reserved her dower. (§§ 2990-2991.)

Curtsey. — The husband has a life interest in one third of his deceased wife's real estate. (§ 2257.) The guardian of an insane married person may, with the approval of any circuit judge of the circuit in which the real property intended to be sold lies, release his ward's curtesy or dower in such property. (Laws 1917, p. 127.)

Employer's Liability. — See Workman's Compensation.

Evidence. — No person is excluded from giving evidence by reason of incapacity from crime (perjury or subornation of perjury only excepted) or by reason of interest (§ 2600); and the evidence of any minor may be received, notwithstanding his want of knowledge of God and of any belief in religion or in a future state of rewards and punishments, provided such evidence be given upon his affirmation or declaration to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, or in such other form as may be approved by the court or person having authority to hear, receive, and examine evidence, and after he shall have been cautioned that he will be liable to punishment if he does not tell the truth, and also provided it shall be satisfactorily proved that the minor perfectly understood the nature and object of such declaration and the purpose for which his testimony is required. (§ 2611.) All persons and parties and their husbands and wives are competent and compellable to give evidence; but no person is compellable to give evidence for or against himself, or to answer any question tending to criminate himself, and no husband (or wife) is competent or compellable in any criminal proceeding to give evidence against his wife (or her husband, respectively), provided that the husband or wife of an accused party is a competent witness for the defense (§ 2613), and no husband (or wife) is compellable to disclose any communication made to the wife (or husband) during the marriage. (§ 2614.) The privilege extends also to communications to clergymen of any church or religious denomination, and to communications to physicians, unless the sanity of the patient be the matter in dispute. (§ 2615.)

A witness may be questioned as to whether he has been convicted of any offense, and on his denial, or refusal to answer, said conviction may be otherwise proved. (§ 2617.) One may not impeach his own witness by general evidence of bad character, but may contradict him by other evidence, or if, in the opinion of the court, the witness be adverse may by leave of court prove previous statements inconsistent with his present testimony, provided the circumstances of the supposed statement sufficient to designate the particular occasion he mentioned to the witness and he be asked whether he made such statement. (§ 2618.) A witness may be cross-examined as to previous statements made by him in writing or reduced to writing, his attention being first called to those parts to be used to contradict him, but the court may require the production of the writing for his inspection. (§ 2620.)

Either party may call on the other by forty-eight hours' notice that he proposes to prove certain facts or documents specified and requires the other to admit the same, saving all just exceptions, and in case of refusal or neglect to make such admission, the costs of making proof of said facts or documents are on the party so neglecting or refusing, unless the judge shall certify that the refusal or neglect was reasonable. (§§ 2563-2565.)

Any party to any suit or action in any court of record may apply for an order for the inspection by himself or by his witnesses of any real or personal property, when such inspection is material to the question in dispute (§ 2590); or for the inspection of all documents in the custody or control of the opposite party relating to such cause or proceeding, and if necessary, to take examined copies thereof in all cases in which a discovery may be had in a court of equity (§ 2591); and upon affidavit of any party to any cause or proceeding in any court of record, on his belief that any document to the production of which he is entitled is in the possession or power of the opposite party, the court or judge may order that the party against whom said application is made (or its officer, if said party be a corporation) shall answer on affidavit stating what documents he or they had or have in his or their possession or power, relating to the matters in dispute, or what be known as to the custody of the same, and whether he or they objects or object (and if so on what grounds) to the production of the same, whereupon the court may make such further order as is just. (§ 2592.)

All proclamations, treaties, and other acts of state of the Territory, or of any foreign state, and all judgments, decrees, and other judicial proceedings of any court in the Territory or in any foreign state, and all affidavits, pleadings, and other legal documents, wills, and codicils filed or deposited in any such court, may be proved by examined copies authenticated as follows: If a proclamation, treaty, or other act of state, the authenticated copy must purport to be sealed with the great seal of the Territory or of the foreign state to which the original document belongs; if a judgment, decree, order, or other judicial proceeding, or an affidavit, pleading, or other legal document, will, or codicil, the authenticated copy must purport either to be sealed with the seal of the court or (if the court have no seal) to be signed by one of the judges of said court, and said judge must attach to his signature a statement on said copy that the court has no seal and every such copy is prima facie evidence of the original thereof, without proof of the seal or signature, or of the judicial character of the person, or of the truth of any statement as to want of a seal. (§ 2593.) Government grants or leases, or other conveyances of government lands may be proved by certified copy thereof under the hand and official seal of the officer having charge thereof. (§ 2594.) If any book or document is of such a public nature as to be admissible on mere production from proper custody, any copy thereof is admissible in evidence, provided it be proved to be an examined copy or extract, or provided it purports to be signed and certified as a true copy or extract by the officer in custody of the original. (§ 2595.) The mere production of a newspaper purporting to contain public notices published by authority is prima facie evidence of such publication on the day on which the same bears date. (§ 2598.) All legislative proceedings purporting to be printed by authority are admissible as evidence thereof. (§ 2599.) A transcript of any of the records and judicial proceedings of any court of record or of any judge thereof at chambers is admissible in evidence upon being authenticated by the attestation of the clerk of said court, or of the judge at chambers, with the seal of court annexed. (§ 2600.) A transcript from the docket of any circuit judge at chambers or district magistrate, of any judgment had before him, of any execution thereon, and of any return to such execution, when subscribed by such judge or magistrate, shall be evidence of facts stated in such transcript, in any other court. (§ 2601.) The probate of a will or codicil, or letters of administration with the will or codicil annexed, is prima facie evidence of the original will or codicil. (§ 2602.) Conviction or acquittal may be proved by a certificate containing the substance and effect only of the indictment, information, or presentment, and conviction or acquittal, purporting to be signed by the officer or his deputy having the custody of the records of the court where the alleged offender was convicted or acquitted. (§ 2603.) Whenever by law any certificate, official or public document, or proceeding of any corporation, or joint-stock or other company, or any certified copy of any document or by-laws, entry in any register or other book, or of any other proceeding is receivable in evidence, the same respectively are admitted, provided they respectively purport to be sealed or impressed with a stamp, or sealed and signed, or signed alone as required, or impressed with a stamp, and signed as directed by law, without any proof of the seal or stamp where a seal or stamp are necessary, or of the signature or official character of the signer, and without any further proof thereof in every case where the original is receivable in evidence. (§ 2605.) Any writing copied by machine or press, which produces a facsimile impression or copy is upon satisfactory proof that the same was taken or made from the original by said machine or press, sufficient prima facie evidence of the original without proof of comparison and without notice to produce the original. (§ 2606.) The record of an instrument duly recorded, or a duly certified transcript thereof, may be read in evidence, as the original. (§ 3117.) See Deeds; Depositions; Proof of Claims.

Executions. — Judgment may be entered immediately upon the rendition of a verdict, judgment, or decision, and execution may issue thereon at any time thereafter unless stayed as provided by law. (§ 2441.) Final orders, judgments, or decrees of any circuit court or judge at chambers are effective in all circuits throughout the Territory. (§ 2453.) The filing within ten days after verdict, judgment, or decision, of a motion for a new trial and a bond for payment of all costs of the motion in case it is not sustained, and that the moving party will not, to the detriment of the opposite party, remove or otherwise dispose of any property liable to execution, operates as a stay of execution until the motion is decided; provided that if execution has issued within the said ten days, such execution may be stayed by the judgment debtor filing a bond approved by the court or judge, conditioned for the payment of the full amount for which the execution issued in case the payment shall not be reversed or set aside on any appeal. (§ 2442.) Any judge of a court of records may by order at chambers grant a stay of execution for equitable reasons, where no appeal or writ of error is granted, upon the defendant giving bond for its satisfaction, and when justice requires the renewal of any execution, or an extension of time for making return thereto, any judge of a court of record may so order. (§ 2454.)

As to effect of appeals, exceptions, etc., as staying execution, see Appeals, Exceptions, error, supra.

Any judgment rendered in a district court is a lien upon real property, when a transcript thereof, certified by the magistrate of such court, is docketed in the office of the clerk of the circuit court of the circuit wherein said district court is situated. And such judgment docket must be recorded in the registry of deeds within fifteen days after such docketing in order to perfect the lien. (§ 2443.)

No original execution may be issued except within one year after the party is entitled to sue out the same, and no alias or other successive execution may be issued afterward unless each be sued out within one year after the return day of the execution preceding it. (§ 2445.) If a judgment remains unsatisfied, after the expiration of the time for taking out execution thereon, the plaintiff may have scire facias to obtain a new execution, or he may at any time after the judgment, subject to the statute of limitations, have an action of debt thereon. (§ 2446.) Any circuit court out of which an execution has issued, if such an execution has been returned wholly or partially unsatisfied, may issue an alias writ. (§ 2452.)

If upon an execution issued by a district magistrate no property, or not sufficient property, can be found, and the writ is returned unsatisfied, in whole or in part, the plaintiff may, upon procuring a certified copy of the judgment and execution in the court below, to be docketed in the supreme court, sue out a writ of execution from such supreme court, available wherever the defendant's property may be found throughout the Territory. (§ 2449.)

The duly appointed clerk of any district court, as well as the magistrate, may sign an execution on a judgment of said court. (Laws 1917, p. 66.)

Advertisement for sale under execution is published for thirty days. (§ 2457.)

The sheriff may require an indemnity bond against all costs and expenses which he may sustain in consequence of seizure or sale of property and the claims of third persons. (§ 2463.) An indemnity bond may also be required in case of property claimed to be exempt, when doubt arises as to the liability of the property to be seized or sold, the bond conditional to indemnify and save harmless the officer against all possible damages, costs, and expenses. (§ 2466.)

Exemptions from Execution. — The following property is exempt from execution, attachment, distress, and forced sale: 1. All necessary household, table, and kitchen furniture, one sewing-machine, crockery, tin and plated ware, calabashes and mats, family portraits and photographs and their necessary frames, wearing apparel, bedding, household linen, and provisions for household use for three months. 2. Farming implements and utensils not exceeding five hundred dollars in value; two oxen, two horses or mules, and their harness and their food for one month; one horse, one set of single harness, and one vehicle of any person who is maimed or crippled. 3. The tools or implements of a mechanic or artisan necessary to carry on his trade; the instruments and chest of a physician, dentist, or surveyor necessary to the exercise of his profession, together with his necessary office furniture and fixtures; the necessary office furniture, fixtures, blanks, stationery, and office equipment of attorneys and judges, ministers of the gospel and rabbis; the typewriter, one desk, and six chairs of a stenographer or typewriter; the musical instruments of every teacher of music, used in giving instruction; one bicycle used in carrying on of one's regular business or transporting him to and from his place of business; the fishing nets, dips and seines, and the boats with their tackle and equipment, of every fisherman. 4. Two horses or mules and their harness, one cart, wagon, or stage, one dray or truck, one coupe, hack, or carriage for one or two horses, one automobile, one motorcycle, or other vehicle, by use of which a cartman, drayman, truckster, huckster, peddler, hackman, teamster, chauffeur, driver, or other laborer earns his living; and two horses and harness and one vehicle or one automobile or motorcycle used by a physician, surgeon, or minister of the gospel in the practice or exercise of his profession provided that the same shall not be exempt from the purchase price of any goods, wares, merchandise, materials, or the value of the same used in or upon any such cart, wagon, etc. 5. The nautical instruments and wearing apparel of every master, officer, and seamen of any steamship or other vessel. 6. All books, papers, pamphlets, and manuscripts, together with book-cases, shelvings, cabinets, and other devices for holding the same, except those kept for sale by any dealer therein. 7. One half of the wages due every laborer or person working for wages. 8. The proceeds of insurance on, and the proceeds of sale of the property aforesaid for the period of three months after such proceeds are received. (§ 2470.) There is no exemption of the foregoing property from attachment therefor, or execution issued upon a judgment recovered for the purchase price thereof, or upon a judgment of foreclosure of a mortgage thereon, or for taxes or fines or any debt due the Territory of Hawaii. (§ 2471.) There is also exempt from execution the family bible, family pictures, school-books, two swine or six goats, and all necessary fish, meat, flour, and vegetables, and one piece of land not to exceed one acre and the dwelling and other buildings thereon, provided the value thereof shall not exceed one thousand dollars. But this exemption does not apply as against mechanics and material-men having liens for labor or material furnished in the erection of such buildings. (§ 2469, as amended by Laws 1917, p. 279.)

Foreign Corporations. — Every corporation organized under the laws of any foreign state, and desiring to do business in the Territory or to have, hold, and own any real estate therein, must file in the office of the territorial treasurer: 1. A certified copy of its charter or act of incorporation. 2. The names of the officers. 3. The name and business address of some person residing within the Territory upon whom legal notices and process from the territorial courts or notices from territorial officials may be served. 4. A certified copy of the by-laws of such corporation or company. 5. A good and sufficient bond or bonds, with one or more sureties to be approved by the treasurer of the Territory of Hawaii, and running to said treasurer and his successors in office, in a sum or sums to be fixed by the treasurer in his sound discretion, but in the aggregate sum of not less than one thousand dollars, nor more than ten per cent. of the capital stock of said corporation or company if its capital stock shall exceed the sum of ten thousand dollars, but in no case, however, shall such bond exceed the sum of fifty thousand dollars, with condition that the surety or sureties on such bond or bonds shall be answerable in the amount of said bond or bonds for all judgments, decrees, or orders given, made, or rendered against the principal on said bond or bonds by any of the courts of this Territory for the payment of money. Provided, however, that if, in the judgment of the treasurer of the Territory, any such corporation or company shall own and hold property within the Territory of Hawaii in value sufficient to equal the amount of any bond or bonds which said treasurer of the Territory would otherwise require from such corporation or company as provided herein, then no bond shall be required of any such corporation or company. (§ 3378.) Upon complying with these provisions and paying to the treasurer of the Territory a fee of fifty dollars, such corporation has the same powers and privileges and disabilities as Hawaiian corporations, except railroad and banking corporations. (§ 3379.) No foreign corporation, except insurance companies, which does not invest and use all its capital in the Territory may have an office therein unless it first obtains from the territorial treasurer a license, for which it is required to pay annually one hundred dollars. (§ 3380.) Annual exhibits are required to be filed as in the case of local corporations, except that the date of filing is July 1st in each year. (§ 3382.) See Corporations.

Garnishment. — Whenever the goods or effects of a debtor are concealed in the hands of his attorney, agent, factor, or trustee so that they cannot be found to be attached or levied upon, or when debts are due from any person to a debtor, any creditor may bring his action against such debtor and in his petition for process request the court to insert therein a direction to the officer serving the same to leave a true and attested copy with such attorney, agent, factor, or trustee, or at the place of his or their usual abode, and to summon such attorney, agent, factor, or trustee to appear personally upon the day or term mentioned or appointed in said process for hearing the cause, and then and there disclose whether he has, or at the time of service had, any goods or effects of the defendant in his hands, and if so the nature, amount, and value thereof, or is indebted to him and the nature and amount of such debt. The filing of an answer under oath shall be deemed prima facie, a compliance with the summons, provided that at any time thereafter before the conclusion of the trial either party may upon written notice require such garnishee to appear and be orally examined under oath. (Laws 1917, p. 246.) Service upon the garnishee is sufficient notice to the defendant to enable the plaintiff to bring his action to trial, unless the defendant be an inhabitant of the Territory, or has sometime resided therein, and then he shall be served personally, or copy of summons and complaint left at his last and usual place of abode. (§ 2801.) If the defendant is in receipt of any salary, annuity, or pension from the garnishee, the garnishee must not pay or permit to be paid to defendant more than seventy-five per cent. of such salary, stipend, wages, annuity, or pension which shall then or thereafter become due, owing, or payable until the suit shall have been finally determined, provided that no more shall be withheld than is sufficient to meet the plaintiff's demand with costs and interest. (§ 2803.) And upon judgment in such case, if the amount sequestered as aforesaid is not sufficient to satisfy the judgment, such sequestration and payment to plaintiff by the garnishee of twenty-five per cent. of the salary, stipend, wages, annuity, or pension shall continue from week to week or from month to month until the judgment with interest is fully paid or until the defendant quits the service of the garnishee. (§ 2804.) Whenever any judgment debtor, whose salary, stipend, wages, annuity, or pension shall have been garnished, shall have left the employment of the garnishee before the full amount of the judgment shall have been paid, then any salary, stipend, wages, annuity, or pension due the said judgment debtor from any person, firm, association, or corporation other than the original garnishee, may be sequestered upon the filing by the judgment creditor with such person, firm, association, or corporation other than the original garnishee, of a certified copy of the judgment rendered against such judgment debtor, together with a certificate from the clerk of the court in which such judgment has been rendered, showing the amount remaining unpaid on account of said judgment. (Laws 1915, p. 66.) In case of successive suits, precedence is given to the suits in which service is first had, and if two processes are served at once, the order of their issuance from the court controls. (§ 2805.) The garnishee may make return or be heard at once. (§ 2812.) And if the garnishee is indebted to the defendant, but the debt is not due or payable until some future time, then the plaintiff's judgment constitutes a lien upon the debt. (§ 2813.) See Supplementary Proceedings.

Income Tax. — See Taxes.

Inheritance Taxes. — See Taxes.

Insolvency and Assignments for Benefit of Creditors. — No statutory provisions.

Interest. — In the absence of express contract fixing a different rate, the legal rate of interest is eight per cent. per annum for all moneys after they become due on any bond, bill, promissory note, or other instrument in writing, for money lent, for money due on settlement of accounts from the day on which the balance is ascertained, and for money received to the use of another from the date of demand made. (§ 3440.) The interest rate on judgments in civil suits is six per cent. (§ 3441.) The rate under written contract signed by the party to be charged may not exceed one per cent. per month. (§ 3442.) Compound interest is not recoverable. (§ 3445.) More than two per cent. per month is a usurious rate. (§ 3444.)

Judgments. — Provision of statute making judgments a lien upon real property by recording judgment in the registry of deeds. (§ 2444.)

Land Registration. — The Torrens Title System is used and the procedure is set out by statute. (§§ 3133–3242.)

Landlords, Remedies of. — Whenever any lessee or tenant of lands or tenements, or any person holding under him, holds possession without right, after determination of said tenancy, either by efflux of time or by reason of any forfeiture under the conditions or covenants of any lease, or, if a tenant by parol, by a notice to quit of at least ten days, the person entitled to the premises may be restored to possession through proceedings in a district court. (See ch. 154.)

Liens. — Mechanics and Material-men. — Any person or association of persons furnishing labor or material used in the construction or repair of any building, structure, railroad, or other undertaking has a lien upon the same for the price agreed to be paid therefor (if it does not exceed the value thereof), as well as upon the interest of the owner of the building, structure, railroad, or other undertaking in the land upon which the same is situated. (§ 2863.) A notice of the lien in writing must be filed in the office of the clerk of the circuit court where the property is situated, and a copy of the notice served upon the owner of the property. Such notice must set forth the amount of the claim, the labor or material furnished, a description of the property sufficient to identify the same, and any other facts necessary to a clear understanding of the matter. The lien continues for forty-five days after the completion of the construction or repair of the building, structure, railroad, or other undertaking. (§ 2864.) The lien has force only from date of filing. (§ 2866.) The lien may be enforced by suit. The summons shall set forth the ordinary allegations in assumpsit, and in addition thereto note that a lien has been filed. Before trial the defendant shall be furnished with a detailed specification of the claim, if the same has not already been furnished. In case the contract for services and material was made directly with the owner, an attachment may be issued in connection with the suit upon filing an indemnity bond in such terms as the court may fix. (§ 2867.)

Care of Animals. — Whoever pastures, feeds, or shelters animals under contract with or by consent of the owner, for a compensation agreed upon, has a lien upon such animals to secure payment for his services with costs. (§ 2873.) Upon failure to make payment within thirty days after demand and notice in writing, the lienholder may cause the animal or animals to be sold at public auction upon publication of notice for fifteen days in an English or Hawaiian newspaper, or by posting such notice in the English and Hawaiian language at the court-house of the district where no newspaper is published (§ 2874); any excess of sale proceeds being paid to the owner of the animals sold. (§ 2875.)

See Executions; Judgments; Taxes.

Limitations, Statute of. — Personal Actions. — The following actions must be commenced within six years after the cause of action accrued: 1. For recovery of debt founded on any contract, obligation, or liability, except upon judgment or decree of court of record (provided that in case the cause of action has arisen in a foreign country the period is extended to four years. (§ 2638.) 2. Upon judgments of courts not of record. 3. Debt for arrearages of rent. 4. For trespass upon lands. 5. For taking or detaining goods or chattels, including actions of replevin. 6. Special actions on the case for criminal conversation, libels, or any other injury to the rights of any one. (§ 2633.) In actions of debt, account, or assumpsit to recover any balance due upon a mutual, open, and current account, the cause of action accrues from time of the last item. (§ 2634.) Actions for recovery of compensation for damage or injury to persons or property must be brought within two years in the following cases: 1, false imprisonment; 2, slander of character or title; 3, special damage for words spoken; 4, against sheriffs for escape of prisoners, for liability incurred in their official capacity, or for omission of any official duty. (§ 2636.) Every judgment or decree of any court of record of the Territory is presumed to be paid at the end of twenty years after the rendition. (§ 2637.) An action cannot be maintained upon a cause of action arising in a foreign country but barred by the court thereof, except in favor of a domiciled resident of the Territory who has held the cause of action from the time it accrued. (§ 2640.)

When any person entitled to bring any action aforesaid is at the time when the cause of action accrued, within the age of twenty years, or insane, or imprisoned on a criminal charge or in execution under sentence of a criminal court for a term less than life, he may bring his action within the times limited as aforesaid, after such disability is removed (§ 2642); but no disability shall avail when it existed at the time of the right of action accrued. (§ 2643.) In case of two or more disabilities, there is no bar until all are removed. (§ 2644.) In case of death, the executor or administrator may commence action within one year after the expiration of the time fixed by the statute of limitations. (§ 2645.) If at any time when any cause of action aforesaid accrues against any person, he is out of the Territory, such action may be commenced within the respective terms aforesaid, after his return, and if after such cause of action accrues, he shall depart from and reside out of the Territory, the time of his absence is not deemed a part of the time limited for commencement of suit. (§ 2646.) Stay of suit by injunction stops the running of the statute of limitations. (§ 2647.) If any person liable to any action aforesaid fraudulently conceals the cause of such action from the knowledge of the person entitled thereto, the action may be commenced within six years after the person entitled shall discover that he has such cause of action. (§ 2648.) Issuance of process with intent that it should not be served, or that the defendant should be kept in ignorance thereof, is not deemed the commencement of suit. (§ 2650.)

Real Actions. — Actions to recover possession of lands, or make any entry thereon, must be commenced within ten years after the right to bring such action first accrued. (§ 2651.) If such right first accrued to any ancestor or predecessor of the person bringing such action, or making such entry, or to any person from, by, or under whom he claims, the ten years are computed from the time when the right first accrued to such ancestor, predecessor, or other person. (§ 2652.) If when such right of entry or of action shall first accrue, the person entitled is within the age of twenty years, or insane, or imprisoned, such person or any one claiming from, by, or under him may make the entry or bring the action within five years after such disability is removed, notwithstanding the ten years have expired. (§ 2654.) In case of death of the person entitled and no determination or judgment is had upon the title, right, or action, the entry may be made or action brought by the heirs or any other person claiming from, by, or under him at any time within five years from his death. (§ 2655.) If a person dies who was under disability when the right of action, first accrued, no further time is allowed by reason of the disability of any other person. (§ 2656.) If any action for possession of lands is abated by death of any party thereto, or if after verdict judgment is arrested or reversed on error, the party bringing the action, or any person claiming by, through, or under him, may bring a new action, within one year after the determination of the original action or the reversal of the judgment thereon. (§ 2657.) No person is deemed to have been in possession of any lands within the meaning of this statute merely by reason of having made an entry thereon, unless he has continued in open and peaceable possession thereof for one year after such entry, or unless action is commenced upon such entry within one year after ouster. (§ 2658.)

Married Women, Rights of. — The real and personal property of a woman remains, upon her marriage, her separate property, free from the management, control, debts, and obligations of her husband; and a married woman may receive, receipt for, hold, manage, and dispose of property, real and personal, in the same manner as if she were sole; provided that no sale or mortgage of her real estate is valid without the written consent of her husband. (§ 2950.) She may make contracts, oral and written, sealed and unsealed, as if she were sole, except she may not make contracts for personal service without the written consent of her husband, nor contract with her husband. (§ 2951.) All work and labor performed or services rendered by her for others than her husband and children are, in the absence of express agreement to the contrary, presumed to be performed or rendered on her separate account. (§ 2952.) She may act as executrix, administrator, guardian, or trustee, and bind herself and the estate represented, without any act or consent of her husband. (§ 2953.) She may sue and be sued as if she were sole, but suits between husband and wife are not thereby authorized. (§ 2954.) She may carry on business on her separate account by filing in the office of the treasurer of the Territory a certificate setting forth the name and residence of her husband, the nature of the business, and the place where it is, or is proposed to be, carried on, giving if practicable the street and number on the street; and when the nature of the business or the place where it is carried on is changed, a new certificate must be filed. (§ 2959.) Any judge of a circuit court, on application of a married woman whose husband has absented himself from the Territory, abandoning her, and not making sufficient provision for her maintenance, may empower her during his absence and until his return in her own name to make and execute any contract under seal or otherwise, to make sale of any estate, real or personal, of which she is seized or possessed in her own right, and execute all legal instruments necessary thereto, and to commence, prosecute, and defend any action in law or equity, as if unmarried (§ 2962); and in such case any circuit judge may also authorize any person holding money or other personal property to which the husband is entitled in her right to pay and deliver the same to the wife, and authorize her to use and dispose of such property during his absence as her own property. (§ 2963.) Upon any application to a circuit judge as aforesaid, notice must be ordered to be given by publishing the same for three successive weeks in a suitable newspaper, the last publication to be at least three calendar months before the granting of the application. (§ 2964.)

Mortgages, Foreclosure of. — By sale under a power. — When a power of sale is contained in a mortgage, the mortgagee or any person having his estate therein, or authorized by such power to act in the premises, may upon a breach of the condition give notice of his intention to foreclose, by publication in the English language once a week for three successive weeks, the first publication to be not less than twenty-eight days before the day of sale and the last publication to be not less than fourteen days before the day of sale (Laws 1915, p. 144), in a newspaper published either in the county in which the mortgaged property lies or in Honolulu and having a circulation in such county, and also give such notices and do all such acts as are authorized or required by the power contained in the mortgage; and he, or some person duly authorized to act for him and conducting the foreclosure, must within thirty days after selling the property as aforesaid file with the registrar of conveyances a copy of the notice of sale and his affidavit setting forth his acts in the premises fully and particularly. (§§ 2851-2852.)

By Entry. — After breach of the condition, the mortgagee or any one claiming under him may, 1, enter into possession and hold the same by consent in writing of the mortgagor or person holding under him, or, 2, enter peaceably and openly, if not opposed, in the presence of two witnesses and take possession of the premises, in which case a certificate of the fact and time of such entry must be made, signed, and sworn to by such witnesses before any judge of a court and be recorded in the registry of conveyances within thirty days after such entry. (§ 2856.) Possession obtained by either of the above modes and continued for two years bars redemption. (§ 2858.)

Foreclosure may also be had by suit in the usual manner, brought before the judge of a circuit court at chambers. (See §§ 2859-2862.) See Chattel Mortgages.

Notaries Public. — The attorney-general of the Territory appoints notaries public, to hold office until removed by him. (§ 3122.) The notary must use a seal engraved with his name and the words "Notary Public" and "Territory of Hawaii." (§ 3124.) (§ 3410, as amended by Laws 1917, p. 136.) And the fact of changes or dissolution must also be recorded in the treasurer's office. (§ 3411, as amended by Laws 1917, p. 136.) All such statements aforesaid must be published at least twice in the English language in any newspaper published in each county where the copartnership has a place for the transaction of business. (§ 3412.)

The statutes also provide for special partnerships, whereunder the special partners are not liable for the debts of the firm except to the extent of their contribution to the capital and to the increase thereof. (Ch. 188.)

Practice. — Practice is regulated by statute rules of court, and when these do not apply, by the common law. Amendments are freely permitted. See Actions, etc.

Proof of Claims on Open Account. — When any action in any district court or before any district magistrate, or defense thereto, is founded upon an open account supported by the affidavit of the party, his agent or attorney in fact, to the effect that such account is just, true, and correct, that all the goods have been delivered, that it is due, and that all just and lawful offsets, payments, and credits have been allowed, the same is taken as prima facie evidence thereof, unless the party resisting such a claim files with his answer or other plea a counter affidavit stating the items and particulars which are unjust or untrue or incorrect and particularizing wherein they are just, true, and correct. Whenever in any such action it is necessary to prove delivery of goods made or merchandise sold, proof that the account rendered therefor has not been disputed for six months after the first rendering thereof is prima facie evidence of such delivery. (§ 2339.)

Public Utilities. — Commission authorized to regulate acts, etc., or public utility corporations. (Ch. 128, An. 1915, p. 219; An. 1917, p. 315.)

The registration fee is fifty cents per hundred words. (§§ 3090-3094.) Deeds executed between September 27, 1876, and July 1, 1917, are subject to certain stamp duties. (Laws 1917, p. 383.) See Chattel Mortgages; Deeds.

Replevin. — The plaintiff in an action to recover possession of personal property may, at the time of issuing summons or at any time before issue joined, claim delivery to him of said property, in which case an affidavit must be made by him or some one in his behalf showing, 1, that the plaintiff is the owner of the property claimed, particularly describing it, or is lawfully entitled to possession thereof; 2, that the property is unlawfully detained by the defendant; 3, that the same has not been taken for a tax, assessment, or fine pursuant to a statute, or seized under execution or attachment, or if so seized, that it is exempt from execution. (§§ 2767-2768.) The plaintiff or his attorney may thereupon, by indorsement in writing upon the affidavit or by written request thereto attached, require the high sheriff or his deputy or the sheriff of the island where suit is brought, or his deputy, to take the property from the defendant; provided that no property shall be taken beyond the jurisdiction of the court whence the process issues. (§ 2769.) The plaintiff must also provide a bond with two or more sufficient sureties approved by the proper sheriff aforesaid in double the value of the property as stated in the affidavit, for the prosecution of the action, for the return of the property to the defendant, if its return be adjudged, and for payment to the defendant of such sum as may be recovered against the plaintiff. (§ 2770.) The defendant may within two days after service upon him or his agent of a copy of the affidavit and undertaking, or if so served upon another island than where suit was commenced, then within ten days after service, give notice to the sheriff that he objects to the sufficiency of the sureties (§ 2773); whereupon the sureties must, within two days after such objection is made, justify before a judge or clerk of a court of record or a district magistrate (§ 2774) by each making oath, 1, that he is a resident of the Territory (stating where) and is either a freeholder or householder therein; 2, that he is worth the amount named in the bond, above all debts and liabilities in property unincumbered and not exempt from execution. (§ 2774.)

The only digest published is that known as Edings' Digest, covering volumes one to fourteen inclusive, and Thayer's Digest covering volumes one to twenty-two inclusive. An act has recently been passed providing for the publication of the decisions of the United States District Court for Hawaii. (Laws 1915, p. 82.)

(§ 2807.) Upon the ex parte application of such judgment creditor, either before or after such oral examination and upon affidavit by the judgment creditor or his attorney stating that judgment has been recovered and is still unsatisfied, and to what amount, and that any other person is indebted to the judgment debtor, and is within the jurisdiction, any judge may order all debts arising or accruing from such third person to the judgment debtor to be attached to answer the judgment debt, and by the same or any subsequent order may compel the third person aforesaid to appear and show cause why he should not pay the judgment creditor the debt due from him to the judgment debtor or so much as may satisfy the judgment debt. (§ 2808.) At the suggestion of said third person, other persons having a lien or charge upon the debt may be brought in (§ 2311.) See Garnishment.

Taxes. — Personal and Property Taxes. — All property is assessed as of January 1st in each year, and the taxes thereon are due and payable on and after January 31st in each year. All personal taxes are assessed as of, and are due and payable on and after January 1st in each year. Tax-payers must make returns of their property and its value between January 1st and 31st, both inclusive. All personal taxes unpaid on March 31st of each year thereupon becomes delinquent. All the specific taxes and one half of all other property taxes unpaid on May 15th thereupon become delinquent. The balance of the property taxes unpaid on November 15th thereupon become delinquent. (§ 1207.)

Personal and Specific Taxes. — Poll tax, every male inhabitant between the ages of twenty and sixty years, one dollar annually. (§ 1224.) School tax, two dollars for every such male. (§ 1225.) Heretofore, the rate has been one per cent. (§ 1238.) Real property includes all lands with the buildings, structures, fences, wharves, improvements, and other things erected on or affixed to the same. (§ 1239.) Personal property includes all household furniture and effects, jewelry, watches, goods, chattels, wares and merchandise, machinery, ships or vessels, whether at home or abroad, all moneys in hand, rights of piscary, leasehold and chattel interests in land and real property, franchises, patents, contracts, growing crops, and all animals not otherwise specifically taxed. (§ 1240, as amended by Laws 1917, p. 423.) All real and personal property and the interest of any person therein is assessed separately as to each item thereof for its full market value, provided that in case where several classes of property are combined and made the basis of an enterprise for profit, the same is assessed as a whole on its fair and reasonable aggregate value. (§1241.) The property tax of one per cent. is imposed only upon property in excess of the value of three hundred dollars. This exemption is allowed in but one taxation district in the Territory, namely, where the owner resides, and is not allowed to corporations, companies, estates of decedents, or non-residents. (§ 1251.)

Appeal to the tax appeal court from an assessment may be made by filing with the assessor or his deputy, on or before May 1st, a notice thereof in writing stating the grounds of objection to the assessment or any part thereof. (§ 1270.) From this court appeal may be had to the supreme court at any time within twenty days by filing notice thereof and depositing one hundred dollars or filing in lieu thereof a bond for one hundred dollars conditioned to pay all costs in case the appeal is not sustained. (§ 1280.)

Income Tax. — An income tax of two per cent. per annum is levied upon the gains, profits, and income over and above fifteen hundred dollars derived by residents from all property owned, and every business, trade, profession, employment, or vocation carried on in the Territory, and by every non-resident from all property owned, and every business, trade, profession, employment, or vocation carried on in the Territory, and by every servant or officer of the Territory wherever residing. (§ 1305.) The tax is also assessed on the net profit or income, above actual operating and business expenses, of all corporations, wherever organized, doing business for profit in the Territory. (§ 1306.) An additional tax of one per cent. per annum upon the gains, profits, and income of all individuals and corporations over and above four thousand dollars from January 1, 1915, to December 31, 1917, inclusive. (Laws 1915, p. 138.) Appeals from assessments are allowed in like manner as in case of property tax. (§ 1313.) The tax is payable one half on or before the fifteenth day of May and the other half on or before the fifteenth day of November in each year. (§ 1315, am. Laws 1915, p. 189.)

Conservation Tax. — In addition to tax of two per cent., a special tax of one per cent. per annum is collected on all personal incomes over four thousand dollars per annum and upon the gains and profits of all corporations doing business for profit in the Territory.

Inheritance Taxes. — When the beneficial interest to any property or income therefrom passes to or for the use of one's father, mother, husband, wife, child, grandchild or adopted child whether by will by the laws of descent or by deed, grant, sale, or gift made in contemplation of death intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment after death of the donor, a tax is payable at the following percentage rate of the market value of such property, received by each person, except aliens and non-residents of the United States, in excess of five thousand dollars, viz.: one and one half per cent. on amounts between five thousand dollars and twenty thousand dollars; two per cent. on amounts between twenty thousand dollars and fifty thousand dollars; two and one half per cent. on amounts between fifty thousand dollars and one hundred thousand dollars; three per cent. on amounts between one hundred thousand dollars and two hundred and fifty thousand dollars; three and one half per cent. on amounts over two hundred and fifty thousand dollars; in all other cases, except aliens and non-residents of the United States, the rate of tax of the market value of such property in excess of five hundred dollars shall be as follows, viz.: three per cent. on amounts between five hundred dollars and five thousand dollars; five per cent. on amounts between five thousand dollars and twenty thousand dollars; five and one half per cent. on amounts between twenty thousand dollars and fifty thousand dollars; six per cent. on amounts between fifty thousand dollars and one hundred thousand dollars; six and one half per cent. on amounts over one hundred thousand dollars. When the beneficial interest to any property or income therefrom passes to an alien or non-resident of the United States, the rate of tax shall be ten per cent. of the market value of such property received by each person, in excess of five hundred dollars. (Ch. 96, as amended by Laws 1917, p. 436.)

Shares of stock in a domestic corporation owned by a non-resident decedent are property within this Territory and taxable. The appraisal is made by the circuit judge before whom the probate proceedings are pending, or some competent person or persons appointed by him; and the treasurer of the Territory (C. J. McCarthy with office in Honolulu) has charge of the collection of the tax. (§§ 1323-1346.)

Testimony. — See Evidence.

Trust Deeds. — Trust deeds are commonly used instead of mortgages, to secure bond issues, but mortgages are generally used in other cases. The usual rules of equity as to trusts are recognized and enforced.

Wills. — Every person of the age of eighteen years and over and of sound mind may dispose of his estate, both real and personal, by will. (§ 3258.) This power extends to married women. (§ 3259.) No will is valid unless in writing and signed by the testator, or by some person in his presence and by his express direction, and attested by two or more competent witnesses subscribing their names to the will in the presence of the testator. (§ 3260.) Devises, legacies, or gifts to witnesses are void, unless there are two other competent witnesses, but a mere charge on the estate for payment of debts does not prevent creditors from being competent witnesses (§ 3262), and heirs who are witnesses are not deprived of the share to which they are entitled by the statute of descent. (§ 3263.) No will may be revoked unless by burning, tearing, cancelling, or obliterating the same by the testator with the intent to revoke it, or by some person in his presence and by his direction, or by some other will in writing (§ 3264), except that if after making a will the testator marries and has a child born to him, and the will makes no provision for such contingency, such marriage and birth shall operate as a revocation (§ 3266), and except that a will executed by an unmarried woman is deemed revoked by her subsequent marriage. (§ 3267.) The revocation of a second will does not revive a revoked first will, without republication. (§ 3265.) Every will is construed to convey all the real and personal estate belonging to the testator at his death, unless other intent appears by the will. (§ 3268.) No will may be proved after five years from the testator's death, provided that where a minor is interested in the estate, one year is allowed after his arrival at legal age to cause any will to be probated. (§ 3271.)

Workman's Compensation. — A workman receiving personal injury by accident, arising out of and in the course of any and all industrial employment, is entitled to compensation from his employer or the insurance carrier. This liability devolves upon the Territory and all counties and all other political subdivisions within the Territory now existing or which may hereafter be created. The schedule of compensation is set out in the act. (Laws 1915, p. 323, as amended by Laws 1917, p. 443.)

IDAHO LAWS.

Messrs. Hawley & Hawley, of Boise.

The next legislature convenes January, 1919.

The references are to sections of the Revised Codes of Idaho, 1909, and Session Laws subsequent.

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — An action must be prosecuted in the name of the party in interest save where a guardian, executor, administrator, trustee, or party authorized by statute, succeeds. Assignee sues in his own name. (4090-4092.)

A married woman may sue and be sued in the same manner as if she were single when in connection with her separate property, and the husband is not chargeable in any manner with the wife's costs or other expenses of suit, except in actions between the husband and wife. (4093.)

Practice is under a code adopted in 1909, and all actions are instituted by filing complaint. (4068; 4138.) Any person interested in the result of the action may be made defendant. (4102.) Summons issues at any time within one year after the complaint is filed. (4139.) If summons is served within the district where issued, the defendant has twenty days in which to appear and plead; if served elsewhere, forty days. In case of service by publication, defendant has forty days to appear after the service is complete. (4140.) If a domestic corporation is defendant, service is made on the president, secretary, or cashier or managing agent within the State. If none can be found, then on the auditor of the county where articles show principal place of business to be. If a foreign corporation is defendant, service is made on a resident agent, appointed for that purpose by the company, and in case no resident agent has been appointed, or, in case of such appointment, he has removed from the State, or has removed from or ceased to be a resident of the county designated, or conceals himself to avoid service, then the auditor of the county is made the authorized agent of such company, upon whom process may be served. Also upon any business agent, cashier, or secretary in the county, or, if none, on the one in any other county. (S. L. 1909, p. 185.) Summons may be served by publication, on order of the judge of the court, or of a probate judge, or the clerk thereof in vacation time when it is shown that the defendant is without the State, or has concealed himself to avoid service, or is a foreign corporation having no managing or business agent, cashier, or secretary within the State. Publication is made in a newspaper, "designated as most likely to give notice" to the defendant, "at least once a week" for "full period of one month"; at least thirty days must intervene between first and last publication. Copy of complaint and summons, addressed to last known residence of defendant must be deposited in the post-office. (S. L. 1909, p. 187.) After an order for publication, personal service without the State is equivalent to publication and deposit of the summons and complaint in the post-office directed to the last known address of the defendant. (S. L. 1909, p. 186; S. L. 1911, p. 65.) Service by publication is complete at the expiration of the period of publication. Service outside State when ordered and made in lieu of publication is complete at time of service. (S. L. 1909, p. 187.) Service, where not otherwise provided, must be personal. (S. L. 1909, p. 185.)

The pleadings are complaint, demurrer to complaint, answer, demurrer to answer. (4162.)

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Affidavits. — Affidavits to be used before any court, judge, or officer of the State may be taken before any judge or clerk of any court, justice of the peace, or notary public within the State. If taken in another State or Territory, they may be taken before any commissioner appointed to take affidavits and depositions, or before a notary public, or before a judge or clerk of court. Affidavits taken in a foreign country may be taken before an ambassador, minister, consul, vice-consul, or consular agent of the United States, or before any judge of a court of record having a seal, in such foreign country.

When an affidavit is taken before a judge of a court, the genuineness of the signature of the judge, the existence of the court, and the fact that such judge is a member thereof, must be certified by the clerk of the court, under the seal thereof. (6052-6058.)

Aliens. — There is no statute as to the rights of aliens to convey real estate. Alien laws repealed in 1913.

Appeals. — Appeals lie from justice and probate courts to district courts in civil cases, if taken within thirty days after judgment appealed from is rendered (4838), and from the probate court in probate matters if taken within sixty days after entry of judgment. (4834.) Appeals lie from district to supreme court from final judgment in action or special proceeding commenced in district court within ninety days after entry of judgment. When judgment is rendered on an appeal from an inferior court, appeal must be taken within ninety days after entry of such judgment. Appeals must be taken within sixty days after the order or interlocutory judgment is made and entered on the minutes of the court or filed with the clerk, from an order granting or refusing a new trial; from an order granting or dissolving an injunction or refusing to grant or dissolve injunction; from an order dissolving or refusing to dissolve an attachment; granting or refusing to grant change of place of trial, from any special order made after final judgment, and from an interlocutory judgment in actions for partition of real property. Within ninety days from entry of judgment on an appeal from the decisions of boards of county commissioners. (S. L. 1915, p. 193.) The clerk of the district court must keep a book in which judgments must be entered. A judgment is deemed entered when, being duly rendered, it is deposited in the office of the clerk with the proper officer for entry. (S. L. 1917, p. 389.)

Arrest. — The defendant may be arrested, if the action is on contract, when he is about to depart from the State with the intent to defraud creditors, or when the action is for willful injury to person, character, or property, knowing the property to belong to another; in actions for a fine or penalty, or on a promise to marry, or for money or property embezzled or fraudulently misappropriated or concealed by a public officer, or an officer of a corporation, or an attorney, factor, broker, agent, or clerk in the course of his employment as such, or by any other person in a fiduciary capacity; also for misconduct or neglect in office or in a professional employment, or for a willful violation of duty; in an action to recover personal property unjustly detained, when the property has been concealed, removed, or disposed of to prevent its being taken by a sheriff; where the defendant has been guilty of a fraud in contracting the debt, or in incurring the obligation, for which the action is brought; also when the defendant is removing or disposing of his property, or is about to do so, with intent to defraud his creditors. (4240-4266.)

Assignments. — The National Bankruptcy Act of 1898 has suspended the operation of this law.

Attachment. — Attachments issue in actions on a judgment or a contract for the direct payment of money, where the claim is not secured, or for collection of statutory penalties, or without fault of party secured the security has become worthless, and in all actions on judgment or contract against non-resident defendants. They issue at the time of issuing summons or afterwards in the district court (S. L. 1913, p. 160); in justice courts at the time of or after, summons, and before answer. (4686.) An affidavit that the debt is due, stating whether upon judgment or contract, and that the action is not brought to hinder, delay, or defraud the defendant's creditors, and that the same is not secured or the collateral has become valueless, is required on behalf of plaintiff. The security is worthless if the defendant resides out of the State. In justice courts a bond, with two sureties for at least fifty dollars, must be filed. In district courts this bond must be in a penalty of at least two hundred dollars and not exceeding the amount claimed. The defendant may discharge the attachment by giving bond in an amount fixed by the court conditioned on redelivery of property or its full value. In district court, two days after issuing the writ and delivering it to the proper officer, the clerk must post at the front door of the court-house, and cause to be published in some newspaper published in the county, if there be one, a notice setting out the title of the cause, and the fact that an attachment has been issued against the defendant. Notice to be posted ten days, and published three weeks in a weekly paper or six issues in a daily paper. Any creditor of the defendant who within sixty days after the date of the first notice shall commence and prosecute to final judgment his action for his claim against the defendant, shall share pro rata with the attaching creditor in the proceeds of defendant's property, where there is not sufficient to pay all judgments in full against him, but this latter provision does not extend to attachments issued from justice and probate courts. (S. L. 1913, p. 160; 4304-4306; S. L. 1911, p. 559.)

Under the Uniform Bills of Lading Act, goods in hands of a carrier cannot be attached or levied upon unless bill be first surrendered to carrier or its negotiation enjoined. Nor can goods in the hands of a warehouseman for which a negotiable receipt has been issued be attached, unless receipt be first surrendered. (S. L. 1915, p. 60.)

Chattel Mortgages. — Mortgages may be made on personal property, including growing crops and crops to be sown and grown in the future. Mortgagor must acknowledge the instrument and also make oath that the mortgage is made in good faith, without design to hinder or delay or defraud creditors. Record must be made in the county where the mortgaged property is situate. If property is removed from the county, with the written consent of the mortgagee, he must within ten days record the mortgage in the county to which it is removed or take possession of the property. (3406-3410.)

The mortgagee has one day for every twenty miles between his residence and recorder's office to record his mortgage as against an attachment or incumbrance subsequent. (3420.)

Foreclosure of chattel mortgages may be by action in court, or thus: The mortgagee or agent may make affidavit showing the date of his mortgage, the name of parties, amount due, and describing the property. An affidavit is sufficient on which to base peaceable recovery of property. But if this cannot be obtained, the sheriff or constable takes possession and the property is sold in the same manner as sale on execution. The mortgagee has right to bid in and purchase the property. The sheriff or other person makes return of the sale to the clerk of the district court of the county in which the sale is made. The right of the mortgagee to foreclose may be contested in the district court, for which purpose injunctions may issue. (3412; S. L. 1909, p. 149: 3418.)

Claims against the Estates of Deceased Persons. — Administration is granted, first, to surviving husband or wife; second, to children; third, to parents; fourth, to brothers; fifth, to sisters; sixth, to grandchildren; seventh, to any of kin entitled to share in the estate; eighth, to any kin; ninth, to public administrator; tenth, to creditors; eleventh, to any person legally competent, who must be a resident of this State and twenty-one years of age. (5351-5355.) Bond is required in twice the value of the personal property and annual rents, issues, and profits of the real estate. (S. L. 1913, p. 127.) Full accounting by executors should be made within thirty days after notice to creditor expires. (5593.) The court may extend the period of administration as it may deem reasonable, until such time as the affairs of the estate are in a proper condition to be closed. (5614.)

Notice to creditors must be published by the administrator or executor immediately after his appointment. Claims due, not due, or contingent against estates exceeding five thousand dollars in value must be presented within ten months, and against estates not exceeding that sum within four months, after first publication, to the executor or administrator, who must indorse thereon his allowance or rejection and the date thereof; if allowed, it must be presented to the probate judge, who must likewise indorse his allowance or rejection and the date thereof. Refusal by or neglect of the executor, administrator, or judge to indorse allowance or rejection for ten days after presentation of claim is equivalent to a rejection. If the value of the estate does not exceed fifteen hundred dollars, regular proceedings may be dispensed with, summary administration must be had, and an order of distribution at the end of six months after issuing letters; in that event claims must be presented within four months after first publication of notice. Claims not presented in time are barred, except where claimant shows by his affidavit that he had no notice by reason of being out of the State, in which case claim may be presented at any time before a decree of distribution is entered. If due when presented, claim must be supported by affidavit of claimant, or some one in his behalf, that it is justly due, that there are no payments not credited, and that there are no offsets to it, to the knowledge of affiant. If not due when presented, or if contingent, particulars of the claim must be stated. When affidavit not made by claimant, affiant must set forth why it is not made by claimant. Vouchers or proof may be required by the executor or administrator. If claim founded on bond, bill, note, or other instrument, copy thereof must accompany claim and original exhibited if demanded, unless lost or destroyed, in which case affidavit containing copy or particular description and stating loss or destruction of original must accompany claim. If claim, or part thereof, is secured by mortgage or lien, which has been recorded in county where land lies, it is sufficient to describe the mortgage or lien and refer to the date, volume, and page of record. Original vouchers may be withdrawn when a copy is attached to claim. (5460-5467; S. L. 1917, p. 393.)

Actions on rejected claim must be instituted within three months of time of rejection, if then due, or within two months after it becomes due. No action may be maintained unless claim is first presented, except to enforce mortgage or lien against property of estate subject thereto, whether homestead, community or separate property of deceased, where all recourse against any other property of the estate is expressly waived in the complaint. (5468-5470.) If action pending against decedent at time of his death, claim must be presented as in other cases, and proof of presentation is necessary to recovery. (5472.) Judgment against executor or administrator on a claim only establishes claim in same manner as though allowed on presentation and merely directs payment in due course of administration. No execution issues, nor is any lien or priority of payment created. (5474.) After death of judgment debtor, execution does not issue on judgment for money recovered against him in his lifetime, but the judgment must be presented like any other claim. (5475.)

Debts of the estate are payable as follows: (1) funeral expenses; (2) expenses of last sickness; (3) debts having preference by laws of the United States; (4) judgments and mortgages in the order of their dates; (5) other demands. (5606.)

Upon the death of either husband or wife, survivor takes one half of community property, subject to community debts; other half is subject to testamentary disposition of deceased in favor only of children or a parent and only one half to the latter. In absence of this, deceased's one half descends to the survivor. No administration of wife's community estate necessary when she dies intestate. (S. L. 1911, p. 29.)

Where the estate is less than fifteen hundred dollars, the court, after due notice to all creditors, shall, if deemed necessary, by a decree for that purpose assign for the use of the widow and minor children all the estate remaining after the expenses of the last sickness of the deceased have been paid, together with funeral charges and expenses of administration. (5445.)

The disposition of all other estate is as follows: One half to surviving husband or wife, and one half to child or child's lawful issue. But if there is more than one child, then two thirds go to the children including lawful issue of deceased child, by representation. If no surviving spouse, to the issue. If there are no children, one half the estate goes to father and mother equally, the other to husband or wife. If no issue, surviving spouse, or parent, to the brothers and sisters and the children of deceased brother or sister. If deceased leaves no husband or wife or child, his father and mother take all the estate. If deceased leaves no issue, or father or mother, the surviving husband or wife takes the entire estate. And in default of all such heirs, the estate goes to the next of kin, beginning with the nearest ancestor, subject to debts. If there be no survivor, heirs, or kin, as provided aforesaid, estate goes to the state treasury for the benefit of the public schools. (5702.)

Conditional Sales — Are recognised though there are no statutory provisions respecting them. Record is not required to make them valid. (9 Idaho, 165; 73 Pac. 135; 11 Idaho, 227, 663; 81 Pac. 623; 85 Pac. 974; 17 Idaho, 686; 107 Pac. 402; 25 Idaho, 130; 136 Pac. 372.)

Corporations. — Private corporations may be formed for any purpose for which individuals may lawfully associate themselves. Articles of incorporation must be subscribed by three or more persons, one of whom must be a bona fide resident of the State, and acknowledged before an officer authorized to make and certify acknowledgments to conveyances of real property. The articles must set forth the name of the corporation; the purpose for which formed; the place where its principal business is to be transacted; the term for which it is to exist, not exceeding fifty years; the number of its directors; the amount of its capital stock, and the number of shares into which it is divided; where there is a capital stock, the amount actually subscribed and by whom. The articles of incorporation may also provide for the election of one third of its directors for a term of one year, one third for two years, and one third for three years, and thereafter at each succeeding annual meeting of the stockholders one third thereof for a term of three years. Articles also are to be filed within sixty days in any county in which it purchases or holds real property. (2710-2723; S. L. 1909, p. 158.)

All meetings of the stockholders and members of the corporation shall be held at the office of the corporation at its principal place of business within the State. (2742.)

The articles are filed with the county recorder in the county where the principal business of the corporation is to be transacted, and a copy, certified by said recorder, filed with the secretary of state, who thereupon issues the certificate of incorporation. (2719.)

The cost of organization is as follows: Filing fees in the secretary of state's office is determined by the amount of authorized capital stock, as follows: Not exceeding twenty-five thousand dollars, ten dollars; exceeding twenty-five thousand dollars, but not exceeding fifty thousand dollars, twenty dollars; exceeding fifty thousand dollars, but not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars, forty dollars; exceeding one hundred thousand dollars, but not exceeding five hundred thousand dollars, sixty dollars; exceeding five hundred thousand dollars, but not exceeding one million dollars, one hundred dollars; exceeding one million dollars, one hundred and fifty dollars. For recording articles, twenty cents per folio; for designation of agent, two dollars; for certificate of incorporation, three dollars; for filing certificate of change in articles, five dollars. In the county clerk's office, fifteen cents is allowed for filing original articles of incorporation, and to this should be added twenty cents per folio, including the certificate for the certified copy filed with the secretary of state. (99; 100.)

If a corporation does not organize and commence the transaction of its business, or the construction of its work, within one year from the date of its incorporation, its corporate powers cease. (2772.)

There is an annual license fee in proportion to the amount of authorized capital stock, as follows: Not exceeding five thousand dollars, ten dollars; exceeding five thousand dollars, but not exceeding ten thousand dollars, twelve dollars and fifty cents; exceeding ten thousand dollars, but not exceeding twenty-five thousand dollars, fifteen dollars; exceeding twenty-five thousand dollars, but not exceeding fifty thousand dollars, twenty-two dollars and fifty cents; exceeding fifty thousand dollars, but not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars, thirty-seven dollars and fifty cents; exceeding one hundred thousand dollars, but not exceeding two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, fifty-two dollars and fifty cents; exceeding two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, but not exceeding five hundred thousand dollars, seventy-five dollars; exceeding five hundred thousand dollars, but not exceeding one million dollars, ninety dollars; exceeding one million dollars, but not exceeding two million dollars, one hundred and thirty dollars; exceeding two million dollars, one hundred and fifty dollars. The amount of capital stock is ascertained by the articles of incorporation on file with secretary of state. This license to be paid annually in advance on July 1, to secretary of state. If not paid prior to 4 P.M. September 1, tax becomes delinquent and ten dollars penalty added. On or before October 1, secretary of state reports delinquent corporations to governor, who issues proclamation declaring charters forfeited unless tax and penalty paid to secretary of state before 4 P.M. November 30. At that time charters and right to do business of delinquent corporations are forfeited. Reinstatement and relief from forfeiture may be obtained by paying all license taxes and penalties that would have accrued if forfeiture had not taken place. Certificate of reinstatement is issued by secretary of state, and copy thereof must be filed with county recorder of each county where corporation purchases, locates, or holds property. Upon forfeiture the directors or managers in office, or other person appointed by a court of competent jurisdiction for that purpose, are deemed trustees for corporation and stockholders, with power to settle affairs of corporation, and to maintain or defend pending actions or take legal proceedings necessary to settle corporate affairs; as trustees they may be sued after forfeiture. Corporations, excepting fire, marine, life, accident, surety, and mining corporations with unproductive mines, telephone and irrigation corporations must furnish to secretary of state and the county recorder of each county wherein articles of incorporation are filed, during July and before September 1 of each year, upon blanks supplied by said officers, an annual statement sworn to by an officer, managing agent, or authorized attorney of fact in this State of said corporation, before an officer authorized to administer oaths, setting forth name of corporation; location of its principal office; names and post-office address of president, secretary, treasurer, managing agent and attorneys in fact in this State; date of annual election of directors and officers; amount of authorized capital stock; number of shares, and par value thereof; the amounts of subscribed, issued, and paid-up capital stock. Foreign corporation must include in such statement the name and post-office address of managing agent or attorney in fact in this State. (S. L. 1909, p. 9; S. L. 1912, p. 13.)

The property of corporations is taxed the same as though it was owned by individuals. Taxes are assessed between the second Monday in January and first day of July, and the president, secretary, cashier, or managing agent is required to make statutory affidavit, when called on between the above dates by the county assessor, disclosing property subject to assessment. This statement must disclose all real or personal property owned or controlled by the corporation at twelve o'clock noon on the second Monday in January. For time of payment, see Taxes. (S. L. 1913, p. 173.)

Powers. — A corporation has the power of succession; to sue and be sued as a natural person; to make, use, and alter a common seal; to purchase, hold, and convey real and personal property necessary for the corporate purposes; to appoint subordinate officers and agents and pay them; to make by-laws not inconsistent with existing laws for management of its affairs and the transfer of stock; to admit stockholders and to sell their shares for payment of assessments or installments; to make contracts or obligations essential, necessary, and proper for the transaction of ordinary affairs, or for corporate purposes. A majority of directors may call a meeting of stockholders, giving thirty days' notice, for the purpose of increasing or diminishing the capital stock, but the reduction cannot be to an amount less than the indebtedness, nor unless two thirds of the entire capital stock vote in favor of the increase or decrease. Only real property reasonably necessary for the conduct of business or construction of works can be acquired or held. (2769-2774; S. L. 1909, p. 168.)

Stockholders' Liability. — "Dues from private corporations shall be secured by such means as may be prescribed by law, but in no case shall any stockholder be individually liable for any amount over or above the amount of stock owned by him." (Const. art. XI, § 17.)

"Each stockholder of a corporation is individually and personally liable for its debts and liabilities to the full amount unpaid upon the par or face value of the stock owned by him. . . . The liability of each stockholder is determined by the amount of stock or shares owned by him at the time the debt or liability was incurred by the corporation; and such liability is not released or discharged by any subsequent transfer of stock. When such liability does not arise upon contract, it shall be deemed to be incurred when judgment therefor is obtained against a corporation." (2745; S. L. 1909, p. 160.)

There is, however, no other liability fixed by law, except under the provisions of the constitution and statute above quoted.

Directors. — The board of directors must consist of not less than three nor more than fifteen stockholders or members of the corporation, and at least one of the directors must in all cases be a citizen and actual bona fide resident within the State, provided that the board of directors of any corporation may appoint an executive committee of its members any number not less than one third of its directors. This committee has all powers of the board of directors, may meet at such times and places as prescribed by the board or by by-laws. The acts of such committee are valid in all matters against the corporation. (S. L. 1909, p. 159.)

Meetings of the board of directors or of its executive committee may be held at the principal place of business of the corporation in this State, and when so provided for in the articles of incorporation, by-laws, or by resolution of the board of directors, meetings of the board of directors and of the executive committee may be held for the transaction of any business of the corporation at any place outside of the State or elsewhere within the State than at its principal place of business. Unless provision is made in the by-laws for regular and special meetings of Directors, all such meetings must be called by ten days written notice to each Director. (2742; S. L. 1913, p. 307.)

The directors of corporations must be elected annually by ballot by the stockholders or members, except as they may be classified and elected for terms of years as provided for in the articles of incorporation, and if no provision is made in the by-laws for the time of their election, the directors must be elected on the first Tuesday in June. Voting by proxy and cumulative voting for directors is permitted. Notice of stockholders' meetings for election of directors must be given by publication two weeks in a newspaper published in the county in which the principal place of business of the corporation is located, but if no newspaper is published in such county, then in a newspaper published at the capital of the State. Directors can only be removed by a vote of stockholders owning two thirds of the capital stock. (2728-2733; S. L. 1909, p. 159; S. L. 1913, p. 4.)

By-Laws. — By-laws must be adopted within one month after filing articles of incorporation. Majority of stockholders must assent if adopted at a meeting called for that purpose; two weeks' notice of such meeting must be published in a newspaper published in the county where principal place of business is located, or, if none published there, at state capital. But written assent of holders of two thirds subscribed stock is sufficient to adopt without a meeting. A corporation may, by its by-laws, where no other provision is specially made, provide, among other things: the time, place, and manner of calling and conducting its meetings; the number of stockholders constituting a quorum; the mode of voting by proxy; the time of the annual election of directors and the annual mode and manner of giving notice thereof, in addition to the notice prescribed by law; the duties and compensation of officers; the manner of election, and the term of office of all officers other than the directors; the time and place of holding meetings of the board of directors, either within or without the State; suitable penalties for violation of by-laws, not exceeding in any case one hundred dollars for any one offense. All by-laws, amendments, and repeals must be, and do not take effect until, certified by a majority of the directors and the secretary, and are copied into a "Book of By-Laws," which must be kept in the principal office in this State and be open to public inspection during office hours. (2724-2727; S. L. 1913, p. 337.)

Before issuance of certificate of incorporation for any "intended railroad, wagon road, or telegraph corporation," a certificate must be filed with the secretary of state showing that the following amounts of the capital stock have been actually subscribed: For railroad corporations, one thousand dollars per mile; telegraph corporations, one hundred dollars per mile; wagon road corporations, three hundred dollars per mile. No portion of the stock is required to be paid in at the time of organization. (2717; 2718.) Shares of stock are personal property and are transferable by indorsement and delivery of certificate. The transfer is not valid as to strangers to the transfer unless entered on the books of the corporation. A married woman may hold, own, transfer, and receive dividends upon shares of stock as if single, and may give proxies. (2747-2748.)

Corporations for profit must keep following records: (1) of business transactions; (2) of all meetings of directors or stockholders, stating time and place of meeting, whether special or regular, and, if special, the object, how authorized, and notice given. Also every act done or ordered, who present and absent, and, if requested, time when director or stockholder entered or departed, the ayes and noes on any proposition and protest to any action. All such records are open to inspection of any director, stockholder, or creditor; (3) "Stock and Transfer Book" containing names of stockholders, alphabetically arranged, installments paid or unpaid, assessments levied and paid or unpaid, every alienation, sale, or transfer of stock, the date thereof, and by and to whom.

Surety and Fidelity Corporations. — Surety and fidelity corporations must file with the secretary of state a certified copy of articles, copy of by-laws, names and residences of officers and directors, and a statement of assets and liabilities, showing net capital stock, of what it consists, certified by president and secretary. Capital stock must be fully paid up, safely invested, and unimpaired, of at least two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and a surplus of not less than one hundred thousand dollars. They must deposit with state treasurer twenty-five thousand dollars in cash, bonds, or other securities, and must file with articles designation of statutory agent for service of process in the same manner as provided for foreign corporations. (S. L. 1911, p. 770 et seq.; S. L. 1913, p. 385 et seq.)

Foreign Corporations. — Foreign corporations are not permitted to do any business in this State without having one or more known places of business, and an authorized agent or agents in the same, upon whom process may be served, and no foreign corporation can have or be allowed to exercise or enjoy any greater rights or privileges within the State than those enjoyed by corporations of a similar character created under the laws of the State. (Const. art. XI, § 10.) Such corporation must, before doing business, file, with county recorder of county in which is designated its principal place of business, copy of articles of incorporation, certified by secretary of state of its incorporation, and a copy, certified by county recorder, with secretary of state in this State, paying the latter the same filing fee and other costs required of like domestic corporations. Within three months of commencing business, must designate agent in county where principal place of business situated, upon whom process may be served, and file such designation with secretary of state and clerk of district court for such county. Failure to make such filings within the time prescribed operates to prevent the corporation from suing on any contract and makes all deeds and conveyances of real estate null and void, and all officers, agents, and representatives are jointly and severally personally liable on all contracts as principal contractors.

Foreign corporations organized under the laws of any State or Territory of the United States can hold title to land the same as like domestic corporations. (2792; S. L. 1915, p. 270.)

Assessments. — Directors may, after one fourth of the capital stock is subscribed, for the purpose of paying expenses, conducting business, or paying debts, make an assessment not exceeding ten per cent at any one time, except if necessary to meet liabilities, in which case they may assess to the full value unpaid on the capital stock, or such proportion as is necessary. Previous assessments, unless uncollectible by means provided by statute, must be collected before another assessment can be made. Four weeks' notice of assessment must be published at the principal place of business. Delinquent stock may be sold as provided by statute. (2750-2768; S. L. 1909, p. 162.)

Courts, Jurisdiction and Terms of. — See Court Calendar for Idaho.

Deeds. — Conveyances of lands, or an estate or interest therein, must be made by an instrument in writing subscribed by the owner, or his agent authorized in writing. (6007-6008.) When execution of instrument is by attorney in fact, the attorney subscribes the name of the principal and his own as attorney in fact. Before any instrument conveying real property can be admitted for record, it must be acknowledged before a qualified officer, and a power of attorney executed and acknowledged by the principal must be recorded before any deed or other instrument affecting real property, and executed by an attorney in fact, will be admitted to record.

Acknowledgments within the State may be made before a judge or clerk of a court of record, a county recorder, a notary public, or a justice of the peace. Without the State, and within the United States, they may be taken before any justice, judge, or clerk of any court of record, including United States and territorial courts, a commissioner appointed for that purpose; a notary public, or any officer of the State or Territory where the acknowledgment is made, authorized by its laws to take such proof or acknowledgment; and without the United States acknowledgment may be taken before any minister, commissioner, or chargé d'affaires, consul, vice-consul, resident and accredited in the country where the acknowledgment is taken; before a judge of a court of record of the country where the same is taken; before commissioners appointed for such purpose by the governor; and before a notary public.

Execution of a written instrument may be proved as provided by law before the same officers.

All officers taking and certifying acknowledgments or proofs must authenticate their certificates with their signatures followed by the names of their offices; also their seals of office, if by the laws of the Territory, State, or country where the acknowledgment or proof is taken, or by authority of which they are acting, they are required to have official seals. Notaries should give their place of residence.

The certificate of the officer may be either written or printed, and may be pasted upon the instrument.

The clerks of court who are ex-officio recorders of the several counties in the State, are required to certify under their hands and seals that the justice of the peace taking proofs or acknowledgments of an instrument was authorized at the time to take the same, and that he is acquainted with the handwriting of the justice and believes the signature to the original certificate is genuine. This certificate is required only when the instrument is used in any county other than that in which the justice taking the proof or acknowledgment resides. No other certificate of the official character of notaries, commissioners, or other officers authorized to take proofs of acknowledgments is required.

The following are statutory forms of acknowledgment, and all certificates must conform substantially thereto. Corporate deeds should be executed and acknowledged by the president or secretary and not by vice-president or assistant secretary.

All acknowledgments contain caption showing State and county or other place where taken.

[Ordinary Acknowledgment.]

On this day of in the year before me (here insert name and quality of officer) personally appeared known to me (or proved to me on the oath of) to be the person whose name is subscribed to the within instrument, and acknowledged to me that he executed the same.

[For Corporation.]

On this day of in the year before me (here insert name and quality of officer) personally appeared known to me (or proved to me on the oath of) to be the president (or secretary) of the corporation that executed the within instrument, and acknowledged to me that such corporation executed the same.

[For Attorney in Fact.]

On this day of in the year before me (here insert name and quality of the officer) personally appeared known to me (or proved to me on the oath of) to be the person whose name is subscribed to the within instrument as the attorney in fact of and acknowledged to me that he subscribed the name of thereto as principal and his own as attorney in fact.

A foreign acknowledgment entitles record of instrument. Defects in acknowledgment forms cured prior to June, 1909. (3097-3163; S. L. 1913, p. 245.)

Depositions. — The depositions of witnesses in the United States may be taken upon notice, without order of court or commission; without the United States they may be taken on commission issued by clerk to any person agreed on, or to any judge, notary public, or justice of the peace named by the officer issuing it. If taken out of the United States, the commission must be directed to a United States minister, ambassador, consul, vice-consul, or consular agent in such country, or to such person as the parties to the action agree on. Interrogatories are settled before the officer issuing the commission. The commissioner is empowered to place the witness under oath, take his answers in writing, and certify to the court the execution of the commission. It is returned to the court or clerk of the court in which it is to be used, in a sealed envelope, by mail or express.

Depositions may be taken upon interrogatories, direct and cross. The party desiring to pursue this method gives notice to opposing party of his intention and serves a copy of his proposed interrogatories. This notice and interrogatories are filed with the clerk of the court, and the opposing party has five days in which to file his cross-interrogatories. The clerk then issues commission, with interrogatories attached, to some officer designated by himself to take the deposition. Depositions may also be taken without interrogatories upon notice to opposing party. The commissioner before whom the deposition is taken must return the same with a certificate showing conformity with the statutes and seal and transmit the same to the clerk of the court. (6059-6074.)

Descent and Distribution of Property. — See Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Divorces. — Divorces are granted for adultery, extreme cruelty, willful desertion for one year, willful neglect for one year, habitual intemperance for one year, conviction of a felony, and permanent insanity. The applicant must have resided in the State for twelve months preceding commencement of action, and in the county in which action is instituted for six months where cause of action arises outside the State. No divorce shall be granted for insanity unless the insane person shall have been confined in an insane asylum of this State for at least six years next preceding the commencement of the suit, and before commencing the suit the plaintiff must be an actual resident of the State for at least one year. (2645-2673; 4624-4628; S. L. 1917, p. 414.)

Dower. — The wife has no right of dower in the lands of her deceased husband.

The husband has no tenancy by curtesy in his wife's real estate. (2687.)

Evidence. — Parties are allowed to testify in actions except parties or assignors of parties, or persons in whose behalf an action or proceeding is prosecuted, may not be witnesses in an action against an executor or administrator upon a claim or demand against the estate of a deceased person as to any matter of fact occurring before the death of such deceased person. Children under ten years of age, who appear incapable of receiving just impressions of the facts or of relating them truly, and persons of unsound mind at the time of their production, cannot be witnesses nor can either spouse testify for or against the other without the consent of the other, except in a civil action or proceeding by one against the other, or in a criminal action or proceeding for a crime committed by violence of one against the person of the other. Attorney cannot be examined as to any communication made by the client in course of professional employment. The same rule obtains as to physicians and ministers. In a civil action, any party to the record, and directors, officers, superintendents, or managing agents of corporation parties, may be called by the adverse party and cross-examined. (5956-5959; S. L. 1909, p. 334.)

Executions. — Executions issue on judgments at any time within five years. Homestead, after the same has been declared and recorded, is exempt. Where the selection is made by the husband, or, in case of his failure, by the wife or other head of a family, such homestead may be selected to the value of five thousand dollars, and to the value of one thousand dollars by any other person. The declaration, properly acknowledged and recorded, is prior to all claims against the property which were not existing liens at the time the declaration of homestead was recorded. In addition thereto there are the following exemptions from execution: 1. Chairs, tables, desks, and books to the value of two hundred dollars. 2. Necessary household furniture to the value of three hundred dollars, wearing apparel, paintings, drawings, pictures, etc., and provisions provided for individual or family use, sufficient for six months, two cows and two hogs with their increase. 3. Farmer's utensils to the value of three hundred dollars, four horses, four oxen or four mules, with harnesses, cart or wagon, and food for same for six months; water-right, not exceeding one hundred and sixty inches of water, for the irrigation of lands annually cultivated, and crop or crops, not exceeding five hundred dollars in value, growing or grown on fifty acres of land leased, owned, or possessed by claimant. 4. Necessary tools or implements of a mechanic or artisan of the value of five hundred dollars; notary's seal and records; necessary instruments for use of surgeon, physician, surveyor, and dentist, with their libraries; professional libraries and office furniture of attorneys, counselors, and judges; and the libraries of clergymen. 5. Cabin or dwelling of a miner, of the value of five hundred dollars; also his sluices, pipes, hose, and other necessary tools and machinery of the value of two hundred dollars; one saddle horse, and one pack horse, together with their saddles and equipments, belonging to a miner actually engaged in prospecting, of the value of two hundred and fifty dollars. 6. The team, wagon, or cart and harnesses of teamster or other laborer; a horse, harness, and vehicle used by physician, surgeon, or clergyman, with food for all such animals for six months. 7. Seventy-five per cent. of earnings of judgment debtors, if necessary for his family residing in the State, for services rendered within the thirty days next preceding levy of execution. If the garnishment be founded upon a debt for actual necessities furnished defendant or his family, the exemption shall not exceed fifty per cent. of wages or salary due the defendant; but in no case shall the exemption exceed one hundred dollars at any one time. 8. Shares, not exceeding one thousand dollars in value, held by a member of a homestead association, or building or loan association, duly incorporated under the laws of the State, where the person holding the shares is not the owner of the homestead, under the laws of the State. 9. Life insurance in an amount represented by an annual premium not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars. 10. Engines, apparatus, and uniforms of a fire company or department organized under any law of the State. 11. Arms, uniforms, and accoutrements required by law to be kept. 12. Public buildings, grounds, and personal property appertaining thereto. But no such property is exempt on a judgment recovered for the purchase price. Real property sold on execution, except estates less than a leasehold of two years unexpired term, may be redeemed within a year by the judgment debtor, or a creditor having a lien or mortgage subsequent to that on which the property was sold, upon the payment of ten per cent. additional and taxes and assessments paid by purchaser. (4470-4499; S. L. 1913, pp. 308, 245; S. L. 1915, p. 27; 3173-3205.)

Exemptions. — See Executions.

Garnishee Process. — When the plaintiff or his agent shall notify the sheriff in writing that any person, naming him, has property, credits, or effects in his hands or possession, or under his control, belonging to the defendant in attachment or execution, the sheriff must serve upon such person a copy of the writ of attachment or execution, together with a notice that such property, credit, or effects are attached. Garnishee may be examined under oath, and he becomes liable thereon for any amount in his hands, or subject to his control, until the attachment is discharged or judgment satisfied. Written interrogatories pertinent to matter may be served and answer must be made by garnishee under oath in five days, else on success of plaintiff he may become liable. Provision is made for trial of issues arising between plaintiff and garnishee. (4308-4310m.)

Holidays. — Holidays under the statutes are: Sunday, January 1, February 22, May 30 (Decoration Day), July 4, first Monday of September (Labor Day), October 12 (Columbus Day), June 15 (Idaho Pioneer Day), December 25, day of State election, and every day appointed by the President of the United States or by the governor for a public fast, thanksgiving or holiday. (S. L. 1911, p. 482.) Whenever an act of a secular nature is appointed by law or contract to be performed on a day which falls upon a holiday, the act may be performed upon the next business day. (12.) In computing time to do any act provided by law, the last day is excluded if it be a holiday. (11.)

Inheritance Taxes. — All property passing by will, intestate laws, or transferred in contemplation of death, is subject to inheritance tax, as follows: Exceeding the exemption hereinafter mentioned and not exceeding twenty-five thousand dollars. (a) One per cent. of clear value if beneficiary be husband, wife, lineal issue, or ancestor. (b) One and one half per cent. of clear value if beneficiary be brother or sister or descendant of brother or sister of decedent, or wife or widow of son or husband of daughter of decedent. (c) Three per cent. of clear value of estate when beneficiary is brother or sister of father or mother, or descendant of brother or sister of father or mother. (d) Four per cent. of clear value when beneficiary is brother or sister of grandfather or grandmother or descendant of brother or sister of grandfather or grandmother. (e) Five per cent. of clear value when beneficiary is any other degree of relationship, or stranger in blood, or body politic or corporate. The foregoing rates are called primary rates. Property exceeding twenty-five thousand dollars and up to fifty thousand dollars, is taxed one and one half times the primary rate; in excess of fifty thousand dollars and up to one hundred thousand dollars, two times primary rate; in excess of one hundred thousand dollars, and up to five hundred thousand dollars, two and one half times primary rate; upon excess of five hundred thousand dollars, three times primary rate.

Exemptions are as follows: Societies and corporations exempt from taxation or engaged in charitable, benevolent, educational, or public work. Property of clear value of ten thousand dollars transferred to widow or minor child and to the extent of four thousand dollars when transferred to each of the persons described in section a; two thousand dollars to each of the persons in section b; one thousand five hundred dollars to each of the persons in section c; one thousand dollars to each of the persons in section d; and five hundred dollars to each of the persons in section e. The tax is due and payable at the decedent's death, but no interest is charged if paid within one year, and if paid within six months a discount of five per cent. is allowed.

The administrator or executor of the estate collects the tax, upon the full market value of the property, before any legacy or property is delivered and he has full power to sell so much of the property as is necessary to pay the tax. The money retained by the administrator or executor must be paid within thirty days to the treasurer of the county in which the probate proceedings are pending.

When the value of any inheritance, subject to the payment of the tax, is uncertain, the probate court, on the application of any interested party or upon its own motion, will appoint an appraiser, and from his report the court will assess and fix the market value of the inheritances and the tax thereon.

Shares of stock of a non-resident decedent are subject to be taxed, and the county treasurer must be notified of any demand made by a foreign executor or administrator ten days prior to the delivery or transfer. Failure to give such notice and to retain sufficient portion to pay the tax will render the corporation liable to payment of two times the amount of the tax. (1873-1897.)

Insolvent Laws. — See Assignments.

Interest. — When there is no express contract in writing fixing a different rate of interest, interest is allowed at the rate of seven cents on the hundred by the year on: 1. Money due by express contract. 2. Money after the same becomes due. 3. Money lent. 4. Money due on the judgment of any competent court or tribunal. 5. Money received to the use of another and retained beyond a reasonable time without the owner's consent, express or implied. 6. Money due on the settlement of mutual accounts from the date the balance is ascertained. 7. Money due upon open accounts after three months from the date of the last item. Parties may agree in writing for the payment of any rate of interest on money due or to become due on any contract not to exceed the sum of twelve per cent. per annum; and judgment rendered on such contract shall bear interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum until satisfied. Parties cannot contract for compound interest, and the provision in a written contract for interest payments on past-due interest notes or coupons has been declared usurious. A usurious contract works a forfeiture to the school fund of the county at the rate of ten cents on the hundred by the year upon the amount of the contract, and a plaintiff in a suit for such contract is only entitled to judgment for the principal sum, less all payments of principal or interest theretofore made, and without interest or cost. The court also renders judgment against the defendant for ten per cent. per annum upon the entire principal of the contract in favor of the State for the use of the county school fund. If judgment be rendered on a usurious contract, without considering the rights of the State, the case may be reopened within six months, and judgment of forfeiture in accordance with the statute entered in behalf of the State for the use of the school fund of the county. If, in the event of forfeiture on account of usurious interest, it appears that the principal sum is not due by the terms of the contract and that such usurious interest is forfeited, a foreclosure will be denied by the court. (1534-1540.)

Judgment. — Judgments of the district courts are liens for five years on all real estate, not exempt, standing on the records of the county in debtor's name. A transcript of a judgment from a justice or probate court, filed and docketed with the clerk of the district court, secures the same result. A transcript of the docket indorsed or any judgment rendered and docketed in one county may be filed for record in any other county of the State, and as soon as the same is filed it becomes a lien for the period of two years, with the same effect as the entry and docket of an original judgment. (S. L. 1913, p. 91; 1915, p. 78; 4460.)

License. — Commercial travelers are not required to take out license, and are not taxed as peddlers.

Liens. — Liens are given for labor and materials furnished for the construction or repair of a mining claim, building, bridge, ditch, fence, machinery, railroad, wagon road, or aqueduct to create hydraulic power. Liens extend to county, city, and school district property. An original contractor to secure a lien must file his notice thereof with the county recorder within ninety days after the completion of a building or other improvement, and every other person within sixty days thereafter must file such notice, or, in case of a laborer or materialman, within thirty days after he has ceased to perform labor or furnish material for such structure or improvement. Said notice shall contain a statement of his claim and demand after deducting all set-offs and credits, give name of owner, or reputed owner if known, the name of the person by whom he was employed or to whom he furnished materials, and describe the property, and be verified by oath of claimant, agent, or attorney. No lien shall continue in force longer than six months, unless a credit is given thereon, which may be done for a period not exceeding two years, unless proceedings to enforce have been commenced. Persons performing labor upon, or in teaming cordwood, logs, or other timbers have a lien upon the same for labor performed thereon, or in connection therewith, for a period of eight months prior to the filing of the claim. Farm laborers have lien on crops for their labor, which, however, does not extend to the interest of the lessor. This lien does not continue if the produce has been removed and sold to a purchaser without notice. Any number of lienholders against the same property may join in the same action. Filing and recording fees and reasonable attorneys' fees are allowed as part of the costs. Materials furnished and in good faith being applied to the building and improvement are exempt from execution, attachment, or legal process to enforce a debt due by the purchaser of such materials. (5110-5142; S. L. 1915, p. 193.)

Limitations. — The period prescribed for the commencement of civil actions is as follows: Six years, actions upon judgments and for mesne profits from real property. Five years, actions on contracts in writing and possession of realty. Four years, actions on contracts not in writing. Three years, statutory liabilities other than penalties and forfeitures; actions for trespass upon real property; actions for taking, injuring, or detaining personal property, and for action for relief on ground of fraud or mistake. Two years, actions against sheriffs, constables, and coroners on liability incurred in official capacity; actions upon a statute for a penalty or forfeiture; upon undertakings in criminal cases; actions for damages, for injury to person or for death caused by wrongful act; actions for libel, slander, assault, battery, false imprisonment, or seduction, and actions against sheriff or other officer for an escape. One year, actions against officers to recover property seized or money paid under protest in official capacity. Actions on claims against a county must be commenced within six months after first rejection by board of commissioners. All other actions, within four years after cause of action accrues. In actions upon open mutual accounts the cause of action is deemed to have accrued from time of last item proved in account by either side. Absence from State suspends operation of statute. If the right of action arises without the State, and an action cannot be maintained in the jurisdiction in which it arose, on account of lapse of time, then no action can be maintained in this State, except in favor of one who has resided within the State and held the cause of action from the time it accrued. A promise in writing, signed by the person to be charged thereby, is necessary evidence of a new or continuing contract. If, at the accrual of the action, the person be a minor, insane, imprisoned for a term less than life, a married woman and her husband a necessary party in commencing the action, the time of disability is not part of the time limited for commencement of the action. When a person is an alien subject, or a citizen of a country at war with the United States, the time of the continuance of the war is not part of the period of limitation. (4030-4080.)

Married Women. — Married women retain the ownership of all property acquired before marriage, and all acquired after by gift, bequest, devise, or descent. During the continuance of the marriage the wife has the management, control, and absolute power of disposition of her separate property, and may bargain, sell, and convey her real and personal property, and may enter into any contract with reference to the same in the same manner and to the same extent and with like effect as a married man may in relation to his real and personal property. Earnings of the wife's separate property and her earnings for personal services do not become part of the community property. Administration of the community property is not necessary when the wife dies intestate. The wife must join in the execution and acknowledgment of conveyances of community real estate. See Actions, (2676-2692; S. L. 1915, p. 187; S. L. 1911, p. 29.)

Mechanics' Liens. — See Liens.

Mortgages. — Mortgages on real property are liens merely; they must be acknowledged as deeds and duly recorded. They can be foreclosed only by action in proper court. Time for redemption on sale, one year; redemption period on all mortgages executed prior to March 5, 1895, six months. Mortgages are discharged by satisfaction paper signed and acknowledged, or proved and certified, or by release endorsed on margin of record, signed by mortgagee, his personal representative or assignee in the presence of the recorder, who must certify the same. Mortgages are not taxed. Foreign executors and administrators may satisfy mortgages upon the records of any county. (3388-3405.)

Notaries Public — Are appointed by the governor for a term of four years. Their jurisdiction extends over the entire State and they must use a seal with name and residence to authenticate all official acts. (S. L. 1915, p. 131; 231-242.)

Notes and Bills. — A Negotiable Instruments Law, by its title "being an act to establish a law uniform with the laws of other States on that subject," was passed by the legislature of 1903 and affects all notes and bills executed after March 10, 1903. This law, except in a few minor details, is the same as the laws of New York, Colorado, Connecticut, and Florida, and is an attempt to codify the law merchant. An instrument to be negotiated must be in writing, signed by the maker, and contain an unconditional promise or order to pay a sum certain in money on demand or at a determinable future time. It must be payable to the order of a specified person or to bearer, and if addressed to a drawee he must be named or otherwise indicated therein with reasonable certainty. A seal or designating a particular kind of current money does not affect negotiability. Ante-dating or post-dating does not invalidate an instrument unless done fraudulently. A person signing as agent is not liable if he was duly authorized. An indorsement must be entire. Signatures obtained by fraud or duress, or illegally, invalidate an instrument. Where several persons, not partners, are primarily liable on an instrument, and no place of payment is specified, presentment for payment must be made to all. Every negotiable instrument is payable at a time fixed therein without grace. When the day of maturity falls on Sunday, or a holiday, the instrument is payable on the next succeeding business day. Instruments falling due on Saturday are to be presented on the next succeeding business day, except that instruments payable on demand may, at the option of the holder, be presented for payment before twelve o'clock noon on Saturday when that entire day is not a holiday. Notice of dishonor may be given in writing or merely orally, and may be given in any terms which sufficiently identify the instrument. Protest for non-acceptance or non-payment is not required except in case of a foreign bill of exchange. Acceptance of a bill must be in writing and signed by the drawee, and must be an unqualified acceptance. Refusal of the drawee to return within twenty-four hours a bill accepted or non-accepted works an acceptance. A qualified acceptance may be treated as dishonored by non-acceptance. Where the acceptor has been adjudged a bankrupt or an insolvent or has made an assignment for the benefit of creditors, before the bill matures, the holder may cause the bill to be protested for better security against the drawer and indorsers. Protest is dispensed with by any circumstances which would dispense with notice of dishonor, or in cases where delay is caused by circumstances beyond the control of the holder. The protest must be annexed to the bill, or contain a copy thereof, and must be under the hand and seal of the notary making it, and must specify: 1. The time and place of presentment. 2. The fact that presentment was made and the manner thereof. 3. The cause and reason for protesting the bill. 4. The demand made and the answer given, if any, or that the drawee or acceptor could not be found. (3458-3655.)

Practice. — Practice is under a code. Distinctions between actions at law and in equity are abolished. (Const. Art. 5, Sec. 1.)

Records. — Records are kept at the county seat of each county by an officer whose official title is "Ex-Officio Recorder." See Deeds.

Redemption. — From sales on execution where judgment was secured upon contracts made since March 5, 1895, one year; on contracts made prior thereto, six months. (4492.)

Replevin. — This action is called "Claim and Delivery." Plaintiff files affidavit with his complaint that he is entitled to possession of the property, that it is wrongfully detained, that it has not been taken for taxes nor on attachment or execution against him (or if so taken is exempt), and the value thereof. A requisition is indorsed on the affidavit by the attorney requiring the officer to take the property, and an undertaking to be approved by the officer is given by plaintiff for prosecution of the action and return of property with damages, if return be adjudged. (4271-4282.)

Reports. — The decisions of the Supreme Court are published in 30 volumes. Volume 31 is being prepared.

Revision. — A complete revision was published in 1909. It included two volumes entitled as follows: Vol. I. Political and Civil Code; Vol. II. Code of Civil Procedure and Penal Code. A new revision was authorized by the legislature in 1917 and is now in course of preparation. It must be completed by October 1, 1918, for presentation to the legislature meeting in 1919. (S. L. 1917, p. 241.)

Sales in Bulk. — Sale or transfer of a stock of goods, wares, or merchandise out of the usual or ordinary course of the business of vendor, or whenever substantially the vendor's entire business or trade is sold or attempted to be sold to one or more persons, is conclusively presumed fraudulent and void as to creditors unless the vendee demand and receive from vendor, five days before consummation of sale or payment of any part of purchase price or evidence of indebtedness therefor, a sworn statement, containing names and addresses of all vendor's creditors and the amount of indebtedness to each, and the vendee, after the receipt thereof and at least five days prior to sale or payment, in good faith notifies personally, by wire, or by registered letter, each of the creditors named of the proposed purchase. Vendor must furnish said statement at least five days before the transfer or sale, and if he makes false statements, he is guilty of perjury. (3332-3335.) The law has been declared constitutional by the supreme court. (26 Idaho, 438; 144 Pac. 6.)

Service of Summons. — See Actions.

Stay of Execution. — There is no stay law in Idaho except by bond on appeal.

Supplementary Proceedings. — Supplementary proceedings in aid of executions may be resorted to. They are invoked by affidavit that judgment debtor has property he unjustly refuses to apply to the judgment. Debtor is then brought into court, and may be examined as to his property, and ordered to apply non-exempt property to pay the debt, if it appear he has any such property. (4504-4511.)

Taxes. — Taxes are assessed on real property between the second Monday in January and the fourth Monday of June, and on personal property between the second Monday of January and the fourth Monday of October in each year upon all taxable property in the county, city, or district in which it is situated on the second Monday in January, or, if not within the State on that day, on the day of assessment. In assessing solvent credits not secured by mortgage or trust deed, a reduction is made of debts due to bona fide residents of the State. All real estate of the taxpayer is held for payment of his entire assessment. The board of county commissioners meets as a board of equalization from the fourth Monday of June to the fourth Monday of July. Complaints are then heard and exemptions allowed. The state board of equalization meets at the state capitol between the second and fourth Mondays in August. In addition to equalization of taxes, this board has exclusive power to assess operating property of railroads, telegraph, telephone and electric current transmission lines, and franchises therefor. The tax levy is made in September upon the equalized assessment roll, and taxes thereafter become delinquent on the first Monday of the following January, and unless the taxes are paid the property is sold to satisfy the same. Taxes are due and payable without penalty between the fourth Monday in November in the year in which tax is levied and first Monday of following January. Six per cent. penalty is added when taxes are not paid by the said time, provided that one half of such tax may be paid prior to the first Monday in January, and the remaining half, without penalty, may be paid between the fourth Monday of January and the first Monday of July following; if such latter one half be not paid prior to the last-named date a penalty of six per cent. of the amount of such latter one half is added. For taxes delinquent in January, on the second Monday of January, and for taxes delinquent in July, on the second Monday in July, the tax collector delivers delinquency certificates to the auditor as grantee in trust for the county, which is deemed to be the purchaser of the property. These certificates may be sold within two years in the case of 1916 and prior taxes, and within three years in the case of 1917 and subsequent taxes. Redemption of taxes prior to 1917 must be made within two years from date of certificate, and if not redeemed, a foreclosure similar to mortgage foreclosure must be had; redemption of taxes of 1917 and subsequent years must be made within three years, and if not so made, upon notice given to occupant and owner, if within State, not less than three, nor more than five, months prior to expiration of period for redemption, the county auditor makes to the holder of the certificate a tax deed.

Before assessing property, the assessor must exact a sworn statement from the person assessed, setting forth specifically the property owned by such person on the second Monday in January. The blank statement must be personally furnished by the assessor, and the same must be returned properly filled out and verified within a time fixed and appointed by the assessor. If any person refuses to make the statement under oath after demand made, the assessor makes the assessment and the same cannot afterwards be reduced by the board of equalization. If the owner of property is absent from the State, and has no resident agent, the assessment is made by the assessor. (S. L. 1913, p. 173; S. L. 1915, pp. 177, 189, 138, 69; S. L. 1917, pp. 81, 294, 387, 472, 503.)

Testimony. — See Evidence.

Trust Deeds. — There are no statutory provisions concerning trust deeds, and they are not generally used in this State, and must be foreclosed by proceeding in district court in order to divest title.

Wills. — Wills may be made by any person eighteen years old and of sound mind. Two witnesses are required, who must sign in presence of each other and of the maker of the will, who also signs in the presence of the witnesses. But these formalities are not necessary if the will is nuncupative or holographic, though in the case of nuncupative wills the testamentary words, or their substance, should be reduced to writing within thirty days after they are spoken, and probate should be commenced within six months.

There is no limitation or restriction regarding the property under nuncupative or holographic wills, except that property bequeathed to a charitable or benevolent institution must be done by will at least thirty days before the death of the testator.

Either husband or wife may dispose of his or her separate estate or his or her half of the community property by will without the consent of the other. However, the half of the community property is subject to disposition in favor only of the children of testator, or a parent, provided that not more than one half of decedent's one half may be left to parents. In the event of either one dying intestate the entire community property belongs to the survivor.

Typewritten wills are recognized as valid, although the statute states that a will should be "in writing."

Children of a testator, unprovided for in a will, or children of a deceased child, unprovided for, share in the estate of the testator, as if he had died intestate, unless it appears that the failure to make provision in the will for such children was intentional.

No real or personal estate can be bequeathed or devised for charitable purposes, except by will duly executed at least thirty days before the decease of the testator; and no such bequests or devises can collectively exceed one third of the estate of the testator leaving lineal descendants.

Wills are revoked by will or a writing of testator declaring such revocation and executed with the same formalities as a will; by being burnt, torn, canceled, obliterated, or destroyed with intent and for the purpose of revoking the same; by revoking a duplicate; by marriage and issue, when wife and issue survive and no provision by will or settlement has been made; by marriage, the wife surviving, and no provision made for her, or no intention not to make provision shown by the will; by marriage of a woman. A previous will is not revived by revocation of a subsequent will, unless that intention is shown by the revocation, or there be a republication of such first will. (5725-5760; S. L. 1915, p. 69; S. L. 1911, p. 29.)

ILLINOIS LAWS.

Messrs. Musgrave, Oppenheim & Lee, of Chicago.

The next legislature convenes January, 1919.

References are to pages in Hurd's Revised Statutes of Illinois, 1916.

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — Forms of actions and pleadings are substantially as at common law except in justice courts and the municipal court of Chicago, wherein the practice has been much simplified. Chancery jurisdiction is distinct, although generally administered, in courts of general jurisdiction, by the same judges. Amendments to pleadings are liberally allowed at any time before judgment. The distinction between trespass and trespass on the case is abolished. Counts in trover and replevin may be joined in the same action. At law, suit may be brought by the person having the legal title or his assignee. In chancery, the complainant must be the real party in interest. Actions may be brought in the name of the assignee and bona fide holder of a chose in action not negotiable, but such assignee must make oath in his pleading that he is the actual and bona fide owner, and shall state how and when he acquired title. In such suit all set-offs, discounts, and defenses, not only against the plaintiff, but against the assignor, before notice of such assignment is given to the defendant, are allowed.

In ordinary actions the first process is summons. The defendant must be sued, except in local actions, in the county where he resides or may be found; but in personal actions where there is more than one defendant, if suit be begun where one defendant resides, process may issue to any county where the others may be found. No judgment can be rendered against a defendant served in another county unless he appears, if judgment be not rendered against the resident defendant. Actions against a railroad or bridge company may be brought in the county where its principal office is located, in the county where the cause of action accrued, or in any county into or through which its road or bridge may run. It seems that foreign insurance companies which have complied with the law of this State may be sued in any county where the plaintiff or the agent of the company appointed for service resides. (Hurd, 1476, 1487, 1519.)

Non-residents must file security for costs. The ordinary cost bond in civil actions is usually signed by plaintiff's attorney. If service is had, and declaration with a copy of the instrument or account sued on filed, ten days before the first day of term, default for want of plea may be entered on the third day of term. If an affidavit of claim be filed by plaintiff with his declaration, in any suit upon a contract, express or implied, for the payment of money, he will be entitled to judgment as in case of default, unless the defendant, his agent or attorney, files an affidavit of merits specifying the nature of his defense. This does not apply, however, to a non-resident defendant or to an executor or administrator who defends on behalf of an estate. Where the action is upon an account, if the defendant is defaulted such affidavit of claim is prima facie evidence of the amount due.

The following actions survive in addition to the actions which survive by the common law: replevin, actions to recover damages for injury to the person (except slander and libel), actions to recover damages for injury to real or personal property, for the detention or conversion of personal property, actions against officers for misfeasance, malfeasance, or nonfeasance of themselves or deputies, and all actions for fraud and deceit. Any action by or against a feme sole does not abate by reason of her marriage. Upon the death of a sole plaintiff, if the cause of action survive, his representative may be substituted and prosecute the suit. If the sole defendant die, in case the suit might be originally prosecuted against the heir, devisee, executor, or administrator, such person or legal representative may be made party defendant and the action proceed against him. Where there are several plaintiffs or defendants, if one die, the suit, where the cause of action survives, may be prosecuted by or against the survivors. If all plaintiffs or defendants to such action die, the suit may be prosecuted by or against the heir, devisee, administrator, or executor of the last surviving plaintiff or defendant. (Hurd, 2.) Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See Claims against Estates.

Adoption. — See Descent and Distribution.

Affidavits. — Within this State oaths may be administered by any judge, justice of the peace, master in chancery, clerk of a court, police magistrate, or notary public, in their respective districts, circuits, counties, or jurisdictions. See Notaries Public.

If a person has conscientious scruples against taking an oath, his affirmation may be taken in the following form: "You do solemnly, sincerely, and truly declare and affirm." Without the State the oath or affirmation may be administered by any officer authorized by the laws of the particular State, and, if such officer has a seal, his certificate under his official seal is received as prima facie evidence of his authority. (Hurd, 1812.)

Aliens. — (Hurd, 51.) The alien law of 1887 was repealed by the act approved May 14, 1897. The present law went into effect July 1, 1897. It does not affect the rights of aliens as to personal property, who still take the same as citizens. Its provisions are subject to treaties made by the United States with foreign countries. (100 U. S. 483; 133 U. S. 258; 144 Ill. 40.)

All aliens, subject to the restrictions hereinafter stated, may acquire and hold real estate situated in this State by deed, devise, or descent, and may transfer, devise, or incumber it. Title to lands of which aliens die seized or possessed descends to their heirs. No person is deprived of his right to take from any deceased person because he may be an alien or compelled to trace relationship through an alien.

If an alien when acquiring title be of the age of twenty-one years he may hold for six years after acquiring title; if under twenty-one years, then six years after he shall become twenty-one years of age. If at the end of the time limited the real estate shall not have been conveyed to a bona fide purchaser for value, or such alien shall not have become a citizen of the United States, it is the duty of the state's attorney of the county where the land is situated to take proceedings in the circuit court to compel the sale of such lands, subject to incumbrances and after due notice to all parties interested. It is a good defense to such action that prior to its commencement such alien had become a citizen of the United States, or that the lands had been conveyed in good faith to a citizen of the United States, or if such alien had deceased prior to such proceeding, that his heirs or devisees, or any person claiming through them, are or had become citizens of the United States. If the state's attorney neglects for thirty days, after notice, to take such proceeding, then any citizen may proceed by information in the name of the People in the same manner, and he and his attorney may be allowed reasonable fees for services, to be taxed as costs. Possession of such lands so sold must be delivered by such alien to the purchaser at such sale within ten days after presentation of the officer's deed and a written demand to the person in possession.

The title to lands which are or may have been subject to forfeiture, or escheat to the State or a county, under the act of 1887 (except where proceedings had been begun by the State or county) is ratified, confirmed, and released to the persons who but for their alienage, or the alienage of those through whom they claimed, would have had title; but such aliens hold subject to the provisions of the present act, the title being deemed to have accrued July 1, 1897.

No action can be commenced to recover lands, by any person who but for the provisions of the act of 1887 would have no title to such lands, of or from any citizen of the United States in whom but for the provisions of said act the title would have vested, unless such action be begun within two years from July 1, 1897, or within two years after the right of action accrues.

No agreement in connection with a lease of land from an alien or his agents for the purpose of farming, cultivating, or raising crops, requiring the tenant, or other person for him, to pay taxes on the property leased is valid, and any money so received may be recovered back. (Hurd, 53.)

No municipality, or agent or contractor of any municipality, can employ other than native born or naturalized citizens, or those who in good faith have declared their intention to become citizens, when such employees are to be paid from funds raised by taxation. (Hurd, 53.)

Appeals. — Appeals and writs of error can be taken only from final judgments, orders, or decrees; except that an appeal may be had to the appellate court from an interlocutory order granting an injunction or appointing a receiver, if taken within thirty days and perfected in the appellate court within sixty days. Such an appeal from an interlocutory order does not stay proceedings thereunder. (Hurd, 2011; 31 Ill. App. 658.) Appeals from final judgments and decrees in civil cases must be prayed for at the term when judgment is entered. The amount of the bond and the time within which it and the bill of exceptions shall be filed, in case of the bond, not less than twenty days, are fixed by the trial court. Upon perfecting the appeal all proceedings in the case are stayed. When an appeal is dismissed for want of prosecution, judgment is entered against appellant for from five to ten per cent. of the amount of the judgment below as damages. (Hurd, 2006.)

Appeals from, and writs of error to, the circuit and city courts, and the superior court and criminal court of Cook County, in all criminal cases below the grade of felony, are taken directly to the appellate court; and all criminal cases above the grade of misdemeanors, cases in which a franchise or freehold or the validity of a statute or construction of the Constitution is involved, and all cases relating to revenue or in which the State is interested, are taken directly to the supreme court. Other cases from the circuit, city, and Cook County superior courts go directly to the appellate court. Appeals are taken to the appellate court of the district in which the case is decided, or by consent of the parties to that of any other district. The decisions of the appellate courts are final in actions at law ex contractu where the amount involved, exclusive of costs, is less than one thousand dollars, and in cases sounding in damages wherein the judgment below is less than one thousand dollars, exclusive of costs. In other cases, and in actions where there was no trial on an issue of fact in the lower court, and the amount claimed in the pleadings exceeds one thousand dollars, there may be a review by the supreme court only upon the granting of a writ of certiorari. (Hurd, 2010.) The appellate court may grant an appeal to the supreme court in a case involving less than one thousand dollars, if the judges of the appellate court shall be of the opinion that it involves questions of law of sufficient importance.

The opinion of the appellate court upon any final hearing must be filed in writing, but it is not a binding authority in any case other than that in which it is filed. (Hurd, 776.)

From county courts appeals in condemnation, contested election cases, in proceedings for confirmation of special assessments, and for the sale of land for taxes and special assessments, go direct to the supreme court. In cases of forcible entry and detainer, in attachment cases, in cases arising under the act regarding voluntary assignments (159 Ill. 458), and in all common law cases, except as stated above, appeals lie to the appellate court. Other cases go to the circuit court and are tried de novo.

From the probate courts appeals go to the circuit courts, where trial is de novo, except in proceedings on the application for the sale of real estate, where appeals go to the supreme court. (Hurd, 74, 805; 148 Ill. 346.)

Appeals from justices of the peace go to the circuit, county, city, and, in Cook County, superior courts. Appeal must be perfected within twenty days from the entry of the judgment by filing a bond with surety in double the amount of the judgment and costs. The trial above is de novo. Appeals in forcible entry and detainer cases from any court must be prayed for and appeal bond filed within five days from entry of judgment. (Hurd, 1620.)

Arrest and Bail. — "No person shall be imprisoned for debt unless upon refusal to deliver up his estate for the benefit of his creditors in such manner as shall be prescribed by law, or in cases where there is a strong presumption of fraud." (Const. art. I. § 12.)

Before judgment. — In actions upon any specialty, bill, note, judgment, verbal contract, or assumpsit, and in actions of account and covenant, the defendant may be arrested and held to bail upon the plaintiff, his agent or attorney, filing an affidavit setting up the cause of action, the amount due, and facts showing that the defendant fraudulently contracted the debt or incurred the obligation, or has concealed, assigned, removed, or disposed of his property with intent to defraud the plaintiff. In actions sounding merely in damages the affidavit must also state the chief facts in relation to the cause of action, and that affiant believes that the benefit of whatever judgment may be obtained will be in danger of being lost unless the defendant be held to bail. The affidavit must be presented to a judge, or, if there be no judge in the county, to a master in chancery, who, if satisfied sufficient cause exists, directs the clerk to issue a capias. The judge or master fixes the amount of bail that the sheriff shall take from the defendant. The plaintiff must give a bond in double the amount sued for, with surety to be approved by the clerk, conditioned that he will prosecute the capias with effect, and pay the defendant all costs and damages that may be sustained by the wrongful suing out of the writ. The bond of the defendant provides for the payment of any judgment that may be rendered, and costs, or the production of the defendant's body in execution. His surety must be a householder and resident of the county, or qualified surety company. (Hurd, 672.) The defendant or his bail may be discharged for insufficiency of the affidavit, or because the facts stated therein are not true, or for other cause which would entitle him to a discharge under a writ of habeas corpus. In case of discharge the capias stands as a summons. (Hurd, 119 et seq.)

After Judgment. — If upon the return of an execution unsatisfied, in whole or in part, the judgment creditor, his agent or attorney, makes an affidavit stating that demand has been made under the execution, and that he verily believes the debtor has property not exempt which he unjustly refuses to surrender, or that since the debt was contracted, or the cause of action accrued, the debtor has fraudulently conveyed, concealed, or otherwise disposed of some part of his estate, with the design to secure the same to his own use or defraud his creditors, and also setting up facts tending to show that such belief is well founded, a ca. sa. may issue on obtaining an order from a judge or master in chancery. Upon his arrest the defendant is kept in custody until he satisfies the execution or is discharged according to law; but no person can be imprisoned for debt for a longer period than six months unless he shall refuse to schedule. (Hurd, 1594.) A ca. sa. may also issue after judgment in an action of tort. (Hurd, 1593.)

In cases where malice is not the gist of the action the debtor may be released on application to the county court, if upon trial by a jury it shall be found that the debtor was not guilty of the fraud charged, or of refusal to surrender his estate for the payment of the judgment, or if he shall file a schedule (which may be contested by the creditor), and show that he has no property exempt from execution, or shall assign to an assignee appointed by the court all property that the court shall find he has, not exempt, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to pay the debts mentioned in the schedule. The discharge of the debtor does not work a satisfaction of the judgment; but the judgment is satisfied at the rate of one dollar and fifty cents per day during the debtor's imprisonment. (Hurd, 1298 et seq.) The creditor must pay to the keeper of the jail or sheriff the board of the prisoner at the rate of three dollars and fifty cents per week in advance, which is charged against, and collected of, the debtor as part of the costs of the suit. (Hurd, 1464.)

Assignments. — See Insolvent Laws. Of wages, see Wages.

Attachments. — A creditor, resident or non-resident, whose claim is due, may bring attachment in a court of record if the amount exceeds twenty dollars, and in justice court for any amount not exceeding two hundred dollars, on any of the following grounds: 1, where the debtor is a non-resident of this State; 2, where the debtor conceals himself, or stands in defiance of an officer so that process cannot be served upon him; 3, where the debtor has departed from this State with the intention of having his effects removed from this State; 4, where the debtor is about to depart from this State with the intention of having his effects removed from this State; 5, where the debtor is about to remove his property from this State to the injury of such creditor; 6, where the debtor has, within two years preceding the filing of the affidavit required, fraudulently conveyed or assigned his effects, or a part thereof, so as to hinder or delay his creditors; 7, where the debtor has within two years prior to the filing of such affidavit fraudulently concealed or disposed of his property so as to hinder or delay his creditors; 8, where the debtor is about fraudulently to conceal, assign, or otherwise dispose of his property or effects so as to hinder or delay his creditors; 9, where the debt sued for was fraudulently contracted on the part of the debtor, provided the statements of the debtor, his agents or attorney, which constitute the fraud, shall have been reduced to writing, and his signature attached thereto by himself, agent, or attorney.

To obtain a writ, a creditor, his agent or attorney, must file an affidavit stating the nature and amount of the indebtedness, after allowing all just credits and set-offs, and any one or more of the above causes, and also stating the place of residence of the defendant, if known, and, if not known, that upon diligent inquiry affiant is not able to ascertain the same; and must give a bond in double the amount claimed, with surety conditioned for the satisfying of all costs, which may be awarded to defendant, or others interested in the proceedings, and all damages and costs which shall be recovered against the plaintiff for wrongfully suing out such attachment. The officer generally requires also an indemnity bond. In case of joint debtors attachment may be brought against one. The attachment may be levied on any real or personal property of the defendant in the county where suit is brought, and a writ may issue to and levy be made in any other county in the State, but the creditor is not entitled to judgment unless property be found, or the defendant be served, in the county where suit is begun. The property levied on is held by the officer until after judgment, unless it is of a perishable nature, in which case it may be sold at public sale. The property may be released from the levy of an attachment by giving a forthcoming bond to the officer, or by the defendant, in vacation, giving a bond to pay the judgment and costs, or, in term time, a recognizance in open court to pay the judgment. In all cases there must be sufficient surety. When bond or recognizance to pay the judgment is given, the attachment is dissolved and the cause proceeds as if the defendant had been served only with summons. Any debtor of the defendant, or person having property belonging to him, may be served as garnishee. Any person claiming the property levied on may interplead and assert his rights. An attachment may be brought in aid of any pending action of assumpsit, debt, covenant, trespass, or trespass on the case. In actions of trespass or trespass on the case, the defendant or his agent must appear before a judge or a master in chancery, and be examined under oath, before an attachment can issue. Under this provision attachments may be brought, where goods are obtained by false representations, before the debt matures. All judgments in attachments against the same defendant returnable at the same term, and all judgments in suits by summons, capias, or attachment, recovered at that term, or at the term when the judgment in the first attachment upon which judgment is recovered is rendered, share pro rata; but the court may allow a preference to a creditor through whose diligence property has been levied on which had been, or was being, removed or secreted by the defendant. (Hurd, 99 et seq.) See Garnishment; Service.

Chattel Mortgages. — (Hurd, 1767.) No mortgage, trust deed, or other conveyance of personal property having the effect of a mortgage or lien, is valid against third persons, unless possession be delivered to, and remain with, the grantee; or the instrument provides for the possession of the property to remain with the grantor, and the instrument is acknowledged and recorded; and all such instruments for the purpose of the act are deemed chattel mortgages. The instrument must be acknowledged, in counties having a population of less than two hundred thousand, before a justice of the peace, police magistrate, a clerk or deputy clerk of a municipal court, or county judge of the county in which the mortgagor resides; in counties having a population of more than two hundred thousand, before a justice of the peace of the town or precinct, or if there be no justice of the peace, before the clerk or deputy clerk of the municipal court in the district where the mortgagor resides. If the mortgagor is a non-resident of the State, the mortgage may be acknowledged before any officer authorized by law to take acknowledgments of deeds. The statute provides for the following form of acknowledgment: —

'This (name of instrument) was acknowledged before me by (name of grantor) (when the acknowledgment is made by a resident insert the words "and entered by me") this day of 19 . Witness my hand and seal.

[Seal.]

If the acknowledgment be by a resident, the justice or county judge enters a memorandum thereof in his docket. After acknowledgment the instrument must be filed for record with the recorder of the county in which the mortgagor resides when the instrument is executed, or, in case of a non-resident of the State, then in the county where the property is situated. The mortgage is a valid lien until the maturity of the entire debt or obligation, not exceeding three years from the filing of the mortgage. (153 Ill. 458.) Within thirty days next preceding the expiration of the three years, or next preceding the maturity of the debt or obligation, if the mortgagor and mortgagee, or their agents or attorneys, file for record in the office of the recorder where the original mortgage is recorded, also with the justice of the peace upon whose docket the acknowledgment was entered, or his successor, an affidavit stating particularly the interest the mortgagee has in the mortgaged property by virtue of the mortgage, the amount remaining unpaid, and the time when the same will become due, by extension or otherwise, and causes the affidavit to be recorded with the recorder and entered on the docket of the justice, the lien is continued and extended for one year from the filing of the affidavit, or until the maturity of the indebtedness, or extension thereof, provided such extension shall not exceed one year from the date of filing the affidavit.

All notes secured by chattel mortgages must state on their face that they are so secured, otherwise the mortgages are void (185 Ill. 384); and such notes in the hands of an assignee are subject to all defenses existing between the original parties. Chattel mortgages on household goods executed by a married man or by a married woman, must be joined in by the wife or husband, as the case may be. All sales under a power of sale in any chattel mortgage must be made in the county where the mortgagor resides, or the property was situated when mortgaged, after three days' notice to the mortgagor, who must be furnished, after sale, with an itemized statement thereof and of the expenses in connection with the foreclosure. Failure in this respect entitles the owner to sue for and recover one third of the value of the property so sold from the mortgagee or person making sale as assignee of mortgagee. Chattel mortgages on necessary household goods, wearing apparel, or mechanics' tools must be foreclosed in a court of record, and no such property can be taken from the possession of the mortgagor without an order of court. This does not apply to the sale of furniture on the installment plan.

Any mortgagor transferring the property mortgaged to a third person for a valuable consideration, without informing him of the existence of the mortgage, forfeits to the purchaser twice the value of the property; and if he dispose of the property, or any part of it, during the existence of the lien, without the written consent of the mortgagee, he is guilty of a misdemeanor and may be fined a sum not exceeding twice the value of the property, or confined in the county jail not exceeding one year, or both.

A mortgage may be released on the margin of the record, or by a release deed. As between the parties to it, a chattel mortgage is valid without being acknowledged or recorded; but it is void as to third parties even though they have actual notice. (35 Ill. 478; 51 Ill. 217.) It cannot include after-acquired property (23 Ill. 320); but such property, it seems, may be held if mortgagee take possession before other liens attach. (55 Ill. App. 642.) A mortgage on a stock of goods permitting mortgagor to retain possession and buy and sell is void as to creditors. (18 Ill. 396; 90 Ill. 376; 131 Ill. 587; 141 Ill. 153.) But it is good if the mortgagee take possession before other liens attach. (22 Ill. 377; 50 Ill. 444; 68 Ill. 284; 92 Ill. 315.) A mortgage may be made in good faith for future advances. (35 Ill. 282.) A mortgagee may take possession under a general insecurity clause when he has reasonable grounds to believe that from any cause he is in danger of losing his security. (96 Ill. 361.) See, also, Conditional Sales.

Claims against Estates. — (Hurd, 7 et seq.) Letters testamentary issue to executor named in will, if he be a resident. He must give bond in double the amount of the personal estate, unless the will otherwise directs, and even then the court may require a bond on cause shown. If there be no will, or no executor named, or the executor is disqualified or refuses to act, administration is granted to surviving husband or wife, next of kin, or some competent person nominated to the court. The surviving husband or wife, or person nominated by him or her, has preference. If none of the above named applies within sixty days from death of deceased, then administration shall be granted to the public administrator of the proper county. Where intestate was a non-resident, and there are no surviving husband, wife, next of kin, or creditors in this State, letters issue to the public administrator. The administrator must be a resident of the State. When all the heirs are residents and of legal age, if the estate be solvent, it may be settled without court administration. During any contest regarding probate of a will, or administration, or where for any cause there must be great delay before letters can issue, an administrator to collect may be appointed. Before letters of administration can issue an affidavit must be filed showing date of death of deceased, probable amount of personal estate, and names of heirs. A foreign executor or administrator, within the United States, where no administration is granted in this State, may prosecute suits to enforce claims or to sell lands to pay debts, provided he produce a copy of his letters testamentary authenticated according to the laws of the United States, and file the cost bond required of other non-residents.

The Uniform Foreign Probate Act is in force in Illinois.

The executor or administrator must file an inventory within three months from the date of his appointment. Upon the granting of letters the court appoints three appraisers to value the personal estate, each article separately, which appraisement must be filed within the same time as the inventory. Additional inventories and appraisements are required if other estate be discovered. The executor or administrator must fix upon a term of court, within six months from the time he qualifies, for the adjustment of claims, and publish notice thereof. The claimant should produce and file his verified claim, which, if not objected to, may be allowed without further evidence. If objected to, the claim is set down for trial. A jury trial may be had if either party requests it.

being duly sworn says that the annexed claim against the estate of deceased is just and unpaid, after allowing all just credits, and that (insert name of claimant) has no other claim against said estate. (Signature of claimant.)

(Jurat. See Affidavits.)

Annex a detailed statement of the claim.

If the claim is not presented at the time fixed upon, it may afterwards, within one year from issuance of letters of administration, be filed with the clerk, whereupon a summons issues against the executor or administrator, and the matter is heard at a subsequent term. A set-off may be asserted by an administrator or executor. A claim not due may be proved, but is subject to a rebate of interest from date of allowance to date of its maturity. Either party may appeal to the circuit court where trial is de novo. All claims not exhibited within one year from granting of administration are barred (Hurd, 21), except where creditors and other estate not inventoried or accounted for by administrator or executor, in which case their claims share pro rata out of the subsequently discovered estate, and except that infants, persons of unsound mind, and persons without the United States, in the employment of the United States or of this State, may file their claims within one year after their respective disabilities are removed. This limitation is held to apply to contingent claims and claims not accruing within the time limited. (154 Ill. 220.)

There are liberal provisions for widow's award which may be taken in specific property, or in money in lieu thereof. The amount, say from one thousand dollars upwards, varies according to the extent of the estate and her condition in life. When the deceased at the time of his death is a housekeeper and the head of a family, and leaves no widow, the award is allowed to his children then residing with him, including all males under eighteen and all females.

Upon the death of one partner the survivors must file a complete statement of partnership assets and liabilities within sixty days. The survivors have a right to retain possession of the partnership property and continue its business for the purpose of paying its debts and settling its affairs, which must be done without delay. The survivors must account to the estate, and may be required, upon proper showing, to give bond for the faithful settlement of the affairs of the copartnership.

There are special provisions for the sale of real estate to pay debts. Executors and administrators are allowed as compensation not exceeding six per cent. on amount of personal estate, and three per cent. on money arising from sale of real estate, with such additional allowance for costs and charges in collecting and defending claims of estate, and disposing of the same, as shall be reasonable.

Claims are classified as follows: 1, Funeral expenses and costs of administration; 2, widow's or children's award; 3, expenses of last illness, other than physician's bill, and demands due household laborers or servants of deceased for labor; 4, debts due common school or township funds; 5, physician's bill for last illness; 6, trust funds; 7, all other debts. Claims have priority of payment in the above order, but when the estate is insufficient to pay the whole of the demands, claims of any one class are paid pro rata.

Conditional Sales. — Conditional sales and like agreements, including, generally, leases (93 U. S. 664), reserving title or lien in seller who parts with possession, are not valid in this State as to purchasers or parties acquiring liens while the property remains in the possession of the vendee or lessee. (88 Ill. 447; 176 Ill. 288.) This does not apply to goods sold on consignment or memorandum, where title does not pass (61 Ill. App. 94), nor to conditional sales or leases of railroad and street car equipment and rolling stock, as to which there are special statutory provisions. (Hurd, 2880.) See Chattel Mortgages.

Consignments. — Any warehouseman, storage, forwarding, or commission merchant, or person selling on commission, or his agent, clerk, or servant, who converts to his own use any property, or the proceeds thereof, without the consent of the owner, or fails to pay over the proceeds, less proper charges, on demand, to the person entitled thereto, or his agent, is subject to a fine of not exceeding one thousand dollars, or to confinement in the county jail not exceeding one year, or both, and is liable to the person injured in double the value of the property or money converted. Whoever embattles or fraudulently converts to his own use, or secretes with intent to embattle, or fraudulently converts to his own use, money or property delivered to him, is guilty of larceny, the punishment for which, if the property exceeds fifteen dollars in value, is imprisonment in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than ten years. (Hurd, 887, 907.)

Corporations. — (Hurd, 633.) Corporations, except for charitable, educational, penal, and reformatory purposes, can be organized only under general laws. (Const. art. XI, § 1.) Corporations for pecuniary profit may be organized for any lawful purpose except banking, insurance, real estate brokerage, operation of railroads, and loaning money. The restriction does not include horse and dummy railroads, organizations for the purchase and sale of real estate for burial purposes, or for the construction of railroad bridges. A "building corporation" may be organized, subject to certain restrictions, to own, erect, lease, or operate only one building and the site therefor of not more than eighty thousand square feet of land. Such corporations cannot be consolidated, nor their stock acquired by holding companies. Real estate agency and mortgage loan corporations, as defined in the act, may be formed under certain specified restrictions. There is a special act permitting not less than ten residents of the county in which the principal office is located to form a corporation for the purpose of acquiring real estate and erecting thereon residences for lease or sale.

The method of forming a corporation is as follows: From three to seven persons execute and acknowledge a statement giving the name of proposed corporation, the object, its capital stock, number of shares (each not to be less than ten dollars nor more than one hundred dollars), location of principal office, and duration (not exceeding ninety-nine years); which statement is filed with the secretary of state. Upon the filing of the statement the secretary requires the payment of the license fee, which is thirty dollars for all companies (other than homestead, building and loan, and religious associations, and corporations not for pecuniary profit) having a capital stock of twenty-five hundred dollars and under, fifty dollars for amounts between twenty-five hundred dollars and five thousand dollars, and one dollar additional for each one thousand dollars of capital stock in excess of five thousand dollars. Upon receiving the license to organize, subscriptions are obtained, and after the entire stock is subscribed the commissioners call a meeting of the subscribers, ten days' written notice being required, to elect directors. In all elections of directors and managers the right of cumulative voting is reserved. (Const. art. XI, § 3.) Voting may be by proxy. Directors are elected for one year, or they may be divided into three classes, elected for three years, one class retiring each year. The number of directors and their term of office cannot be changed without the consent of the owners of two thirds of the stock. It seems that directors may number three or more (Hurd, 636); although it is provided that the number shall not be changed to less than five nor more than eleven. (Hurd, 653.) A director need not necessarily be a stockholder (32 Ill. App. 618), nor a resident of the State. The commissioners then make a full report of the proceedings to the secretary of state. This report must be verified by a majority of the commissioners and include a copy of the notice for the first meeting of stockholders, a copy of the subscription list, a statement of the amount of the capital, not less than one half actually paid in, the amount of such capital not paid in, what disposition has been made of stock subscribed and not paid, and if any proportion of the capital has been paid in property the same shall be appraised by said commissioners, and they shall report the fair cash value thereof, and the names of directors or managers elected and their respective terms of office. (Hurd, 693.) The secretary of state thereupon issues a final certificate of incorporation, to which is attached copies of all papers filed with him. This certificate must be filed with the recorder of deeds in the county of the principal office of the company. The company is then fully organized and may proceed to business.

A failure to comply substantially with the statute may render the stockholders liable as partners. (161 Ill. 417.) Such corporations may hold such real estate as may be necessary for the purposes of their business, and sell the same; may borrow money at "legal rates of interest" (however, they cannot claim a forfeiture of legal interest on account of usury; Hurd, 1580; 145 Ill. 208), and pledge property, real and personal, to secure loans. They can hold only such real estate as is required for their business. Real estate acquired in satisfaction of a liability, not required for the purposes of the business, must be sold each year at public auction, otherwise at the expiration of five years the land may be sold through court proceedings instituted by the state's attorney. Except mining and manufacturing companies which are especially authorized to own and hold shares and securities of railroad companies (but in not more than one line connecting the same points) organized under the laws of this State, when such railroads connect different plants of the mining or manufacturing company with each other, or with other railroads or harbors (Hurd, 633), corporations in this State cannot, it seems, purchase and hold stock of other corporations. (130 Ill. 268.) But they may buy and sell their own stock if they act in good faith. (135 Ill. 150.)

The Uniform Stock Transfer Act is in force in Illinois as to all certificates issued after July 1, 1917. Subscriptions may be made payable in installments as determined by the directors. Each stockholder is liable for the debts of the corporation only to the extent of the amount that remains unpaid upon the stock held by him. No assignor of stock is released from this liability, by the assignment, but he remains jointly liable with the assignee, who is liable as if he had been an original subscriber. But a purchaser in good faith, without notice, of stock issued as fully paid is protected. (172 Ill. 149.) Stock may be paid for in property other than money, but the property can be taken only at its fair cash market value. (230 Ill. 373.) The remedies to enforce stock liability are, 1, by garnishment against any or all stockholders. This remedy is ineffective in cases where there was an attempt to pay in full by the transfer of property (33 Ill. App. 277; 59 Ill. App. 391); 2, by creditor's bill, after judgment and return of execution against corporation, where, unless the affairs of the company are sought to be wound up, it is unnecessary to make all stockholders parties (25 Ill. App. 145; 154 Ill. 458); and 3, by bill in equity under § 25 of act. Such a bill can be filed by a creditor, without a judgment against the corporation. (151 Ill. 588; 153 Ill. 9; 152 Ill. 605; 208 Ill. 544; 55 Ill. App. 381; 60 Fed. Rep. 341.) It should be in behalf of all the creditors of the corporation (27 Ill. App. 582.) Sec. 25 provides that such a bill may be filed, the corporation dissolved, a receiver appointed, its affairs wound up, and stockholders held liable for unpaid stock, where, 1, it or its agents shall do or refrain from doing any act which subjects it to a forfeiture of its charter or corporate powers; 2, where it follows an execution or decree of a court of record for the payment of money, after demand made by the officer, to be returned "no property found," or to remain unsatisfied ten days after demand; or, 3, dissolves or ceases to do business leaving debts unpaid. A stockholder is required, upon the insolvency of the company, to pay, to the extent of his unpaid stock, his pro rata share of the debts of the corporation only after its assets are exhausted; and if any stockholder shall not have property to satisfy his portion, the amount is divided equally among the remaining solvent stockholders. No person holding stock in a representative capacity or as collateral security can be subjected to a stockholder's liability, but the estate or cestui que trust is liable. Such representative, and the pledgor of stock hypothecated, have a right to vote the stock. If the indebtedness of a corporation exceeds its capital stock, the directors and officers assenting thereto are personally liable to creditors for such excess. (Hurd, 640; 145 Ill. 30.) Officers, agents, and directors who assume to exercise corporate powers or who use the name of a corporation without complying with the act, or before all the stock shall be subscribed in good faith, are jointly and severally liable for all debts contracted in the name of such pretended corporation. (Hurd, 640; 161 Ill. 417; 55 Ill. App. 181.) If a dividend be paid when the corporation is insolvent, or the payment of which renders it insolvent or diminishes its capital stock, all officers, directors, or agents assenting thereto are personally liable for the debts then existing, or which are contracted while they respectively remain in office. (Hurd, 640.) Books of account or copies thereof must be kept at the principal office or place of business of the corporation in Illinois; but failure in this is not ground for forfeiture of charter. (Hurd, 639; 147 Ill. 234.)

Every stockholder has the right at all reasonable times, by himself or attorney, to examine the books and records of the company. (165 Ill. 192.) Acts at a meeting of directors, where all are present or sign a written consent on the record, are valid although the meeting may not have been regularly called. The action of a meeting of directors held outside of the State is void unless the meeting was authorized or its acts are ratified by a vote of two thirds of the directors at a regular meeting. Holders of two thirds of the stock may call a special meeting of the stockholders.

There are special provisions for changing the name, place of business, enlarging, or changing the object for which the corporation was formed, increasing or diminishing the capital stock or the number of directors, or consolidating with another corporation. (Hurd, 650.) A corporation whose charter has expired has two years within which to close its business. It may voluntarily dissolve and surrender its charter and franchises (Hurd, 640); or if it cease to do business the attorney-general may institute proceedings for its dissolution. (Hurd, 686.) There is a stringent anti-trust act, part of which has been sustained. (184 U. S. 540; 201 Ill. 236.)

Every domestic corporation, other than railroad, banking, building and loan, and insurance companies, religious corporations and those not organized for pecuniary profit, is required annually, between February 1 and March 1, to report to the secretary of state the location of its principal business office, with town, street, and number, the kind of business then engaged in, the names of its officers and directors or managers, their residences, the date of the expiration of their respective terms of office, and whether the company is pursuing an active business under its charter. The report must be signed and sworn to by the president or secretary, and the seal of the company attached. A failure to make this report is prima facie evidence that the corporation is defunct and out of existence; and the secretary of state enters upon the records of his office a cancellation of the articles of incorporation. The secretary of state is required annually to send a complete list of the corporations authorized to do business in the State to the recorder of deeds in each county of the State, together with the names of their officers and directors or managers, and the location of the principal business offices, which lists are filed by the recorder of deeds in each county for public reference. (Hurd, 693.)

A corporation may make an assignment for the benefit of its creditors. (149 Ill. 9.) Except in cases of such assignments, or in contemplation thereof, it may, though insolvent, prefer creditors. (126 Ill. 584.) An insolvent corporation may, if seems, prefer, at least indirectly, in the absence of fraud, its officers and directors. (156 Ill. 624; 159 Ill. 350, but see 130 Ill. 162; 132 Ill. 81; 152 Ill. 605.) The trust fund theory as applied to the assets of an insolvent corporation has been considerably restricted in its application in this State.

A corporation organized for the purpose of accepting and executing trusts may be appointed assignee or trustee by deed, and executor, guardian, or trustee by will, and any court may appoint such company receiver, assignee, guardian, conservator, executor, administrator, or other trustee, provided such appointment apply to the estate only, and not to the person. Such corporation is not generally required to give bond for the performance of a trust, but it is required to deposit with the auditor of public accounts two hundred thousand dollars in bonds of the United States, or in municipal bonds of this State, or real estate mortgages, and to make a statement, and file reports with the auditor annually. (Hurd, 682-683.)

Associations may be organized for the purpose of discount and deposit, buying and selling exchange, and doing a general banking business, except the issuing of bills to circulate as money, and have power to loan money on both personal and real property, and to accept and execute trusts. Stockholders in such corporations are liable over and above the amount of stock held to an amount equal to their respective shares for all liabilities accruing while they are stockholders. No transfer of stock operates as a release of this liability. Reports are required to be made to the state auditor at least once every three months. (Hurd, 125; 127 Ill. 494.) There are special acts also as to the organization of corporations not for pecuniary profit, religious corporations, loan associations, cooperative associations for profit, insurance, etc. Corporations, foreign or domestic, under certain restrictions, may do a surety business. (Hurd, 672.)

Corporations are taxed on their tangible property, real and personal, within the State, and also upon the fair cash value of their capital stock, including franchises, over and above the assessed value of their tangible property. Shares of stock of domestic corporations, whose tangible property or capital stock is taxed, are not subject to taxation in the hands of owners. (Hurd, 2159; 191 Ill. 528.)

Corporations, like individuals, must file with the assessor a schedule of all their property, including their capital stock, between the first day of April and the first day of June of each year, said schedule being a schedule of the property owned on the first day of April of that year and covering the year just preceding. The tax levied upon it is payable on the 10th of the March following. See Taxes.

Foreign Corporations. — Foreign corporations doing business in this State are subject to all the liabilities, restrictions, and duties imposed on domestic corporations of like character, and have no other or greater powers. (Hurd, 655; 116 Ill. 375; 117 Ill. 237.) But a foreign corporation authorized by its charter to invest and loan money may do so here. This does not include, however, banking powers and privileges. Real estate acquired in the business of loaning and investing money by a foreign corporation must be disposed of each year at public auction, if it can be sold for an amount equal to the claim, interest, cost, and expenses charged against it. (Hurd, 654.) Any foreign corporation (other than a railroad company) may appoint by letter of attorney an agent to act for it in this State, and his acts and contracts are binding. A scrawl seal affixed by such agent, duly empowered, is considered as the corporate seal of the company. (Hurd, 654.)

A foreign corporation desiring to do business in Illinois must make application to the secretary of state, signed and sworn to by the president and secretary, stating what business such corporation proposes to pursue under its charter, the amount of capital stock, whether it is transacting or it intends to transact business in any other State or country, the proportion of its business intended to be carried on in Illinois, the amount paid in upon its capital stock, what property and assets, and an estimate of the value thereof, will be employed in the business in Illinois, if any of its capital subscribed has not been paid in what disposition is to be made thereof, the names of the president, secretary, and directors, and their residences, where its principal office in Illinois will be located and the name and address of some attorney in fact upon whom service can be had in all suits commenced in this State; and, if required by the secretary of state, the names and residences of all stockholders as shown by its records. It must file with the secretary of state a copy of its charter or articles of incorporation, or in case it is incorporated merely by certificate, then a copy of its certificate of incorporation, duly certified and authenticated by the officer who issued the original, or by the recorder or registrar of the office in which the original charter, articles, or certificate may have been recorded. The secretary of state has power to prescribe the form of such application, and may in addition thereto propound such interrogatories to the applicants respecting the character of business in which the corporation proposes to engage, the amount of its capital stock, the proportion of its business that it is intended shall be carried on in this State, and the proportion and location of its business in other States or countries. Such interrogatories must be answered under oath, and the interrogatories and answers are filed with the application and certified copy of its charter and operate as a limitation upon the powers of said corporation to transact business in Illinois. The secretary of state, upon the admission of such corporation to do business in Illinois, issues a certified copy of all papers, including certified copy of the charter of said corporation, and states the powers and object of said corporation which may be exercised in this State. No corporation can be authorized to transact any business in this State for the transaction of which a corporation cannot be organized in this State, and no foreign corporation can exercise any powers in this State not authorized by the provisions of its charter. Every foreign corporation is required constantly to keep on file in the office of the secretary of state an affidavit of the president and secretary showing the location of its principal business office in Illinois, the name of some person who may be found at said office for the purpose of accepting service upon said corporation in all suits commenced against it. It must make such reports from time to time as are required to be made by similar corporations organized under the laws of this State, and all regulations imposed upon domestic corporations are imposed on foreign corporations. No foreign corporation admitted to do business in this State can hold any real estate except such as may be necessary for the proper carrying on of its legitimate business, nor be permitted to mortgage, pledge, or incumber its real or personal property situated in this State to the injury or exclusion of any citizen or corporation of this State who is its creditor, and no mortgage by any foreign corporation, except railroad and telegraph companies, given to secure any debt created in any other State, shall take effect as against any citizen or corporation of this State until all its liabilities to any person or corporation of this State at the time of recording such mortgage shall have been fully paid and extinguished. Before any foreign corporation shall be authorized to do business in this State it must pay to the secretary of state upon the proportion of its stock represented by its property and business in Illinois, fees equal to those required of similar corporations formed under the laws of this State. All amendments to charter of foreign corporations must be filed with the secretary of state. If proportion of stock represented by property located and business transacted in this State be increased, an additional fee of one dollar per one thousand dollars must be paid, and the secretary of state is authorized to propound to the corporation, from time to time, interrogatories to elicit the facts in this regard. If a foreign corporation has shares of no par value, this value is considered one hundred dollars for the purpose of fixing the license fee. The secretary of state may at any time in his discretion propound to the president, secretary, or any director or manager of such foreign corporation such interrogatories respecting the character of business being transacted by it, location of its business, the names and residences of its directors and officers and the amount of capital paid in, as well as what disposition has been made of capital subscribed for or authorized and not paid in, and such interrogatories shall be answered under oath by the officer or director to whom propounded, within five days after the receipt thereof, and upon failure or refusal of such officer or director to fully answer such interrogatories and file the same with his answers in the office of the secretary of state within ten days after receiving the same the secretary of state may revoke the authority of such corporation to do business in this State, by filing with the certified copy of the charter of such corporation a certificate of revocation, and by the publication thereof for one issue in some newspaper of general circulation in Illinois. When answers to such interrogatories have been filed, if thereby any violation of the law or of the charter of said corporation, or any excess of its powers and authority to do business in this State, is disclosed, a copy thereof with such information shall be immediately transmitted to the attorney-general for his action. Every such foreign corporation neglecting to comply with this law shall be subject to a penalty of not less than one thousand dollars and not exceeding ten thousand dollars, to be recovered before any court of competent jurisdiction, and in addition to such penalty if any such foreign corporation shall fail to comply with the law it can maintain no suit either at law or in equity upon any claim, legal or equitable, whether arising out of contract or tort, in any court of this State. Any person or agent soliciting or transacting business in this State for such foreign corporation, not complying with the law, is guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction may be fined not less than two hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars for each offense, and the court upon entering such judgment may order the person or agent so convicted to stand committed to the county jail until the fine and costs are paid. This act does not affect any foreign corporation which has acquired or constructed, and is now operating, a railroad in this State.

Only the tangible property of foreign corporations in this State is taxed. Shares of stock of foreign corporations in the hands of residents are taxed against such residents. (184 Ill. 226.)

Courts, Jurisdiction and Terms of. — See Court Calendar for Illinois.

Creditors' Bill. — (Hurd, 190.) This is the only action in this State (except in the municipal court of Chicago, where summary supplementary proceedings may be had after judgment and return of execution unsatisfied), except garnishment, in the nature of supplementary proceedings. On the return of an execution unsatisfied, in whole or in part, the plaintiff may file a bill in chancery against the defendant and any other person (except a municipal corporation, 170 Ill. 580) to compel the discovery of any property or thing in action belonging to the defendant, and to prevent the transfer of such property. The court has power to compel discovery, issue an injunction, appoint a receiver, and to decree satisfaction out of property of the defendant, not exempt, so discovered, whether the property was liable to execution or not. Answer under oath may be waived (17 Ill. App. 193); and depositions of the defendants may be taken at once upon five days' notice (15 Ill. 576; 182 Ill. 590); or upon the appointment of a receiver, which follows almost as a matter of course (79 Ill. 219), the principal defendant may be required to appear before a master in chancery to make an assignment of, and to submit to an examination concerning his property. Filing a creditor's bill, and service of process, creates a lien in equity on the equitable assets of the judgment debtor.

Deeds. — (Hurd, 597.) Conveyances of land should be signed, sealed, and acknowledged by the grantor. They take effect on delivery. A scrawl seal is sufficient. No subscribing witnesses are required. Acknowledgments may be taken before the following officers: Within this State, before a master in chancery, notary public, United States commissioner (the last two must affix their official seals), county clerk, justice of the peace, any court of record having a seal, or any judge, justice, or clerk thereof. When taken before a court, or the clerk thereof, it must be attested by the seal of such court. When taken before a justice of the peace, except where the lands are situated in the county of his residence, there should be added the certificate of the county clerk, under his seal of office, that the person taking the acknowledgment was a justice of the peace in the county at the time of taking the same. Without this State, and within the United States, its territories, dependencies, or the District of Columbia, before a justice of the peace, notary public, master in chancery, United States commissioner, commissioner to take acknowledgments of deeds, mayor of city, clerk of a county, or before any judge, justice, clerk or deputy clerk of the supreme, circuit, or district court of the United States, or before any judge, justice, clerk or deputy clerk, prothonotary, surrogate, or registrar of the supreme, circuit, superior, district, county, common pleas, probate, orphans, or surrogate court of any of the States, Territories, or dependencies of the United States. In any dependency of the United States, such acknowledgment or proof may also be taken or made before any commissioned officer in the military service of the United States. When such acknowledgment or proof is made before a notary public, United States commissioner, or commissioner of deeds, it must be certified under his seal of office. If taken before a mayor of a city, it must be certified under the seal of the city; if before a clerk, deputy clerk, prothonotary, registrar, or surrogate, under the seal of his court; if before a justice of the peace, or a master in chancery, there must be added a certificate of the proper clerk under the seal of his office, setting forth that such person was a justice of the peace or master in chancery at the time of taking such acknowledgment or proof. An acknowledgment or proof of execution may be made in conformity with the laws of the State, Territory, dependency, or district where it is made, provided that if any clerk of any court of record, within such State, Territory, dependency, or district, shall under his hand and the seal of such court, certify that such acknowledgment or proof was made in conformity with the laws of such State, Territory, dependency, or district, or it shall appear by the laws of such State, Territory, dependency, or district, such instrument or a duly proved or certified copy of the record of such deed, mortgage, or other instrument, relating to real estate, heretofore or hereafter made and recorded in the proper county, may be read in evidence as in other cases of such certified copies. Without the United States, before any court of any republic, dominion, state, kingdom, empire, colony, territory, or dependency having a seal, or before any judge, justice, or clerk thereof, or before any mayor or chief officer of any city or town having a seal, or before a notary public or commissioner of deeds, or any ambassador, minister, or secretary of legation, or consul of the United States, or vice-consul, deputy consul, commercial agent, or consular agent of the United States, in any foreign republic, dominion, state, kingdom, empire, colony, territory, or dependency, attested by his official seal, or before any officer authorized by the laws of the place where such acknowledgment or proof is made, to take acknowledgments of conveyances of real estate, or to administer oaths in proof of the execution of conveyances of real estate. Such acknowledgments must be attested by the official seal, if any, of such court or officer, and in case such acknowledgment or proof is taken or made before a court or officer having no official seal, a certificate shall be added by some ambassador, minister, secretary of legation, consul, vice-consul, deputy consul, commercial agent, or consular agent, of the United States, residing in such republic, dominion, state, kingdom, empire, colony, territory, or dependency, under his official seal, showing that such court or officer was duly elected, appointed, or created, and acting at the time such acknowledgment or proof was made. Where any deed, conveyance, or power of attorney is acknowledged or proved in any foreign country, the certificate of any consul or minister of the United States in such country, under his official seal, that such instrument is executed in conformity with such foreign law, is prima facie evidence thereof; but other legal proof of the fact may be made.

The acknowledgment of a conveyance by a married woman may be made and certified as if she were a feme sole. An acknowledgment taken by one interested in the conveyance is void. (61 Ill. 307.) It may be printed or written, or pasted on the instrument. A deed may be good between the parties to it without acknowledgment. (116 Ill. 250.) A deed not duly acknowledged may be proved by the testimony of a subscribing witness, or in case of death of grantor and subscribing witnesses, or when the subscribing witnesses cannot be had, by proof of the handwriting of grantor and of at least one subscribing witness, such proof to consist of the testimony of two or more disinterested persons swearing to each signature.

The statute provides the following form of acknowledgment: —

[Statutory Form of Warranty Deed. Hurd, 601.]

The grantor (here insert name or names and place of residence), for and in consideration of (here insert consideration) in hand paid, conveys and warrants to (here insert the grantee's name or names) the following described real estate (here insert description), situated in the county of in the State of Illinois.

Dated this day of A.D. 19 A. B. [L.S.]

This deed conveys fee simple title, with covenants, 1, that grantor was, at execution of deed, seized with an indefeasible estate in fee simple, with full power to convey; 2, that the property was then free from all incumbrances; 3, that grantor warrants to grantee, his heirs and assigns, quiet and peaceable possession, and will defend title against all persons who may lawfully claim the same. Such covenants are as obligatory on grantor, his heirs and personal representatives, as if written at length in the deed (122 Ill. 317), and an after-acquired interest inures to grantee. (100 Ill. 581.)

[Statutory Form of Quitclaim Deed. Hurd, 601.]

The grantor (here insert grantor's name or names and place of residence), for the consideration of (here insert consideration), conveys and quitclaims to (here insert grantee's name or names) all interest in the following described real estate (here insert description), situated in the county of _____ in the State of Illinois.

Dated this _____ day of _____ A. D. 19 ____ A. B. [L.S.]

This is a good conveyance in fee of all existing legal or equitable rights of grantor.

[Statutory Form of Mortgage. Hurd, 601.]

The mortgagor (here insert name or names) mortgages and warrants to (here insert name or names of mortgagee or mortgagees), to secure the payment of (here recite the nature and amount of indebtedness, showing when due and the rate of interest, and whether secured by note or otherwise), the following described real estate (here insert description thereof), situated in the county of _____ in the State of Illinois.

Dated this _____ day of _____ A. D. 19 ____

This is a good mortgage in fee, and is as effective as if it contained full covenants of seisin, good right to convey, against incumbrances, of quiet enjoyment and general warranty. (98 Ill. 228; 146 Ill. 283.)

No deed or other instrument releases the right of homestead unless it contains a clause substantially as follows: "hereby releasing and waiving all rights under and by virtue of the homestead exemption laws of the State of Illinois." In which case the certificate of acknowledgment should contain the clause, "including the release and waiver of the right of homestead." To release dower the husband, or wife (who in that respect stands on an equality), must join in the conveyance, except in case of a mortgage for purchase-money; otherwise husband and wife may convey as if unmarried. Deeds and other instruments affecting title to real estate should be recorded in the county in which the real estate is situated. Where the land lies in different counties a certified copy may be filed in counties where the original has not been filed. All such deeds and instruments are void as to creditors and subsequent purchasers without notice until filed for record.

An act concerning land titles, based upon the so-called Torrens land-title system, was passed by the legislature in May, 1897. It does not apply to lands in any county until adopted by a vote of the people of that county. It was adopted and went into effect in Cook County in June, 1897. This act was passed to remedy the defects of the act of 1895, which was declared unconstitutional. (165 Ill. 526.) For the provisions of the present law see Hurd, 608. It has been declared constitutional (176 Ill. 165), and is now in operation in Cook County.

Depositions. — (Hurd, 1308.) The testimony of a witness within the State in a chancery case can be taken on oral interrogatories on ten days' notice, and one day in addition for every fifty miles of travel from the court to the place of taking, or, where the party and his attorney reside in the county where the deposition is to be taken, on five days' notice. They may be taken before issue joined. (15 Ill. 576; 182 Ill. 590.)

In suits at law, upon satisfactory affidavit being filed, depositions may be taken in like manner upon like notice, where the witness resides in a different county, is about to depart from the State, is in custody on legal process, or unable to attend court on account of advanced age, sickness, or other bodily infirmity.

The testimony of a witness residing within the State, more than one hundred miles from the place of holding court, not residing in the State, or engaged in the naval or military service of the United States and out of the State, may be taken upon written interrogatories under a commission issued upon ten days' notice, before any competent and disinterested person, as commissioner, or before any judge, master in chancery, notary public, or justice of the peace of the county or city where the witness resides; or, where the witness is engaged in military service, before any commissioned officer in the military or naval service of this State or the United States.

A commission may issue, on ten days' notice, to take the deposition of a non-resident witness upon oral interrogatories before the same officers, one day's notice for each one hundred miles in addition to the ten days being given of the time and place of taking the deposition; and where notice has been served to take a deposition on written interrogatories the adverse party may insist upon the testimony being taken on oral interrogatories, by giving three days' notice of his election so to do, and a like notice of the time and place of taking the same.

Each witness is entitled to a fee of one dollar each day for attendance, and five cents per mile each way for necessary travel. The signature of the witness may be waived by consent of parties. Objections to questions as to matters of form should be specific. It is not essential that the name of the commissioner should appear in the notice or commission (20 Ill. App. 525); nor need all the witnesses be named therein. (60 Ill. App. 390.) The deposition may be taken by the commissioner in shorthand and afterwards transcribed by him, or, by consent, may be taken in shorthand by a third party. No party, his attorney, or person interested in the event of the suit, can dictate, write, or draw up, or be present during the time of taking, any deposition upon written interrogatories. There is probably no method to compel the attendance of a witness before a notary public or commissioner in this State, under a commission issued from a court of record of another State. (131 Ill. 199.)

[Instructions for Taking, Certifying, and Returning Depositions.]

The deposition of _____ of the county of _____ and State (or Territory) of _____ a witness of lawful age, produced, sworn, and examined under oath, on the _____ day of _____ in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and _____ at the office (or house) of _____ in _____ the town (or city) of _____ in the county of _____ and State (or Territory) aforesaid, by me a commissioner (or "by us," if more than one commissioner, inserting all the names of the commissioners) duly appointed by dedimus potestatem or commission issued out of the clerk's office of the _____ court, of _____ county, in the State of Illinois, bearing teste in the name of _____ clerk of the said _____ court, with the seal of said court affixed thereto, and to me (or "us," if more than one) directed as such commissioner (or commissioners) for the examination of the said _____ a witness in a certain suit and matter in controversy now pending and undetermined in the said _____ court, wherein _____ is plaintiff and _____ is defendant, in behalf of the said _____ as well upon the cross-interrogatories of the _____ as on the interrogatories of the _____ which were attached to, or inclosed with, the said commission, and upon none others. (If deposition is taken orally, change this according to circumstances.)

The said _____ being first duly sworn by me (or "by _____ one of said commissioners," if more than one) as a witness to the said cause, previous to the commencement of his examination, to testify the truth as well on the part of the plaintiff as the defendant, in relation to the matters in controversy between the said plaintiff and defendant so far as he should be interrogated, testified and deposed as follows: —

"Interrogatory first" (here insert the first interrogatory).

"Answer to first interrogatory" (here insert the answer); and so on successively in the order in which the interrogatories may be propounded and answered. Then follow: "Cross-interrogatories and answers thereto by the witness on the part of the defendant" (or plaintiff, as the case may be). (Here again write down the interrogatories and answers, successively, in the order aforesaid.) After the deposition is taken, the interrogatories and answers should be read over to the witness, and, if he assents to the truth of the answers as written down, the witness then will sign his name at the bottom of the deposition, and swear to the truth of it before the commissioner (or before one of the commissioners, if more than one). This oath is in addition to the preliminary oath, which is administered previous to the commencement of the examination. The commissioner should then certify to the time, place, and manner of taking such deposition, as follows: —

I _____ of the county of _____ and State (or Territory) of _____ a commissioner duly appointed to take the deposition of the said _____ a witness whose name is subscribed to the foregoing deposition, do hereby certify, that previous to the commencement of the examination of the said _____ as a witness in the suit between the said _____ plaintiff and the said _____ defendant, he was duly sworn by me as such commissioner (or "by _____ one of the commissioners," if more than one) to testify the truth in relation to the matters in controversy between the said _____ plaintiff, and the said _____ defendant, so far as he should be interrogated concerning the same; that the said deposition was taken at my office (or "at the house of _____") in the city (or town) of _____ in the county of _____ and State (or Territory) of _____ on the _____ day of _____ A. D. 19____ and that after said deposition was taken by me (or "us") as aforesaid, the interrogatories and answers thereto as written down were read over to the said witness, and that thereupon the same was signed and sworn to by the said deponent _____ before me (or "us"). (the oath being administered by _____ one of said commissioners, where there are more than one), as such commissioner, at the place and on the day and year last aforesaid.

(Signed)

Commissioner.

(The foregoing certificate of the commissioner should be at the foot or bottom of the deposition, immediately following the signature of the witness.)

The commissioner should then fold up the deposition as thus taken and certified, together with the commission and interrogatories, and all exhibits (if any) produced on the examination, properly marked or lettered as "Exhibit A," "Exhibit B," etc., and inclose the whole in a suitable wrapper or envelope, and then seal up the same securely with three seals, writing his name transversely across the middle seal; or, if two commissioners, they will each write their names, one on each of the outside seals; or, if three commissioners, then each one will write his name across one of the seals in the manner aforesaid. The commissioner (or commissioners) will also indorse the names of the parties to the suit transversely across one end of the package thus sealed up, according to the proper title of the suit, and direct the same to the proper address of the clerk, who may issue the commission, and transmit the same by mail to the proper post-office. It is important to the validity of the deposition that these requirements and instructions should be strictly attended to.

One caption will answer for the depositions of several witnesses, where they are all taken at the same time and place, to be read as evidence in the same suit, by so modifying the form here given as to make it applicable to the number of witnesses to be examined, — as, for instance, at the commencement say: "The depositions of A. B., C. D., and E. F., of the county of _____ and State of _____ witnesses of lawful age, produced, sworn, and examined on their respective oaths," etc., and then in the latter part of the caption say: "The said A. B., C. D., and E. F., being first duly sworn by me as witnesses in the said cause," etc. Then, at the commencement of each deposition, say: "Interrogatories propounded to the said A. B., a witness produced and sworn as aforesaid, on the part of the said _____," and his answers thereto, as follows: —

Answer to first interrogatory. (Here insert the answer.)

And so on successively with all the interrogatories to be propounded to that witness. Then insert the cross-interrogatories as before directed. The deposition should then be read to the witness, and signed and sworn to by him, before the next witness is examined. Then proceed with the second and third witnesses in like manner to the end.

One certificate as to the time, place, and manner of taking such depositions, and that each one was signed and sworn to by such witnesses respectively, will be sufficient, provided due care be taken to have the names of all the witnesses, and the certificate in other respects be in conformity with their names as in the first instance.

Great care should always be taken to attach such depositions firmly together by means of tape or ribbon, using wax or wafers when necessary.

Descent and Distribution. — (Hurd, 979.) Property in this State (143 Ill. 25), real and personal, of residents or non-residents dying intestate, descends and is distributed as follows: 1, to the children and their descendants equally, the descendants of a deceased child or grandchild taking the share of their parents in equal parts; 2, when there is no child, nor descendant of a child, and no widow or surviving husband, then to the parents, brothers, and sisters and their descendants equally, allowing each of the parents, if living, a child's part, or the survivor a double portion; and if there is no parent living, then to the brothers and sisters and their descendants; 3, when there is a widow or surviving husband, and no child or descendant of a child, one half of the real estate and the whole of the personal estate goes to the widow or surviving husband absolutely, and the other half of the real estate descends as in other cases where there are no children or descendants of children; 4, when there is a widow or surviving husband, and also a child or descendants of a child, the widow or surviving husband receives one third of the personal estate absolutely (see Dower and Curtesy); 5, if there is no child or descendant of a child, and no parent, brother, or sister, or descendant of parent, brother, or sister, and no widow or surviving husband, the estate descends in equal parts to the next of kin in equal degree (computing by the civil law), there being no representation among collaterals, except with descendants of brothers and sisters, and no distinction being made between kindred of the whole and the half blood; 6, in case of a widow or surviving husband, and no kindred, the whole estate goes to the widow or surviving husband (177 Ill. 49); 7, if no widow, surviving husband, or kindred, the estate escheats to the county where the property, or the greater portion thereof, is situated.

An illegitimate child is the heir of the mother, or any maternal ancestor, or person from whom the mother might inherit. The lawful issue of an illegitimate takes by descent any estate the parent would have taken if living. The estate of an illegitimate descends to widow or surviving husband and children as in other cases. In case of no surviving children, or descendants, the whole estate goes to widow or surviving husband. Where there is no widow or surviving husband, and no descendants, the mother takes one half, and her children and their descendants, by representation, the other half. In case of no heir as provided above, the estate goes to next of kin to mother, according to the rule of the civil law. Where there are no heirs or kindred the estate escheats to the State. An illegitimate child whose parents have intermarried, and whose father has acknowledged the child, is legitimatized. A legally adopted child takes from the parents by adoption as though born to them in wedlock, except as to property expressly limited to the body or bodies of the parents by adoption and property from the lineal or collateral kindred of such parents by right of representation. (Hurd, 36.) The parents by adoption and their descendants take by descent from an adopted child and his descendants only as to such property as the adopted child took from or through his adopted parents. See Taxes.

Divorce. — (Hurd, 981.) Divorce is granted for the following causes: 1, impotence (88 Ill. 438; 93 Ill. 376); 2, that he or she had a wife or husband living at time of marriage; 3, adultery (70 Ill. 618; 86 Ill. 340); 4, desertion for two years without any reasonable cause (53 Ill. 394; 62 Ill. 439; 87 Ill. 250; 135 Ill. 445; 138 Ill. 436; 141 Ill. 550); 5, habitual drunkenness for the space of two years (130 Ill. 280); 6, attempt upon life of the other by poison or other means showing malice; 7, extreme and repeated cruelty (73 Ill. 497; 88 Ill. 248; 116 Ill. 509; 146 Ill. 328; 157 Ill. 321); 8, conviction of felony or other infamous crime. The complainant must have resided in this State one year next before filing the bill, unless the offense or injury complained of was committed in this State, or while one or both parties resided here. (129 Ill. 386; 141 Ill. 550.)

The legitimacy of children is not affected by divorce, unless on ground of prior marriage. The proceeding is according to chancery practice; but where the charge is denied, either party may demand a jury trial. The bill must be filed in the county where complainant resides, but process may issue to any county in the State. In case of default the cause must be heard by examination of witnesses in open court; and in no such case can a divorce be granted unless the judge is satisfied that proper means have been taken to notify the defendant and the case has been fully proved by reliable witnesses. The judge may require such additional notice as seems just. The court may, during the pendency of the suit, require payments to the wife to enable her to maintain or defend the suit, and as alimony; also may make such orders concerning the custody and care of minor children as may seem expedient. Upon granting a woman a divorce she may be allowed to assume her maiden name. Upon granting a divorce the court may make such order regarding the alimony and maintenance of the wife, the care, custody, and support of the children, as the circumstances of the parties and the nature of the case may require, and may thereafter make such alterations in the decree in those respects as shall appear just. Neither party can marry again within one year from date of decree; and the person decreed guilty of adultery cannot marry for two years. A marriage within these periods is void. See Service.

Dower and Curtesy. — (Hurd, 984.) The estate of curtesy is abolished. A surviving husband has dower (i. e. life interest in a third part of all lands whereof deceased was seized of an estate of inheritance during marriage) the same as a widow. Equitable estates, and land contracted for before death, are subject to dower. Dower may be barred by jointure assented to; by devise, unless widow or surviving husband renounces benefit of devise within one year from date of letters of administration; by divorce as against the party in fault; and by abandonment coupled with adultery. There is no dower in land as against a purchase-money lien. The husband or wife may renounce any devise under the will of the other and take, if there be children, dower and one third of personal estate, or, if no children, one half of both real and personal estate absolutely. See Aliens.

Evidence. — See Testimony.

Executions. — See Judgments and Executions.

Executors and Administrators. — See Claims against Estates.

Exemptions. — Homestead. (Hurd, 1314.) The farm or lot of land and buildings thereon of every householder having a family, occupied as a residence, to the extent in value of one thousand dollars is exempt. The exemption continues after the death of the householder to the surviving husband or wife so long as he or she occupies the homestead, and to the children until the youngest becomes twenty-one years of age. But such property is subject to taxes and debts incurred for its purchase or improvement. In case the premises are worth more than one thousand dollars, and can be divided without injury, a portion thereof, including the dwelling-house, of the value of one thousand dollars, is set off, and the remainder is subject to execution and sale. If the premises cannot be divided, the property is valued by appraisers, and the debtor may pay the surplus over one thousand dollars; otherwise the property may be sold, and the officer having the execution pays one thousand dollars to the debtor and the remainder is applied in satisfaction of the creditor's claim. Substantially the same thing can be done by a court of chancery in a proceeding to foreclose a lien. Insurance money, in case of fire, is exempt to the same extent as the property insured. Upon a conveyance of the homestead the exemption continues to the grantee to the same extent. The proceeds from such sale, not over one thousand dollars, are exempt for one year, and may be invested in another homestead. The homestead right of exemption may be extinguished by a conveyance by both husband and wife, properly acknowledged (see Deeds), by abandonment, or, in case of right in children, by order of court of competent jurisdiction.

Personal Property. — The following personal property is exempt: 1, the necessary wearing apparel, bibles, school-books, and family pictures; 2, one hundred dollars' worth of other property to be selected by the debtor, and in addition, when the debtor is the head of a family and resides with the same, three hundred dollars' worth of other property to be selected by the debtor, provided the exemption shall not be allowed from any money, salary, or wages due the debtor. When the head of a family dies, deserts, or does not live with the same, the exemption continues to the family. No personal property is exempt from process under a judgment for a debt for the wages of a laborer or servant. Exemptions cannot be claimed out of partnership property. (37 Ill. App. 489; 38 Ill. App. 269.) When a debtor desires to claim exemptions he must, within ten days after service of process and notice, schedule under oath all his personal property of every kind, including money in hand and debts due or owing him. Property not so scheduled is subject to process. Appraisers are then appointed by the officer having the writ, who place a fair value on each article. The debtor may select articles so appraised of a total value not exceeding the amount of the exemption allowed, the remainder being sold by the officer in satisfaction of the debt. Money or benefits received from life or accident insurance companies, organized under the act of July 1, 1893, are exempt. (Hurd, 1541.) The wages of a wage earner, being the head of a family, and residing with the same, are exempt from garnishment to the amount of fifteen dollars per week. (Hurd, 1408.) It is made a misdemeanor to send a claim to another State for collection out of the earnings of the debtor by garnishment or other proceedings when the debtor is a resident and the creditor, debtor, and garnishee are all within the jurisdiction of the courts of Illinois, with intent to deprive the debtor of his rights under the exemption laws of this State; or to transfer for such purpose a claim against a citizen of Illinois. The penalty is not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars. A non-resident, as to wages earned and payable outside of this State, is allowed here the same exemption he would be entitled to in the State of his residence. (Hurd, 1411.) Wages earned and payable outside of this State are exempt from attachment or garnishment, where the cause of action arose out of the State, unless the defendant in the attachment or garnishment suit is personally served with process. If the defendant be not served personally, the court or justice of the peace issuing the writ must dismiss the suit at the cost of the plaintiff. (Hurd, 1411.) The law of exemptions applies to cases of distress for rent, except as to crops growing on the premises. (Hurd, 1684.)

Frauds, Statute of. — (Hurd, 1399.) The following contracts should be in writing: 1, a promise of an executor or administrator to answer any debt or damages out of his own estate; 2, a promise to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another; 3, an agreement made in consideration of marriage; 4, an agreement not to be performed within one year; 5, any contract for the sale of lands, or any interest therein for a longer term than one year; 6, express trusts relating to real estate.

"A contract to sell or a sale of any goods or choses in action of the value of five hundred dollars or upwards is not enforceable by action, unless the buyer accepts part of the goods or choses in action so contracted to be sold or sold, and actually receives the same, or gives something in earnest to bind the contract, or in part payment, or unless some note or memorandum in writing of the contract or sale be signed by the party to be charged or his agent in that behalf. The act applies to sales for future delivery and to goods to be obtained or manufactured by the seller, but not to sales of goods to be manufactured on special order if they be not suitable for sale to others in the usual course of business. There is an acceptance of goods within the meaning of the act when the buyer, either before or after the delivery of the goods, expresses by words or conduct his assent to becoming the owner of those specific goods."

Garnishment. — (Hurd, 1405.) Upon the return of an execution "no property found," if the plaintiff or his agent file an affidavit that the defendant has no property within the knowledge of affiant liable to execution, and affiant has just reason to believe that any person is indebted to, or has in his possession, custody, or charge effects or estate of the defendant, such person may be summoned as garnishee. No bond is required. In justice court the garnishee, except in case of a corporation, which may answer in writing, answers personally. In a court of record a written answer is filed, which may be traversed and a trial had. The garnishee cannot be held liable except where the defendant could recover against him in a direct suit. (75 Ill. 544.) An adverse claimant may appear and assert his claim to the debt or property. An assignment of the debt or property, prior to the service of process on the garnishee, is good against plaintiff, if notice be given to garnishee at any time before answer filed. (161 Ill. 85.) The garnishee may assert a set-off against the defendant. A person cannot be held as garnishee on his unmatured negotiable paper in the possession of defendant. In other cases, it seems, garnishment will lie before the debt is due. (62 Ill. App. 236.) Garnishees may also be summoned in attachment cases. See Attachments; Exemptions.

Holidays, Legal. — (Hurd, 1146, 1780.) January 1st, February 12th, February 22d, May 30th, July 4th, October 12th, December 25th, first Monday in September (Labor Day), Thanksgiving Day, and election days; also every Saturday from twelve o'clock noon to twelve o'clock midnight. Where holidays fall on Sunday, the day following. See Notes and Bills.

Inheritance Taxes. — (Hurd, 2235.) All property which passes by will or by the intestate laws of this State, the deceased being a resident, or, if a non-resident, the property being situated within the State at the time of death, or property transferred in the contemplation of death or by an instrument to take effect only after death, is subject to a tax to be paid to the county treasurer for the use of the State, and the representatives of the deceased are liable therefor until the same has been paid. In case the property passes to the father, mother, husband, wife, child, brother, sister, wife or widow of the son, or the husband of the daughter, or any child or children legally adopted, or to any person to whom the deceased stood for ten years prior to his death in the acknowledged relation of parent, or to any lineal descendant born in lawful wedlock, the rate is two dollars on every hundred dollars of the clear market value of the property received by each person when the amount so received exceeds one hundred thousand dollars, and for a less amount one dollar per one hundred dollars, but no legacy or share less than twenty thousand dollars is subject to such tax, and the tax is levied in the above cases only upon the excess of twenty thousand dollars received by each person. When the property passes to an uncle, aunt, niece, nephew, or any lineal descendant of the same, the rate is four dollars on every hundred dollars of such property received by each person in excess of two thousand dollars where the legacy or share is over twenty thousand dollars, and two dollars per one hundred dollars where it is less than twenty thousand dollars. In all other cases the rate for each hundred dollars is as follows: on transfers of ten thousand dollars and less, three dollars; on transfers over ten thousand dollars and not exceeding twenty thousand dollars, four dollars; on transfers over twenty thousand dollars and not exceeding fifty thousand dollars, five dollars; on all transfers over fifty thousand dollars and not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars, six dollars; and on all transfers over one hundred thousand dollars, ten dollars; but no transfer valued at less than five hundred dollars is subject to the tax. Estates for life and in remainder are taxable. The tax is due and payable at the death of the decedent, and the amount bears interest at six per cent. from that date until it is paid; but if payment be made within six months the interest is not charged and a five per cent. discount is allowed. The tax is deducted or collected by the executor, administrator, or trustee, before the property subject to it is turned over. Where the legacy is a charge on real estate the heir or devisee deducts the tax before paying. The property may be sold to obtain money to pay the tax. A corporation, with knowledge that the property is liable to be taxed, which permits the transfer of stocks or loans by a foreign executor or administrator which stand in the name of the decedent or in trust for his use, without having the tax paid, is liable therefor. The value of the property is fixed by an appraiser appointed by the county court after a hearing, of which the parties interested have notice, which appraisement is filed in court and notice thereof given to parties interested, who may appeal therefrom to the county court. The lien of the tax continues until the tax is settled and satisfied. It is limited to the property chargeable therewith, and, if not sued for within five years after it is due, it is presumed paid and ceases to be a lien against purchaser of the real estate.

Shares of stock in Illinois corporations owned by a non-resident at the time of his death are subject to the tax. Inquiries regarding the assessment may be addressed to the clerk of the county court of the county where the decedent lived or the property is located. The tax is collected by the county treasurer.

Insolvent Laws. — The National Bankruptcy Act of 1898 has suspended the operation of the Illinois Assignment Act. (184 Ill. 110.)

Interest. — (Hurd, 1580.) Extreme contract rate seven per cent., legal rate five per cent. Interest is allowed at the legal rate on moneys after they become due on any bond, bill, promissory note, or other instrument in writing; on money loaned or advanced for the use of another; on money due on the settlement of an account, from the date of ascertaining the balance; on money received to the use of another, and retained without the owner's knowledge; and on money withheld by an unreasonable and vexatious delay of payment. Judgments or decrees draw interest at five per cent. Penalty for contracting for more than seven per cent. is the loss of the entire interest, and only the principal sum can be recovered. A written contract, wherever payable, made in this State between citizens of this State and of a foreign State (or secured by a mortgage on lands in this State) is controlled by the law of this State as to the rate of interest, and the penalty for usury. Usury must be specially pleaded. But corporations cannot claim a forfeiture of legal interest on account of usury. (Hurd, 1580; 145 Ill. 208.) In all computations of time, and of interest and discounts, a month is considered to mean a calendar month, and a year twelve calendar months, and a day the thirtieth part of a month. A foreign corporation is subject to the same penalties for usury as a citizen of this State. (Hurd, 654.) A pawnbroker may receive three per cent. a month, but he can receive nothing in excess thereof for storage, insurance, or other charges.

Judgments and Executions. — (Hurd, 1506.) A judgment is a lien on real estate situated in the county where the judgment is rendered, for seven years from its date. If an execution is not issued on a judgment within one year the judgment ceases to be a lien, but execution may issue at any time within seven years, and it becomes a lien from the time it is delivered to the officer to be executed. There is no priority of lien on real estate in respect to judgments entered at the same term, or on the same day in vacation. A transcript of a judgment in another county may be filed and thereupon becomes a lien upon real estate of the defendant in the county where filed, and execution may issue thereunder. Time during which the collection of the judgment is restrained by an injunction, appeal, order of court, or is delayed by death of the defendant, is not counted. Real estate levied upon within seven years may be sold thereafter within one year. The term real estate includes lands, tenements, hereditaments, and all legal and equitable rights and interests therein, including estates for life, for years, and leasehold estates when the unexpired term exceeds five years. An execution under a judgment may issue to any county in the State, but does not take effect, as against creditors and bona fide purchasers without notice, until the officer files a certificate of the levy in the office of the recorder of the county where the land is situated. Executions are made returnable ninety days after date, but may be returned before. An execution becomes a lien on personal property from the time it is delivered to the officer to be executed. The defendant may elect what property, not exempt from execution, to have the execution levied upon, provided personal property shall be last taken. Both real and personal property, where practicable, must be sold in separate tracts, lots, or articles, and only so much sold as is necessary to satisfy the execution and costs. Before real estate can be sold under an execution, a notice for three successive weeks, once in each week, must be published in some newspaper of the county where the sale is made, and written or printed notices thereof posted in three of the most public places in the county. Upon the sale the purchaser receives from the officer selling a certificate showing the amount paid, or, in case the purchaser is the plaintiff in the execution, the amount bid, describing the premises and giving the time when the purchaser will be entitled to a deed, unless the premises be redeemed. The officer files for record a duplicate of the certificate. The certificate is assignable by indorsement. The assignee thereof has the same rights as the original purchaser. The debtor may redeem in twelve months, and a creditor after twelve months and within fifteen months from date of certificate upon payment of amount bid with six per cent. interest. If the property is not redeemed a deed issues at any time within five years after the time of redemption, which conveys to the grantee all the title, estate, and interest of the execution debtor.

All goods and chattels, including money and stock in a corporation, may be levied on. Personal property may be sold under execution on ten days' notice. The interest of one partner in copartnership property may be sold, but the purchaser gets only defendant's interest after all partnership debts are paid. (14 Ill. 405; 52 Ill. 74.) Before possession is taken by a mortgagee, a mortgagor's interest in the chattels mortgaged may be levied on subject to the mortgage; after possession taken by the mortgagee the remedy is, if the mortgage be not attacked, by garnishment of the mortgagee for any surplus. (67 Ill. 227.)

A forthcoming bond may be given by the defendant to the officer. A third party claiming the property levied on may have a trial as to the right of property in the county court. No execution issues from justice court until twenty days after judgment, unless oath be made that affiant believes the debt will be lost unless it issue forthwith. An execution from justice court is a lien on personal property from the time it is delivered to the constable. Executions from justice court may issue to constables of other counties.

Judgments may be confessed by a debtor or his authorized attorney without process in term time or vacation. The following is a form of judgment note commonly used. Under it a judgment may be entered at any time after its date, without notice or process, and execution issued and levied at once.

— after date, for value received promise to pay to the order of dollars, at with interest at seven per cent. per annum.

And to secure the payment of said sum I authorize, irrevocably, any attorney of any court of record to appear for me in said court, in term time or in vacation, at any time hereafter, and confess a judgment without process in favor of the holder of this note, for such amount as may appear to be unpaid thereon, with costs and five per cent. attorney's fees, and to waive all errors in any such proceedings and consent to immediate execution upon such judgment, hereby ratifying and confirming all that said attorney may do by virtue hereof. (Signature.)

License. — None required by commercial travelers.

Liens. — There is a statutory lien on water craft navigating the waters of this State, having home ports here, or used in commerce between points in the State, for debts contracted and liabilities and damages incurred, generally speaking, in the use of such craft; and a lien on goods shipped and transferred, for freight, advanced charges, and demurrage. (Hurd, 106.) A landlord has a lien for rent upon crops growing on the demised premises. (Hurd, 1635.) But the landlord, in the absence of contract, has no lien on other property of the tenant until after the levy of a distress warrant. Hotel, inn, and boarding-house keepers have a lien upon baggage and other valuables of guests. Stable-keepers have a lien upon horses, carriages, and harness for the keeping thereof. Garage-keepers are entitled to liens on automobiles, parts, and accessories, for keeping, repairing, materials furnished thereto, and the expenses bestowed thereon at the request of the owner, or the person having the possession thereof. Agisters and persons keeping, yarding, and feeding domestic animals have a lien therefor. (Hurd, 1653.) All persons furnishing supplies, or doing work for any railroad organized under the laws of this State, necessary for the construction, maintenance, operation, or repair of the road, have a lien therefor on all the property of the company, which is good as against mortgages and other liens acquired after the commencement of the delivery of supplies, or the doing of the work. (Hurd, 1654.) Attorneys have liens on all demands, claims, and causes of action of their clients, after the service of notice upon the adverse party. (Hurd, 1667.) See Mechanics' Liens.

Limitations. — (Hurd, 1670.) Action for the recovery of lands may be brought within twenty years after the right accrues; except, 1, actual residence on land for seven successive years, with connected title deducible from record, establishes title; 2, seven years' actual possession under claim and color of title made in good faith, and payment of all taxes legally assessed during that period; or 3, in case of vacant lands, without actual possession, constitutes ownership to the extent and according to the purport of the paper title. But payment of taxes for any of the seven years on vacant land by the party having a better title prevents such ownership being established, and 2 and 3 do not apply where an adverse title is held by a minor, a person insane, imprisoned, out of the limits of the United States, or in the employment of the United States or of this State, or a feme covert, if such person shall begin suit within three years after the disability is removed, and prosecute it to judgment; or, in case of vacant lands, repay all taxes with interest at twelve per cent. Foreclosure action under a mortgage or trust deed must be begun within ten years after the right of action, or the right to make sale, accrues; but the right to foreclose is not barred until the note secured by the mortgage is barred. (206 Ill. 548.)

Limitations in personal actions are as follows: libel and slander, one year; actions for damages for injury to persons, two years (where death results, one year after death, Hurd, 1454); for false imprisonment, malicious prosecution, for a statutory penalty, for abduction, seduction, or criminal conversation, two years; actions on unwritten contracts, express or implied, on awards of arbitration, to recover damages for injury to property real or personal, to recover possession of personal property, or damages for the detention or conversion thereof, and all civil actions not otherwise provided for, five years; actions on bonds, promissory notes, bills of exchange, written leases, written contracts, or other evidences of indebtedness in writing, ten years; but any payment or new promise to pay in writing renews the right of action on such instrument for ten years from the time of such payment or promise. A domestic judgment of a court of record, twenty years; of a foreign court of record, five years. (139 Ill. 311.) Judgments of justices of the peace, ten years.

A defendant may assert a set-off, barred while owned by him, to any action the cause of which was owned by the plaintiff or person under whom he claims before such set-off was barred; but this does not apply to negotiable instruments transferred in good faith before due. If when the right of action accrues against a person he is out of this State, the action may be brought within the times above stated after his return. If after the right of action accrues he departs from and resides out of this State, the time of such absence is not counted. These last two provisions have no application to cases where both parties were non-residents when the right of action accrued. An action arising outside of this State, and barred by the laws of the State or country where it accrued, cannot be maintained in this State. In personal actions which survive, if the person in whose favor, or against whom the action may be brought, dies before the statute runs, the action may be maintained in the first case by the representatives within a year from the date of death, and in the second case, against the representative within a year from the date of administration; and if when the action accrued the claimant is under age, insane, or imprisoned on a criminal charge, within two years after the disability is removed.

If the person liable fraudulently conceals the right of action, the statute runs from the discovery of the fraud. The time during which an action is stayed by injunction, an order of court, or statutory prohibition, is deducted. Where a judgment for the plaintiff is reversed upon appeal, judgment for the plaintiff arrested, or the plaintiff is nonsuited, if the statute has run during the pendency of the suit, a new action may be begun within one year. This does not apply to a voluntary nonsuit. (94 Ill. 439.)

Married Women. — (Hurd, 1445.) A married woman may sue, be sued, or defend, as if she were unmarried. When the husband deserts, the wife may prosecute or defend in his name. The husband has the same right upon the desertion of the wife. The husband is not liable for the wife's torts except in cases where he would be jointly responsible if the marriage did not exist. The husband or wife is not liable for the debts of the other incurred before marriage, or for the separate debts of each other after marriage, except that the husband and wife are jointly and severally liable for the expenses of the family and the education of their children. (159 Ill. 270; 23 Ill. App. 118; 33 Ill. App. 394; 71 Ill. App. 673.) The wife may contract as if unmarried, except that she cannot carry on a partnership business without the consent of her husband, unless he has abandoned her, or is insane, or confined in the penitentiary. She may receive and use her own earnings free from the interference of the husband or his creditors. Neither the husband nor the wife can recover compensation for any labor performed or services rendered for the other. She may own in her own right real and personal property obtained by descent, gift, or purchase, and manage, sell, and convey it to the same extent that the husband can property belonging to him; but no transfer of goods and chattels between the husband and wife living together is good as against third persons, unless acknowledged and recorded as chattel mortgages are required to be. The husband and wife may sue each other for the possession or control of his or her property. In case either husband or wife abandons the other, or is absent for one year without providing for the maintenance of the family, or is imprisoned in the penitentiary, any court of record may authorize him or her to control, sell, and encumber the property of the other to the extent that may be necessary for the support of the family, and for the payment of debts contracted for that purpose. A husband or wife may constitute the other his or her attorney in fact, to control and dispose of property. A married woman who without her fault lives apart from her husband may maintain an action for reasonable support and maintenance. A husband who without cause abandons or neglects to provide for his wife, or children under twelve, is guilty of a misdemeanor and may be punished by fine and imprisonment. The wife may insure her husband's life. (Hurd, 1306.) She may become surety for the husband. She may execute a will, if over eighteen years of age, at which age she attains majority. See Deeds; Divorce; Dower and Curtesy; Testimony.

Mechanics' Liens. — (Hurd, 1655, and Laws of Illinois, 400.) The present act went into effect July 1, 1913. It is impracticable to give here a satisfactory abstract of the entire act. Generally speaking, contractors and sub-contractors, including architects, superintendents, timekeepers, etc., have liens on any real estate, interest therein, or improvements thereon, for all kinds of labor and services performed, and materials furnished for the erection of any building, or the improvement of any real estate, or thing connected therewith. Before any payment by the owner, it is the duty of the contractor (except in the case of a merchant or dealer in materials only) to give, and of the owner to require, a verified statement of the names of all parties furnishing materials and labor, and the amounts due or to become due to each. The contractor cannot enforce a lien to the prejudice of a creditor, incumbrancer, or purchaser unless within four months after completion he shall bring suit to enforce his lien, or file with the clerk of the circuit court a verified claim of lien, showing the substance of the contract, the balance due, and a description of the land. As to the owner, the claim may be filed at any time after the date of the contract, and within two years after completion. Claims for liens may be assigned and enforced by the assignee in his own name. Suit to enforce the lien may be brought by the contractor, by a bill or petition in chancery, within two years after the completion of the contract. A receiver may be appointed to take possession of the property, or to complete a building. Prior incumbrances are preferred only to the extent of the value of the land at the time of the contract under which the lien arises; and the enhanced value by reason of the improvements is applied to lien claims. Different creditors may intervene and have their rights adjudicated. The property may be sold by order of court and proceeds distributed to the different claimants. A deficiency decree may be entered against the debtor personally. Sub-contractors may be required to give to the owner or contractor a verified statement of the persons furnishing material and labor, and the amount due or to become due each. A sub-contractor must, within sixty days after the completion of his contract, serve a written notice of his claim and the amount due or to become due, upon the owner, or his agent, architect or superintendent, having charge of the building, unless the owner has been given notice of the names and amounts due by the previous statements of the contractor or sub-contractor, provided for in the act. When the owner is so notified he must retain sufficient of the moneys due the contractor to satisfy the demands of the sub-contractors, material-men, mechanics, etc., and pay over the same to the parties entitled thereto, in the following order: First, all claims for wages in full; second, claims of tradesmen, material-men, and sub-contractors entitled to liens, pro rata. If money due laborers or sub-contractors be not paid within ten days after such notice, such persons may either file petitions in chancery to enforce their liens, or may sue the owner and contractor jointly at law and obtain personal judgment. A sub-contractor must file his petition to enforce his lien within four months after the maturity of his claim. Prior to amendment of 1913, it was held that "if the principal contractor in his agreement with the owner waives all right of lien or agrees to deliver the property to the owner free from all liens, the right of the sub-contractor to obtain a lien is thereby destroyed." (251 Ill. 135; 264 Ill. 619). The amendment of 1913 provides that the only admissible evidence of such a provision as against a sub-contractor shall be proof of actual notice on his part; or that the stipulation was duly filed for record as provided in the act. The constitutionality of this amendment has not been passed upon by any Illinois appellate court, and its validity is doubtful. Extreme care should be taken by parties intending to claim a lien under the act, or in any transaction which may be affected by lien claims against the property involved, reference being had to the specific provisions of the act. A person furnishing material, apparatus, fixtures, machinery, or labor to a contractor for a public improvement, has a lien upon the money, bonds or warrants due or to become due under such contract: Provided, the claimant serves upon the municipality a notice of his claim before payment be made to such contractor; but the lien attaches only to the portions of the money, bonds, or warrants against which no voucher or other evidence of indebtedness has been issued and delivered to the contractor.

Mortgages. — (Hurd, 1767.) Real estate mortgages should be executed and acknowledged the same as deeds. The wife must join to bar dower, except in mortgages for purchase-money. Trust deeds are often preferred to mortgages because of the facility in the transfer of the security, and, in case of non-resident creditors, in obtaining a release, the trustee generally being a resident. For the statutory form of mortgage and the effect of such instrument, see Deeds. Real estate mortgages may be released upon the record or by release deed.

Since the act in force July 1, 1879, no real estate can be sold by virtue of a power of sale contained in any mortgage or trust deed executed since that date, but such mortgages and trust deeds must be foreclosed by scire facias or by regular foreclosure suit in a court of chancery. In extreme cases, where the mortgaged property is clearly of less value than the debt secured and the mortgagor is insolvent, there may be a strict foreclosure which cuts off the right of redemption, in which case the mortgagee takes the property in discharge of the debt. (9 Ill. App. 109; 50 Ill. 275.) In other cases, after foreclosure decree, the real estate may be redeemed or sold in the same manner as under other decrees or judgments (see Redemption). Every deed conveying real estate intended only as security, although absolute in its terms, is considered a mortgage and may be foreclosed as such. Upon foreclosure and sale, if there be a deficiency, a decree therefor may be entered against the mortgagor personally. The holder in due course of a note secured by a mortgage or trust deed on real estate in Illinois stands in no better position, so far as the enforcement of his security is concerned, than the payee or original holder; but this doctrine does not apply to corporate bonds payable to bearer. (247 Ill. 467.) See Chattel Mortgages; Deeds.

Notaries Public — Are appointed by governor for term of four years. Memorandum of appointment entered in the office of the county clerk, who is authorized to issue certificates of magistracy. A notary is required to have a seal to authenticate his official acts. While he resides in the same county in which he was appointed, he has authority to execute the duties of his office throughout the State. The county clerk certifies to the official character of a notary. See Actions; Affidavits.

Notes and Bills. — The so-called "Uniform Negotiable Instruments Law," adopted in New York and most of the other States, is in force in Illinois, as to all commercial paper executed after July 1, 1907, with the following modifications: (1) All promissory notes, bonds, due bills, and other instruments in writing, whereby one promises or agrees to pay any sum of money or articles of personal property, or any sum of money in personal property, or acknowledges any sum of money or article of personal property to be due, are negotiable. Except as to promissory notes payable in money, due diligence must be used by the holder against the maker, if he be a resident and solvent, by suit at first term of court after maturity, in order to hold the indorser. (2) Accommodation paper may be issued after maturity, if such was the intention of the accommodating party. (3) The addition of words of assignment or guaranty to a blank indorsement does not affect the signature as an indorsement unless otherwise expressly stated. (4) The defenses of fraud and circumvention in the execution of negotiable paper, or that the consideration arose out of a gambling transaction prohibited by §§ 130, 131, and 136 of our Criminal Code, may be asserted as against a holder in due course. (5) The fact that a depositor makes his note payable at a bank does not authorize the bank to pay it out of his funds on deposit. (6) An alteration of an instrument avoids it only when it is material or fraudulent, and made by the holder. (7) A promise in writing to accept a bill made either before or after it is drawn is deemed an actual acceptance as to the person receiving the bill on the faith thereof. (8) Section 137 of the Uniform Negotiable Instruments Law, providing that the destruction by the drawee of a bill of exchange left with him for acceptance, or his refusal to return the same within twenty-four hours after delivery to him, or within such further period as the holder might allow, should be deemed an acceptance of the bill, is omitted from the Illinois act. All parties jointly liable on a negotiable instrument are deemed to be jointly and severally liable.

Persons severally liable upon bills of exchange or promissory notes payable in money may all or any of them be included in the same suit at the option of the plaintiff, and the judgment rendered is without prejudice to the rights of the several defendants as between themselves. In such a suit judgment may be entered by default against one, and may proceed to trial against the others. If judgment be entered against the one primarily liable and his surety, the surety may pay, and have the judgment released as to him, and enforce the judgment for his benefit against the principal. Where all defendants jointly liable are not served, judgment may be entered in form against all, and may be enforced against the joint property of all and the separate property of those served. See Holidays; Judgment Notes.

Partnership. — The Uniform Partnership Act and the Uniform Limited Partnership Act are in force in Illinois.

Practice and Pleadings. — According to the common law and general equity practice, except in the municipal court of Chicago wherein the practice has been much simplified. See Actions.

Proof of Claims. — See Actions; Affidavits; Claims against Estates; Insolvent Laws. In forwarding a claim for collection it should be stated whether the parties plaintiff and defendant are partners or corporations; if partners, who compose the partnership; if corporations, under the laws of what States they were organized. Correspondents should also be advised as to the nature of the claim, and what portion thereof, if any, is not due.

Recording Acts. — In counties having a population of less than sixty thousand the clerk of the circuit court is ex officio the recorder. In other counties a "recorder of deeds" is elected. As to what instruments must be recorded, see respective titles.

Redemption. — Real estate may be redeemed from sales under executions, judgments, decrees, and foreclosure and mechanics' lien proceedings, by the defendant, as follows: after decree or judgment, the officer who is to execute the same delivers a certificate thereof to the creditor and files the same of record. The debtor may redeem by paying the amount of the decree, costs, and the amounts paid by the certificate-holder for taxes and special assessments which were a lien during the time of redemption, with six per cent. interest, within twelve months from the date of such certificate, or within fifteen months therefrom if there shall be no redemption by a decree or judgment creditor as provided in the act. If there be no redemption by the debtor within the fifteen months, the property is then immediately advertised and sold to satisfy the decree or judgment. Any creditor of such defendant may redeem upon the same terms after the twelve months and within fifteen months from the date of sale. Successive redemptions of the premises may be made within sixty days from the last sale at which they were sold for more than the redemption money, interest, and costs. (Hurd, 1413, 1414, 1483.) See Judgments; Executions; Mortgages.

Replevin. — (Hurd, 2152.) The action lies for personal property wrongfully detained. The action may be brought in any county where the property is, or where any of the defendants reside or may be found. The writ may issue to several counties, but in such case there can be no judgment without appearance by the defendant, unless a defendant be served or property taken in the county where suit was begun. The plaintiff, or some one on his behalf, must make and file an affidavit showing that the plaintiff is the owner of the property or entitled to the possession thereof, that it is wrongfully detained by the defendant, and that it has not been taken for any tax, assessment, or fine, or under any execution against the property of the plaintiff liable to execution. Before the execution of the writ, the plaintiff, or some one in his behalf, must give the officer a bond with sufficient security (a real estate owner of the county is generally required) in double the value of the property. The officer then takes the property and delivers it to the plaintiff. There can be no re-replevy by the defendant, nor is there any provision by which the defendant may retain possession of the property. If the plaintiff fails to maintain his action, and does not return the property and pay damages for its detention, the defendant's remedy is on the bond or by direct action for damages against the plaintiff. A count in trover may be inserted in the declaration, and if no property be taken under the writ the case may proceed as one in trover.

Sales. — The so-called Uniform Sales Act has been adopted in Illinois and became in force July 1, 1915. See Frauds, Statute of.

Sales in Bulk. — Sales of the major part or all of a stock in trade, chattels or fixtures not in the ordinary course of business, are fraudulent and void as to creditors unless the buyer obtains from the seller an affidavit giving a list of his creditors with addresses and amounts due each, and the buyer, five days before payment, gives notice to each creditor personally or by mail of the contemplated purchase. (Laws of 1913, p. 258.)

Service. — Summons is served by the sheriff or his regular or specially authorized deputy. In law cases, by leaving a copy with the defendant in person. In case of a corporation a copy is delivered to some officer. In chancery, by delivering a copy to the defendant, or by leaving a copy at his usual place of abode, with some person of the family, of the age of ten years or upwards, and informing such person of the contents thereof; or, in case of non-resident, by delivery of copy of bill with notice of commencement of the suit. Service of summons must be had ten days before the return term, and, in case of delivery of copy of bill, not less than thirty days before the return term. Upon proper service, default and judgment may be entered on the third day of the return term. From justice courts summons is returnable in not less than five nor more than fifteen days, and must be served three days before trial. "To be found within the State a foreign corporation must have sent its agent, on whom service is made, to the State to conduct its business therein, either continuously or for a time, so as to complete a transaction or an enterprise, or at least charged with the duty of making a particular contract in the State or negotiating therein, for the company." (40 Ill. App. 547; and see 30 Ill. App. 204; 22 Ill. 9; 28 Ill. 433; 102 Ill. 249; 54 Fed. Rep. 420; 250 Ill. 376.)

In attachment (Hurd, 103), replevin (Hurd, 2154), and chancery (Hurd, 186) cases, when it appears by affidavit filed, or by the return of an officer, that a defendant is not a resident of, or has departed from, this State, or on due inquiry cannot be found, or is concealed within this State so that process cannot be served upon him, and stating the defendant's place of residence if known, if not that it cannot be ascertained, service may be had by publication in some newspaper of the county of general circulation once each week for four successive weeks, the first publication to be at least thirty days next prior to the first day of term. (Hurd, 1809.) A copy of such notice is also mailed to the defendant, if his address is known, within ten days after the first publication. In attachment and replevin cases default may be entered at the expiration of ten days after the last publication, and in chancery cases thirty days must intervene between the first publication and the first day of the term at which default is taken.

Stay of Execution. — No statutory provision for. See Appeals.

Supplementary Proceedings. — See Creditor's Bill.

Taxes. — (Hurd, 1902.) All real and personal property in this State, including moneys, credits, bonds, stocks, investments, shares of stock in corporations (see Corporations, supra), and of banks doing business in this State, is subject to taxation. County taxes cannot exceed seventy-five cents per one hundred dollars valuation unless authorized by a vote of the people of the county. (Const. art. IX, § 8.) No county, city, township, school district, or other municipal corporation can become indebted to an amount exceeding five per cent. on the value of the taxable property therein. (Const. art. IX, § 12.) Real and personal property is listed with county assessor and assessed between April 1st and June 1st as of April 1st. Personal property acquired after April 1st is listed by, and assessed to, the purchaser. The owner of real property on April 1st is liable for the taxes of that year. If the property is transferred on that day the purchaser is considered the owner. Taxes on real property are a lien from April 1st, and on personal property from the time the tax books are received by the collector. (Hurd, 2230.) On March 10th the township collector turns the books over to the county collector, whose duty it is to collect taxes thereafter. There are provisions for reviews and revisions of assessments by the supervisors of assessments, boards of review, and the state board of equalization. Taxes on real estate unpaid on March 10th are deemed delinquent, and bear interest after May 1st at one per cent. per month until paid. After the first day of the next ensuing April the collector gives notice of application to the county court for judgment against the lands for delinquent taxes and assessments, and for an order to sell. Payment may be made to the county collector at any time before sale. At such sale the person offering the amount due on each tract or lot for the least percentage thereon as penalty becomes the purchaser, but no bid is accepted for a penalty exceeding twenty-five per cent. of the amount of the tax or special assessment. After sale the property may be redeemed at any time within two years upon payment, if within six months, of the amount of the sale with the penalty bid; if between six and twelve months, the amount of the sale and twice the penalty; between twelve and eighteen months, the amount of the sale and three times the penalty; and between eighteen months and two years the amount of the sale and four times the penalty; also all taxes and special assessments accruing after such sale, with seven per cent. penalty. There are certain exceptions as to minor heirs, idiots, and insane persons. After the two years, if no redemption be made, the county clerk issues a tax deed to the purchaser of the property.

Testimony. — (Hurd, 1304.) Parties and persons interested are competent witnesses, except on their own behalf when any adverse party sues or defends as the trustee or conservator of any idiot, habitual drunkard, lunatic, distracted person, or as executor, administrator, heir, legatee, or devisee of any deceased person, or as guardian or trustee of any such heir, legatee, or devisee, unless when called as a witness by such adverse party. But this restriction does not apply, 1, to testimony of facts occurring after the death of such deceased person, or the majority of the ward, heir, devisee, or legatee; 2, where an agent of the deceased has testified in behalf of such party as to a particular transaction or conversation, the other party may testify to the same; 3, where such representative or party interested in the event testifies in behalf of such party to any conversation or transaction with the opposite party, or party in interest, then such opposite party or party in interest may testify to the same conversation or transaction; 4, where any witness, or a party to the record or in interest, and not an agent of the deceased, testifies, on behalf of any party to the action, to any conversation or admission of the adverse party or party in interest occurring before the death and in the absence of the deceased, such adverse party or party in interest may also testify to the same conversation or admission; 5, when the deposition of the deceased is read in evidence, the adverse party or party in interest may testify to the matters referred to therein. In an action against a surviving partner or joint contractor, an adverse party is not a competent witness to any conversation of the deceased, unless one or more of the surviving partners or joint contractors were present.

Account books are admissible if proved according to the common law; or if the party testifies that the items in his book of original entry were made by him, and are true and just, or were made by a deceased person, or by a disinterested person non-resident at the time of trial, in the usual course of trade and of his employment. Husband and wife can testify for or against each other as to any conversation or transaction during their marriage only. 1, when the wife, if unmarried, would have been plaintiff or defendant; 2, as to personal wrongs or injuries done by one to the other; 3, in cases of failure of husband to support the wife; 4, in cases of divorce; 5, in cases concerning the separate property of the wife; 6, actions on policies of insurance and against carriers as to the loss and value of the property; 7, the business transactions conducted by the wife as agent of her husband. An adverse party may be compelled to testify. Courts may, on good cause shown, compel the production of books and papers. Reports and statutes purporting to be published by authority are admissible. Court records may be proved by a certified copy under the hand of the clerk of the court having the custody thereof and the seal of the court, or by the judge of the court if there be no clerk, or as provided by the laws of the United States. Papers, entries, and records of a private corporation may be proved by a copy thereof certified under the hand of the secretary, clerk, cashier, or other keeper of the same. If a corporation has a seal it should be affixed to such certificate.

Trust Deeds. — See Mortgages.

Wills. — (Hurd. 2695.) Every male over twenty-one, and female over eighteen, is competent to make a will. It must be signed by the testator or by some person in his presence and by his direction, and attested in his presence at his request by at least two witnesses. The witnesses should be disinterested. (184 Ill. 579.) A devise to a witness is void unless the will be otherwise duly attested by two witnesses exclusive of such person. (Laws of 1911, p. 538.) Where the subscribing witnesses are dead, secondary evidence of the execution is admissible. The will is proved after notice to heirs and legatees in the county (or probate) court, and may be contested, in chancery, within one year after its probate. Wills or authenticated copies, affecting estates within this State, duly proved outside of this State, in accordance with the law of the State where executed, accompanied with a certificate of the proper officer of that fact, may be recorded here, and such wills, duly exemplified, will be admitted in evidence without record in this State. (52 Ill. 98; 236 Ill. 207.) The Uniform Foreign Probate Act is in force in Illinois. Wills executed and published out of this State may be admitted to probate in any county in this State where the testator had lands or personal property upon like proof as if executed and published here, whether or not the will has been first probated in another State or county. Appeals may be taken from the order of the county court allowing or disallowing any will to probate to the circuit court, by any person interested, and trial had de novo. All original wills, after being filed, must remain in the office of the county (or probate) court. Children may be disinherited. There is no limitation (excepting surviving wife's or husband's right to dower and one third of personal estate) to charitable bequests.

INDIANA LAWS.

Messrs. Miller, Dailey & Thompson, of Indianapolis.

The next legislature convenes January, 1919.

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — A civil action is commenced by filing a complaint in the office of the clerk and causing summons to issue thereon; and the action is deemed commenced from the time of issuing the summons, or, if publication be made, from the time of the first publication.

The distinction between actions at law and suits in equity, and the forms of each, are abolished. There is but one form of action for the enforcement of private rights and redress of private wrongs, denominated by the Code a civil action. Every action must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest, except in suits by an executor, administrator, guardian of an idiot or lunatic, trustee of an express trust, or person expressly authorized by statute, who need not join with them the person for whom the action is prosecuted. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 249-252, 1747.) See Service.

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Affidavits. — When any affidavit is taken in another State, and certified by the officer or justice of the peace taking the same, under his hand and seal of office, if he have any such seal, and attested by the clerk of the circuit or district court, or court of common pleas of the county where such officer exercises the duties of his office, under the hand of the clerk and the seal of his court, the clerk also certifying that the officer or justice of the peace is, by the laws of said State, duly empowered to administer oaths and affirmations and take affidavits, every such affidavit shall be deemed sufficiently authenticated, and may be received and used in any of the courts of this State. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 498.)

Commissioners appointed by the governor in any other State, Territory, or foreign country have power, by statute, to take depositions and affidavits, to be used in any courts of this State, when attested by the official seal of such commissioner, without further attestation. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 9544.)

Certificates or instruments, either printed or written, purporting to be the official act of a notary public of any other State or Territory, and purporting to be under the seal and signature of such notary, shall be received as presumptive evidence of the official character of such instrument, and of the facts therein set forth, and need no further attestation (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 476.)

Aliens. — Natural persons who are aliens, whether they reside in the United States or any foreign country, may acquire, hold, and convey real estate in the same manner as citizens of this State, except that lands in excess of three hundred and twenty acres acquired by aliens after March 6, 1905, shall escheat to the State unless conveyed before the end of five years from the acquisition thereof. (Acts 1905, p. 410; Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 3943.) Other aliens may take by devise, descent, or by proceeding for collection of debt or enforcement of claim or lien; but such aliens shall not hold real estate thus acquired longer than five years. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 3940-3942.)

Appeals. — May be taken from circuit or superior courts to the supreme court or to the appellate court (for jurisdiction of supreme court and appellate court, see Court Calendar for Indiana), by either party, from all final judgments, except in actions originating before a justice of the peace or mayor of a city, where the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest and costs, does not exceed fifty dollars, though in such case, where the action involves the validity of an ordinance passed by an incorporated town or city or the constitutionality of a statute, an appeal may be taken. The party obtaining judgment shall not take an appeal after receiving any money paid or collected thereon. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 671.) Appeals may be taken to the supreme court from interlocutory orders for the payment of money, to compel the execution of any instrument of writing, or the delivery or assignment of any securities, evidences of debt, documents, or things in action, for the delivery of the possession of real property, or the sale thereof, appointing or refusing to appoint receivers, granting or dissolving or overruling motions to dissolve temporary injunctions and orders upon writs of habeas corpus. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 1392.)

Appeals in all cases should be taken within one hundred and eighty days from the time judgment is rendered. Where an appellant is under legal disabilities at the time the judgment is rendered, he may have his appeal at any time within one hundred and eighty days after the disability is removed. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 672.)

Any party may appeal from the judgment of any justice of the peace to the circuit court of the county within thirty days from the rendition thereof; or, if prevented from appealing by circumstances not under the party's control, the appeal may after thirty days be authorized by the circuit court. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 1790, 1794.)

The superior courts have concurrent appellate jurisdiction with circuit courts, except in certain counties where appellate jurisdiction is limited to civil cases. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 1472.)

Arrest. — A defendant in a civil action may be arrested and held to bail in the sum of the plaintiff's claim with the costs of the action, at any time before judgment, after an undertaking to cover damages has been filed, on affidavit of the plaintiff, his agent or attorney, showing the plaintiff's right to recover, and that he believes the defendant is about to leave the State, taking with him property subject to execution, or money or effects which should go to satisfy plaintiff's claim, with intent to defraud the plaintiff. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 901 et seq.)

Ne exeat. — Actions may be commenced in any county where defendant may be found, upon any agreement in writing before the time for the performance of the contract expires, on affidavit of the plaintiff or his agent, filed with the clerk of the proper court, that defendant is about to leave the State without performing or making provision for the performance of the contract, taking with him moneys, credits, or effects subject to execution, with intent to defraud plaintiff. (See Attachment.) When a bond has been filed by plaintiff to cover all damages and costs to defendant, an order of arrest and bail may issue. Recognizance of special bail, or security for the performance of the contract to the satisfaction of the court, may be taken, as the court shall order; else a commitment follows. The proceedings may be prosecuted by a surety or any person jointly bound. Justices of the peace may issue writs of ne exeat for claims to the extent of their civil jurisdiction. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 1235-1242.)

Assignments. — Except as affected by the National Bankruptcy Act, the following statute respecting assignments is in force.

Our assignment law does not change the rule allowing a debtor in failing circumstances to make an actual bona fide sale of his property and apply the proceeds in payment of his debts, or any portion of them. (23 Ind. 290.) The act "providing for voluntary assignments for the benefit of creditors," etc., in force in Indiana, took effect August 6, 1859. Its provisions as modified to date are briefly, as follows: Any failing debtor may make a general assignment of all his property, in trust, for the benefit of all his bona fide creditors. He may select his trustee, unless said trustee is opposed by fifty per cent. of the creditors; in which case, upon petition of such creditors, the circuit or superior court of the county in which the assignor resides appoints a suitable disinterested person to act as trustee. Such assignments must be by indenture, duly signed and acknowledged, and recorded, within ten days, in the recorder's office of the county where assignor lives. The indenture must describe all real estate, and be accompanied with a schedule enumerating all personalty assigned, verified by oath, with the statement that nothing has been withheld or transferred for his own use or the benefit of any other person, and no judgment been confessed, or debt acknowledged, to defraud or delay creditors. Within fifteen days a copy of the indenture and schedule must be filed in the clerk's office by the trustee, who, before acting, must qualify by oath, show the probable value of the property delivered to him, and file a bond in double the value thereof, and if he fails therein the court may remove him and appoint another. After qualifying he must give proper public notice of his appointment. Within thirty days he must file a complete inventory of all property that has come to his hands or of which he has knowledge, and from time to time additional inventories, if need be. In twenty days after filing inventory he must file appraisement made by two reputable householders. If the assignor be a resident householder of this State, or a resident married woman, the appraisers set off to him or her six hundred dollars' worth of real or personal property, as he or she may elect. Preferences are not allowed in the deed of assignment, but are often made almost contemporaneously by other instruments, and if in good faith are valid.

The trustee must proceed at once to collect the credits of the assignor, and, after thirty days' notice, to sell his personalty for cash, or on credit of not exceeding twelve months (which credit may be extended to not exceeding two years by order of court for cause shown), at auction. But the court may, for cause shown, order private sale upon short notice, if deemed best, and fix the terms thereof, or may extend the time for selling. The court has supervisory power over the entire estate, and may at any time make all necessary orders for the interest of the creditors before sale, or, upon proper showing, order a resale. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 3316.)

Report, under oath, is required of the trustee within six months, showing cash on hand, claims presented, those allowed and disallowed. The latter are docketed and set down for trial as other causes. Where there are liens on assigned property it may be sold subject thereto, or the court may order them paid, if for the benefit of creditors, from the general fund. Holders of liens must first exhaust them, and may only claim dividend pro rata on the residue.

After the first report, if there be no contested claims, the court may order the trustee to pay to the clerk the money in his hands for pro rata distribution, deducting fees and allowances to trustee.

Any creditor, or the trustee, by verified petition, may obtain an order of court for the examination of the assignor or any person, corporation, or association to whom a fraudulent transfer is believed to have been made; and the assignor may be compelled to answer all questions concerning the management of his business and affairs for the six months previous to his assignment, and shall be compelled to produce all books, papers, and accounts in reference to his business for the six months last preceding his assignment.

Claimants must make oath that their claims are just and no part thereof for usury, or, if so, state what part. The trustee may compromise debts due the assignor, if for the general interest. After one year, or at the next succeeding term thereafter, the trustee must file his final report, unless for cause the court shall grant further time. The court may, for cause, remove a trustee at any time, and in such case, or on death or resignation, appoint a successor. An appeal to the supreme court, in favor of any party, lies as in other civil causes. Clerk's fees are the same as in other actions; appraiser's fees, one dollar per diem; trustee's compensation is fixed by the court, — all payable out of the general fund. Surviving partners may make assignment. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 3306-3328.)

The statute makes no provision for the release of the assignor.

An assignment under our law does not affect any levy or lien under execution, mortgage, judgment, or attachment previous to the assignment.

Attachment. — In actions for the recovery of money, process of attachment may be had at the commencement of the action by a resident or a non-resident plaintiff, or at any time afterward, against the property of a defendant, where defendant is a foreign corporation or a non-resident, is leaving or has left the State with intent to defraud creditors, conceals himself so that summons cannot be served on him, is removing his property from the State, or has disposed or is about to dispose of property with fraudulent intent. After the filing of a proper affidavit and an undertaking, payable to defendant, to prosecute the attachment proceeding and pay damages wrongfully sustained, with surety to the approval of county clerk, the clerk issues the writ of attachment. Attachment proceedings are only auxiliary to a suit. Personalty is first attached, then real estate if necessary. After the property of a defendant is attached, any other creditors may file their affidavit and bond, enter complaint, and prove their claims as parties to the action, at any time before final judgment in the suit. If judgment be rendered in attachment and the property sold, the money realized from sale and garnishees, after paying costs and expenses, is, under direction of the court, paid to the several creditors pro rata on the amount of their claims as adjusted. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 947 et seq., and § 978 et seq.)

The wages of laborers are an exception to the general rule of attachment above given. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 993, 994.) It is a misdemeanor to send or cause to be sent out of the State any debt to be collected by proceedings in attachment, garnishment, or other mesne process, when the creditor, debtor, and person or corporation owing for the earnings intended to be reached are each and all within the jurisdiction of the courts of this State, or to assign such debt to be so collected outside of the State. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 2668, 2669.)

The courts in this State have no jurisdiction in any action of attachment, garnishment, or supplementary proceedings, when plaintiff and the principal defendant are both non-residents of this State and the money sought to be reached by such attachment, etc., is the personal earnings or wages due or owing to the principal defendant from any person or corporation doing business in this State. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 993.)

Affidavits to procure process of attachment, garnishment, ne credat, replevin, and the like must contain the statutory facts, and may be made by the party or his agent or any other person in his behalf. There are no special provisions for attorneys making affidavits in behalf of their clients.

Attachments cannot issue upon claims not due except where the defendant has left or is secretly leaving the State, is removing property necessary to secure plaintiff out of the State, or has or is about to dispose of property with intent to defraud his creditors. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 947.)

Subsequent attaching creditors share pro rata with first attaching creditors. Attaching creditors are liable in damages assessed at the discretion of the jury if it shall appear that the proceedings were wrongful or oppressive.

Where personal property is in the possession of an officer by virtue of a writ of attachment or execution and a third party brings an action to replevy the same, such officer may demand of the attachment or execution plaintiff an indemnifying bond against loss for attorney's fees or judgment for damages and costs, and after five days in default thereof may deliver the property to the replevin plaintiff.

Chattel Mortgages. — Under the statute, every sale of goods in possession or under control of the vendor, unless accompanied by immediate delivery and followed by actual change of possession, is presumed to be fraudulent and void as against creditors of the vendor or subsequent purchasers in good faith, unless it be made to appear that such sale was made without intent to defraud such creditors and purchasers. If there be not an actual, visible, continuous change of possession, the transaction is prima facie fraudulent. Chattel mortgages are made, in this State, in the usual form of an absolute bill of sale, with a defeating clause and stipulation as to possession by vendor. They must be acknowledged, and recorded in the recorder's office of the county where the mortgagor resides, if a resident of this State, and, if not a resident, then in the county where the property is situated, within ten days after execution thereof, or they will not be valid against any other person than the parties thereto, unless possession of the mortgaged property is delivered to and retained by the mortgagee. Every such mortgage is held to be recorded from the time it is left at the recorder's office for that purpose. A clause empowering the mortgagee to take possession of the mortgaged chattels at will, either before or after default in condition, is usually inserted, on which the mortgagee may obtain replevin. There is no statutory form for chattel mortgages. No witnesses are necessary. For officer before whom acknowledged, see Deeds.

A stipulation in a chattel mortgage, to the effect that it shall cover after-acquired property of the mortgagor, does not render the mortgage invalid on its face, but is ineffectual without more, to vest in the mortgagee a title to such after-acquired property. It seems, however, that such a stipulation, followed by possession of the mortgagee, before the rights of others attach, would be effectual to vest the mortgagee with both a legal and equitable right to after-acquired property. (Fisher v. Syfers, 109 Ind. 514.)

Suits for possession of mortgaged chattels may be brought at any time after condition broken. No formal suit for foreclosure is required. On condition broken, the right to possess the mortgaged property is in the mortgagee, but the equity of redemption of the mortgagor can be extinguished only by a public sale after proper notice, or by a judicial sale on foreclosure proceedings. Chattel mortgages may be discharged of record in the same manner as those on realty. They are not required to be renewed. When silent as to possession, the mortgagee is entitled to immediate possession upon execution of the mortgage. (Broadhead v. McKay, 46 Ind. 595.)

It is a misdemeanor for any mortgagor of chattels, during the existence of the lien, to sell or transfer to any person, without informing him of the lien, or to remove out of the county, without the written consent of the mortgagee, any of the property covered by the mortgage, or to secrete or convert the same. Chattel mortgages on household goods must be foreclosed by judicial proceedings, and the mortgagee is not entitled to possession unless the mortgage so provide. A form of receipt prescribed by statute must be given for payments or such mortgage is void (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 8638.)

Claims against the Estates of Deceased Persons. — All claims against the estates of deceased persons are required to be filed in the clerk's office of the circuit court of the proper county (or the probate court in counties having a probate court) within one year from the date of notice of his appointment, given by the executor or administrator, or no costs can be recovered. After the expiration of a year, if claims be not filed within thirty days before final settlement of the estate they are barred, except that heirs, devisees, and distributees are liable to the extent of the property received by them to parties who six months prior to the settlement of the estate were insane, infants, or out of the State; but suit must be brought within one year after the disability is removed, except that, as to creditors out of the State, it must be brought within two years after settlement of the estate. No special form is required in stating claims. The statute requires a succinct statement of the claim, whether due or not, to be filed, with all credits and deductions to which the estate is entitled, and a proper affidavit that the claim is just, due, and wholly unpaid. Statements of claims founded on a written instrument alleged to have been executed by the decedent must be accompanied with such instrument or a full copy thereof. And when a claim is secured by a lien, such lien shall be specifically set forth, with reference to where the lien, if of record, will be found. No proceedings to enforce any lien against a decedent's estate are allowed during the first year of administration, nor at the end of the year if the executor or administrator shall apply for a stay of such proceedings and shall be diligently prosecuting his proceedings to sell the real estate necessary to discharge such liens; except where before the end of the year real estate has been sold subject to such liens, and except in cases of mortgages and judgments in favor of the State. The clerk enters upon the claim docket each claim as filed. When a claim has been filed more than thirty days before the first Monday of January, March, May, July, September, and November of each year, the executor or administrator shall allow or disallow such claim in writing on the margin of the claim and allowance docket opposite such claim. If not allowed, the claim is at once transferred to the issue docket and stands for issue and trial as other causes where return day has passed. Likewise should an executor or administrator fail or refuse to either allow or disallow a claim after it has been filed for more than sixty days it is transferred to the issue docket, and if the court allows such claim in full on final hearing, costs are taxed against the executor or administrator as an individual. If an executor or administrator offers to allow a claim in part, the claimant desiring to accept the offer in full settlement shall indicate his acceptance on the docket. If claim is not allowed in full or the offer to allow in part is not accepted, the claim is transferred to issue docket for trial, and if claimant fails to recover more than amount offered, he shall be liable for costs occasioned after offer. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 2837.) The executor or administrator may not pay any claim against the estate unless the same is adjusted and allowed or adjudged by the court. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 2828, et seq.)

If an estate be settled as insolvent, the expenses of administration; of funeral; of last sickness; taxes accrued upon the real and personal estate of the deceased at his death, and taxes assessed upon the personal estate during the course of administration; debts secured by liens, created by decedent and continuing in force, except where the real estate has been sold subject to the lien, the lien-holder having accepted purchaser's bond as provided by statute; a sum not exceeding fifty dollars due any employee as wages for work and labor for decedent within two months prior to decedent's death; general debts; legacies; shall be paid in the order above given. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 2901.)

Persons sending claims against estates should see that they are properly itemized, and that the necessary affidavit is also sent. The following persons are entitled to letters of administration in the order below named, in case they apply for the same within twenty days after the death of the intestate and at the time of the application possess the qualifications required for all executors and administrators, viz., being more than twenty-one years old, never having been convicted of a felony, and having, in the opinion of the court, physical and mental competency for the position: 1. The widow or widower. 2. The next of kin (males being preferred to females, the whole blood to the half blood, and unmarried to married women). 3. The largest creditor residing in the State (the court deciding between two creditors of equal amount). If none of said persons so apply, the court appoints a competent inhabitant of the county. It seems that a widow or widower or a person who is next of kin, upon proper application and being otherwise competent, may be appointed as administrator, though a non-resident. An administrator must give bond, with resident freehold sureties to be approved by the court, in an amount not less than double the value of the personal estate. The removal of any administrator from the State, after his appointment and qualifying, shall authorize the court to remove him.

The widow is entitled to receive during settlement, not exceeding five hundred dollars, in articles selected by her at their appraised value or in cash, in preference to all persons except those having specific liens on the property, whether the estate is solvent or insolvent; and is also entitled to occupy, with her minor children, the family dwelling-house with the messuage and fields adjoining, not exceeding forty acres, free of rent, for one year after the death of the husband.

There is nothing in the statute which prohibits a resident of another State, named in a will as executor, who files bond with sufficient resident freehold sureties, from taking out letters testamentary and discharging the trust. A foreign executor on producing his letters is entitled to letters in any county of this State wherein his testator's estate has assets, in preference to all other persons except creditors, legatees, and heirs of the deceased, entitled to distribution, who are inhabitants of this State. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 2746.)

A surviving partner is required, within sixty days from the death of the copartner, to make inventory of the firm property, and cause the same to be appraised by two freeholders of the neighborhood, one of them selected by the surviving partner or partners, and one by the clerk of the court, who shall file a complete schedule of said property in the clerk's office of the court of probate, properly sworn to, and that the property is appraised at its true cash value. A full list of all liabilities of the firm, verified by affidavit, is also required to be filed with said schedule and appraisement. Within ten days thereafter the surviving partner is required to file bond in a sum double the interest of the deceased as shown by the inventory, etc., and to make final report to the court on settlement of the copartnership business, and pay over the surplus belonging to the deceased partner into court. Failure to file bond, etc., authorizes the court to appoint a receiver to close the partnership business, or the same may be done on proof of improper conduct, waste of assets, etc., on petition of any person interested therein. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 9712-9719.)

Claims, Proof of. — See Proof of Claims.

Conditional Sales. — See Chattel Mortgages; Sales

Consignments. — A storage, forwarding, or commission merchant, carrier, warehouseman, factor, auctioneer, or his clerk, agent, or employee, who, with intent to defraud, sells or in any way disposes of, or applies or converts to his own use any bill of lading, custom-house permit, or warehouse receipt, intrusted to or possessed by him, or any property intrusted or consigned to him, or the proceeds or profits of any sale of such property, or fraudulently fails to pay over such proceeds, deducting charges and usual commissions; and a consignor of any property or his agent, not being the absolute owner thereof, who, with intent to defraud, after delivery thereof for transportation on any wharf-boat, water-craft, or vehicle, in any way stops, countermands, or changes the consignment thereof, or sells, disposes of, or incumbers such property during transit or after the delivery thereof, or in any way converts the same to his own use, — is guilty of embezzlement, and upon conviction thereof shall be imprisoned in the state prison not more than five years nor less than one year, fined in any sum not more than one hundred dollars, and disfranchised and rendered incapable of holding any office of trust or profit for any determinate period. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 2289.)

There is no right of arrest on civil process merely because the defendant sustains a fiduciary relation to the plaintiff.

Corporations. — By the Constitution of Indiana, which went into effect November 1, 1851 (art. XI, § 13), "Corporations other than banking shall not be created by special act, but may be formed under general laws." General laws exist, under which nearly every species of corporation may be organized by filing articles with the county recorder and with the secretary of state. A voluntary association must also file copies of its articles of association, constitution, and by-laws with the auditor of state, who has supervision of such companies.

The fee for filing with the secretary of state the articles of incorporation, or a certified copy or a duplicate thereof, of any corporation whose capital stock is ten thousand dollars or under, is ten dollars; for a corporation whose capital stock is over ten thousand dollars, one tenth of one per cent. upon the authorized capital stock of such association. There is no annual state tax on corporations as such.

The statutes providing for the organization of different classes of corporations do not specify what amount of capital stock shall be paid in at the time of organization: except those relating to banks, in which fifty per cent. must be paid in at organization; live stock insurance companies in which one hundred thousand dollars must be paid in at organization; loan, trust and deposit companies, in which the whole of its capital stock, where the same does not exceed one hundred thousand dollars must be paid in at organization; bonding or surety companies, in which two hundred thousand dollars must be paid in at organization; accident or casualty insurance companies, in which three hundred thousand dollars must be paid in at organization; and mortgage guarantee companies, in which the whole capital stock, where it does not exceed one hundred thousand dollars, must be subscribed and paid.

The number of directors varies from three to twenty-one, according to class of corporation. There is no requirement as to residence of directors, except in telephone companies, mortgage guarantee and loan, trust, and safe deposit companies, where a majority must be residents of the State, in telegraph companies, where all directors must reside in this State or at some point in any of the adjoining States where any of said companies shall have a telegraph station, and in public utilities as defined below, organized under laws of this State, in which every executive and general officer and a majority of the directors shall be residents and citizens of Indiana.

Street and interurban railways, telegraph and telephone, heat, light, water, power, elevator, and warehouse companies are subject to control and regulation of the Public Service Commission. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 10052a et seq.)

Natural gas companies are organized under the voluntary association act. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 4304.) Liability of stockholders same as in manufacturing and mining companies. Stockholders in manufacturing and mining companies are liable only for the amount of stock subscribed by them, "provided that such stockholders shall be individually liable for all debts due and owing laborers, servants, apprentices, and employees for services rendered such corporations." (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 5105.)

Any stockholder in a corporation created prior to November 9, 1851, is liable in an amount equal to the amount of his stock at the time the debts were contracted, after the assets of the corporation are exhausted, provided that the directors, with the assent of the stockholders, may increase this liability to any amount not exceeding three times the amount of stock held by each stockholder. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 5170.)

As a general rule there is no individual liability on the part of stockholders in corporations.

Individual liability attaches to electric telegraph companies, steam-packet and navigation companies, street railroad companies, ordinary railroad companies (for labor done in construction), private banking associations, loan, trust, and safe deposit companies, bonding and surety companies, mortgage guarantee companies, and accident and casualty insurance companies.

Stockholders in banking, loan and deposit, bonding and surety, telegraph, accident and casualty insurance companies, are individually liable to double the amount of stock held.

Issuing checks or other paper by corporations, companies, or persons (not commercial paper with eight per cent. interest payable at a fixed date at full face value in lawful money of the United States), in payment for labor, is a misdemeanor subject to a penalty of not more than one hundred dollars. Such corporations, companies, or persons shall not sell to employees merchandise or supplies at a higher price than they sell to others for cash under a penalty of not less than five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars. Payment of wages must be made in lawful money of the United States or by check upon a solvent bank payable upon demand at its face value. A failure to pay employees after demand adds to the wages due a penalty of one dollar per day for each succeeding day, not exceeding double amount of wages due, together with attorney's fees, to be recoverable in a civil action and collectible without relief. This does not affect laborers' liens. Corporations and partnerships are forbidden to blacklist discharged employees, and for so doing are liable for compensatory and exemplary damages. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 7981-7994.)

Every foreign corporation organized for pecuniary profit, except railroad and telegraph companies organized prior to March 9, 1907, and building and loan, surety and insurance companies, must maintain a public business office in Indiana; and must designate a representative in Indiana on whom service of process may be had. Such corporations are subject to all the liabilities, restrictions, and duties imposed upon domestic corporations of like character, and have no greater powers. Every such corporation, before being permitted to do business in Indiana, must make application to secretary of state on prescribed form, signed and sworn to by president and secretary, stating what business such corporation proposes to pursue in Indiana under its articles of incorporation; the amount of capital stock of such corporation; whether it is transacting or it is intended that it shall transact business in any other State, Territory, or country; the proportion of its business, based upon its total business for the year immediately preceding, carried on in the State of Indiana; or if a newly organized corporation, then the proportion, as nearly as can be determined by estimate, to be transacted in Indiana; the amount paid in upon its capital stock; what property and assets and an estimate of the value thereof to be employed in the business of said corporation in the State of Indiana; if any of its capital stock has not been paid in what disposition is to be made thereof; the names of the president, secretary, and directors of said corporation, and their residences; where its principal office in Indiana will be located, and the name and address of some agent or attorney in fact upon whom service of process can be had in all suits commenced in this State, and must file copy of its charter, articles, or certificate of incorporation, certified and authenticated by officer who issued original or recorder or registrar of office in which original was recorded, and must pay into the office of the secretary of state, upon the proportion of its stock represented by its property and business in Indiana incorporation fees upon the first ten thousand dollars or under of capital stock, twenty-five dollars, and in excess of ten thousand dollars, one tenth of one per cent. additional on excess. The secretary of state shall then issue a certificate authorizing such corporation to do business in Indiana. Until this law is complied with, demands of a foreign corporation, whether arising out of contract or tort, cannot be enforced in the courts of Indiana; and such corporation is subject to a fine of not less than one thousand dollars. An annual report is required to be made within thirty days after first day of January.

It shall not be lawful for any foreign corporation to transact business in this State until it has filed with the auditor of state a certified copy of a vote or resolution of its board of directors, consenting that service of process in any action against it may be served upon the auditor of state of Indiana, and agreeing that any process so served shall be of the same legal force and validity as if served upon such corporation, and agreeing that such service may be made with such effect, while any liability remains outstanding in this State against such corporation.

Whenever any foreign corporation has no officer or agent within this State upon whom service of process can be made, and an affidavit of such fact is filed with the clerk of the court in which suit is pending against such corporation, such clerk shall cause process to be served upon the auditor of state by duplicate copy, and he shall immediately notify the corporation by registered letter addressed to its secretary, president, or any officer previously designated by it, in which letter there shall be inclosed a copy of such process. The plaintiff in such action shall pay to the auditor of state the sum of two dollars at the time of service, as a fee which may be recovered by plaintiff as a part of taxable costs if he prevails in such suit. Any service so made upon the auditor of state shall be returnable in not less than thirty days and shall be of the same legal force and validity as if served upon the corporation itself. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 4100a, 4100b.)

Subject to the foregoing provisions, corporations organized under the laws of another State may hold title to such real estate in Indiana as may be necessary for the proper carrying on of its legitimate business. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 4091.) For alien corporations, see Aliens.

Foreign corporations engaged in selling their stocks, shares, or memberships on the installment plan must comply with specific provisions as to statements, deposits, and fees. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 4963-4975.)

There are special statutes requiring agents of foreign insurance companies to procure an annual license to transact business from the auditor of state and to file written authority and consent to be sued. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 4790-4811; 4663; 4669; 4733.)

Process may be served on any officer or agent of either a domestic or foreign corporation, or upon any person authorized to transact business in the name of such corporation, who may be found within the State of Indiana. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 319.)

Corporations report property for taxation to local assessors between March 1 and May 15, as do individuals, adding certain information as to capital stock and other matters required by various statutes. See Tax Law.

For method of dissolution of private corporation, see Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 4084a-4084d; 4324-4327; 5065-5068.

Private corporations organized under laws of this State are required annually, within sixty days after first day of June, to file a sworn report with secretary of state, showing name, location, capital stock, term of existence, names and addresses of officers and directors, and date of annual meeting of stockholders. Act does not apply to railroads, street or interurban railroads, banks, trust and insurance companies, building and loan associations, nor to religious, charitable, or benevolent corporations, nor corporations organized without capital stock and not for pecuniary profit. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 4080-4084.)

Courts, Jurisdiction and Terms of. — See Court Calendar for Indiana.

Deeds. — All conveyances of land or of any interest therein, except bona fide leases for a term not exceeding three years, must be by deed in writing, subscribed and duly acknowledged by the grantor or his attorney, empowered by a like instrument. The joint deed of husband and wife is necessary to pass the lands of the wife, but does not bind wife to any of the covenants unless it be her separate property. The husband alone may convey his lands, subject, however, to the wife's inchoate rights therein. The wife cannot convey her separate lands unless the husband joins in the deed. Where the husband or wife is insane the courts upon proper proceedings may authorize the other to convey the whole title.

After January 1, 1914, every conveyance or mortgage of lands or of any interest therein, and every lease for more than three years, shall be recorded in the recorder's office of the county where such lands shall be situated; and every conveyance, mortgage, or lease shall take priority according to the time of the filing thereof, and shall be fraudulent and void as against any subsequent purchaser, lessee, or mortgagee in good faith and for a valuable consideration, having his deed, mortgage, or lease first recorded. (Acts 1913, p. 233.) The post-office address of the grantee should appear on all deeds. (Acts 1913, p. 845.) To enable deeds and mortgages to be recorded, they must be acknowledged or proved according to the rules of the common law. Such acknowledgment or proof is made, in this or any other State in the United States, before a judge or clerk of a court of record, justice of the peace, auditor, recorder, notary public, mayor of a city (who must reside in the county or city where such acknowledgment is taken), town clerk, or commissioner or member of the general assembly of this State. Every notary public of Indiana must have a seal indicating his official character, and notarial acts not attested by such seal are void. Justices of the peace must also have a seal. A county surveyor is authorized to have a seal and to take and certify acknowledgments of deeds and mortgages. An acknowledgment made in another State, attested by the official seal of the officer, is sufficient without a certificate of the officer's authority, but unless the acknowledgment is so attested, a certificate must be attached to the acknowledgment, made by the clerk of some court of record in the county in which the officer resides, and such certificate must be attested by the seal of the court. The county clerk certifies official character of officers taking acknowledgments.

Conveyances, and other instruments intended to be recorded, executed in a foreign country, "shall be acknowledged by the grantor or person executing the same, or proved before any diplomatic or consular officer of the United States duly accredited, or before any officer of such country who, by the laws thereof is authorized to take acknowledgments or proof of conveyances; and if such acknowledgment or proof is in the English language, and attested by the official seal of such officer, it shall be sufficient to admit such instrument to record; but if in some other language, or not attested by such official seal, then such instrument must be accompanied by a certificate of an officer of the United States, as aforesaid, to the effect that it is duly executed according to the laws of such foreign country; that the officer certifying to the acknowledgment or proof had legal authority so to do, and the meaning of his certificate, if the same is made in a foreign language." Acknowledgment is important to admit a deed to record, but is not essential to its validity. A certificate of acknowledgment may be written on or attached to a deed. Attesting witnesses are not required. A married woman need make no different acknowledgment than if single; nor need she be examined separate and apart from her husband. A married woman under twenty-one years of age may join her husband in a conveyance of his lands. See Married Women.

A seal or scroll is not requisite to the validity of a deed or any other instrument of writing made by natural persons. Corporations must use the corporate seal in conveying, but no special form is required other than that for natural persons. The deed should be made in the name of the corporation, which should be signed thereto by the president or chief officer, and the seal of the corporation properly attached.

There is no statutory form of acknowledgment prescribed for corporations, but such acknowledgment may be made in substantially the following form: —

STATE OF INDIANA, } ss.
COUNTY OF

Be it remembered that on the day of 19 before the undersigned, a in and for the county and State aforesaid, personally appeared president of the Company and acknowledged the execution of the foregoing instrument on behalf of said company as the voluntary act and deed of said company for the uses and purposes therein set forth.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal the day and year first above written. (Signature and title.)

The statutory form for deeds is very short. Any conveyance of lands may be worded substantially as follows: "A. B. conveys and warrants to C. D. (here describe premises) for the sum of (insert consideration):" which being dated and duly signed and acknowledged by the grantor, is declared by statute to be a deed in fee simple to the grantee, his heirs and assigns, with covenant from the grantor for himself, his heirs and representatives, that he is lawfully seized of the premises, has good right to convey the same, guaranties quiet possession thereof; that the same are free from all incumbrances, and that he will warrant and defend the title to the same against all lawful claims. The substitution of the word "quitclaims" for "conveys and warrants" makes a sufficient deed in quitclaim to the grantee, his heirs and assigns. The words "heirs and assigns" are not necessary to create in the grantee an estate of inheritance. If it be the intention to convey a lesser estate it must be so expressed in the deed.

[Certificate of Acknowledgment by Husband and Wife.]

Be it remembered that on this 2d day of January, A. D. 19 before me (here insert name and title in full of the official taking the acknowledgment), duly commissioned and qualified, personally appeared George H. Mosher and Mary Mosher, his wife, the grantors in the foregoing deed, and severally acknowledged the execution of the same.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my official seal the day and year aforesaid.

Depositions — Are taken in other States without a commission; out of the United States, are taken under a commission issued by the clerk of the court where the cause is pending, directed to the officer designated to take depositions. Notice must be served upon adverse party, and reasonable time given to reach the place of taking the deposition by the ordinary facilities of travel, excluding the day of service of notice, intervening Sundays and the day of taking.

Instructions and Forms for taking and certifying Depositions. — Depositions of witnesses, taken within or without the State, may be taken according to the regulations hereinafter provided, before any judge, justice of the peace, notary public, mayor or recorder of a city, town clerk, clerk of a court of record, or a commissioner appointed by the court to take depositions. But depositions shall not be taken before any person being of kin to either party, or interested in the action. A clerk in the office of an attorney for one of the parties cannot act either as notary or stenographer. (Knickerbocker Ice Co. v. Gray, 165 Ind. 140.)

Commissioners appointed by the governor in any other State, Territory, or foreign country are authorized to take depositions.

Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 439. "In all actions depositions may be taken by either party, in vacation or term time, at any time after service of summons, without order of court therefor. They may be used on trial of all issues, in any action, in the following cases: First, where the witness does not reside in the county, or in a county adjoining the one in which the trial is to be held, or is absent from the State. Second, where the deponent is so aged, infirm, or sick as not to be able to attend the court, or other place of trial, or is dead. Third, where the depositions have been taken by the agreement of parties, or by order of the court trying the cause. Fourth, where the deponent is a state or county officer, or a judge, or a practicing physician, or attorney at law, and the trial is to be had in any county in which the deponent does not reside. In either of the foregoing cases the attendance of the witness cannot be enforced. Fifth, when notice is given fixing the time of taking any deposition on a day in term time, the court may, if in session, or the judge thereof in vacation, on notice given by the adverse party of the time and place of hearing the motion, fix another day for such taking, and the court, on hearing of such motion, may fix the time for such taking, from which there shall be no appeal."

The directions of the statutes as to the mode of taking depositions are as follows (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 444-447): —

§ 444. "The deponent shall first be sworn by the officer to testify the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, relating to the cause or matter for which the deposition is to be taken; and he shall then be examined by the party producing him, and then by the adverse party, and by the officers or parties afterwards, if they see cause.

§ 445. "The deposition shall be written down by the officer, or by the deponent, or by some disinterested person in the presence and under the direction of the officer, and after the same has been carefully read to or by the deponent it shall be subscribed by him.

§ 446. "The officer shall annex a certificate to the deposition stating the following facts: First. That the deponent was sworn according to law. Second. By whom the deposition was written, and if written by the deponent, or by some disinterested person, that it was written in the presence and under the direction of the officer. Third. Whether or not the adverse party attended. Fourth. The time and place of taking the deposition, and the hours between which the same was taken, and the officer shall sign and attest the certificate, and seal the same, if he have a seal of office.

§ 447. "The officer taking the deposition shall seal up the same in a sufficient paper envelope, and direct the same to the clerk of the court in which the action is pending, indorsing on the envelope the names of the parties and the witnesses whose depositions are inclosed."

Depositions may be taken by a stenographer, if he be an officer authorized to take depositions, and afterwards written out by him in longhand or typewriting, and if then read to or by deponent and signed by him they will be valid.

Cross-examination in the same manner. Re-examination if required.

[Certificate.]

COUNTY OF {
I, a within and for said county, hereby certify that the above (here set out the names of the witness or witnesses) (was or were) by me first duly sworn according to law, to testify the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth relating to said cause, that (his or their) deposition was reduced to writing by me (by said deponent, or by A. B., a disinterested person, in my presence and under my directions, as the case may be), that I am not in the employ of or related to either party to said action, nor of or to the attorneys in said cause; that the said (adverse party) attended in person (or by C. D., his or their attorney, or was not present, as the case may be), and said deposition taken at in county of State of on the day of 19 between the hours of A. M. and P. M. of said day.
In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this day of 19 .

If the officer have no seal, and his name is not mentioned in the commission, he must procure the authentication of his certificate by the certificate and seal of the clerk or prothonotary of any court of record of the county in which the officer exercises the duties of his office.

The deposition must then be sealed in an envelope, and be indorsed with the names of all the parties and witnesses, and directed thus: —

E. F. vs. G. H. {
Depositions of I. J., K. L. } To clerk of the court, county, Indiana.

All adjournments must follow the terms of the notice, which usually states that the party taking the depositions "will, if necessary, continue said taking from day to day until said depositions are completed." Under a notice so providing for adjournments from day to day, an adjournment may be taken, on a day on which no testimony is taken, to the next day, if the failure to take testimony is caused by the unavoidable absence of a witness intended to be examined. The officer taking the deposition should certify to the fact of adjournment, stating the time to which adjournment is had, at the point in the taking of the depositions at which the adjournment occurs, and it is better (though not necessary) that he should in such certificate state the reasons for adjournment.

Descent and Distribution. — No concise synopsis of the statute of descents can be clearly given. All questions of descent should be referred to an attorney of the State, familiar with the law and the adjudications of the courts thereon. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 2990-3055.)

Tax on Inheritances and other Transfers. — A tax is imposed "upon any transfer of property, real, personal, or mixed, or any interest therein or income therefrom in trust or otherwise, to any person, association, or corporation except county, town, or municipal corporations for strictly county, town, municipal purposes, or to the bishop, rector, pastor, trustee, board of trustees, or governing body of any educational or religious institution, who shall use the property so transferred solely for religious, charitable, or educational purposes within the State, and corporations of this State organized under its laws solely for religious, charitable, or educational purposes, which shall use the property so transferred exclusively for the purposes of their organization within the State, in the following cases: 1. When the transfer is by will or by the intestate laws of this State of any intangible property, or of tangible property within the State, from any person dying seized or possessed thereof while a resident of the State. 2. When the transfer is by will or intestate law, of tangible property within the State, and the decedent was a non-resident of the State at the time of his death. 3. Whenever the property of a resident decedent, or the property of a non-resident decedent within this State, transferred by will, is not specifically bequeathed or devised, such property shall, for the purposes of this article, be deemed to be transferred proportionally to and divided pro rata among all the general legatees and devisees named in said decedent's will, including all transfers under a residuary clause of such will. 4. When the transfer is of intangible property or of tangible property within the State made by a resident, or of tangible property within the State made by a non-resident, by deed, grant, bargain, sale, or gift made in contemplation of the death of the grantor, vendor, or donor, and intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment at or after such death. Provided, that any conveyance, gift, or transfer made within two years of the death of any decedent, without consideration, save and except love and affection, shall be conclusively presumed to have been made in contemplation of death. 5. When any such person or corporation becomes beneficially entitled, in possession or expectancy, to any property or the income thereof, by any such transfer, whether made before or after the passage of this act. 6. Whenever any person or corporation shall exercise a power of appointment derived from any disposition of property made either before or after the passage of this act, such appointment when made shall be deemed a transfer taxable under the provisions of this act in the same manner as though the property to which such appointment relates belonged absolutely to the donee of such power and had been bequeathed or devised by such donee by will. 7. The tax so imposed shall be upon the market value of such property, at the rates hereinafter prescribed, and only upon the excess of the exemptions hereinafter granted.

"When the property or any beneficial interest therein passes by any such transfer where the amount of the property shall exceed in value the exemption hereinafter specified and shall not exceed in value twenty-five thousand dollars, the tax hereby imposed shall be: 1. Where the person or persons entitled to any beneficial interest in such property shall be the husband, wife, lineal issue, lineal ancestor of the decedent, or any child adopted as such in conformity with the laws of this State at least ten years prior to such transfer, or any child to whom such decedent for not less than ten years prior to such transfer stood in the mutually acknowledged relation of a parent, provided, however, such relationship began at or before the child's fifteenth birthday, and was continuous for said ten years thereafter, or any lineal issue of such adopted or mutually acknowledged child, at the rate of one per centum of the clear market value of such interest in such property. 2. Where the person or persons entitled to any beneficial interest in such property shall be the brother or sister or a descendant of a brother or sister of the decedent, a wife or a widow of a son, or the husband of a daughter of the decedent, at the rate of one and one half per centum of the clear market value of such interest in such property. 3. Where the person or persons entitled to any beneficial interest in such property shall be the brother or sister of the father or mother of a descendant of a brother or sister of the father or mother of the decedent, at the rate of three per centum of the clear market value of such interest in such property. 4. Where the person or persons entitled to any beneficial interest in such property shall be the brother or sister of the grandfather or grandmother of a descendant of the brother or sister of the grandfather or grandmother of the decedent, at the rate of four per centum of the clear market value of such interest in such property. 5. Where the person or persons entitled to any beneficial interest in such property shall be in any other degree of collateral consanguinity than is hereinbefore stated, or shall be a stranger in blood to the decedent, or shall be a body politic or corporate, at the rate of five per centum of the clear market value of such interest in such property.

"The foregoing rates are for convenience termed the primary rates. When the amount of the clear market value of such property or interest to which any such person becomes beneficially entitled exceeds twenty-five thousand dollars, the rates of tax upon such excess shall be as follows: 1. Upon all in excess of twenty-five thousand dollars and up to fifty thousand dollars, one and one half times the primary rates. 2. Upon all in excess of fifty thousand dollars and up to one hundred thousand dollars, two times the primary rates. 3. Upon all in excess of one hundred thousand dollars and up to five hundred thousand dollars, two and one half times the primary rates. 4. Upon all in excess of five hundred thousand dollars, three times the primary rates."

The following exemptions to be taken out of the first twenty-five thousand dollars of each beneficial interest in the estate, are allowed: Property transferred for religious, charitable, or educational purposes within the State; property of the clear market value of ten thousand dollars to the widow of decedent and two thousand dollars to each of the other persons described in first subdivision above; five hundred dollars to each of those described in the second subdivision; two hundred and fifty dollars to each of those in the third subdivision; one hundred and fifty dollars to each of those in the fourth subdivision; and one hundred dollars to each of those in the fifth subdivision.

The tax is payable to the treasurer of the county. In counties of less than one hundred thousand population, the county assessor is the inheritance tax appraiser; in counties of more than one hundred thousand, the Governor appoints that officer. The Circuit Court or court of the county having probate jurisdiction, determines the amount and has jurisdiction of inheritance taxes. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 10143a-10143b, 1; Acts 1915, p. 504.)

Divorce. — An absolute divorce may be decreed by the superior or circuit court upon the application of the injured party, for the following causes, and no other: 1st, adultery (except as below); 2d, impotency existing at time of marriage; 3d, abandonment for two years; 4th, cruel and inhuman treatment of either party by the other; 5th, habitual drunkenness of either party; 6th, failure of the husband to make reasonable provision for his family for a period of two years; 7th, the conviction, subsequent to the marriage, in any country, of either party, of an infamous crime. When adultery is the alleged cause, the courts are prohibited from granting a divorce if the adultery is the result of connivance or consent of the parties; if there has been voluntary cohabitation after knowledge of the fact; if there has been a lapse of two years after discovery before filing the petition; or if the party charging adultery has been guilty of the same offense. No petition may be filed except by a person who has been a bona fide resident of the State for two years, and of the county at the time of, and for at least six months immediately preceding, the filing of such petition; which residence shall be duly proven by such petitioner to the satisfaction of the court trying the same, by at least two witnesses who are resident freeholders and householders of the State. The plaintiff shall, with his petition, file an affidavit duly sworn and subscribed, stating the time he has been a resident of the State, with the place, town, city, or township he has resided in for the previous two years, and also stating occupation. The plaintiff may require an answer under oath to his petition. No decree, however, can be rendered on default without proof. The wife may petition in her own name. The wife may have her maiden name restored in an action for divorce. If it appear by the affidavit of a disinterested person, or return of the sheriff, that the defendant is not a resident of the State, the clerk may give notice of the pendency of the suit, by publication, for three successive weeks, in a weekly newspaper of general circulation published in the county. When notice is given by publication, before the same is given the plaintiff shall file affidavit with the clerk, stating therein the residence of defendant, if it be known to plaintiff, or, if unknown, shall so state. In case the residence is stated, the clerk is required to forward by mail to defendant a number of the paper containing the notice, with the notice marked. If proof be made of such publication thirty days before the first day of the term, or defendant be served with process ten days before the first day of the term, the case stands for trial, but such trial shall not be had within sixty days of the filing of the suit. Whenever a petition for divorce remains undefended, it is the duty of the prosecuting attorney to resist such petition. Parties against whom a judgment of divorce shall hereafter be rendered, without other notice than publication in a newspaper, may, at any time within two years after the rendition of such judgment, have the same opened and be allowed to defend as well on the granting of the divorce as in relation to the allowance of alimony and the disposition of property; and until the expiration of said two years it shall not be lawful for the party obtaining such divorce to marry again, which shall be stated in the decree of the court. It may be opened at any time, so far as relates to the care, support, and custody of the children. All marriages prohibited by law on account of consanguinity, affinity, difference of color, or where either party thereto has a former wife or husband living, if solemnized within this State, are void without any legal proceedings, but the issue of a marriage, void on account of consanguinity, affinity, or difference of color, shall be deemed to be legitimate. When either of the parties to a marriage void, because a former marriage exists undissolved, shall have contracted such marriage in the reasonable belief that such disability did not exist, the issue of such marriage begotten before the discovery of such disability by such innocent party shall be deemed legitimate. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 1059-1090.)

A separation from bed and board for a limited time may be decreed by the superior and circuit courts for the following reasons: (a) Adultery, if it is not the result of connivance or consent of the parties and plaintiff is not guilty of the same offense; (b) desertion, or where the wife is plaintiff, neglect or refusal to suitably provide for her, covering a period of six months; (c) habitual cruelty of one party towards the other, or such constant strife of both parties as render their living together intolerable; (d) habitual drunkenness of either party, or the confirmed excessive use of morphine, cocaine, or any other drug; (e) gross and wanton neglect of conjugal duty of either party, covering a period of six months. Upon decreeing a temporary separation, the court may grant alimony and make such further decree from time to time as it deems just and expedient, or revise or alter prior decrees concerning the estate and maintenance of the parties and the care, custody, and maintenance of the children; may decree that the guilty party shall temporarily forfeit all right to participate in the property and income of the other, and may authorize the sale of property belonging to either party without the other party joining in the conveyance, though the rights of either party in the property so sold shall not be less than the rights now provided by law where sales are made on execution.

Obtaining a temporary separation is not a bar to a suit for absolute divorce. The practice and proceedings are the same as in cases of absolute divorce. Cohabitation during the time for which separation is decreed is a misdemeanor punishable by fine and imprisonment. (Burns' R. S. 1914, §§ 1091-1095.)

Dower. — As at common law is abolished in this State. As to the rights of widow in the estate of her deceased husband, see Married Women; also for inchoate rights of same.

Estates of Deceased Persons. — See Claims against the Estates of Deceased Persons.

Evidence. — See Testimony.

Executions. — See Judgments.

Exemptions. — Every resident householder, or resident married woman, may claim as exempt from execution against them respectively his or her property, real or personal, to the amount of six hundred dollars, on any debt founded on contract made since May 31 1879. This right exists while in transitu from one residence to another within the State and may be claimed by the wife for the husband in his absence.

The property of a resident householder, exempt from sale on execution, may be real or personal, or both. It must be properly appraised under direction of the officer, after receiving from the debtor a sworn schedule of all his property, credits, effects, etc. The statute makes ample provision for the sale of real property where it is alone, or in part, claimed under the exemption law, in case its value exceeds six hundred dollars. The exemption does not affect liens for labor, purchase-money, or realty, or taxes in any event.

There is no homestead exemption in the ordinary sense of the term. See Attachment, Garnishment.

In cases of voluntary assignment the statutory exemption of three hundred dollars is enlarged, by implication, to six hundred. (O'Neil v. Beck, 69 Ind. 239.)

Garnishment. — If at the time an order of attachment issues, or at any time before or afterwards, the plaintiff, or other person in his behalf, shall file with the clerk an affidavit that he has good reason to believe that any person named has property of the defendant in his possession or under his control, which the sheriff cannot attach by virtue of such order; or that he is indebted to the defendant, or has control or agency of any money, property, credits, or effects; or that defendant has any shares or interest in the stock of any association or corporation, the clerk shall issue a summons to such person, corporation, or association, to appear and answer as garnishee in the action. From the service of summons the garnishee is accountable to plaintiff for the money, property, etc., in his hands, or due to defendant. If the summons issues before attachment the affidavit must show some one of the causes authorizing attachment. The garnishee is required to furnish the sheriff, with five days after service, a certificate of the property, etc., of defendant in his hands or due to him, to be returned with the summons. If he fails or refuses, the court may require him to appear and be examined under oath, or proceed against him on default to judgment. If it appear by affidavit that a garnishee is about to abscond before judgment can be had, an order of arrest may issue and he be held to special bail. Return of "No property found" on an order of attachment does not affect the proceedings against the garnishee. He may, before judgment against the defendant, by delivery of all the defendant's property in his possession to the sheriff, or payment of all money due him to the sheriff, or into court, discharge himself from the suit without costs, and from all liability to the defendant for the money or property so paid or delivered, not exceeding the plaintiff's claim.

Clerks of the circuit courts, sheriffs, justices of the peace, constables, and all other officers who may collect money by virtue of their office, executors, administrators, guardians, and trustees, are subject to garnishment as other persons.

The wages of all householders in the employ of any person or corporation are exempt from garnishment and proceedings supplemental to execution, in the hands of the employer, so long as the employee remains in such employment, not exceeding twenty-five dollars at any one time, and the employee is allowed no other exemption as against garnishment. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 994.) Applies to householders in other jurisdictions. Resident householders still have six hundred dollars exemption. (Pomeroy v. Beach, 143 Ind. 511.)

Inheritance Taxes. — See Descent and Distribution.

Insolvent Laws. — See Assignments.

Interest. — The legal rate of interest is six per cent.; but any other rate, not exceeding eight per cent., may be provided for by written agreement. All interest over eight per cent. is usurious and illegal as to the excess above eight per cent. only. Judgments on contracts rendered after May 31, 1879, bear same rate of interest (not exceeding six per cent.) as the contracts on which they are rendered. Sureties on notes, bonds, etc., may recover of the principal, on suit, the same rate of interest as originally provided for in such notes, etc., and the judgments shall bear the same rate, not exceeding ten per cent. On redemption of real property from sale under execution, eight per cent. interest is allowed the purchaser on amount of purchase-money.

Interest is collectible on ordinary open accounts after unreasonable delay in payment. It attaches on settlement of accounts, from the day the balance shall have been agreed upon. It is allowed upon money had and received to the use of another, and retained without the owner's consent, also on money loaned or due and withheld by unreasonable delay of payment.

In an action on contract where usury is pleaded and tender is made before suit of principal with six per cent. interest, the defendant shall recover costs; and whenever the usurious interest shall have been paid or reserved before suit, the excess over legal interest may be recouped by the debtor.

The statute applies to contracts made within the State, although they are to be performed without the State; and when a contract shall be made without the State, and a greater rate of interest than is allowed by statute shall be directly or indirectly contracted for, and a mortgage shall be executed to secure the performance of the contract on lands in the State, such lands shall not be liable for a higher rate of interest than is allowed by statute.

Interest on the public funds loaned by the State is fixed at eight per cent.

Interest may be taken yearly, or for any shorter period, in advance. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 7950-7957.)

Judgments. — Judgments of supreme, appellate, circuit, and superior courts are a lien upon all real estate and chattels real of defendant liable to execution in the county where the judgment is rendered, for the space of ten years. A transcript of the judgment of any court of record may be filed in another county, and from the time of filing becomes a lien on the real estate of the judgment debtor in that county. An order of attachment binds the defendant's property in the county where issued, and becomes a lien from the time of delivery to the sheriff. See Attachment. Goods in the hand of a consignee are subject to a lien for any debt due from the consignor. Executions are a lien on personal property within the jurisdiction of the officer from the time of delivery, but if there be several executions, in the hands of different officers, the first levy has the preference, and devests all liens created by prior delivery. Judgments on bonds payable to the State become a lien on the real estate of the debtor from the commencement of the action.

If no defense is made, judgment may be rendered, on default and proof, on the day for which the cause is set, either in a court of record or a justice's court. In the latter court in such case judgment may be rendered in three days from the service of process, and in circuit court in ten days thereafter. See Proof of Claims; Service.

Every recognisance binds the real estate of the principal from the time it is taken, but that of the surety only from the time judgment of forfeiture is taken; those taken by justices in criminal cases become a lien from the time of filing in circuit or criminal courts. An execution to another county from that in which judgment is rendered is a lien only from time of levy.

Any person interested may file a certified copy of any judgment of the United States district court for the district of Indiana with the clerk of the circuit court of any county, and when filed the clerk must enter it in the judgment docket of the circuit court of the county. The statute declares that such judgment shall have the same effect, as a lien on real estate, as though rendered in the circuit court of the county.

Judgments or other records of the several courts of record, of or within the United States or Territories, are admitted in the courts within this State as evidence, by attestation or certificate of the clerk or prothonotary and the seal of the court annexed, together with the seal of the chief justice or one or more of the judges or the presiding magistrate of any such court, that the attestation is in due form of law; and the records and judicial proceedings, authenticated as aforesaid, have full faith and credit given to them in any court within the State, as by law or usage they have in the courts whence taken.

Justices' judgments, and those of city courts become a lien on real estate from the time of filing transcript in the circuit court.

Executions may issue at any time within ten years after rendition of the judgment; after that period leave of court must be obtained, upon notice and motion.

Executions from a court of record may issue at any time after rendition (unless stayed on the record), and are returnable in one hundred and eighty days. On judgments rendered on delivery bonds no stay is permitted, and execution is returnable in thirty days.

Execution on judgments of justices of the peace may issue, where the party appeared, in four days from rendition; and on judgments by default, in ten days thereafter. In cases of judgments by confession, or those commenced by capias, or when affidavit is filed showing that delay will endanger the collection, execution may issue immediately; all executions are returnable in six months.

Executions from a court of record may issue to any county in the State.

Property sold on execution, except where otherwise provided by law, must be sold for at least two thirds its appraised value. When notes or other instruments or contracts in writing contain the clause, "without relief from valuation or appraisement laws," the property of the judgment debtor is sold on execution for what it will bring.

License. — Commercial travelers are not required to procure a license before doing business in this State. Some municipalities have passed ordinances intended to reach them, but they have been held unconstitutional when tested. (126 Ind. 471.) Peddlers must have a license. Transient merchants are required to obtain a license from the auditor of the county where they desire to do business. License fee varies according to population. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 8235-8243.) Employment agencies and agents of Indiana life insurance companies must have license. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 7131a, 4714b.)

Liens. — Contractors, sub-contractors, laborers, mechanics, journeymen, and all persons performing labor or furnishing material or machinery for erecting, altering, repairing, or removing any structure, have a lien on said structure, and on the real estate upon which the structure is situated, for their pay, jointly or severally, by filing in the recorder's office, within sixty days after the time the labor was performed, or material or machinery furnished, notice of the intention to hold the lien, said notice being accompanied by an itemized description of the claim and a description of the real estate upon which the structure stands. Any person holding such lien may enforce the same by filing his complaint in the circuit or superior court within a year from the time of filing notice with recorder. All wage claims of mechanics and laborers relating to work done in or about any shop, mill, store room, or manufactory are to be regarded as first liens upon all available stock, tools, finished work, etc. When the lien relates to real estate upon which any structure is located, it includes the whole portion of ground and not only that particular part upon which the structure actually stands, "to the extent of all the right, title, and interest owned therein by the owner thereof, for whose immediate use or benefit such labor was done or material furnished." Persons furnishing material or labor to a contractor need not notify owner that such labor or material has been furnished.

All classes of laborers and mechanics performing work upon, or furnishing material for, the construction of a railroad or part thereof in the State shall have a lien to the extent of work done or material furnished, or both, upon the right of way and franchises of such railroad corporation, and upon all appurtenances to said railroad. In case the work is done or material furnished under contract with an agent, lessee, or sub-contractor, notice of lien to the corporation is not necessary beyond the filing of notice with recorder of intention to hold the lien. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 8278-8315.)

The lien relates to the time when the work or repairs commenced and has priority over any subsequent claims only, and of some other kind. The statute gives a lien on all boats and water-craft of every description, for debts contracted for supplies, wages, repairs, equipments, etc. A mortgage for purchase-money has preference over a prior judgment against the purchaser. Mechanics and tradesmen have a lien on goods left for alteration or repair, livery-men and feeders on stock left with them, blacksmiths and repairers of vehicles or animals shod or vehicles repaired, forwarding and commission merchants on goods in storage, all regulated by statute. Attorneys have a lien for their fees on all judgments taken by them, upon entering notice upon the docket or order book at time of taking. Companies for the construction of levees, dikes, drains, and ditches have a lien on lands affected thereby for benefits assessed. Laborers and persons furnishing material in the construction of a drain have a lien upon the fund obtained by assessment. Contractors performing labor and furnishing materials for any railroad company whose road is not in operation have a lien on grading, excavation, bridges, trestle-work, etc., constructed or furnished by them.

Keepers of hotels, boarding-houses, restaurants, and the like have a lien upon the baggage or other articles of value belonging to the boarder or lodger and being in the house to the extent of board bill. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 7848-7850.)

When a tenant agrees to pay as rent a part of the crop raised on leased premises, or rent in kind, or a cash rent, the landlord shall have a lien on the crop raised under such contract for the payment of such rent. The tenant, after notice in writing to the landlord or his agent, may remove and dispose of his own part of the crop, where the rent is payable in a share thereof, and, if payable in cash, not more than one half thereof. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §8070.)

Employees of corporations have a lien on corporate property and the earnings thereof for work and labor done, from date of employment, which is prior to any and all liens created subsequent to such date, unless such latter shall remain a matter of record for sixty days, during which no lien by any employee shall have been acquired. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 8288.)

Laborers and employees of individuals or corporations have a lien for labor performed during six months preceding the seizure of the property of such individuals or corporations on any mesne or final process, to an amount not exceeding fifty dollars to each employee; they are made preferred creditors, to be first paid in full, and, if not sufficient to do this, then pro rata. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 7976.) Employees shall include traveling salesmen, traveling agents and manufacturers' agents, whether they are employed under monthly or yearly contracts or otherwise.

Every person engaged in storing or furnishing supplies for or repairing automobiles, motor trucks, or motor bicycles, or maintaining automobile garages, has a lien on such automobiles, motor trucks, or motor bicycles for storage, repair, and supply charges, enforceable with attorneys' fees by foreclosure within one year. Notice of intention to hold lien must be filed in recorder's office within sixty days.

A public record, styled the "Lis Pendens Record," is ordered to be kept in the clerk's office in each county, wherein notices of the commencement of certain suits to enforce liens are required to be recorded by plaintiffs, or defendants on cross-complaints, and the sheriff on certain seizures of real estate by attachment or execution. Cases to enforce "any lien upon, right to, or interest in any real estate, upon any claim not founded upon an instrument executed by the party having the legal title to such real estate, as appears from the proper records of the county, and recorded as by law required, or not founded upon a judgment of record in the county wherein such real estate is situated, against the party having legal title thereto as appears from such proper record," fall within the provisions of the act. All seizures by the sheriff upon any real estate, or any interest therein, by virtue of any attachment, or levy by virtue of any execution issued to him from any court other than the court of the county of which he is sheriff, and all orders of court affecting the disposition of real estate, are also required to be recorded in the "Lis Pendens Record." If such record is not made, the bringing of such suits does not operate as constructive notice, etc. Provision is made for the recording of the dismissal, satisfaction, etc., of such liens on said record.

Limitations. — Actions for injuries to person or character, on indentures of apprenticeship, and for penalty or forfeiture by statute, must be commenced within two years; against a public officer or his sureties, within five years; for the recovery of real property sold on execution sale, brought by the execution debtor, his heirs, or any person claiming under him, by title acquired subsequent to the date of the judgment, within ten years after the sale; for the recovery of real property sold by executors, etc., on a judgment directing such sale, by a party to the judgment, his heirs, or any person claiming under him, subsequent to the date of the judgment, within five years after confirmation of sale; upon promissory notes, bills of exchange, and other written contracts for the payment of money, within ten years; on written contracts other than those for the payment of money, and on judgments of courts of record, and for recovering possession of real estate, within twenty years; on accounts and contracts not in writing, for use, rents, and profits of real property, for injuries to property, and for the recovery of personal property and damages for the detention thereof for relief against frauds, and for money collected by public officer, within six years. All actions not specially limited by statute shall be brought within fifteen years after the cause of action shall have accrued. Persons under legal disability may bring their actions within two years after such disability is removed. Set-off or payment may be pleaded, notwithstanding the same is barred by statute. When a cause of action is barred by the statute of the State where the defendant resided at date of contract, the lex loci contractus shall govern the limitation. An acknowledgment or new promise, in order to operate as a new or continuing contract, must be in writing, signed by the party to be charged.

The time of non-residence, or absence from the State on public business, of the defendant, which may occur during the period of limitation fixed by the statute, must be added to that period.

In addition to the general provision barring actions on "judgments of a court of record," after twenty years, the statute contains the following: "Every judgment and decree of any court of record of the United States, or of this or any other State, shall be deemed satisfied after the expiration of twenty years."

No action shall be brought or maintained to foreclose or enforce the lien of any mortgage on real estate in this State, and such lien shall cease and expire when the last installment of the debt secured by such mortgage, as shown by the record thereof, has been due more than twenty years. And if the record does not show when the debt became due, then the limitation shall run from the date of mortgage. Similar provision is made for limitation of the action to enforce mechanics' liens after one year, and to enforce the liens of assessments for streets, sewers, sidewalks, ditches, or other public improvements after five years. In case an action has been begun to foreclose or enforce either of the foregoing described liens before the expiration thereof, such lien may be enforced as it existed at the time the action was commenced, notwithstanding the foregoing provisions. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 308a-308g.)

The statute does not bar the husband from joining with and suing for the use of the wife, at any time during coverture, in any action which would survive to her after removal of her disability. When a person entitled to bring a suit, or liable to any action, dies before the expiration of the time limited for the commencement of the action, it shall survive to or against his representatives, and may be brought, after the time limited, within eighteen months after his death. Where an action abates or is defeated by death, or any cause other than negligence in prosecution, or judgment be arrested or reversed on appeal, a new action may be brought within five years after such determination, and be deemed a continuation of the first. In an action brought to recover a balance due upon a mutual, open, and current account between the parties, the cause of action shall be deemed to have accrued from the date of the last item proved in the account on either side. Where, however, the items of account are all on one side, there being none on the other except credits of payments, the supreme court holds, in Prenatt v. Runyon, 12 Ind. 174, that the account is not "mutual, open, and current," within the meaning of the statute. To take a case out of the statute, by part payment, it must be voluntary, made on account of the debt for which the action is brought, and under circumstances such as are consistent with an intention to pay the balance.

Married Women. — A married woman may sue and defend alone where the action concerns her separate property, or where the action is between herself and husband. See Testimony. The wife may claim the benefit of the exemption law for her husband in his absence. She may qualify as an executrix with the consent in writing of her husband filed by him with the clerk. Marriage after having been appointed an administratrix does not cause her removal if her husband consents. Married women may make wills as if single.

A married woman holds her real and personal property and all profits therefrom absolutely as her separate property, and they are not liable for the debts of her husband, but she cannot alien or incumber her real estate nor enter into any executory contract therefor unless her husband joins in the conveyance or contract, but may sell her personalty without his consent. The separate deed of the husband conveys no interest in his wife's land. The courts may authorize her to sell and convey her own real estate in case of abandonment by her husband, or his confinement in the penitentiary, or his insanity, and to make any contracts. Tenancies by the curtesy and dower are abolished.

The rights of a widow against her husband's creditors are as follows: To five hundred dollars in goods or money, and to one third of his real estate in fee, if the real estate does not exceed in value ten thousand dollars; one fourth if it exceeds ten thousand dollars and does not exceed twenty thousand dollars; and one fifth if it exceeds twenty thousand dollars.

The rights of a widow against children and the husband's relatives are as follows: To five hundred dollars in goods or money, and in addition thereto the following: If two or more children survive the husband, the wife takes one third of the real and personal estate absolutely; if one child survives, the widow takes one half absolutely; provided, however, that if all the children surviving are children by a former wife, the children are the "forced heirs" of the widow, i. e. the widow cannot alienate her interest so as to prevent these children from inheriting it from her; and provided, further, that real estate descending to a widow is rendered inalienable during her life by her remarrying while any of the children or descendants of the marriage by which she received the real estate are living, unless the children or the descendants, when of full age, join in the deed. If no children survive the husband, and either or both of the husband's parents survive him, the widow takes three fourths of the real and personal estate if the whole exceeds in value one thousand dollars; if of less value than one thousand dollars, she takes the whole. If there are no children, and neither of the husband's parents survive him, the widow takes the whole property absolutely. A widow may elect to take under her husband's will or the law. The election should be made within one year after will has been admitted to probate. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 3045, 3047.) Alienage of the wife does not affect her rights if the husband is a citizen, or if he be an alien authorized to hold lands. The wife's interest is saved from reversion in the absence of heirs, where an estate is given to the husband in consideration of love and affection. A widow may occupy the dwelling and forty acres of land of her deceased husband free of rent for one year.

By the act of 1881 all the legal disabilities of married women to make contracts are abolished, except as therein otherwise provided.

A married woman may sell, barter, exchange, and convey her separate personal property as if sole; may carry on any trade, business, or service on her separate account, and her earnings and profits therein are her sole and separate property; may enter into any contract in reference to her separate personal estate, trade, business, or service, and the management and improvement of her separate real property; and her separate estate, real and personal, shall be liable therefor on execution or other judicial process. A married woman is bound by the covenants of title in deeds of conveyance of her separate real property. She may maintain an action in her own name for any injury to her person or character, and money recovered therefor to be her separate property, her husband in such case not to be liable for costs. She is alone liable for any materials furnished or improvements made on her separate realty by her husband, if she consents thereto in writing. A husband is not liable for any debts contracted by the wife in carrying on any trade or business on her own account.

A married woman who is a resident of this State is entitled to the same exemption of property from seizure and sale for her separate debt or liability as are householders, that is, to the amount of six hundred dollars.

A married woman cannot enter into any contract of suretyship, whether as indorser, guarantor, or in any other manner, and such contract as to her shall be void. She is liable for torts, and is bound by an estoppel in pais.

A woman becomes of age on her twenty-first birthday, for all legal acts. She may marry at sixteen, however, and may, as a minor, join her husband in conveying his own real estate during her minority, and may, as a minor, convey her separate estate, the judge of the circuit court consenting thereto, and her husband joining therein. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 3977, 3978.) She is relieved from guardianship on marriage at any age to a person of full age. She is eligible to any office election to which is vested in the general assembly, or appointment in the governor; also to act as shorthand reporter in the county courts, and to any office under the general or special school laws, upon possessing the same qualifications prescribed for men.

In judicial sales of real property, on judgments rendered subsequent to the taking effect of the act of the legislature of 1875, in which any married woman has an inchoate interest by virtue of her marriage, and where that interest is not directed by the judgment to be sold or barred by virtue of such sale, such interest shall become absolute and vest in the wife, in the same manner and to the same extent as such inchoate interests of married women now become absolute upon the death of the husband, whenever, by virtue of such sale, the legal title of the husband in and to such property shall become absolute and vested in the purchaser thereof, his heirs or assigns. When such inchoate right shall become vested by the provisions of the act, such wife shall have the right to immediate possession thereof, and may have partition without payment of rent. The act does not apply to the excess beyond twenty thousand dollars in any sale or sales in the aggregate of the husband's property. Property vested in the wife, under this act, in case of her death during the marriage, through which it was acquired, shall descend to the surviving husband; and in case of the wife's death, during a second or subsequent marriage, to the children, if any, of the marriage through which it was acquired. Property in which any married woman holds such inchoate interest, liable to be sold with benefit of appraisement laws, must bring four ninths of the appraised value. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 3052-3055.)

No assignment of his wages or salary by a married man who shall be the head of the family, residing in this State, shall be valid or enforceable without the consent of his wife, evidenced, by her signature to said assignment, executed and acknowledged before a notary public, or other officer empowered to take acknowledgments. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 7999.)

Mechanics' Liens. — See Liens.

Mortgages. — Mortgages on real estate are executed, acknowledged, and recorded in the same manner as deeds, with the exception that in case of a mortgage for purchase-money the wife need not join. Mortgages take priority according to the time of filing thereof. The mortgage should show on its face that it is given for the purchase-money, when the wife does not join. A mortgage given by a purchaser to secure purchase-money has preference over a prior judgment against the purchaser. Unless a mortgage specially provides that the mortgagee shall have possession of the mortgaged premises, he is not entitled to the same. There must be an express covenant in a mortgage for the payment of the sum intended to be secured to enable the mortgagee to maintain an action for the recovery of such sum; and where there is no express covenant and no separate bond or note given to secure such payment, the remedy is confined to the lands mentioned in the mortgage. Promissory notes for the amount secured by a mortgage usually accompany it. In such case judgment is rendered against any other property of mortgagor after exhausting that described in mortgage. No power of sale in any mortgage or instrument operating as or having the legal effect of a mortgage will authorize the mortgagee to sell the mortgaged premises, but every such sale must be made under judicial proceeding. Assignments of mortgages must, under certain penalties, be acknowledged and recorded in the same manner as the original mortgage, and "after such entry is made of record, the mortgagor and all other persons shall be bound thereby, and the same shall be deemed a public record." (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 1145-1149.)

Mortgages may be foreclosed on any breach of condition, but may not be while another action for the same debt is pending, nor may the debt be sued on while the foreclosure suit is pending. A mortgage may be foreclosed on any default, and if the property is not divisible, judgment may be rendered for the whole debt secured, both for the amount due and the installments subsequently to fall due, rebating interest. If the amount already due is paid before sale, the execution is stayed until the next installment is due. If that is not paid, execution issues, and the whole property is sold, and the excess, if any, returned to the execution defendant. When a mortgage debt is due in installments and foreclosure is had, the court will order the premises sold in parcels, if divisible. The statutory form for mortgages on real estate is very brief. The words "mortgage and warrant," with description of the premises and the notes, etc., secured, dated, signed, and acknowledged by mortgagor, is a good mortgage, with warranty of perfect title in grantor, and against all previous incumbrancers. The omission of the words "and warrant" makes a good mortgage, but without warranty.

The following is the statutory form of a mortgage of lands: —

This indenture witnesseth, that _____ of _____ county, in the State of _____ mortgage and warrant to _____ of _____ county, in the State of _____ the following real estate in _____ county, in the State of Indiana, to wit: _____ to secure the payment, when _____ become due, of _____ and the mortgagor expressly agree to pay the sum of money above secured, without relief from valuation laws.

In witness whereof, the mortgagor has hereunto set _____ hand and seal this _____ day of _____ 19 _____ (Signature.) [Seal.]

When the money secured by a mortgage on lands, which has been recorded, has been paid, the mortgagee shall, at request of the mortgagor, enter satisfaction on the margin or other proper place in the record, which entry of satisfaction shall be attested by the recorder or his deputy, and shall then operate as a complete release and discharge of said mortgage; or the mortgagor may take a certificate thereof duly acknowledged by the mortgagee, or his lawful agent, as required by law for the acknowledgment of conveyances, which certificate and acknowledgment, when duly recorded in the office where the original mortgage is of record, operates as a discharge and release of the mortgage and bar to all actions thereon. An executor or administrator may release and discharge of record any mortgage on payment of the mortgage debt by the mortgagor. The seal of a corporation need not be attached to its release of a mortgage, judgment, or other lien made upon the margin or face of the record of the lien; but should be attached where the release is made by a separate instrument. On payment and satisfaction of any judgment rendered for all the debt on foreclosure, by the courts, of a mortgage, the clerk shall immediately enter satisfaction of the mortgage on the records of the recorder's office, if the same shall have been recorded. Failure to release a mortgage which has been satisfied subjects the mortgagee to a penalty of twenty-five dollars and attorneys' fees.

The wife of a mortgagee need not join in the release or satisfaction of a mortgage. See Corporations ; Interest.

Notaries Public. — A notary public is appointed and commissioned by the governor, upon certificate of qualification and moral character from the judge of the circuit court of his county. He takes an oath of office before the clerk of the circuit court of his county and files with him a bond with freehold security to the approval of the clerk in the penalty of one thousand dollars. He holds office for four years. Jurisdiction of a notary public is coextensive with the State; but he cannot be compelled to act out of the county in which he resides. A notary must use in all official acts a seal such as will stamp upon paper a distinct impression in words or letters sufficiently indicating his official character, and must append to all certificates a statement of the date of expiration of his commission. The county clerk certifies the official character of a notary.

Notes and Bills of Exchange. — A general law known as the Uniform Negotiable Instruments Act is in force. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 9089a-9089n, 7.) All bills of exchange, bank checks, promissory notes, and other negotiable instruments shall be payable at the time fixed therein, without grace. When the day of maturity falls upon Sunday, or a legal holiday, the instrument shall be payable on the next succeeding business day. Negotiable instruments falling due on Saturday shall be presented for payment on the next succeeding business day, except that instruments payable on demand may, at the option of the holder, be presented for payment before twelve o'clock noon on Saturday when that entire day is not a holiday. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 9088; 9089g, 3.)

Legal Holidays. — Sundays, New Year's Day, Christmas Day, the 4th of July, Lincoln's Birthday, Washington's Birthday, Memorial Day, Labor Day (first Monday in September), Discovery Day (October 12), any day appointed or recommended by the president of the United States or the governor of the State as a day of public fast or thanksgiving, and the day of any general, national, or state election, are declared by Acts 1913, p. 759, to be legal holidays within the State.

The holder of any note or bill of exchange negotiable by the law merchant, or by the law of this State, may institute one suit against the whole or any number of the parties liable to such holder, but not more than one suit thereon at the same term. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 9085.)

"Any action brought by the assignee of a claim, arising out of a contract, whether assigned in writing or by delivery, shall be commenced in the county where one or more of the parties immediately liable to judgment and execution reside, and not elsewhere." (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 315.)

The courts have held that a clause in a promissory note promising to pay a certain per centum attorneys' fees unconditionally, as "and five per cent. attorneys' fees," is valid; and in a suit upon such note the judgment must include such percentage.

All notes and bills should contain the clause, "without relief from valuation or appraisement laws." (See Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 9071 et seq., and § 9089a et seq., as to promissory notes and bills of exchange generally.)

The following form is in use: —

§ 19 . after date _____ promise to pay to the order of _____ at _____ dollars, for value received, with interest at eight per cent. per annum after maturity, without any relief from valuation or appraisement laws. The drawers and indorsers, severally, waive presentment for payment, protest, and notice of protest or non-payment of this note. Due

Also the following form: —

§ Indianapolis, Ind., 19 . after date I promise to pay to the order of
A. B. dollars, with interest at the rate of eight per cent. per annum from for value received, without any relief from valuation or appraisement laws. C. D.

Also the following form: —

§ Indianapolis, Ind., 19 . after date I promise to pay to the order of
A. B. dollars, with interest at eight per cent. per annum after date and ten per cent. attorneys' fees, without any relief from valuation or appraisement laws, for value received.

A statute makes all receipts issued by any warehouseman (as provided in the act) negotiable and transferable by indorsement in blank, or special indorsement, and with like liability as bills of exchange, and with like remedy thereon. But the issue or sale of warehouse receipts for goods stored in any other State is prohibited unless issued by the warehouseman operating the warehouse.

Persons, firms, or corporations dealing in grain and desiring to sell, transfer, assign, pledge, or hypothecate the same by issuing elevator or warehouse receipts or certificates are required to file with the recorder of deeds of the county where the grain is stored a declaration setting forth the name and residence of such person, firm, or corporation, and an accurate description of the warehouse and its location, which declaration must be acknowledged. Such person, firm, or corporation may transfer title to grain in such warehouse by signing certificates or warehouse receipts, which shall state that the foregoing requirement has been complied with, with the book and page where the declaration is recorded, the name and address of the party issuing it, to whom issued, place where grain is stored, date of issuance, and quantity and kind of grain transferred. A complete record of every such receipt must, under heavy penalty for failure, be kept in a well-bound book, which shall be open to the inspection of every person holding such receipt, his agent or attorney. Any person convicted of wrongfully altering or willfully destroying such book shall be fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or imprisoned not exceeding one year. A warehouseman issuing a receipt for grain which is not in the warehouse or issuing a second receipt for grain, for which a former receipt is outstanding, shall be fined not exceeding one thousand dollars and imprisoned not exceeding five years. A warehouseman is not permitted to remove grain for which a receipt has been issued and is held by another person. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, §§ 10513-10517.)

Practice. — Forms of action are abolished by the Code.

Proof of Claims. — Parties residing out of the State are not required to make oath to accounts or claims of any kind as a prerequisite to suit against any living person or corporation. In actions upon accounts, however, in which an itemized bill of particulars, the correctness of which is duly affirmed or sworn to by the plaintiff, or some one in his behalf, has been filed with the complaint, a default by the defendant shall be deemed to admit the correctness of the bill of particulars as sworn to, and judgment may be rendered thereon without further evidence. No particular form for proof of claims is required. See Judgments.

Claims of non-residents where appearance is put in must be proved by deposition properly taken on notice, or by oral or written testimony as in other cases. See Depositions.

Security for costs of suit is required from all non-resident plaintiffs, and, on motion, the further prosecution of the suit will be stopped until a bond for costs is furnished.

Parties sending collections to Indiana should be careful to furnish their attorney with the full christian name and surname and residence of each party. If the claim belongs to a firm or partnership, then with the full christian name, surname, and residence of each plaintiff. Account should be stated in detail, and not by aggregate balance. All notes and written evidences of debt should have the promise to pay include a waiver "of valuation or appraisement laws" when made. See, also, Claims against the Estates of Deceased Persons.

Records. — Deeds and mortgages of real estate and assignments of mortgages and leases for more than three years are required to be recorded in the office of the recorder of the county where the land lies, to be valid against any other person than the grantor or mortgagor, his heirs, or persons having notice thereof. As between the original parties thereto, they are good at all times, without regard to record. Chattel mortgages must be recorded in ten days from execution. See Deeds; Mortgages; Chattel Mortgages. Recording is not compulsory as between original parties to an instrument. Wills are recorded in the clerk's office of the county where probated, and also, in some cases, in the recorder's office. See Wills. Decrees and judgments settling title to real estate must be recorded in the recorder's office in the proper county.

Redemption. — Personal property taken on execution may be redeemed by delivery bond. All lands sold on judgments rendered upon contracts made since June 4, 1861, are subject to redemption within one year from sale by the owner thereof, his executor or administrator, or his heirs or devisees, or any one holding either the legal or equitable title, or any judgment creditor, by paying to the clerk of the court in whose office the certificate of purchase is required to be recorded, for the use of the purchaser, his executors, administrators, or assigns, the purchase-money, with interest at the rate of eight per cent. per annum thereon. The judgment debtor is entitled to the possession of the premises for one year after the date of sale.

The statutes of 1881 omit the former provision, that "in case they are not redeemed at the end of the year he is liable to the purchaser for their reasonable rents and profits." However, "the occupant, without special contract, of any lands shall be liable for the rent to any person entitled thereto." (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 8068.)

If a mortgagee or judgment creditor redeems, he shall retain a lien on the premises for the amount of money so paid for redemption, against the owner or any junior incumbrancer. On sale of lands under execution a certificate of purchase issues from the sheriff to the purchaser, describing the court from which the decree issued, its date, the parties, dates of execution and sale, names of owner and purchaser, and amount of purchase-money, which entitles the holder to a deed at the expiration of a year therefrom, if the property shall not have been previously redeemed. When the premises sold are occupied by a tenant or person other than the owner, such tenant or person shall be liable to the purchaser for reasonable rents, and may be treated as his tenant; but in case the property is redeemed the rent collected shall be allowed as a payment on the judgment.

The statute provides for successive redemptions, enabling the owner or junior incumbrancers to redeem at any time within the year.

The owner or occupant of any land sold for taxes, or any person having an interest therein, may redeem at any time within two years by paying to the county treasurer, for the use of the purchaser, the purchase-money as mentioned in his certificate, and all costs of sale, and ten per centum additional if redeemed in six months, fifteen per centum in six to twelve months, and twenty-five per centum thereafter, together with all taxes which have been paid thereon, and six per cent. interest on the amount of such taxes. Infants, idiots, and insane persons may redeem lands belonging to them sold for taxes, within two years after the expiration of such disability. See Tax Law.

Replevin. — When personal goods are wrongfully taken, or unlawfully detained from the owner or person claiming possession thereof, or, when taken on execution or attachment, are claimed by any person other than the defendant, the owner or claimant may bring an action for possession thereof. The plaintiff may, at the time of issuing the summons, or at any time before answer, claim the immediate delivery of the property, by filing the proper affidavit, on which a writ issues directing the officer to take the property and deliver the same to the plaintiff. See Attachment. The sheriff shall thereupon take possession. If within the twenty-four hours thereafter defendant, or some person in his behalf, shall give bond, with surety, that the defendants shall safely keep the property without damage and deliver same to plaintiff upon judgment against him, and pay to plaintiff whatever sum he may recover in the action, then the sheriff shall deliver the property to the defendant. Otherwise, the sheriff takes a bond from the plaintiff, with surety, that he will prosecute his action with effect and will return the property to defendant if a return be adjudged, and will pay such sum as may be recovered by the defendant in the action for any cause. Unless this undertaking is furnished the property is returned to defendant. No special number of sureties is required for bond in either case, nor need they be freeholders or householders of necessity. The surety must simply satisfy the county sheriff. When property is removed to another county after commencement of the action, the writ may issue to such county; or several writs may run to several counties at the same time.

Justices of the peace have jurisdiction, throughout the county, in replevin, where the value of the goods does not exceed two hundred dollars, with similar proceedings to the foregoing, except that the bond must be filed with the justice before the writ issues. An action in replevin for recovery of personal property may be maintained before a justice of the peace or mayor of city, when amount is within their jurisdiction, without filing replevin bond; but in such case defendant retains possession of the property until judgment is rendered against him. When judgment is for plaintiff it is for possession of property with damages for unlawful detention; if possession is not surrendered, the judgment is for full value of property and damages for unlawful detention, without right of exemption. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 1839.)

Reports. — There are one hundred and ninety-three volumes of Reports of the Decisions of the Supreme Court, to wit: 1 to 8 Blackford's Reports (1817-1847), 1 to 185 Indiana Reports (1848-1916), and 62 volumes of the Reports of the Appellate Court. The Indiana Reports comprise those of the following state reporters, to wit: Carter, Porter, Tanner, Harrison, Kerr, Black, Martin, Dice, Kern, Griffiths, Moon, Remy, Self, Zoercher, and Adams.

We have digests by W. H. Ripley, 2 vols. (1883), coming down to 73 Ind.; by J. B. Black, 1 vol. (1889), to and including 114 Ind.; by W. W. Woollen, 2 vols. (1881-1895), covering 73 to 140 Ind., and 1 to 12 Appellate; and by Charles F. Remy, covering 140 to 157 Ind., and 12 to 27 Appellate; also an Index-Digest in two volumes by H. Burns, covering the cases from 1 Blackford to 161 Ind., and 12 to 32 Appellate, inclusive, supplemented by digest of Louis B. Ewbank covering cases from 162 to 165 Ind., and 32 to 35 Appellate, inclusive, and a Cumulative Digest published quarterly; also West's Indiana Digest, vols. 1-172 Ind., and 1-43 Appellate, and Cumulative Supplements, in three volumes covering 1914 to 1917.

Revision. — The last compilation, by legislative authority, is that of 1881, known as the Revised Statutes.

Compilation (by private enterprise) is Indiana Annotated Statutes, by Harrison Burns, in three volumes embracing all laws in force January 1, 1908, and a revision thereof in four volumes embracing all laws in force January 1, 1914. The section numbers of the revision of 1914 are the same as in the revision of 1908 except new statutes have been given duplicate numbers with the addition of letters, or letters and figures. There is also a Supplement in one volume of 1918 to the 1914 Revision.

Sales. — Sales on condition that purchase money be paid are valid as conditional sales, but until paid vendee cannot pass title.

Sales in Bulk. — The sale, transfer, or assignment, in bulk, of any part or the whole of a stock of merchandise, or merchandise and the fixtures pertaining to the conducting of said business, otherwise than in the ordinary course of trade and in the regular prosecution of the business of the seller, transferor, or assignor, shall be void as against the creditors of the seller, transferor, or assignor unless the seller, transferor, assignor and purchaser, transferee and assignee, shall at least five days before the sale make a full detailed inventory, showing the quantity and, so far as possible with the exercise of reasonable diligence, the cost price to the seller, transferor, and assignor of each article to be included in the sale; and unless the purchaser, transferee, and assignee demand and receive from the seller, transferor, and assignor a written list of names and addresses of the creditors of the seller, transferor, and assignor, with the amount of indebtedness due or owing to each, and certified by the seller, transferor, and assignor, under oath, to be a full, accurate, and complete list of his creditors, and of his indebtedness; and unless the purchaser, transferee, and assignee shall, at least five days before taking possession of such merchandise, or merchandise and fixtures, or paying therefor, notify personally or by registered mail every creditor whose name and address are stated in said list, or of which he has knowledge, of the proposed sale and of the price, terms, and conditions thereof.

Any purchaser, transferee, or assignee, who shall not conform to the provisions of this act, shall upon application of any of the creditors of the seller, transferor, or assignor become a receiver and be held accountable to such creditors for all the goods, wares, merchandise, and fixtures that have come into his possession by virtue of such sale, transfer, or assignment.

Service. — All suits in circuit and superior courts are begun by filing a complaint and the issuance of summons. If appearance is desired on the first day of any term, summons is issued for that day and must be served at least ten days before such day. Suit may be brought before or during a term, and a day within the term fixed by the plaintiff's indorsement on the complaint for defendant's appearance. Summons must be served at least ten days before the day so fixed, and such day must be named in the summons. Service by publication is had by publishing the proper notice three weeks, and the publication must be complete thirty days before the appearance day named in the notice. Cases are docketed in their order, and after appearance the defendant must answer as required by the rules of the court unless further time be granted. Court rules usually require an answer in from one to three days after appearance.

A judgment rendered on service by publication may be opened within five years, except as to divorce cases, the judgments in which may be opened in two years, as well on the granting of divorce as in relation to the subject of alimony and custody of children. Purchasers of property in good faith are not affected by the proceedings consequent on opening the judgment. Suits in magistrates' and city courts require three days' service of process.

Stay of Execution. — Stay of execution is allowed on nearly all judgments, by presenting one or more sufficient freehold securities, as follows: on sums not exceeding six dollars, thirty days; over six and under twelve dollars, sixty days; over twelve and under twenty dollars, ninety days; over twenty and under forty dollars, one hundred and twenty days; over forty and under one hundred dollars, one hundred and fifty days; over one hundred dollars, one hundred and eighty days. Stays are not allowed on judgments for money received in a fiduciary capacity or for breach of official duty.

Supplementary Proceedings. — When execution is returned unsatisfied, in whole or part, the judgment creditor, after such return, is entitled to an order to be issued by any court of record of the county, or by the clerk thereof in vacation, requiring the judgment debtor to appear forthwith before the court, if in session, or, if not, before the judge at a specified time and place, or on the first day of the next term.

At any time after execution has issued, if the execution plaintiff, or another on his behalf, shall file an affidavit with the clerk of any court of record of any county that the judgment debtor, residing in such county, has property (describing it) which he unjustly refuses to apply to the satisfaction of the judgment, the court, or judge or clerk in vacation, may issue an order requiring the judgment debtor to appear forthwith before the court, or in vacation the judge thereof, at a specified time and place, to answer concerning the same; and the proper proceedings may be had for the application of the property towards satisfaction of the judgment.

At the time of applying for the order, or afterward, if affidavit be made that there is danger of the debtor leaving the State, or concealing himself, and there is reason to believe he has property which he refuses to apply to the judgment with intent to defraud his creditors, an order of arrest and bail may be made. In default of bail and undertaking that he will appear, and not in the mean time dispose of his property, he may be committed to prison. If it appears that other persons or any corporation have property of the judgment debtor, or are indebted to him, they may be required to answer touching it. Witnesses may be examined on such hearing as on trial of an issue, and the court shall make and enforce all orders necessary for the proper distribution of the property. See Attachment; Garnishment; Arrest.

Tax Law. — Taxes for state, county, school, road, township, and municipal purposes attach as a lien on real estate on the first day of March in each year. The lien is perpetual for all taxes due from the owner, penalties, etc., on personalty, and on real estate for ten years, and is not divested by any sale or transfer. Penalties attach on the first Monday in May annually, and after that day all unpaid taxes are collectible by distress and sale of personalty. Sales of real estate for taxes occur in each county on the second Monday of February annually. After sale the owner has two years in which he may redeem. If not redeemed within the time, a deed is made to the purchaser by the county auditor. Personal property is listed for taxation between the first day of March and the fifteenth day of May, each year, with reference to the quantity and quality held or owned on the first day of March in the year for which the property is required to be listed. Realty is listed by the township assessor. Assessment lists are filed with the township assessor. Taxes assessed in preceding calendar year are payable and become delinquent, one half on or before the first Monday in May, and the remaining half prior to the first Monday in November. If the first installment is not paid when due, the whole tax becomes delinquent.

Tax titles have not generally been favored by the legislature or judiciary of Indiana. In order to sustain a tax sale, the party claiming under it must show a substantial compliance with every provision of the law authorizing the sale. A tax deed is only prima facie evidence of regularity of the proceedings and may be contradicted. Possession under a tax deed is adverse though the title be invalid. See Redemptions and Descent and Distribution.

Bonds, notes, and other evidences of interest-bearing debt issued by the State or by municipal corporations are exempt from taxation. (Burns' R. S. 1914, § 10156.)

Testimony. — In civil actions no party is disqualified as a witness by reason of interest, and one party to the suit may compel the other to testify. In criminal cases defendants have the right to testify. Husband and wife are competent witnesses generally for or against each other, but not as to communications made during marriage. In actions by the husband for seduction of the wife she is incompetent. When an executor or administrator is a party, and the judgment affects the estate, the adverse party is incompetent to testify unless examined by the party to whom he is adverse, or unless required by the court to testify, or unless the decedent's deposition on the subject is in existence and can also be introduced in evidence.

Trust Deeds. — Every sale of real estate held as security must be made by judicial proceeding in foreclosure. See Mortgages.

Deeds of trust for the holding or passing of title, or the execution of an express trust, are made with the same effect as at common law.

Wills. — All persons of sound mind, who are twenty-one years of age, may make wills and devise all their estate, of every kind, to any person or corporation, or to any charitable or other purpose, saving the legal provision for the widow, which cannot be affected by wills without consent. See Married Women. Married women may devise their separate property. Wills must be in writing (except nuncupative, bequeathing not to exceed one hundred dollars), signed by the testator or some person by his direction and in his presence, and attested by two persons subscribing as witnesses in his presence. Typewritten wills are also admitted to probate. Wills may be probated by the circuit court of any county where the testator resided, or in which he shall die leaving assets, on proof of execution by one or more subscribing witnesses, or by proof of handwriting of the witnesses, in case of their incompetency, death, or absence. Proof may be made by deposition when the subscribing witnesses are dead, are absent from the State, or, if in the State, are unable to be present in court, or cannot be compelled to attend by subpoena. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 3142.) Provision is made for the probate of the will of any resident of this State who shall have absented himself from his usual place of residence and gone to parts unknown for the space of five years. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 3137.) Proper provisions are made by statute for contesting the validity and probate of wills, either before or within three years after offer to probate. Wills executed without the State, and probated in another State or country, according to the laws thereof, may be recorded, and shall have the same effect as if executed in the State. (Burns' Ann. S. 1914, § 3112 et seq.)

Wills devising lands, which have not been sold to pay debts, shall be recorded in the recorder's office of the proper county, by the clerk of the court in which such estate was settled, within forty-five days from settlement of the estate; in other cases, with the county clerk.

IOWA LAWS.

Messrs. Coffin & Rippey, of Des Moines.

The next legislature convenes on the second Monday in January, 1919.

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — In a court of record, actions are commenced by serving the defendant with a notice, stating generally the nature of the claim (see Service), and filing a petition, containing a statement, in ordinary and concise language, without repetition, of the facts constituting the plaintiff's cause of action. The petition must be filed ten days' before the term of court. (Title XVIII. ch. 6.)

Actions must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest; but an executor or administrator, a guardian, a trustee of an express trust, a party with whom or in whose name a contract is made for the benefit of another, or party expressly authorized by statute, may sue in his own name. (Title XVIII. ch. 3.) They must be brought in the county where the defendants, or some of them, reside, or the real property in question is situated, or the written contract in suit is by its terms to be performed, or the cause or some part thereof arose; but in actions upon negotiable paper in which a maker residing in the State is sued, the venue is limited to the county wherein the makers, or one of them, reside, except when made payable at a particular place. Actions on the bond of an executor, administrator, or guardian may be brought in the county in which the appointment was made and such bond filed. (Sup. Title XVIII. ch. 4.) Actions against any corporation, company, or person engaged in the construction of a railway, telegraph, or telephone line, or on any contract relating thereto, or any part thereof, may be brought in any county where the contract was made or performed, in whole or in part, or where the work was done out of which arose the damage claimed; and against insurance companies in any county in which is kept their principal place of business, in which was made the contract of insurance, or in which the loss insured against occurred. When a corporation, company, or individual has an office or an agency in any county, for the transaction of business, any suits growing out of or connected with the business of that office or agency may be brought in the county where such office or agency is located. Suits brought in wrong county may be there prosecuted to judgment unless defendant demands a change, in which event it shall be granted at plaintiff's cost. (Title XVIII. ch. 4.)

No member of the general assembly shall be held to appear or answer in any civil action or special proceeding, in any court of record or inferior court, whilst the legislature is in session, nor shall any person be so held to appear or answer in any such court on the 1st day of January, the 22d day of February, the 30th day of May, the 4th day of July, the 25th day of December, or any day of thanksgiving appointed by the president of the United States or governor of the State. (Title XVIII. ch. 6.)

In each township there are one or more justices of the peace having jurisdiction within their respective townships of all civil cases, except cases by equitable proceedings and cases involving the title to real estate, when the amount in controversy does not exceed one hundred dollars, which amount may, by consent of parties, be extended to three hundred dollars. Suit may be brought in the township where the plaintiff or defendant, or one of several defendants, resides; in an attachment proceeding, and to recover personal property, in the county where the property is; on written contracts stipulating for a place of payment, in the township where the place is. Actions are commenced by voluntary appearance or by notice. In the latter case, no petition need be filed, except when the petition must be sworn to. The notice must state the amount for which judgment will be demanded. The time for appearance must not be more than fifteen days from the date, and the notice must be served not less than five days previous to the trial. Judgments may be enforced by the justice, through the constable, by levy on personal property or garnishment; but to be enforced against real estate a transcript must be filed in the office of the clerk of the county and execution issued from there. (Title XXII. ch. 1.) See Service; Appeals.

Administration of Decedent's Estates. — See Estates of Decedents.

Affidavits. — The following officers in this State are authorized to administer oaths: The judges, clerks, and their deputies, of the supreme, district, superior, municipal, and police courts, and each county auditor and his deputy, justice of the peace, and notary public within his county, members of all boards of any state institution, of all commissions, boards, or bodies created by law, and all persons, referees, or appraisers appointed by authority of law who have any duty to perform by virtue of their office or appointment requiring the administration of oaths. Persons conscientiously opposed to swearing may affirm, subject to the penalties of perjury, as in case of swearing. (Title III. ch. 15.) The clerk of the district court of the county wherein the certificate of the appointment of a notary public is recorded, may certify to his appointment. (Title III. ch. 18.)

An affidavit may be made within or without this State, before any person authorized to administer oaths. Affidavits taken out of this State, before any judge or clerk of a court of record, or before a notary public, or a commissioner appointed by the governor of this State to take acknowledgment of deeds in the State where such affidavit is taken, are of the same credibility as if taken within the State. (Title XXIII. ch. 1.)

Aliens. — Non-resident aliens or corporations incorporated under the laws of any foreign country, or corporations organized in this country, one half of the stock of which is owned or controlled by non-resident aliens, are prohibited from acquiring title to or holding any real estate in this State, except as hereinafter provided, save that the widow and heirs and devisees, being non-resident aliens, of any alien or naturalized citizen who has acquired real estate in this State may hold the same by devise, descent, or distribution for a period of twenty years; and if at the end of that time such real estate has not been sold to a bona fide purchaser for value, or such alien heirs have not become residents of this State, such land shall escheat to the State. Provided, that nothing in this act contained shall prevent aliens from having or acquiring property of any kind within the corporate limits of any city or town in the State, or lands not to exceed three hundred and twenty acres in the name of one person, or any stock in any corporation for pecuniary profit, or from alienating or devising the same. The provisions of this chapter shall not affect the distribution of personal property, and shall apply to real estate heretofore devised or descended when no proceedings of forfeiture have been commenced. (Title XIV. ch. 1.) See Foreign Corporations.

Appeals. — The supreme court has appellate jurisdiction over all judgments and decisions of all other courts of record, in civil actions and also in proceedings of a special or independent character. Appeals from the district courts may be taken at any time within six months from the rendition of the judgment or order appealed from, and not afterward. But no appeal shall be taken in any cause in which the amount in controversy between the parties as shown by the pleadings does not exceed one hundred dollars, unless the trial judge shall certify that such cause involves the determination of a question of law upon which it is desirable to have the opinion of the supreme court; but this limitation shall not affect the right of appeal in any cause in which any interest in real property is involved. (Title XX. ch. 2.) An appeal from any final judgment of a justice's court to the district court in the county must be taken and perfected within twenty days after the rendition of the judgment. But an appeal cannot be taken from a justice unless the amount in controversy exceeds twenty-five dollars. (Title XXII. ch. 1.)

Arrests. — No person shall be imprisoned for debt in any civil action on meane or final process, unless in case of fraud. See Supplementary Proceedings.

Assignments. — See Insolvent Laws.

Attachment. — All property not exempt from execution may be attached by filing a sworn petition, in ordinary form, verified by the party, or, if facts are known to his agent or attorney, by such agent or attorney (see Verification), and further stating, 1st, that the defendant is a foreign corporation or acting as such; or, 2d, that he is a non-resident of the State; or, 3d, that he is about to remove his property out of the State without leaving sufficient remaining for the payment of his debts; or, 4th, that he has disposed of his property, in whole or in part, with intent to defraud his creditors; or, 5th, that the defendant is about to dispose of his property with intent to defraud his creditors; or, 6th, that he has absconded so that the ordinary process cannot be served upon him; or, 7th, that he is about to remove permanently out of the county, and has property therein not exempt from execution, and that he refuses to pay or secure the debt due the plaintiff; or, 8th, that he is about to remove permanently out of the State, and refuses to pay or secure the debt due the plaintiff; or, 9th, that he is about to remove his property, or a part thereof, out of the county with intent to defraud his creditors; or, 10th, that he is about to convert his property, or a part thereof, into money for the purpose of placing it beyond the reach of his creditors; or, 11th, that he has property or rights in action which he conceals; or, 12th, that the debt is due for property obtained under false pretenses.

The property of a debtor may be attached before the debt becomes due, when nothing but time is wanting to fix an absolute indebtedness, if the petition, in addition to stating the facts, states, 1st, that the defendant is about to dispose of his property with intent to defraud his creditors; or, 2d, that he is about to remove or has removed from the State, and refuses to make any arrangements for securing the payment of the debt when it falls due, and which removal or contemplated removal was not known to the plaintiff at the time when the debt was contracted; or, 3d, that the defendant has disposed of his property in whole or in part with intent to defraud his creditors; or, 4th, that the debt was incurred for property obtained under false pretenses.

The sheriff must, as nearly as the circumstances of the case will permit, levy upon property fifty per cent. greater in value than the amount of the claim, but before writ can issue plaintiff must file bond, in penalty double the amount of property sought to be attached, conditioned that he will pay all damages which the defendant may sustain by reason of the wrongful suing out of the attachment, with one or more sureties, who must make oath that they are residents of the State, worth double the sum to be secured, and owning property in this State subject to execution equal to the sum to be secured.

The sheriff shall summon such persons as garnishees as the plaintiff may direct; and attachment by garnishment is effected by leaving with the person a written notice that he is required not to pay any debt due by him to defendant, or thereafter to become due, and that he must retain possession of all property of said defendant then or thereafter in this custody or under his control, in order that the same may be dealt with according to law; and plaintiff may direct sheriff to take the answers of garnishee, or to require him to appear at next term of court to answer such interrogatories as may be propounded to him. Ten days' notice of the garnishment must also be given to the principal defendant before judgment condemning the property or debt in the hands of the garnishee shall be entered therein. A valid attachment levied before a general assignment for the benefit of creditors will not be affected thereby.

Attachment liens have priority in the order of their levy. Attaching creditors do not share pro rata; the one having the first lien must be paid first, and the others in the order of their levy.

In an action on an attachment bond the plaintiff may recover, if he shows that the attachment was wrongfully sued out, and that there was no reasonable cause to believe the ground upon which the same was issued to be true, the actual damages sustained, and reasonable attorneys' fees, the latter to be fixed by the court; and if it be shown that such attachment was sued out maliciously, he may recover exemplary damages. He can maintain the action on the bond as an independent proceeding, without waiting until the principal suit is determined, or he can maintain it as a counter-claim in the attachment suit. (Title XIX. ch. 1.)

Bulk Sales and Stocks of Goods, etc. — The sale, transfer, or assignment, in bulk, of any part of the whole of a stock of merchandise and the fixtures pertaining to the conducting of said business, otherwise than in the ordinary course of trade and in the regular prosecution of the business of the seller, transferor, or assignor, shall be void as against the creditors of the seller, transferor, or assignor, unless the seller, transferor, assignor and purchaser, transferee and assignee, shall, at least seven days before the sale, make a full detailed inventory, showing the quantity, and so far as possible, with the exercise of reasonable diligence, the cost price to the seller, transferor, and assignor, of each article to be included in the sale; and unless the purchaser, transferee, and assignee demand and receive from the seller, transferor, and assignor a written list of names and addresses of the creditors of the seller, transferor, and assignor, with the amount of the indebtedness due or owing to each and certified by the seller, transferor, and assignor, under oath, to be a full, accurate, and complete list of his creditors, and of his indebtedness; and unless the purchaser, transferee, and assignee shall, at least seven days before taking possession of such merchandise, or merchandise and fixtures, or paying therefor, notify personally or by registered mail every creditor whose name and address are stated in said list, or of which he has knowledge, of the proposed sale and of the price, terms, and conditions thereof. (Ch. 64, Acts 37, G. A.)

Chattel Mortgages. — Any mortgage of personal property to secure the payment of money only, and in which the time of payment is fixed, may be foreclosed by notice and sale, unless a stipulation to the contrary has been agreed upon by the parties or may be foreclosed by action in the proper court. The notice must contain a full description of the property mortgaged, together with the time, place, and terms of sale, and must be served on the mortgagor and upon all purchasers from him subsequent to the execution of the mortgage, and also upon all persons having recorded liens upon the same property which are junior to the mortgage. After notice has been served upon the parties, it must be published in the same manner and for the same length of time as is required in cases of the sale of like property on execution, and the sale shall be conducted in the same manner. The purchaser shall take all the title and interest on which the mortgage operated as a lien, and the sheriff conducting the sale shall execute to the purchaser a bill of sale of the personal property, which shall be effectual to carry the whole title and interest purchased. When chattel property is pledged, unless provision is made by an agreement in writing, same may be sold by giving ten days' notice in writing to the pledgor or to any purchaser or assignee under him, and by posting notice of time of sale in three public places in the township of the pledgor. The pledgee may be a bidder at such sale. (Title XXI. ch. 7.)

Chattel mortgages need no renewal, and are good until the cause of action thereunder is barred by statute of limitation, to wit: ten years from the date the cause of action accrues.

In the absence of stipulations to the contrary in the mortgage, the mortgagee of personal property is entitled to the possession thereof, but the title shall remain in the mortgagor until divested by sale as provided by law. (Title XIV. ch. 4.) There is no specified time in which they must be foreclosed. (Title XXI. ch. 7.)

Chattel mortgages must be recorded immediately in the county where the holder of the property resides, in order to be valid against existing creditors or subsequent purchasers without notice. A chattel mortgage duly recorded is good against third persons, even though the mortgagor remains in possession. Incumbrances of personal property, exempt from execution, are of no validity (except for the purchase-money), unless by written instrument, and the husband and wife, if both living, concur in and sign the same joint instrument. (Title XIV. ch. 4.) See Mortgages as to satisfaction and penalty for refusal.

Where a chattel mortgage is placed on merchandise, if it contains a covenant to that effect, it will cover future acquisitions to the stock, and such provision is valid.

Levy upon Mortgaged Personal Property. — Mortgaged personal property not exempt from execution may be taken on attachment or execution issued against the mortgagor, if, within ten days after a levy, the creditor shall pay to the holder of the mortgage the amount of the mortgage debt and interest accrued, or deposit the same with the clerk of the district court of the county from which the attachment or execution issued, for the use of the holder of the mortgage, or secure the same by bond. If the debt is not due, the deposit must include interest till the debt is due, not exceeding a period of sixty days from the date of deposit. If within the ten days after the levy the levying creditor does not pay the amount, make the deposit, or give the security required, the levy shall be discharged, property restored to the possession of the person from whom taken, and creditor becomes liable to the holder of the mortgage for any damages by reason of the levy. By reason of the payment to the holder of the mortgage, or deposit with the clerk, the levying creditor is subrogated to all the rights of the mortgagee. Before receiving the money tendered or deposited with the clerk, the holder of the mortgage shall, over his own signature and under oath, state the amount due, and deliver the note or other evidence of debt to the person paying the amount. To determine the amount to tender or deposit, the holder of the mortgage debt shall, upon written demand, state under oath the nature and amount of the original debt, date and amount of each payment, and amount due and unpaid.

If the levying creditor wishes to contest the amount due the mortgagee, he may commence an action in equity, or contest such right by filing a bond with a penalty double the amount of such mortgage, conditioned either for the payment of any sum found due on said mortgage to the person entitled thereto, or for the value of the property levied upon, as the party ordering the levy may elect. Nothing in the foregoing provisions forbids or in any way affects the right of a creditor to contest in any other way the validity of a mortgage. (Title XIX. ch. 3, and Sup. title XIX. ch. 3.)

Claims against the Estates of Deceased Persons. — See Estates of Decedents.

Claims, Proof of. — See Proof of Claims.

Conditional Sales. — No sale, contract, or lease, wherein the transfer of title or ownership of personal property is made to depend upon any condition, shall be valid against any creditor or purchaser of the vendee, or lessee in actual possession obtained in pursuance thereof, without notice, unless the same be in writing, executed by the vendor or lessor, acknowledged and recorded the same as chattel mortgages. (Title XIV. ch. 4.) Contracts for the conditional sale, lease, or hire of railroad and street railway equipments and rolling stock in writing must be acknowledged by the vendee, lessee, or bailee, the same as deeds, and recorded in the office of the secretary of state. Each engine or car so sold, leased, or hired, shall have the name of the vendor, lessor, or bailor, plainly marked on each side thereof, followed by the word "owner," "lessor," or "bailor," as the case may be. (Title X. ch. 5.)

Consignments. — No statute on the subject.

Corporations. — The Constitution of the State prohibits the granting of special charters, and all corporations are organized under general laws. The laws in force permit any number of persons to associate themselves and become incorporated for the transaction of any lawful business, and for other lawful purposes unconnected with motives of pecuniary profit. The articles of incorporation of corporations for pecuniary profit must be acknowledged and filed for record with the recorder of the county where organized and with the secretary of state, and must fix the highest amount of indebtedness or liability they may incur, which (except insurance companies, or incorporations which issue their debentures or bonds, the payment of which is secured by an actual transfer of real estate securities equal in amount to the par value of such bonds or debentures, and to be first liens upon unincumbered real estate worth at least twice the amount loaned thereon, or to bonds or other railway or street railway securities, issued or guaranteed by railway or street railway companies of the State in aid of the location, construction, or equipment of railway or street railways, not exceeding sixteen thousand dollars, single track standard, or eight thousand dollars of narrow gauge, actually constructed and equipped), must not exceed two thirds their capital stock. The articles may also determine whether private property is to be exempt from corporate debts, but no provision therein can exempt the stockholder of any corporation from individual liability to the amount of the unpaid installment on the stock owned by him or transferred for the purpose of defrauding creditors. The articles of incorporation must be filed with the secretary of state after filing of same with the county recorder, and there shall be paid to the secretary of state an incorporation fee of twenty-five dollars, and for all capital stock in excess of ten thousand dollars an additional fee of one dollar per thousand, except that the fee shall not be required of building and loan associations, workmen's coöperative associations, and farmers' mutual insurance companies. (Title IX. ch. 1.) The secretary of state may refuse to file articles of incorporation, if of opinion that they are not in proper form to meet the requirements of the law, or that their object is an unlawful one or against public policy, or that their plan for doing business is dishonest or unlawful. Provision is made for submission of the legality of the articles to the attorney-general for his opinion, and if he overrules the secretary of state the articles may be filed. The person offering the articles may have them submitted to the executive council for approval, if for any reason they are refused by the secretary of state, except on the opinion of the attorney-general that they are illegal. If it is proposed to pay for the capital stock of any corporation in property or in any other thing than money, the corporation must apply to the executive council for leave, and this body will fix the value at which the same may be received in payment for capital stock. Penalties are provided for a violation of the law, such as cancellation of the stock, dissolution of the corporation by law, and fine and imprisonment for officers violating the same. (Sup. Title IX. ch. 1.) The articles shall fix the principal place of business of the corporation, which must be in the State, which place shall be in charge of an agent, and at which place the meetings shall be held and a record of its proceedings and the stock and transfer of books be kept. (Ch. 104, L. 33 G. A.) A notice of incorporation must be published for four weeks, containing the name of the corporation and its principal place of transacting business, nature of the business, capital stock authorized, and times and conditions of its payment, time of commencement and termination of the corporation, by what officers the affairs of the corporation are to be conducted and when they will be elected, highest amount of indebtedness to which the corporation at any time may be subject, and whether private property is exempt from corporate debts. A failure to comply substantially with the requisitions in relation to organization and publicity renders the individual property of stockholders liable for the corporate debts. Intentional fraud in failing to comply substantially with the articles of incorporation, or in deceiving the public or individuals in relation to their means or liabilities, shall be a misdemeanor, and shall subject those guilty thereof to fine and imprisonment; and any one injured thereby may recover damages against those participating in the fraud. Payment of dividends, when the corporation is insolvent, or which will make it insolvent or diminish the amount of the capital stock, will make all directors, officers, or agents knowingly consenting thereto liable for all the debts of the corporation then in existence. When stock is transferred as collateral, notice in writing by the transferee to the secretary of the corporation is sufficient. Shares of stock must have indorsed on their face the amount of the par value paid to the corporation, and whether paid in money or property. An execution against the company, upon which no corporate property has been found, may, to that extent, be levied upon the private property of any individual after action against the stockholders sought to be charged. If the indebtedness of any corporation shall exceed the amount of indebtedness permitted by law, the directors and officers of such corporation knowingly consenting thereto shall be personally and individually liable to the creditors of such corporation for such excess. (Title IX. ch. 1.) Stockholders in corporations organized for a banking or trust business are liable in double the amount of their respective shares for all its liabilities accruing while they remained such stockholders. (Title IX. ch. 12.)

No incorporation shall issue stock or any substitute therefor until it has received the par value thereof. (Ch. 71, L. 32 G. A.) Stock issued in violation of law is void. (Ch. 104, L. 33 G. A.) In number the directors may be one or more, and they need not be residents of this State. Stockholders are not liable for more than the amount of the stock subscribed for by them, except in cases of banks and trust companies and corporations doing a banking or trust business, in which there is a double liability. The only fixed expenses attending the organization of a corporation, in addition to the state incorporation fee, is the cost of publishing notice of incorporation (from five to fifteen dollars), and costs of recording the articles with the county recorder and secretary of state, ten cents per folio in each office. The property of the corporation is taxed the same as that of an individual, and shares of stock in a domestic corporation are assessed to the owners thereof at the place where its principal business is transacted, the assessment to be as upon other property after ascertaining the value of such shares on January 1st in each year. In arriving at the total value of the shares of stock of such corporations, the amount of their capital actually invested in real estate owned by them, either in this State or elsewhere, shall be deducted from the real value of such shares, and such real estate shall be assessed as other real estate, and the property of such corporation, except such real estate situated within the State, shall not be otherwise assessed. The corporation is liable for the payment of the taxes on the stock assessed to the stockholders and must pay same, but the corporation may collect such taxes from the individual stockholder. (Title VII. ch. 1.)

No action shall be maintained in any court in the State upon any policy or contract of fire insurance issued upon any property situated in the State by any company, association, partnership, individual, or individuals that have not been authorized by the auditor of state to transact such insurance business, unless it shall be shown that the insurer or insured, within six months after the issuing of such policy or contract of insurance, has paid into the state treasury two and one half per cent. of the gross premium paid or agreed to be paid for such policy or contract of insurance. (Title IX. ch. 4.)

Renewal. — Corporations may be renewed by filing a certificate under oath of the president and secretary, or by such officers as may be designated by the stockholders, setting forth the proceedings to that effect, and by filing the articles of incorporation in the office of the recorder, in which the principal place of business of said corporation is situated, within five days after the action of renewal is done, and by filing said certificate and articles of incorporation with the secretary of state within ten days after filing the same with the recorder, and by paying to the secretary of state the same fee as required upon organization. (Code § 1618; Sup. Title IX. ch. 1.)

Foreign Corporations. — A foreign corporation for pecuniary profit other than mercantile or manufacturing, desiring to transact or continue in the transaction of business in this State, must file with the secretary of state a certified copy of its articles of incorporation duly attested, accompanied by a resolution of its board of directors authorizing the filing thereof, and also authorizing service of process to be made upon any of its officers or agents in this State engaged in transacting its business, and requesting a permit to transact business in this State. Thereupon the secretary of state shall issue such permit. Before such permit shall be issued, the corporation shall pay to the secretary of state the same fee required for the organization of corporations in this State, and if the capital stock of such incorporation is increased, it shall pay the same fee as in such event required of corporations organized under the laws of this State. This does not apply to corporations transacting business before September 1, 1886. By ch. 75, L. 34 G. A., the incorporation fee is limited to the total value of money and all other property the corporation has in use or holds in investment or proposes or expects to make use of in Iowa in the ensuing year.

Foreign corporations are not prevented from buying, selling, and otherwise dealing in notes, bonds, mortgages, and other securities, or from enforcing the collection of the same in the federal courts, as before this requirement. A permit is essential to enable a foreign corporation to exercise the power of eminent domain, or to exercise any rights or privileges conferred upon corporations.

Foreign corporations transacting business in this State without having a valid permit shall forfeit to the State one hundred dollars for each and every day in which the business is transacted, to be recovered by suit in any court having jurisdiction. Agents or employees transacting business for a foreign corporation having no permit are guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to a fine of one hundred dollars for each offense, or imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed thirty days, and payment of all costs of prosecution. (Title IX. ch. 1.)

Foreign corporations organized in any State of the United States may hold title to real estate. Corporations organized under the laws of any foreign country and corporations organized under the laws of any State of the United States, one half of whose stock is owned and controlled by non-resident aliens, shall have the right to own, hold, and dispose of any real property owned or held by any such corporations on the fourth day of July, 1888. They may also hold any real property acquired in the enforcement of any lien or judgment for any debt or liability which may have been created subsequently to said date for ten years after the title shall be perfected in such lien or under such sale. (Sup. Title XIV. ch. 1.)

The property of a foreign corporation situated in this State is subject to local taxation in the manner prescribed for other resident property of like character, and is assessed by the local assessor, and taxes become delinquent and become payable thereon as provided for general taxes. (See Tax Law.)

For the taxation of telegraph and telephone companies, foreign and domestic insurance companies, and express companies, see § 1328, Code of 1897, and Sup. title VII. ch. 1.

Permit, report, and annual fee required same as of domestic corporations. (See supra, ch. 105, L. 33 G. A.)

Deeds. — Deeds, conveyances, or other instruments in writing, by which real estate in this State shall be conveyed or incumbered, must be in writing and subscribed by the grantor. No particular forms are prescribed, and as between the parties they are valid without being acknowledged or recorded. Such instruments when properly acknowledged may be recorded in the office of the county recorder at any time; but no instrument affecting real estate is of any validity against subsequent purchasers for a valuable consideration without notice, unless recorded in the office of the county recorder of the county in which the land lies. These instruments are not lawfully recorded unless they have been previously acknowledged or proved as provided by law.

Deeds, conveyances, or other instruments in writing, by which real estate in this State shall be conveyed or incumbered, if made within this State, must be acknowledged before some court having a seal or some judge or clerk thereof, or some county auditor or his deputy or justice of the peace within the county, or notary public within the county of his appointment, or in the adjoining county, in which he has filed a certified copy of his certificate of appointment with the clerk of the district court. A notary public must have a seal.

Instruments affecting real estate, executed out of the State but within the United States, must be acknowledged before a judge of some court of record, or officer holding the seal thereof, or some commissioner appointed by the governor of this State to take the acknowledgment of deeds, or some notary public or justice of the peace; and when made before a judge or justice of the peace, a certificate under the official seal of the clerk or other proper certifying officer of the court of record of the county or district, or of the secretary of state of said State or Territory, within which such acknowledgment was taken, under the seal of his office, of the official character of said judge or justice, and of the genuineness of his signature, shall accompany such certificate of acknowledgment. If executed without the United States, before any ambassador, minister, secretary of legation, consul, vice-consul, chargé d'affaires, consular agent, or any other officer of the United States in a foreign country who is authorized to issue certificates under the seal of the United States. Such instruments may also be acknowledged or proven before any officer of a foreign country who is authorized by the laws thereof to certify acknowledgments of written documents; but the certificate of acknowledgment by a foreign officer must be authenticated by one of the above named officers of the United States, whose official written statement that full faith and credit is due to the certificate of such foreign officer shall be deemed sufficient evidence of the qualification of such officer to take acknowledgments and certify thereto, and of the genuineness of his signature and seal, if he have any.

The certificate indorsed upon the instrument must contain the title of the court or person before whom the acknowledgment was made, that the person making it was known to the officer taking the acknowledgment to be the identical person whose name is affixed to such instrument as grantor, or that such identity was proved by at least one credible witness, naming him, and that such person acknowledged the execution of said instrument to be his voluntary act and deed.

Proof of the due and voluntary execution and delivery of a deed or other instrument may be made before any officer authorized to take acknowledgments by one competent person other than the vendee or other person to whom the instrument is executed in the following cases: 1, if the grantor dies before making the acknowledgment; 2, if his attendance cannot be procured; 3, if, having appeared, he refuses to acknowledge the execution of the instrument; and the certificate of the officer must state the title of the officer taking the proof, that it was satisfactorily proved that the grantor was dead, or that for some other reason his attendance could not be procured in order to make the acknowledgment, or that, having appeared, he refused to acknowledge the same; the name of the witness by whom the proof was made, and that it was proved by him that the instrument was executed and delivered by the person whose name is thereunto subscribed as a party.

The execution of any deed, mortgage, or other instrument in writing executed by any attorney in fact may be acknowledged by the attorney executing the same, the certificate of the officer taking the same setting forth, 1, the title of the person before whom the acknowledgment was taken; 2, that the person making the acknowledgment was known to the officer to be the identical person whose name is subscribed to the instrument as attorney for the grantor therein named, or that such identity was proved to him by at least one credible witness to him personally known and therein named; 3, that such person acknowledged said instrument to be the act and deed of the grantor therein named by him as such attorney thereunto appointed, voluntarily done and executed.

If the acknowledgment is made by the officers of a corporation, the certificate shall show that such persons as such officers (naming the offices of each person) acknowledged the execution of the instrument as the voluntary act and deed of such corporation by each of them voluntarily executed. See Dower.

Witnesses to deeds are not required. Seals are not required.

The wife is not required to be examined separate and apart from her husband, but she must join in the conveyance to bar her dower. A married woman may convey her interest in real estate in the same manner as other persons.

The following forms of acknowledgment shall be sufficient in the cases to which they are respectively applicable. In each case where one of these forms is used, the name of the State and county where the acknowledgment is taken shall precede the certificate, and the signature and official title of the officer shall follow it, thus: — acknowledged that he (or they) executed the same as his (or their) voluntary act and deed.

[1. In the case of natural persons acting in their own right.]

[2. In the case of natural persons acting by attorney.]

On this day of A. D. 19 before me personally appeared to me known to be the person who executed the foregoing instrument in behalf of and acknowledged that he executed the same as the voluntary act and deed of said .

[3. In the case of corporations or joint stock associations.]

On this day of A. D. 19 before me personally appeared to me personally known, who being by me duly sworn (or affirmed) did say that he is the president (or other officer or agent of the corporation or association) of (describing the corporation or association), and that the seal affixed to said instrument is the corporate seal of said association (or corporation), and that said instrument was signed and sealed in behalf of said corporation (or association) by authority of its board of directors (or trustees), and said acknowledged said instrument to be the voluntary act and deed of said corporation (or association).

In case the corporation or association has no seal, omit the words "the seal affixed to said instrument is the corporate seal of said corporation (or association), and that," and add, at the end of the affidavit clause, the words, "and that said corporation (or association) has no corporate seal."

In all cases add signature and title of the officer taking the acknowledgment. (Title XIV. ch. 6.) An acknowledgment may be written, or printed, or pasted on the instrument, but if pasted, if detached before record, the record of the instrument would not impart notice. (As to legalizing acknowledgments defective in form, see Sup. Title XIV. ch. 1.)

Depositions. — The depositions of witnesses out of the county, whether within or without the State, may be taken, if within the State, upon notice or upon commission, and if without the State, upon commission, except by agreement of parties. When taken upon notice, it must be before some person authorized to administer oaths, or agreed upon by the parties, and notice of the name of witness, time, place, and person before whom it is to be taken shall be given. No party shall be required to take depositions on notice on the day of the general election, nor on any days on which appearance in an action cannot by law be required, nor during a term of court in which the action is pending, unless such court upon written notice in furtherance of justice shall so order. A party wishing to take a deposition by commission must serve on the opposite party a notice that on a day named a commission will issue from the office of the clerk of the court in which the action or proceeding is pending, or, in case in a justice's court, from the office of the clerk of the district court of the county, directed to the clerk or any judge of any court of record, or any commissioner appointed by the governor of this State to take acknowledgments of deeds in another State, or any notary public, or any consul or consular agent of the United States, for the taking of such depositions upon written interrogatories to be filed with the clerk, a copy of which must accompany and be served with the said notice and said commission shall issue. Such officer may be designated in the notice and in the commission either by the name of office of such officer or by his individual name and official style; or the commission may issue to any person designated by the court for that purpose or agreed upon by the parties, such person being named in the notice. If the commission issues to any officer or person for the taking of depositions in any of the United States or in Canada, the name of the State and county in which the deposition is to be taken shall be specified in the notice and commission; otherwise it shall be sufficient to name the State, Territory, or district and town or city. None of the above named officers are permitted to take the depositions aforesaid by virtue of a commission directed to him merely as such officer, unless within the limits of his official jurisdiction. Before the issuance of the commission, the opposite party may file cross-interrogatories; if not filed, the clerk shall file the following: —

1. Are you directly or indirectly interested in this action? and if interested, explain the interest you have.

2. Are all your statements in the foregoing answers made from your personal knowledge? and if not, do your answers show what are made from your personal knowledge, and what are from information, and the source of that information? if not, now show what is from information, and give its source.

3. State everything you know concerning the subject of this action favorable to either party.

When notice is served of taking a deposition on commission, the adverse party may elect to appear and orally cross-examine the witness, and, if he so elects, he shall serve written notice of his election on the opposite party or his attorney at least one day before the date on which the commission is to be issued; and if such notice is given, then before said commission shall issue the party suing out the same shall deliver to the adverse party or his attorney a written statement, giving the name and address of the commissioner, the place, and, if in a city, the street and number, and the day and hour of taking the deposition. Such statement must be delivered to said adverse party or his attorney five days before the date fixed for taking the deposition, if taken within the State; if taken elsewhere, one additional day for every three hundred miles' distance between the place where the commission issues and where the deposition is to be taken. If the adverse party elects to cross-examine the witness orally, the party suing out the commission may waive his written interrogatories and appear and orally examine the witness. Except as otherwise provided in this section, the provision relating to taking depositions on notice shall be followed in taking that part of the deposition which is taken by oral examination.

On the day fixed in the notice, the commission may issue in the name of the court, and under its seal, with the signature of the clerk, and need contain only a statement of the case and court in which the testimony is to be used, the authority conferred upon the commissioner, who shall be designated as hereinbefore provided, and instructions to guide him in the taking of the deposition. The interrogatories and cross-interrogatories filed by the respective parties are to be appended to such commission.

If the action on which it is desired to take a deposition on commission is pending in a justice's court, the commission shall issue from the office of the clerk of the district court of the county, or of the superior court, if there be one in the same township, on such notice as is required in suing out a commission in a case pending in such court. When such deposition is returned to the clerk of the court from which the commission issued, he shall deliver it personally or forward it by mail to the justice before whom the action is pending.

The notice of taking depositions by either of the methods provided may be served personally upon the opposite party or his attorney of record in the same manner as an original notice in a civil action, except by publication, or such service may be accepted by the party or his attorney. If the party sought to be served with notice is a non-resident or his residence is unknown, or in case of default and the party has no attorney of record who is a resident of the State, the notice of the taking of depositions or suing out a commission may be served by filing such notice, or such notice with a copy of the interrogatories attached, with the clerk of the court in which the action or proceeding is pending, ten days before the taking of the depositions or the issuance of the commission, as the case may be. The notice of taking a deposition by either of the methods, except as otherwise provided, shall be, when served on the attorney, at least ten days, and upon the party within the county where the deposition is to be taken, at least five days; if served upon the party outside of the county, the length of time shall be that required in serving an original notice. If depositions are to be taken upon notice, one day in addition to the time hereinbefore specified must be allowed for every one hundred miles traveled from the place where it is served to where the deposition is to be taken. The person before whom depositions are taken must cause the interrogatories propounded, whether written or oral, to be written and the answers thereto inserted immediately underneath the respective questions. The answers must be in the language as nearly as practicable of the witness. The whole, being read over by or to the witness, must be subscribed and sworn to by him in the usual manner. The officer taking the deposition shall attach thereto his certificate that the testimony of the witness was correctly and fully written down by him or by a disinterested person, named therein, under his direction and in his presence, and was read over by the officer to such witness and signed and sworn to by the witness in the officer's presence; any exhibits offered and identified shall be referred to in the certificate as thus identified, and the certificate shall show that the same or a true copy thereof is attached to and returned with the deposition. When the oath is administered to the witness by some other person, the officer's certificate shall recite such fact, stating his name and official character. The deposition may be taken in shorthand, in which case the certificate of the person taking it on notice or commission must show that the testimony of the witness was correctly taken down in shorthand and was correctly extended, and that the notes of his testimony or such extension thereof were read over to the witness, and signed by him and sworn to, if within the State, before a person authorized to administer oaths, and, if without the State, before one of the officers authorized to take depositions outside of the State, and such extension, together with the shorthand notes, if signed and sworn to, must be returned as the deposition. Any one taking depositions in shorthand shall first take and subscribe an oath to take down and transcribe correctly such testimony, and shall certify that his translation thereof is full, true, and complete. When depositions are taken before an officer not having a seal, unless so done by agreement of parties, his signature and official character must be authenticated by the certificate of the clerk of a court of record, under its seal, or that of the officer having in charge the seal of state. If taken before an officer having a seal, whether in or outside the State, the certificate of the officer under such seal shall be received as presumptive evidence of the genuineness of the signature and of his official character. Where the deposition is taken upon written interrogatories alone, neither party, nor his agent or attorney, shall be present at the examination of the witness, unless both parties are present or represented by an agent or attorney, and the certificate shall state such fact if a party or his agent is present. The deposition duly certified as above stated, with the commission and interrogatories, must be sealed up and deposited by the person taking it within thirty days with the clerk of the proper court, or transmitted to him by mail or express, unless some other mode be agreed upon between the parties. The deposition when prepared for filing with or return to the clerk must be indorsed on the outside of a sealed envelope, in which it is inclosed, with the title of the cause in which it is to be used.

The deposition in all cases, unless the record discloses a cause for the taking, must show that the witness is a non-resident of the county, or such other fact as renders its taking legal, and no such deposition shall be read on the trial if at the time the witness himself is produced in court (Title XXIII. ch. 1), except in equity cases.

(On the back of the commission issued are forms and instructions for taking the depositions.)

Descent and Distribution of Property. — See Estates of Decedents.

Divorce. — The district court in the county where the plaintiff or defendant resides has jurisdiction in all cases of divorce and alimony, and of guardianship connected therewith.

Except where the defendant is a resident of this State served by personal service, the petition for divorce, in addition to the facts on account of which the plaintiff claims the relief sought, must state that the plaintiff has been for the last year a resident of the State, specifying the town and county in which he has so resided, and the entire length of his residence therein, after deducting all absences from the State; that he is now a resident thereof; that such residence has been in good faith, and not for the purpose of obtaining a divorce only; and it must in all cases state that the application is made in good faith and for the purpose set forth in the petition. The petition must be verified by the oath of the plaintiff. (Title XVI. ch. 3.) If the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Iowa, or his residence is unknown, service of notice of suit may be made by publication. (Title XVIII. ch. 6.)

Divorces from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed against the husband for the following causes: 1st, when he has committed adultery subsequent to the marriage; 2d, when he willfully deserts his wife and absents himself without a reasonable cause for the space of two years; 3d, when he is convicted of felony after his marriage; 4th, when, after marriage, he becomes addicted to habitual drunkenness; 5th, when he is guilty of such inhuman treatment as to endanger the life of his wife. The husband may obtain a divorce from his wife for like cause, and also when the wife at the time of her marriage was pregnant by another than her husband, unless such husband have an illegitimate child or children then living, which was unknown to the wife at the time of their marriage. When a divorce is decreed, the court may make such order in relation to the children and property of the parties, and the maintenance of the wife, as shall be right and proper, and the guilty party forfeits all rights acquired by the marriage. No divorce shall be granted on the testimony of the plaintiff alone, and all such actions shall be heard in open court on the testimony of witness or depositions taken as in other equitable actions. (Title XVI. ch. 3.) Neither party shall marry within one year from date of decree, unless the court in the decree grants permission, but the divorced parties may remarry at any time. (Sup. Title XVI. ch. 3.)

Marriages may be annulled for the following causes: 1st, where marriage between the parties is prohibited by law; 2d, where either party was impotent at the time of marriage; 3d, where either party had a husband or wife living at the time of the marriage, provided they have not lived and cohabited together after the death of the former husband or wife; 4th, where either party was insane or idiotic at the time of the marriage. (Title XVI. ch. 3.)

Dower — Under that name is abolished, but if the wife survive her husband she has one third in value of all the legal and equitable estates in real property possessed by the husband at any time during the marriage which have not been sold on execution or other judicial sale, and to which the wife has made no relinquishment of her right. The same provisions are applicable to the husband of a deceased wife. Each is entitled to the same right in the real estate of the other. The estate by courtesy is abolished. (Title XVII. ch. 4.) Survivor's share of estate cannot be affected by will without consent made in court. (Sup. Title XVII. ch. 4.)

Estates of Decedents. — Claims. — Claims against the estates of deceased persons are payable in the following order: 1. Debts entitled to a preference under the laws of the United States. 2. Public rates and taxes. 3. Claims filed within six months after the first publication or posting of the notice given by the executors or administrators of their appointment. 4. All other debts. 5. Legacies and the distributive shares. All claims of the fourth of the above classes not filed and allowed within twelve months of the giving of notice are forever barred, unless the claim is pending in the district or supreme court, or unless peculiar circumstances entitle the claimant to equitable relief. Claims against the estate shall be clearly stated, and if founded upon a written instrument, the same or a copy thereof should be attached, showing the balance, which statement must be sworn to and filed with the clerk of the district court, and ten days' notice of the hearing thereof (which shall be at some regular term of court), accompanied by a copy of the claim, shall be served on one of the executors or administrators in the manner required for commencing ordinary actions, unless the same has been approved by the executor or administrator, in which case it may be allowed by the clerk, without notice, and so entered upon the probate calendar. If a claim filed against the estate is not so admitted by the executor, the court may hear and allow the same, or may submit it to a jury. (Title XVII. ch. 3.)

Where an executor is not appointed by will, administration shall be granted: 1, to the husband or wife of the deceased; 2, to next of kin; 3, to creditors; 4, to any other person whom the court may select. Individuals belonging to the same or different classes may be united as administrators. To each of the above classes in succession a period of twenty days, commencing with the burial of the deceased, is allowed within which to apply for administration.

The statute does not prohibit in terms the appointment of a non-resident administrator, but our court has held that a non-resident ought not to be charged with the duty of administering upon an estate, unless it be made to appear that the interests of the estate and of heirs and creditors will be as well protected by such an administrator as by one who resides within the State. Non-resident executors or administrators, where letters have been granted in accordance with the laws of the State or country where the deceased resided at the time of his death, may upon application and upon qualifying in the same manner as is required of other executors be appointed to administer upon the property of the deceased in this State. The estate of a citizen of this State owning property herein, absenting himself and concealing his whereabouts from his family for a period of seven years, may, upon petition to the district court where the property is situated, be administered upon as the estate of a deceased person.

Every executor or administrator (unless by the terms of the will an executor has been exempted from giving a bond) must give bond in such penalty as may be required (usually in double the value of the personal property), conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties imposed upon them by law.

An executor or administrator must within ten days after the receipt of his letters give public notice of his appointment as the court or the clerk may direct.

The term "executor" includes administrator where the subject-matter applies to an administrator.

The court shall if necessary set off to the widow and children under fifteen years of age of the decedent, or to either, sufficient of his property of such kind as it shall deem appropriate to support them for twelve months from the time of his death. The amount of allowance is within the discretion of the court, and while the same will be allowed if the estate is insolvent, the condition of the estate is considered in estimating the amount of the allowance.

On the expiration of six, and within seven, months from the first publication of notice of his appointment, and sooner if required by the court, the executor shall render his account to the court showing the then condition of the estate, its debts and effects, and the amount of money received, and, if any received, what disposition has been made of it by him. Usually settlements are required annually, and final settlements shall be made within three years unless otherwise ordered by the court. (Title XVII. chs. 2, 3, 5.)

Descent and Distribution of Property. — Subject to rights of dower and other charges thereon, the estate of an intestate shall descend in equal shares to his children. The heirs of any deceased child shall inherit his share in same manner as though such child had outlived his parent. If the intestate leaves no issue, the whole of the estate to the amount of seven thousand five hundred dollars after the payment of debts and expenses of administration and one half of all of the estate in excess of said amount shall go to the surviving spouse and the other one half of said excess shall go to the parents. If no spouse, the whole shall go to the parents. (35th G. A. ch. 280.) If he leaves no wife, the whole thereof shall go to his parents or the survivor of them. If both parents be dead, the portion which would have fallen to their share, or either of them, shall be disposed of in same manner as if they had outlived the intestate and died in possession thereof; and so on through ascending ancestors and their issue. If still there be property uninherited it shall escheat to the State.

The personal property of a decedent, not necessary for the payment of debts, nor otherwise disposed of, shall be distributed to the same persons, and in the same proportions, as though it were real estate. (Title XVII, ch. 4.)

When the deceased leaves a widow, all personal property which in his hands as the head of the family would be exempt from execution, after being inventoried and appraised, shall be set apart to her as her own property in her own right, and be exempt in her hands as in the hands of the decedent.

The avails of life or accident insurance are not subject to the debts of the deceased except by special contract or arrangement and shall be disposed of like other property left by the deceased. (Title XVII, ch. 3.)

Collateral Inheritance Tax. — See Inheritance Taxes.

Evidence. — See Testimony.

Execution — May issue immediately upon the rendition of a judgment and at any time before it is barred. Four weeks' notice must be given of time and place of selling real estate, and three weeks' notice of personal property. If not redeemed, the purchaser of real estate is entitled to a sheriff's deed at the end of one year from date of sale, to be placed on record within sixty days from expiration of date of redemption; but during the year for redemption the judgment debtor or his grantee is entitled to the possession of the premises. An execution cannot be issued on a judgment of a justice of the peace (not docketed in the office of the clerk of the district court) after the lapse of ten years from the entry of judgment.

In justice's court, an execution is returnable within thirty days after its issue. In a court of record, return must be made on or before the seventieth day from the date of placing the execution in the hands of the sheriff. See Stay of Execution ; Redemption.

Exemptions. — To an unmarried person not the head of a family and to non-residents there is exempt from execution their own ordinary wearing apparel and trunks necessary to contain the same. If the debtor is a resident of this State, and is the head of a family, he may hold exempt from execution the following property: Wearing apparel of himself and family, kept for actual use and suitable to their condition, and the trunks to contain the same; one musket, or rifle, and shot-gun; all private libraries, family bibles, portraits, pictures, musical instruments, and paintings, not kept for sale; a pew in church; a lot in burying-ground, not to exceed one acre; two cows and two calves; fifty sheep and the wool therefrom, and the materials manufactured from such wool; six stands of bees, five hogs, and all pigs under six months; poultry to the value of fifty dollars; the necessary food for all animals exempt from execution for six months; one bedstead and the necessary bedding for every two in the family; all cloth manufactured by the defendant not exceeding one hundred yards; household and kitchen furniture not exceeding two hundred dollars in value; all spinning-wheels and looms, one sewing-machine, and other instruments of domestic labor kept for actual use; the necessary provisions and fuel for the use of the family for six months; the proper tools, instruments, or books of the debtor, if a farmer, mechanic, surveyor, clergyman, lawyer, physician, teacher, or professor; the horse, or team consisting of not more than two horses or mules, or two yoke of cattle, and the wagon with the proper harness or tackle, by the use of which the debtor, if a physician, public officer, farmer, teamster, or other laborer, habitually earns his living, otherwise one horse; and to the debtor, if a printer, there is also exempt a printing press and the types, furniture, and material necessary for the use of such printing press and a newspaper office connected therewith, not to exceed in value twelve hundred dollars. But if the debtor, being the head of family, has started to leave the State, he will have exempt only the ordinary wearing apparel of himself and family, and seventy-five dollars' worth of property in addition, to be selected by himself. But no exemptions shall extend to property against an execution issued for the purchase-money thereof. The earnings of a debtor, if a resident and head of a family, for his personal services at any time within ninety days next preceding the levy, are also exempt. If a debtor is a seamstress, one sewing-machine shall be exempt from execution and attachment. (Title XII, ch. 3.) No incumbrance or personal property, which may be held exempt from execution by the head of a family, if a resident of this State, under the provisions of law, shall be of any validity unless the same be by written instrument, and unless the husband and wife, if both be living, concur in and sign the same joint instrument. (Title XIV, ch. 4.)

The homestead of every head of a family is exempt from judicial sale. It may be sold on execution for debts contracted prior to the purchase of such homestead; or for those created by written contract, expressly stipulating that it is liable therefor. If within a city or town plat it must not exceed one half acre in extent, and if without, it must not embrace in the aggregate more than forty acres; and in each case embraces all the buildings and improvements thereon, without limitation as to value. But if in either case its value is less than five hundred dollars it may be enlarged until it reaches that amount. Upon the death of either husband or wife, the survivor may continue to possess and occupy the whole homestead. If there is no survivor and no will, the homestead descends to the issue of either husband or wife, and is to be held exempt from any antecedent debts of their parents or their own. (Title XIV. ch. 8.) Money received as a pension from the United States is exempt, whether pensioner is a head of a family or not, and a homestead purchased with such pension money is exempt from all debts, whether contracted prior or subsequent to such purchase. (Title XIX. ch. 3.) The avails of all policies of insurance on the life of any individual payable to his surviving widow shall be exempt from liabilities for all debts of such beneficiary contracted prior to the death of the assured, the total exemption for any one person not exceeding five thousand dollars. (Title IX. ch. 8.) See Insolvent Laws.

Garnishment. — The garnishee and his legal representatives may be held for money owing to defendant, but on debts not yet due execution is suspended until maturity. (Title XIX. ch. 1.) See Attachment.

Employees in Garnishment. — Wages earned outside the State by a non-resident, and payable outside of the State, when the garnishing creditor is a non-resident, shall be exempt when the cause of action arises outside of the State, and the garnishee must plead the exemption, unless the defendant shall be personally served with an original notice in Iowa. (Sup. Title XIX. ch. 3.)

Inheritance Taxes. — The estates of all deceased persons, whether they be inhabitants of this State or not, and whether the property be real or personal, tangible or intangible, which property is, at the time of the death of the decedent owner, within this State, or is subject to, or thereafter becomes subject to, the jurisdiction of the courts of this State, for the purpose of distribution; or the property of any decedent domiciled within this State at the time of the death of such decedent, even though the property of such decedent so domiciled was situated without the State, except real estate located outside the State passing in fee from the decedent owner, which shall pass by will or by the Statutes of Inheritance of this or any other State, or by deed, grant, sale, gift, or transfer made in contemplation of the death of the donor, or to take effect upon such death, or for any use in trust or otherwise other than to or for the use of persons, or uses exempt by this act shall be subject to a tax of five per cent.; provided that when the heirs or other beneficiaries are aliens non-resident of the United States, the tax shall be twenty per cent., except when such foreign beneficiaries are brothers or sisters of the decedent; then it shall be ten per cent. This tax accrues at the death of the owner. It is a legal charge against and lien upon such estate. It shall be paid to the treasurer of the State within eighteen months after the death of the decedent owner.

This tax shall not be collected: (1) When the entire estate after debts are paid does not exceed one thousand dollars. (2) When the property passes to the husband or wife. (3) When the property passes to the father, mother, lineal descendants, adopted child, or the lineal descendant of an adopted child of decedent. (4) When the property passes to educational or religious institutions, public libraries, or public art galleries within this State. (5) When the property passes to hospitals open to the public and not operated for gain, or to organizations of public charity, including cemetery associations. (6) When the property is for the care and maintenance of the cemetery or burial lot of decedent and bequests not exceeding five hundred dollars for religious services. (7) When the property passes to a municipal or political corporation within this State for a purely public purpose.

The district court of the county in which the property, or a part thereof, is situated; or the county of which the deceased was a resident at the time of his death, shall have jurisdiction to determine all questions regularly brought before it in relation to the said tax. The treasurer of the State shall in his name of office represent the State. (Title VI, ch. 12.)

Insolvent Laws. — The national bankruptcy act has practically suspended the operation of the state law of general assignment.

Interest. — The legal rate of interest in this State is six per cent., but parties may agree in writing for the payment of interest not exceeding eight per cent. (Title XV. ch. 2.) If a rate of interest is contracted for greater than this, it works a forfeiture of eight per cent. on amount of contract to the school fund, for which sum judgment shall be rendered by the court against the maker of the note in favor of the State of Iowa, for the use of the school fund, and plaintiff can have judgment for the principal sum only, without interest or costs.

Rate on judgments six per cent., but if a different rate is expressed in the contract, not exceeding eight per cent., such rate must be expressed in the judgment. Open accounts bear interest at six per cent. after six months from the date of the last item. (Title XV. ch. 2.)

Judgments — In the supreme and district courts of this State, or in the district or circuit court of the United States, are liens upon the real estate owned by the defendant at the time of rendition, and also upon all he may subsequently acquire, for the period of ten years from the date of the judgment. If the lands lie in the county wherein the judgment was rendered, the lien attaches from the date of the rendition (and judgments have priority in the order of their rendition according to date); and if in any other county, from the time of filing therein an attested copy of the judgment. (Title XVIII. ch. 9.)

Attorneys' fees may be taxed up in judgments, where provided for in notes given, provided that an affidavit is filed at the commencement of the suit showing that there is no arrangement for a division of the fee with the client, or with any one except a practicing attorney sending the claim. The fee is not to exceed ten per cent. on the first two hundred

Notes and Bills of Exchange. — The Negotiable Instruments Law recommended by the American Bar Association was approved April 12, 1902, and took effect July 4, 1902. (Sup Title XV. ch. 3-a.)

Non-negotiable instruments are assignable by indorsement thereon or by other writing, and the assignee shall have right of action in his own name, subject to any defense or counter-claim which the maker or debtor had against any assignor thereof before notice of this assignment.

Judgment notes are not allowed.

Sunday, January 1st, February 22d, May 30th, July 4th, first Monday in September, December 25th, the day of the general election, and any day appointed or recommended by the governor of this State or by the president of the United States as a day of thanksgiving or fasting, are holidays for all purposes relating to the presentation for payment or acceptance, and the protest and giving of notice of dishonor of bills of exchange, drafts, bank checks, orders, and promissory notes; and any bank or mercantile paper falling due on any of the days above named shall be considered as falling due on the succeeding business day.

The want or failure, in whole or in part, of the consideration of a written contract, may be shown as a defense total or partial, as the case may be, except to negotiable paper transferred in good faith and for a valuable consideration before maturity; but if said paper shall have been procured by fraud upon the maker, no holder of such paper shall recover thereon of the maker a greater sum than he paid therefor with interest and costs. (Title XV. ch. 7.)

Proof of Claims. — In this State non-resident plaintiffs and intervenors may be compelled to give security for costs, and payment thereof is required in advance. The full name, surname, and residence of the parties plaintiff and defendant, whether partners or otherwise, should be given; but partnership firms may sue and be sued by the firm name. In all cases an itemized account should be furnished, giving in detail the merchandise sold, the dates of sale, and the price of each article; and at the same time the attorney should be informed of the names of witnesses by whom the claim can be established.

In actions on open account, when defendant has been personally served and the petition containing a bill of particulars of said account is duly verified, if the defendant makes default, or fails to deny the same or any of the items thereof by a verified pleading, the account, or so much thereof as is not so controverted or denied, shall be taken as true and admitted. (Title XVIII. ch. 8.)

Records. — See Deeds.

Redemption. — Real property need not be appraised, but personal property must be before sale on execution. The defendant may redeem real property sold on execution within one year from the day of sale, in the mean time remaining in possession thereof; but in no action where the defendant has taken an appeal from the district court, or stayed execution on the judgment, shall he be entitled to redeem. During the first six months he has the exclusive right to do so; but after that time any of his creditors whose demand is a lien upon such real estate may redeem the same at any time within nine months from the day of sale. Creditors having the right of redemption may redeem from each other within the time above limited. A creditor redeeming is entitled to receive an assignment of the certificate issued by the sheriff to the original purchaser.

Terms of Redemption. — If by a creditor, the amount bid or paid by the holder of the certificate, including all costs, with interest the same as the lien redeemed from bears; if by the title-holder, the amount of the outstanding certificate and all sums paid by the holder thereof in effecting redemptions, added to the amount of his own lien or the amount he has credited thereon, if less than the whole, with interest as provided in the claims from which redemption is made. (Title XIX. ch. 3.)

Replevin. — In an action for recovery of specific personal property, the petition must be verified by the party, or, if facts are known to him, by his agent or attorney (see Verification); when plaintiff desires immediate delivery of the property he shall execute a bond, with sureties having the same qualification as in attachment proceedings (see Attachment), to be approved by the clerk, in a penalty at least equal to twice the value of the property sought.

Before actual delivery to the plaintiff, the defendant may stay all proceedings and retain the property by executing a bond to the plaintiff, with sureties to be approved by the clerk. (Title XXI. ch. 1.)

Reports, Judicial. — There are 180 volumes of reports of decisions of the supreme court of Iowa, to wit: 1 vol. of Morris's Reports; 4 vols. of Greene's Reports; and 175 vols. cited as "Iowa Reports." These Iowa reports comprise those of the following State Reports, to wit: Clarke, Withrow, Stiles, Runnells, Hight, Ebersole, Raymond, Salinger, and Cornwall.

Notes on Iowa Reports, in ten volumes, four of which are not out, published by T. H. Flood & Co.

Digests of the above have been published as follows: Four volumes by Emlin McClain covering all the Reports from 1839 to the May Term, 1903. Also 4 volumes entitled "McClain's New Iowa Digest," covering all the Reports from 1839 until the end of the January Term, 1908, and a later two-volume digest published by Callaghan & Co.

Annotated Code by the State has been published embracing all general laws with notes and decisions thereon to October 1, 1897, and a new Supplement of 1913 containing the acts of a general and permanent nature of the 33d, 34th, and 35th General Assemblies, and the laws as they appear in the Supplement of the Code, 1907, annotating the same and the Code and the rules of the supreme court and a Supplemental Supplement published every two years.

Revision. — The present Code was adopted in January, and went into effect October 1, 1897, and is known as the Code and Supplement to the Code, 1913.

Service. — In actions commenced in the district court, notice must be served, if within the county where suit is brought, in such time as to leave ten clear days between the day of service and the first day of the next term; if without the county, but within the judicial district, so as to leave fifteen such days; if elsewhere, so as to leave twenty such days for every one thousand miles or fraction thereof between the places of trial and service. If not so served, defendant shall be held to appear at the second term after service. Service by publication may be made by publishing the notice in some newspaper printed in the county where the petition is filed, without addition, four consecutive weeks, which last publication shall be at least ten days before the next term of court. Such service may be made where affidavit is filed that personal service cannot be made in this State in the following cases: In actions brought (1) for the recovery of real property, or an estate or interest therein; (2) for the partition of real property; (3) for the sale of real property under a mortgage, lien, or other incumbrance or charge; (4) to compel the specific performance of a contract of sale of real estate, or in actions to establish or set aside a will, where in such cases any or all of the defendants reside out of this State and the real property is within it; (5) against a non-resident of this State, or a foreign corporation, having in the State property or debts owing to such defendant, sought to be taken by any of the provisional remedies, or to be appropriated in any way; (6) which relate to or the subject of which is real or personal property in this State, when any defendant has or claims a lien or interest, actual or contingent, therein, or the relief demanded consists wholly or partly in excluding him from any interest therein, and such defendant is a non-resident of the State or a foreign corporation; (7) where the defendant, being a resident of the State, has departed therefrom, or from the county of his residence, with intent to delay or defraud his creditors, or to avoid the service of a notice, or keeps himself concealed therein with like intent; (8) and for a divorce, if the defendant is a non-resident of the State, or his residence is unknown. At the time named in the notice for appearance, which must be the second day of the term next after completed service, if the court do not fix some other day by rule, if the defendant fails to appear, judgment by default may be rendered. (Title XVIII. ch. 6.)

Stay of Execution. — If defendant, within ten days from entry of judgment, shall procure one or more sufficient freehold sureties, he may have a stay of execution from the time of rendering judgment, as follows: If the judgment, inclusive of costs, does not exceed one hundred dollars, three months; if such judgment and costs exceed one hundred dollars, six months. All judgments on which stay is taken shall bear same interest as the judgment. Stay cannot be taken on judgments rendered in any court on an appeal or writ of error thereto; or against any officer, person, or corporation, or the sureties of any of them, for money received in a fiduciary capacity, or for the breach of any official duty; or against one who is surety in the stay of execution; or a judgment obtained by a laboring man or mechanic for his wages. No appeal is allowed after a stay of execution has been obtained. (Title XIX. ch. 3.)

Supplementary Proceedings. — When an execution has been returned unsatisfied, plaintiff is entitled to an order for the appearance and examination of debtor; or it may be obtained at any time after the issuing of execution upon proof, by the affidavit of plaintiff or otherwise, that any judgment debtor has property which he unjustly refuses to apply toward the satisfaction of the judgment. If any property is thus discovered, it may be levied upon, and if in the hands of others the court may order it delivered up and applied toward the satisfaction of the judgment; and may also appoint a receiver of debtor's property, forbid the transfer or other disposition of the same, and may order equitable interests in real estate to be sold. If a debtor is about to leave the State or conceal himself, he may be arrested, but admitted to bail upon giving a sufficient bond that he will attend the examination, and in the mean time will not dispose of his property, or any part thereof. (Title XIX. ch. 4.)

Tax Law. — Valuation. — All property subject to taxation shall be valued at its actual value, to wit, its value in the market in the ordinary course of trade, and shall be assessed at twenty-five per cent. of such actual value. Municipal, school, and drainage bonds or certificates hereafter issued are not to be taxed. (Ch. 81, L. 33 G. A.) But for the taxation of moneys and credits, bank stocks and banking capital, see ch. 63, L. 34 G. A., which provides a taxation of five mills on the dollar of actual valuation, without allowing any deduction for debts of the owner. The assessment is made upon twenty per cent. of the actual value found as prescribed by the statute.

Commission merchants are for the purposes of taxation deemed the owners of the property in their possession. (Title VII. ch. 1.)

Every taxpayer shall pay his taxes between the first Monday in January and first day of March following the levy, or he may pay one half thereof before March 1st, and remaining be admitted to probate in this State on the production of a copy of such will and of the original record of probate thereof, authenticated by the attestation of the clerk of the court in which such probate was made; or, if there be no clerk, by the attestation of the judge thereof, and by the seal of office of such officers, if they have a seal.

Wills, foreign or domestic, must be probated before they can be carried into effect.

Wills are recorded in a book kept for that purpose in the office of the clerk of the district court.

The question whether wills typewritten would comply with the statute requiring them in writing has not been determined by our supreme court, but they are now so written; and, following the rule long settled that, when a statute requires the formality of writing, printing is a sufficient compliance, a typewritten will would be valid.

Children may be disinherited.

KANSAS LAWS

Messrs. Vermilion, Evans, Carey & Lilleston, of Wichita.

The next legislature convenes January, 1919.

References are to paragraphs of the General Statutes of Kansas of 1915.

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — A civil action is commenced in the district court by filing a petition in the office of the clerk of the court, and causing a summons to issue thereon. (6949.) There is but one form of civil action, the procedure in which is regulated by a code. Every action must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest, except that an executor, administrator, guardian, trustee of an express trust, a person with whom or in whose name a contract is made for the benefit of another, or a person expressly authorized by statute, may bring an action without joining with him the person for whose benefit it is prosecuted. Officers may sue and be sued in such name as is authorized by law, and official bonds may be sued upon in the same way. (6917.) In the case of an assignment of a thing in action, the action of the assignee shall be without prejudice to any set-off or other defense now allowed, except in the case of negotiable paper transferred before maturity. (6916). A married woman may sue and be sued in the same manner as if she were unmarried. When cause of action accrued under laws of any other State or Territory, it may be sued upon in courts of this State by person or persons authorized to sue where cause accrued.

All persons having an interest in the subject of the action and in obtaining the relief demanded may be joined as plaintiffs. When parties are numerous, or it is impracticable to bring them all before the court, one or more may sue or defend for the benefit of all. (6927.) Persons severally liable upon the same obligation or instrument, including parties to bills of exchange and promissory notes, and indorsers and guarantors, may all or any of them be included in the same action, at the option of plaintiff. (6928.)

Actions concerning real estate must be brought in the county in which the land or a part of it is situated. All other actions must be brought in the county in which defendants, or some of them, reside or may be summoned, except actions against foreign corporations and non-residents; in the latter case the action may be brought in any county where the defendant has property or debts owing to it. Actions against foreign corporations doing business in State may be brought in county where cause of action arose or plaintiff may reside. See Corporations. In actions against home or domestic corporations the action may be brought in the county in which the corporation is situated, or has its principal office or place of business, or in which any of the principal officers reside or may be summoned; but if such corporation be an insurance company, the action may be brought in the county where the cause of action, or some part thereof, arose. (Art. 5 of Code.) Actions against railroad, telegraph, telephone, or pipe-line companies or stage owners for injury to persons or property on their roads or lines may be brought in the county through which the road or line passes; or such action may be brought in the county where the principal office or place of business of the railroad company is located. (Ch. 237, L. 1913.) Actions for divorce, to annul a contract of marriage, or for alimony, may be brought in the county in which the plaintiff is a resident, or where the defendant resides or may be summoned.

Any person claiming property, money, effects, or credits attached may interplead in the cause, verifying the same by affidavit made by himself, agent, or attorney, and issues may be made upon such interpleader and shall be tried as like issues between plaintiff and defendant, and without any unnecessary delay. (6935.)

Bond as security for costs must be given by the plaintiff in every case before summons can be issued by the clerk, except resident plaintiff files his affidavit that his cause of action is just and that he is unable to pay costs, or a non-resident plaintiff deposits a sum of money satisfactory to the clerk, or a resident plaintiff deposits fifteen dollars. (7510.) The court may subsequently require either party asking relief to give security in an amount fixed by the court and increase it from time to time.

The answer or demurrer of defendant shall be filed within twenty days after the day on which the summons is returnable. The reply or demurrer shall be filed within thirty days after the day on which the summons was made returnable. The demurrer to the reply shall be filed within forty days after the day on which the summons was made returnable. (6999.)

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Affidavits. — Affidavits may be made out of the State by same authority and with like authentication as depositions. See Depositions.

Aliens. — No distinction between citizens and aliens in reference to purchase, enjoyment, or descent of property.

Foreign corporations more than twenty per cent. of whose capital stock is owned by aliens are required to dispose of all real estate within three years after acquiring title thereto by foreclosure on pain of forfeiture to the State. (Laws 1901, ch. 260.)

Foreign corporations have a right to receive, take, purchase, and hold by mortgage or otherwise any securities and liens executed, given, or intended to represent or secure loans upon or purchase-money on lands or other property in this State, and to sell, assign, transfer and sue upon, foreclose, or otherwise enforce the same.

No other restriction on foreign corporation holding title to land.

Title to real estate may be acquired by banks, first, for the transaction of their business, and, second, in satisfaction of debt—either by voluntary conveyance or as purchasers at judicial sales — but in the second instance can be held only five years.

Appeals. — Appeals from judgment of justice of the peace are taken by filing, within ten days from rendition of judgment, bond not less than fifty dollars, nor less than double the amount of judgment, with surety to be approved by the justice. Municipality may file statement in writing and affidavit, in lieu of bond.

All reviews of judgment and orders by inferior courts are by appeals. Notice of appeal to supreme court must be filed in the trial court and copy thereof served on adverse party or his attorney. Proof of service must be filed with the clerk. Certified copy of notice of appeal to the supreme court, of proof of service and of the judgment must be deposited by the clerk in the supreme court. The appeal must be perfected within six months from the date of the judgment or order appealed from. Notice of appeal may be amended at any time before hearing and additional parties brought in upon application to the appellate court. A certified transcript of the testimony may be ordered by either party and made a part of the record of the trial court. The supreme court hears all cases on abstracts of the record in the lower court, prepared by the party or parties to the action, with authority, however, to order any part of the record to be sent up, and in all cases except those triable by jury as a matter of constitutional right, to receive further testimony and to allow amendments of pleadings or process. (7471-7484.)

Arrests. — There can be no imprisonment for debt except in cases of fraud. Upon the plaintiff filing an affidavit stating the nature of his claim, that it is just, and the amount thereof as near as may be, and showing that the defendant has removed, or begun to remove, his property out of the jurisdiction of the court with intent to defraud his creditors, or that he has begun to convert his property into money in order to place it beyond the reach of his creditors, or that he has property or rights in action which he fraudulently conceals, or that he has assigned, removed, or disposed of, or has begun to dispose of, his property with intent to defraud his creditors, or that he fraudulently contracted the debt or incurred the obligation for which the suit is brought, and giving security in not exceeding double the plaintiff's claim as sworn to for all damages sustained by defendant if the order is wrongfully obtained, the clerk issues an order of arrest. Justices of the peace have similar authority. After arrest, the defendant may be released from custody by giving bail or depositing money in court in lieu thereof. (7040-7051.) For practically the same reasons above set forth, the debtor may also be subjected to arrest under proceedings in aid of execution allowed by the court or judge after judgment. (7411-7413.)

Assignments. — The operation of the assignment law is limited by the national bankruptcy act of 1898.

Attachment. — At or after the commencement of an action for the recovery of money an attachment may be had against the property of the defendant by either a resident or non-resident plaintiff. The affidavit of the plaintiff, his agent or attorney, must be made at or after the commencement of the action, stating the nature of the plaintiff's claim, that it is just, the amount which the affiant believes the plaintiff ought to recover, and the existence of some one or more of the following grounds: First, that defendant, or one of several defendants, is a foreign corporation or a non-resident of the State; or second, that the defendant, or one of several defendants, has absconded with the intention to defraud his creditors; or third, that the defendant has left the county of his residence to avoid the service of summons; or fourth, that he conceals himself that a summons cannot be served upon him; or fifth, is about to remove his property or a part thereof out of the jurisdiction of the court, with the intent to defraud his creditors; or sixth, is about to convert his property or a part thereof into money for the purpose of placing it beyond the reach of his creditors; or seventh, has property or rights in action which he conceals; or eighth, has assigned, removed, or disposed of, or is about to dispose of, his property or a part thereof, with the intent to defraud, hinder, or delay his creditors; or ninth, fraudulently contracted or incurred the debt, liability, or obligation on which the suit is brought; or tenth, that the suit is brought for damages arising from the commission of some felony or misdemeanor, or the seduction of any female; or eleventh, that the debtor has failed to pay for any article or thing delivered, for which by contract he was bound to pay upon delivery. (7082 et seq.)

Where a debtor has sold, conveyed, or otherwise disposed of his property with the fraudulent intent to cheat or defraud his creditors, or to hinder or delay them in the collection of their debts, or is about to make such sale, conveyance, or disposition of his property with such fraudulent intent, or is about to remove his property, or a material part thereof, with the intent or to the effect of cheating or defrauding his creditors, or of hindering or delaying them in the collection of their debts, a creditor may bring an action on his claim before it is due and have an attachment against the property of the defendant; but an order of the judge of the court, or, in his absence, the probate judge, must be had allowing such attachment upon bond and affidavit as above. But justices of the peace cannot issue attachments on debts not due. (32 Kan. 176.)

Upon proper suit in one county attachment orders may issue to other counties.

The court, or any judge thereof during vacation, may, on application of plaintiff, on good cause shown, issue an order to preserve property and collect accounts, etc.

To obtain an attachment an undertaking must be given on the part of the plaintiff in double the amount of the claim, with one or more sureties to be approved by the clerk of the court, or, in an action before a justice of the peace, to be approved by the justice. Sureties need not be owners of real estate. No bond or undertaking is, however, required, if the parties defendant are all non-residents of the State or a foreign corporation.

Subsequent attaching creditors do not share with first attaching creditors, but in the order in which they are levied.

In actions in the district court founded on contract or judgment at any stage of proceedings, and in all actions after judgment, the plaintiff, without regard to the existence of grounds for attachment, may garnish funds or property of his debtor in the hands of third parties, by filing an affidavit stating the amount of his claim over and above all offsets and that affiant verily believes that some person, naming him, is indebted, etc.: that defendant has not property liable to execution sufficient to satisfy plaintiff's demand; and that he believes the fund or property sought to be garnished is not exempt; and filing therewith a bond to defendants as provided by statute and causing garnishee summons to issue. He may file other affidavits against funds or property subsequently acquired. The garnishee stands liable to plaintiff for property and funds held at the time of service of summons or subsequently acquired. The garnishee must answer in twenty days. If he fails to do so he is liable to plaintiff for the full amount of his judgment and costs. His answer is conclusive unless the plaintiff in twenty days serves on him a written notice that he takes issue with the answer, in which case there is a trial between them in the nature of an ordinary civil action, in which, if the plaintiff proves more than the garnishee admitted, plaintiff recovers costs, including an attorney's fee of twenty-five dollars. The garnishee may defend the principal action if the defendant does not; or the defendant, upon verified answer, may defend the proceedings against the garnishee. The garnishee may be examined out of court by deposition before the probate judge or a notary public designated by the judge of the court where the action is pending in the county of his residence, or out of the State upon commission. The garnishee may interplead other parties than the defendant claiming the fund. The garnishee is not liable to action by the defendant garnisheed pending the proceedings against the garnishee; or for any fund or property applied under order of the court. But defendant may, by filing proper bond to plaintiff have the garnishee released and thereon collect from him.

Shares in any corporation having a general office in this State may be attached.

Garnishment, with quite similar but simpler proceedings, and without bond, may be sued out before a justice of the peace upon oath of the claimant that he is otherwise in danger of losing his demand.

Chattel Mortgages. — Every chattel mortgage, or conveyance intended to operate as such, which shall not be accompanied by an immediate delivery and followed by an actual and continued change of possession of the thing mortgaged, shall be absolutely void as against the creditors of the mortgagor and subsequent purchasers and mortgagees in good faith, unless the mortgage or a true copy thereof shall be forthwith deposited in the office of the register of deeds in the county where the property is at the time; or if the mortgagor be a resident of the State, then of the county of which he shall at the time be a resident. And every such mortgage shall be void as against the creditors of the mortgagors or subsequent purchasers or mortgagee in good faith after the expiration of two years after the same was filed, unless within thirty days next preceding the expiration of said two years and each two years thereafter, the mortgagee, his agent or attorney, shall make an affidavit exhibiting the interest of the mortgagee in the property at that time and the amount yet due thereon. But such affidavit may be filed any time before purchase, or other mortgage deposited, or lien obtained in good faith; mortgagee may also secure himself by taking possession before other rights attach. (23 Kan. 421.) Such affidavit must be attached to and filed with the instrument or copy on file to which it relates. Mortgage can be foreclosed any time after breach of condition before debt is barred. (6495 et seq.)

A mortgagee of chattels, after condition broken, may sell the same on ten days' notice by posted hand-bills without further proceedings. Or, if the mortgage so provides, he may sell at private sale; or if the mortgagee has taken possession (as authorized to do at any time), the mortgagor or a subsequent mortgagee may, before or after condition broken, demand sale on notice as above. Any surplus goes to mortgagor or subsequent mortgagee. A chattel mortgage of exempt property must be signed by husband and wife jointly. Any chattel mortgagor who shall sell or dispose of the mortgaged property with intent to hinder, defraud, or delay the mortgagee, shall be deemed guilty of larceny, and on conviction shall be punished as for petty larceny, if the amount be less than twenty dollars; for grand larceny if more. It is made an offense for a mortgagee who has assigned the mortgage to release it with intent to defraud the owner or mortgagor.

Any and all instruments in writing, or promissory notes, now in existence or hereafter executed, evidencing the conditional sale of personal property, and that retain the title to the same in the vendor until the purchase-price is paid in full, shall be void as against innocent purchasers, or the creditors of the vendee, unless the original instrument, or a true copy thereof, shall have been deposited in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county wherein the property shall be kept, and when so deposited shall be subject to the law applicable to the filing of chattel mortgages; and any conditional verbal sale of personal property reserving to the vendor any title in the property sold shall be void as to creditors and innocent purchasers for value. Penalty of one hundred dollars and attorney's fee, and additional damages proven for failure to enter satisfaction on demand after payment. (6495-6516.)

Claims against the Estates of Deceased Persons. — Executors and administrators must publish notice of appointment in newspaper in thirty days after appointment. This is the only notice to creditors required. (4513.) Claims against the estates of deceased persons must be presented to, allowed, and classified by the probate court of the county where administration is had, or letters testamentary are granted, or any person having a demand against an estate may establish the same by the judgment or decree of some court of record in the ordinary course of legal proceedings, and exhibit a copy of such judgment or decree to the probate court for allowance; but the estate is not liable for any costs incurred in any such proceeding if commenced within a year from the date of the letters of administration. Demands not exceeding fifty dollars may be paid by the administrator without the order of the probate court, upon the same affidavit being made as would be required for the allowance of the account by the probate court. (4574.) No claim shall be presented unless the claimant first make oath in open court, or file an affidavit with such claim, "stating to the best of his knowledge and belief he has given credit to the estate for all payments and offsets to which it is entitled, and that the balance claimed is justly due to the claimant." Neither the oath nor affidavit of any creditor or his assignor can be received to establish a demand exceeding fifty dollars; but in all such cases the demand must be established by competent evidence produced before the probate court. Such evidence may be by depositions taken by claimant at his expense and with the written consent of executor or administrator. The hearing is summary without pleading, but the evidence must be legal.

All demands against an estate not presented for allowance within two years from the date of the letters of administration are forever barred, except as against infants, persons of unsound mind, or imprisoned persons, or persons absent from the United States; these classes have one year after the disability is removed. (4565.) All demands against an estate must be presented and classified as follows, to wit: 1st. Funeral expenses. 2d. Expenses of last sickness, wages of servants, demands for medicines and medical attendances during the last sickness of the deceased, and the expenses of administration. 3d. Debts due the State. 4th. Judgments rendered against the deceased in his lifetime; but if any such judgments shall be liens upon the real estate of the deceased, and the estate shall be insolvent, such judgments as are liens upon the real estate shall be paid without reference to classifications, except that the classes of demands mentioned in the first and second subdivisions of this section shall have precedence of such judgments. 5th. All demands, without regard to quality, which shall be legally exhibited against the estate within one year after the granting of the first letters on the estate. 6th. All demands thus exhibited after the end of one year and within two years after letters are granted. (Ch. 188, Laws 1911.) (4564.)

A person desiring to establish a claim against an estate in the ordinary way, through the probate court, may do so by serving upon the executor or administrator, ten days before the claim is presented for allowance, a written notice, stating the amount and nature of his claim, giving a copy of the writing, instrument, or account upon which the claim is founded, and stating that such claim will be presented to the probate court for allowance at a time and place to be stated in the notice. The administrator or executor, however, may waive this notice, by his written waiver, or by appearance in open court. All demands of fifty dollars or less may be heard and determined by the court; when over fifty dollars, either party may demand a jury trial. (4580.)

In the granting of letters of administration preference is given to the surviving wife or husband, then to the next of kin, or both, as the court may think proper, and if they are incompetent or unsuitable, or neglect for twenty days after service of citation, to be issued thirty days after death, to take administration of the estate, then administration shall be granted to one or more of the principal creditors, and, if they do not apply, then to any proper person. (4496.)

The tenor of the bond is substantially to administer faithfully, and the amount must be double the inventory of the personal estate. (4497.)

Administrators must account annually, and at other times when required by the court.

Final settlement of an estate must be made, after publication of notice, at least within thirty days after expiration of two years from the date executor or administrator qualified, unless reasonable grounds be shown whereby the court may order an extension of the time. (Chs. 217, 218, L. 1915.)

No other proof of claims against estates is required of non-residents than of residents of this State.

Letters testamentary and of administration shall in no case be granted to a non-resident of this State, and when an executor or administrator shall become a non-resident, the probate court having jurisdiction of the estate of the testator or intestate of such executor or administrator shall revoke his letters. (4572) Executors or administrators appointed in any other State, Territory, or foreign country, where none has been appointed in this, may administer in this by filing copy of appointment and bond, and under same rule as if resident here, but if bond is not shown to be good, they may be required to give one here. A foreign executor or administrator may sue to collect a debt due from a person found in this State.

Consignments. — There is no law on this subject save the common law of bailments and the ordinary statutes concerning embezzlement.

Corporations. — By the Constitution, the legislature shall pass no special act conferring corporate powers. This section is held to be applicable to municipal corporations (Atchison v. Bartholow, 4 Kan. 124) Corporations must be created under the general law, but all such laws may be amended or repealed. Stockholders are liable to creditors for amount of unpaid stock.

Corporations are authorized for almost every business enterprise. Application for charter is made to the charter board, composed of the attorney-general, secretary of state, and state bank commissioner. Said application must state name, location, purpose, names and addresses of incorporators, and proposed amount of capital stock. After satisfactory investigation the charter board will issue the charter, which must be filed with the secretary of state. The duration of a private corporation is fifty years (2110) The charter when issued shall also recite in addition to the foregoing, the names and addresses of the directors appointed for the first year, the number of shares into which the capital stock is divided, and the names and addresses of the stockholders, and the number of shares held by each. The application for permission to organize must be accompanied by a fee of twenty-five dollars, and upon charter being granted there must be further paid a fee of one tenth of one per cent of the authorized capital upon the first one hundred thousand dollars, or any part thereof, the minimum capitalization fee being ten dollars, and one twentieth of one per cent of the amount of capital over and above one hundred thousand dollars. In addition, two dollars and fifty cents for filing and recording charter not exceeding ten folios, and twenty-five cents for each additional folio. The corporation must commence active business within one year after filing its charter (2154), provided that it may not begin business until it shall file with the secretary of state an affidavit made by its president and secretary that not less than twenty per cent of its authorized capital has been paid in actual cash. (2110) Corporations applying for renewal of their charters must comply with all provisions governing organization of new corporations.

Foreign corporations desiring to transact business must make application to the charter board, setting forth certified copy of its charter, place of business, nature of same, names and addresses of officers or directors and stockholders, a detailed statement of assets and liabilities, and such other information as the board may require, the statement to be subscribed and sworn to by the president and secretary or managing officer (2137 et seq.) Must be accompanied by a fee of twenty five dollars. Must also file a certified copy of its charter, executed by the proper officer of the State or country where incorporated. A condition precedent to obtaining authority to transact business is the filing with the secretary of state by the corporation of its consent, irrevocable, that actions may be commenced against it in the proper court of any county in this State where the cause of action arose or in which plaintiff may reside, by service upon the secretary of state, such a consent to be executed by the president and secretary of the company, authenticated by its seal and accompanied by a duly certified copy of the order of the board of directors or trustees or managers authorizing the president and secretary to execute the same. Summons in actions against such foreign corporations shall be directed to secretary of state, and fix answer day not less than forty nor more than sixty days from date, and true copy must be immediately forwarded to the secretary of the corporation. (2139) Foreign corporations desiring to do business in the State must also pay a capitalization fee of one tenth of one per cent on the proportion of its capital stock which it invests or uses in the State, where such amount is one hundred thousand dollars or less, and in addition thereto, if the sum so invested or used exceed said sum, one twentieth of one per cent on all over and above one hundred thousand dollars. In case such corporation increases its capital stock this tax shall likewise be based on the amount of its capital used in the State. The duration of the license to a foreign corporation is limited to fifty years, being limited in any event by the life of the corporation. (Ch. 127 L. 1911)

The secretary of state, if cause therefor appears, may investigate at the expense of the corporation applying, concerning its corporate capital, business, and assets, and may require an additional capitalization fee based upon such investigation. Stockholders are liable for any unpaid subscription, such liability to be considered an asset of the corporation in event of insolvency and collected by a receiver for benefit of all creditors.

Every corporation for profit doing business in the State, except banking, insurance, and building and loan associations or corporations, is required to file, on or before March 31 of each year, a statement of the condition of the corporation at the close of business on the 31st day of December next preceding. Domestic corporations are required to make a return, under oath of the president and secretary, showing authorized and paid-up capital stock, par value of the stock, assets and liabilities, number of shares held by each stockholder, names and addresses of stockholders, and officers and manager for the ensuing year. Similar information including the location of its principal office or place of business within and without the State, the names of its officers or agents in charge of its business within the State, the value of its property used in the State and where situated, and the value of the property owned and used outside of the State is required of every foreign corporation doing business in Kansas. A graduated annual tax is imposed upon domestic corporations in accordance with the paid up capital stock ranging from ten dollars in case of a corporation with a paid up capital of ten thousand dollars or less to two thousand and five hundred on one whose paid up capital stock exceeds five million dollars. Foreign corporations authorized to do business in the State must pay the same tax based upon the proportion of the issued capital stock of the company devoted to its Kansas business, this proportion being determined by the amount of its property located and used in the State. Failure to file the annual report and pay the fees prescribed subjects the corporation to penalties and may work a forfeiture of the charter, or authority to do business in the State. (Ch. 135, L. 1913.) (2167 et seq.)

An insolvent corporation, or one which abuses its corporate privileges, may be dissolved in an action brought in the proper district court on petition of the attorney-general supported by affidavit. A receiver may be appointed in this action to wind up the affairs of the company. (2182.)

If any execution shall be issued against the property or effects of a corporation and no property found, such corporation shall be deemed to be insolvent, and a receiver will be appointed upon application, who shall collect unpaid subscriptions, together with the statutory liability of stockholders, and hold all assets for the benefit of all creditors.

The legislature of 1891 also passed an act providing for the organization and regulation of banks, creating the department of state bank commissioner, and placing such corporations under its supervision. An amended act was passed in 1897, very complete in its terms. Corporations may also be organized as savings banks under other provisions of the statutes without power of issue and with capital of not less than fifty thousand dollars, of which ten per cent. must be paid in. The state courts have decided that such banks cannot speculate in their own stock nor in tax titles.

Investment companies are prohibited from selling or offering for sale within the State stocks, bonds, contracts, or other securities, except United States, state, or municipal bonds, bank or building and loan stock, or notes secured by mortgage on Kansas real estate, without a permit from the bank commissioner. (Ch. 164, L. 1915.)

Common carriers and practically all other persons or corporations owning or furnishing public utilities are subject to the supervision of the public utilities commission. (Ch. 238, L. 1911.)

Every corporation, except state and municipal, employing mechanics, laborers, or other servants, is required to pay their wages as often as semi-monthly. (Ch. 165, L. 1915.)

(6465.)

As between the parties, and such as have actual notice thereof, conveyances are valid without being recorded. The wife should join with her husband in the conveyance; but this is not necessary if at the time of making the deed she has never been a resident of the State, unless the land in question is the homestead. (See Descent and Distribution of Property, infra.) Power of attorney to execute instruments conveying or affecting land must be acknowledged and recorded, before executing such instruments. If within the State, the acknowledgment must be before some judge or clerk of a court having a seal, justice, notary public, who must use an official seal, county clerk, register of deeds, or mayor or clerk of an incorporated city. The wife need not be examined apart from her husband. Neither seals, scrolls, nor wafers are required in the execution of a deed by a private person. Corporations must execute conveyances under the corporate seal. Any corporation may convey lands by deeds, sealed with the common seal of the corporation, and signed by the president, or the presiding member or trustee, of said corporation, and such deed, when acknowledged by such officer to be the act of the corporation or proved in the manner prescribed for other conveyances of lands, may be recorded in like manner and with the same effect as other deeds.

An acknowledgement may be written, printed, or pasted on the instrument.

Depositions. — Depositions are taken upon notice to the opposite party. (7247 et seq.) The notice must be served so as to allow the adverse party sufficient time, by the usual route of travel, to attend, and one day for preparation, exclusive of Sunday and the day of service. Courts are also authorized to appoint commissioners to take depositions. Depositions cannot be taken in shorthand and afterward transcribed unless by consent.

Instructions for taking Depositions. — Begin with the following caption: "Depositions of sundry witnesses taken before me (here insert the name of the magistrate and his official character, as justice of the peace, notary public, etc.) within and for the county of _____ in the _____ of _____ on the _____ day of _____ in the year _____ between the hours of _____ A. M. and _____ P. M. at _____ in said county, pursuant to the annexed notice or agreement (as the case may be), to be read in evidence on behalf of the (defendant or plaintiff, as the case may be) in the said action. A. B. of lawful age, being by me first duly examined, cautioned, and solemnly sworn (or affirmed) to testify the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, depose and said that " (here write the deposition), and so on with the witnesses.

The depositions may be taken by stating the facts in narrative form, or in reply to questions first written down.

The deposition may be taken before any judge, justice, or chancellor of any court of record, a justice of the peace, notary public, mayor or chief magistrate of any city or town corporate: or a commissioner appointed by the governor of the State of Kansas to take depositions, — such officer not to be attorney or relative of either party, or clerk or stenographer of either party or of the attorney of either party, or otherwise interested in the event of the suit. The supreme court has decided that a notary public has no power to compel the attendance of a witness before him for the purpose of taking his deposition.

When the adverse party, his agent or employee, being without the jurisdiction of the court, is duly served with notice to take depositions, and fails to comply with the notice and appear at the place designated (providing it be in the city or county of the usual place of residence or place of business), the court before which the action is pending may on application render judgment in favor of the party seeking to take depositions.

If there are adjournments, they shall be noted by the magistrate or other officer, from day to day, at the close of the day, and legal reasons therefor given.

Objections should be entered to witnesses supposed to be interested, and to questions supposed to be illegal. This entry is made on behalf of the party raising the objection, simply by a short note made by the magistrate or officer taking the depositions.

" Exceptions to depositions shall be in writing, specifying the ground of objection, and filed with the papers in the cause."

" No exception other than for incompetency or irrelevancy shall be regarded, unless made and filed before the commencement of the trial."

" The court shall, on motion of either party, hear and decide the questions arising on exceptions to depositions before the commencement of the trial."

Each witness must sign his own deposition, unless signature is waived by the parties.

The notice must be attached to the depositions and inclosed with them.

The depositions should be commenced on the day named, and some portion of a deposition taken on each successive day, Sundays excepted.

When depositions are taken under an agreement, the above instructions will be followed, except where they are modified by the agreement. In such case the agreement will be followed. It should be attached to the depositions, if sent, and referred to in the caption, as the notice is, when taken under a notice.

If taken by interrogatories and cross-interrogatories, under agreement or otherwise, each interrogatory and cross-interrogatory must be put to each witness and answered so far as he can answer it, and the answer written down. The deposition must show that each interrogatory and cross-interrogatory was thus put and answered.

The fees for taking depositions should be taxed, and a memorandum made by whom they were paid. Close the depositions with a certificate in the form following, namely: —

I, A. B. (naming the official character of the magistrate according to the fact), do hereby certify that (naming all of the witnesses who have testified) were by me first severally sworn (or affirmed) to testify the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, and that the depositions by them respectively subscribed as above set forth were reduced to writing by myself (or if by any other person name him, and say, by _____ who is not interested in the suit, in my presence and) in the presence of the witnesses respectively, and were respectively subscribed by the said witness (or witnesses in my presence, and were taken at the time and place in the annexed notice (or agreement) specified; viz., on the _____ day of _____ 19 between the hours of _____ A. M. and _____ P. M. and at _____ in _____ of _____ county of _____ and State of _____; that I am not attorney, or relative of either party, or otherwise interested in the event of this suit, or clerk or stenographer of either party, or attorney of either party; (if there be adjournments, add) and commenced at the time in the notice specified, and continued by adjournments from day to day, as above stated.

(Signed)

A. B.

If the depositions are taken before the mayor, notary public, or commissioner appointed as aforesaid, they must be certified under his official seal. If before any of the other officers above named, a certificate must be annexed, under the seal of the court of the county or the great seal of the State, that the officer by whom the depositions were taken was, at the time of taking the same, such officer as he represents himself to be in his certificate. This should be attached to the magistrate's certificate.

This proof of official character is omitted when waived by agreement of parties at the foot of notice. This agreement does not waive the taking depositions at the time and place named in the notice.

The whole should be sealed up by the magistrate, the title of the suit indorsed on the outside, the name of the officer taking the same, and " depositions on behalf " (the party taking the same) and addressed to the " clerk of the at Kansas," or " justice of the peace, at " as the case may be. The officer before whom the depositions are taken should indorse across the back of the envelope, " These depositions sealed up by me," and sign his name officially thereto.

Descent and Distribution of Property. — The homestead is the absolute property of the widow and children, one half in value to the widow and the other half to the children, where both survive. If there are no children, the widow is entitled to the homestead; if children are left and no widow, the children take it. To constitute a homestead, the land must be occupied by the family. If the deceased left a widow and children, the homestead cannot be divided until the youngest child arrives at the age of majority, unless the widow again marry. One half of all the real estate in which the husband, at any time during the marriage, had a legal or equitable interest, which has not been sold on execution or other judicial sale, and not necessary for the payment of debts, and of which the wife has made no conveyance, goes to the widow; except of land conveyed by husband whose wife never resided in the State; and this interest is in fee simple. (3831.) Personal property, exempt from execution, goes to the widow and children, being treated in the same way as the homestead. The remaining half of the real estate owned by the deceased at the time of his death, and in the absence of other arrangements by will, descends in equal shares to his children surviving him and the living issue, if any, of prior deceased children; but such issue shall collectively inherit only that share to which their parent would have been entitled had he been living. If no children or issue of children are living, the whole of the estate goes to the widow. The personal property not necessary for the payment of debts, or disposed of according to law, is distributed to the same persons and in the same proportions as if it were real estate. For want of wife or child, the whole estate goes to the parents, or surviving parent. If both parents are dead, the estate is disposed of as if they, or either of them, had outlived the intestate and died in ownership and possession.

The rules applicable to the widow of a deceased husband apply equally to the husband of a deceased wife (3850), except that a general and beneficial power may be given to a married woman to dispose of or devise, without the concurrence of her husband, lands conveyed or devised to her in fee. Any married person having no children may devise one half of his or her property to other persons than the husband or wife.

Illegitimate children inherit from the mother and she from them. (3844 et seq.) They inherit from the father when his recognition of them has been general and notorious or in writing, and he from them if such recognition has been mutual. When an illegitimate child would inherit from either parent, such parent will inherit from the child. Neither husband nor wife can bequeath away from the other more than one half of his or her property, unless consent in writing is given thereto; and the survivor by relinquishing all rights under a will, will inherit as if no will existed.

Estates of joint tenants, or tenants by entirety, descend and pass by devise in the same manner as the estates of tenants in common, survivorship having been abolished, except as to trust estates.

Divorce. — Divorces are granted by district court for the following causes only: former existing marriage; one year's abandonment; adultery; impotency; pregnancy of wife by other than her husband; extreme cruelty; fraudulent contract; habitual drunkenness; gross neglect of duty; conviction of felony, and imprisonment in the penitentiary therefor subsequent to marriage; and an action may be commenced to declare the marriage void for want of capacity or understanding of the parties. (7571.) Subsequent cohabitation is a defense. The plaintiff must have resided in the State one year, and sue in county of residence, by petition under oath. In case of service by publication, a certified copy of petition and notice, within three days after first publication, must be mailed to the defendant, and such service must be proved by affidavit, or the plaintiff must make affidavit that the residence of the defendant is unknown and cannot be ascertained by means under control of plaintiff. The residence of the plaintiff gives jurisdiction. Divorce cases cannot be tried until after sixty days after the filing of the petition, except in case of an emergency. (Ch. 234. L. 1913.)

Both the husband and wife are made competent witnesses against each other, provided that the divorce may not be granted upon the uncorroborated testimony of either. Their admissions may be testified to, and depositions may be used; temporary alimony pendente lite and suit money may be allowed by court, or judge in vacation. The wife's maiden name may be restored and the custody of children awarded to her. A decree of alimony has the same effect, and may be enforced, as any other money judgment. Divorce is no bar to future marriage. But proceedings to reverse decree of divorce must be commenced within four months after its rendition, after written notice thereof in ten days from judgment; and if such notice be given and proceedings commenced, it shall be unlawful for either party to marry any other person until thirty days after judgment of appellate court; or within six months in any event during which time it is bigamy for either party to marry and marriage is void. Alimony may be sued for without divorce. After petition filed, the court or judge in vacation may control, by order, the children and restrain the disposition of the property. A judgment or decree of divorce duly rendered upon service by publication in any other State shall have the same force as if it had been rendered by the courts of this State.

Dower. — The estates of dower and by curtesy are abolished.

day on which they are rendered, at the rate of six per cent. per annum, except as herein otherwise provided.

When a rate of interest is specified in any contract, that rate shall continue until full payment is made, and any judgment rendered on any such contract shall bear the same rate of interest mentioned in the contract, which rate shall be specified in the judgment: but in no case shall such rate exceed ten per cent. per annum, and any bond, note, bill, or other contract for the payment of money, which in effect provides that any interest or any higher rate of interest shall accrue as a penalty for any default, shall be void as to any such provisions.

Judgments. — Judgments of courts of record are liens on the real estate of the debtor within the county, from the first day of the term at which the judgment is rendered; but judgments by confession, and judgments rendered at the same term during which the action was commenced, are liens only from the day on which judgment was entered. (7320.) A certified copy of the judgment, filed in the office of the clerk of the district court of any other county, makes the judgment a lien on real estate in that county from the date of filing said copy; but execution can only be issued from the court in which the judgment is rendered. Judgments are liens on real estate for five years, and may be continued by revival of the judgment. Justices' judgments become liens upon the real estate of the judgment debtor by filing transcript in the district court of the county in which they were rendered. (7422.)

If defendant does not answer when required by the summons served upon him, judgment may be taken against him by default, if the court is in session, for the amount shown by the evidence and pleadings to be due. This judgment by default may be taken in thirty days, perhaps in some cases in twenty-two days after suit brought, in a court of record, the defendant having twenty days from return day of summons to plead.

Before a justice of the peace, judgment may be obtained in three days and not less.

Provisions for attorneys' fees in any note, bill of exchange, bond, or mortgage or other contract for the payment of money, cannot be enforced. Such provision, however, does not render the note non-negotiable. Attorneys' fees may be recovered, however, in actions against railway companies for damages to stock where road is not inclosed with lawful fence, or loss of property by fire through negligence of railroad company.

An attorney's fee of twenty-five dollars is also awarded prevailing party in garnishment proceeding where there is a trial upon issue between the plaintiff and garnishee.

Attorneys' fees are also allowed in action on fire insurance policy, in suit for wages from corporations.

Copies of records and proceedings in the courts of a foreign country may be admitted in evidence upon being authenticated as follows: First, by the official attestation of the clerk or officer in whose custody such records are legally kept; second, by the certificate of one of the judges or magistrates of such court that the person so attesting is the clerk or officer legally intrusted with the custody of such records, and that the signature to his attestation is genuine.

Proof of judgments of other States is made according to act of Congress approved May 26, 1790, 1 Stat. at Large, p. 122, § 1. (Rev. Stat. U. S. p. 170, § 905.)

Liens. — Attorney's. — An attorney has a lien for a general balance of compensation upon any papers of his client which have come into his possession in the course of his professional employment; upon money in his hands belonging to his client, and upon money due to his client and in the hands of the adverse party in a matter, action, or proceeding in which the attorney was employed, from the time of giving notice of the lien to that party. This notice must be in writing. Notice may be served as summons upon any person, officer, or agent upon whom summons may be lawfully served, and also upon regularly employed salaried attorney of party. (484.)

Hotel and boarding-house keepers are given a lien on baggage and other property of the guest brought to the hotel for the amount of the bill and for moneys advanced not exceeding two hundred dollars. (Ch. 205, L. 1913.)

Mechanics. — Persons furnishing, under contract with the owner of land or his trustee, agent, husband, or wife, material or labor for the erection, alteration, or repair of any building, improvement, or structure thereon; or performing labor, or furnishing material in putting up any structures, fixtures, or machinery in or attachment to any such building, structure, or improvement; or planting trees, vines, plants, or hedges on said land; or building, altering, or repairing, or furnishing any labor or material therefor, any fence or foot walk on or in the street abutting upon said land, shall have a lien on the whole of said land, the buildings, and appurtenances, as hereafter described, for the amount due him therefor. Such liens shall be preferred to all other incumbrances attaching to such property subsequent to the commencement of such building or the furnishing or putting up of such fixtures or machinery, or the planting of such trees, vines, or plants, hedges, or the building of such fence or foot walk, or the making of such repairs or improvements. Lightning-rods are excluded. (7557 et seq.)

A lien is given for labor performed or materials furnished to owners of leaseholds for oil and gas purposes.

Blacksmiths, horseshoers, wagon-makers entitled to liens for improvements on vehicles or other chattels upon which they have performed work, both for labor and material furnished. (Ch. 218, L. 1913.)

The lien claimant shall file with the clerk of the district court of the county in which the land is situated a statement setting forth the amount claimed and the items thereof as nearly as practicable, the names respectively of the owner, the contractor, and the claimant, and a description of the property subject to lien, verified by affidavit: but if any promissory note bearing lawful rate of interest shall have been taken for such debt, it shall be sufficient to file a copy of such note with a sworn statement that same or any part thereof was given for such labor or material, without furnishing a list of the items; and the lien shall be for the part or whole of the note so given for labor or material. Such statement shall be filed within four months after the last material furnished or labor performed; and if the claim be for planting any trees, plants, vines, or hedges, within four months from such planting.

Persons furnishing such material or performing such labor under sub-contract with the contractor, or as artisan or day laborer in the contractor's employment, may obtain a lien on the land for the amount due him the same as the original contractor, except that he must file with said clerk within sixty days from the last material furnished or labor performed by him a verified statement showing the amount due from the contractor to the claimant and the items as nearly as practicable, and thereafter the same as the contractor's statement: and thereafter serve a written notice of such filing upon the owner of the land. If the owner cannot be found in the county, the claimant may file an affidavit to such fact, and serve a copy of the statement upon the occupant of the land, or, if not occupied, post it in a conspicuous place thereon. However, the owner does not become liable to any such claimant for a greater amount than contracted to be paid to the original contractor, whom the owner cannot pay except at his risk until the expiration of such sixty days, until after which he shall not be liable to an action by the contractor. The owner may pay the sub-contractor and apply the amount on the original contract.

Such lien claims and all rights and remedies thereunder, subject to defenses thereto, are assignable. Such assignment may be made by an entry on the margin of the Mechanics' Lien Record aforesaid, signed by the claimant or his representative, and attested by the clerk or made by separate instrument in writing.

Such liens are enforced by civil action in the district court to be brought within one year from the filing of the lien, except where a promissory note is given, and then a year after its maturity. The practice, pleadings, and proceedings in such action shall conform to the procedure under the code as far as applicable; and the lien statement may be amended in furtherance of justice as pleadings.

All incumbrancers shall be made parties, and issues made and trial had as in other cases. Where the sub-contractor is plaintiff, the original contractor shall be made a defendant, and defend at his own expense, or the owner may defend at his expense. But if the sheriff of the county return that the original contractor therein cannot be found, the action may proceed without him. Until all claims, costs, and expenses are finally adjudicated, the owner may retain the full sum from the contractor.

Several actions on the same property pending at the same time may be consolidated; or if the building be incomplete, and other liens still possible to be filed, the court may stay the action until all lienors have opportunity to file and come in. The real estate is sold as in other cases, without prejudice to the rights of prior incumbrancers, or persons not parties. Artisans and day laborers are allowed to recover an attorney's fee to be taxed as costs, and, if the sale does not realize enough for all claims, they are probated.

If there be any claims standing of record without suits to enforce same, the owner may file a suit to have the liens adjudicated, and if it is found that the liens were invalid, the owner recovers his cost, and if a year expires without suit, the clerk shall indorse the lien statement, "Canceled by limitation of law."

The contractor or owner may execute a bond to the State of Kansas, for the use of all persons in whose favor liens might accrue, conditioned to pay all claims entitled to be made liens, the bond to be not less than the contract price, with sureties to be approved by the district clerk of the county, and who shall make affidavit that they are worth double the amount of the bond over debts and exemptions, and upon filing such bond no lien shall attach, and those already filed shall be discharged. All persons interested may sue on the bond. This bond required on all public work. Suit must be filed thereon within six months after work is completed.

Limitations. — Actions for the recovery of land sold on execution must be brought within five years after the recording of the deed: for the recovery of land sold by executors, administrators, or guardians, under an order of court, within five years after recording of deed; for the recovery of land sold for taxes, within two years after recording of tax deeds; actions for the recovery of land in other cases, within fifteen years, for the forcible entry and detention, or detention only, of land, within two years. As to actions for the recovery of land, if the plaintiff was under any legal disability when the cause of action accrued, he may bring his action within two years after the removal of the disability. (6905 et seq.)

An action upon any agreement, contract, or promise in writing must be brought within five years; an action upon contract not in writing, express or implied, or upon a liability created by statute, other than a forfeiture or penalty, within three years; actions for trespass to real or personal property, replevin, injuries to rights of another not arising on contract and not hereinafter enumerated, relief on ground of fraud (not to be deemed to have accrued until the discovery of the fraud), within two years; actions for libel, slander, assault, battery, malicious prosecution, false imprisonment, or upon a statute for a penalty or forfeiture, within one year; actions upon official bonds, or upon bonds given in attachment, injunction, or arrest, or in any case whatever required by statute, and actions for relief not provided for above, within five years. Any agreement for a different period of limitation than the foregoing periods shall be null and void. As to actions other than for the recovery of land, or a penalty of forfeiture, if the plaintiff was under any legal disability when the cause of action accrued, he may bring his action within one year after the removal of such disability. The time during which any defendant has been absent from the State, or has absconded or concealed himself, is not to be computed as any part of the period of limitation. This provision does not apply to a foreign corporation authorized to do business or upon which service can be had within the State. If the cause of action arose in another State, between non-residents of this State, and by the laws of the State where the cause of the action arose the action is barred, it is barred in this State. In any case founded on contract, part payment, or a written acknowledgment or promise, renews the contract, and the statute runs from the date of such renewal. (5616.) Accounts are barred in three years from last item, except claims against estates of deceased persons, which are barred in two years after letters are granted. Judgments, both domestic and foreign, are the subjects of action within five years from date. Judgments may be kept alive by issuance of executions every five years, and if dormant may be revived in two years by either court or judge upon motion and notice. See, also, Judgments; Executions; Claims against the Estates of Deceased Persons; Tax Law.

Married Women. — The property, real and personal, which any woman in this State may own at the time of her marriage, and the rents, issues, profits, or proceeds thereof, and any real, personal, or mixed property which shall come to her by descent, devise, or bequest, or the gift of any person except her husband, shall remain her sole and separate property, notwithstanding her marriage, and not be subject to the disposal of her husband or liable for his debts. (6160.)

A married woman, while the marriage relation subsists, may bargain, sell, and convey her real and personal property, and enter into any contract with reference to the same, in the same manner, to the same extent, and with like effect as a married man may in relation to his real and personal property. (6161.)

A woman may, while married, sue and be sued, in the same manner as if she were unmarried.

Any woman married may carry on any trade or business, and perform any labor or services, on her sole and separate account; and the earnings of any married woman, from her trade, business, labor, or services, shall be her sole and separate property, and may be used and invested by her in her own name. (6163.)

Any woman who shall have been married out of this State shall, if her husband afterward becomes a resident of this State, enjoy all the rights as to property which she may have acquired by the laws of any other State, Territory, or country, or which she may have acquired by virtue of any marriage contract or settlement made out of this State. (6163.)

Nothing in said statute contained shall invalidate any marriage settlement or contract now made, or to be hereafter made.

Females attain majority at twenty-one.

Mechanics' Liens. — See Liens.

Mortgages. — A mortgage of real estate, to be valid as against subsequent bona fide purchasers, must be duly acknowledged and recorded in the office of the register of deeds of the county where the land is situated, in the same manner that other real estate conveyances are. In the absence of stipulations to the contrary, the mortgagor of real property retains possession until the mortgage is duly foreclosed and sheriff's deed delivered to the purchaser. Mortgages may be discharged on margin of record by mortgagee or attorney or assignee in presence of register, or by satisfaction entered on the instrument when copied on the margin by the register; or by an independent release duly acknowledged and recorded. (6468.)

Mortgages are foreclosed by suit only, in which all parties in interest, and subsequent lienholders, are made parties defendant. No real estate within this State shall be sold for the payment of any money, in security for which it may have been pledged, except in pursuance of a judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction ordering such sale. No appraisal is required before foreclosure sale. In an action to foreclose mortgage where personal service is obtained, a personal judgment is rendered for the amount due as well as for the sale of the property. There is no strict foreclosure in Kansas. For forms see Deeds.

If no execution or order of sale is issued within five years after judgment of foreclosure, and there are no proceedings to revive the judgment or an appeal, the clerk of the court is required upon application of any party interested, on payment of the fee, to enter a satisfaction of the mortgage on the records in the office of the register of deeds. (Ch. 230, L. 1913.)

Purchase-money liens may also be foreclosed as mortgages, with six months' redemption after sheriff's sale.

There is a penalty of one hundred dollars for failure to release a mortgage paid in full, to be recovered with a reasonable attorney's fee.

For mortgages on chattels, see Chattel Mortgages.

Assignments of real estate mortgages must be acknowledged the same as deeds, and recorded, without expense to the mortgagor, in the office of the register of deeds of the proper county. If not recorded, payment of interest or principal to the mortgagee or last assignee of record, unless with actual notice of the assignment, will be a defense to the action by the assignee. (See Executions and Judgments, supra.)

Notaries Public. — Governor may commission as many as he sees fit for each county. Term four years. All official acts must be authenticated with seal; must also add statement when commission expires. (6727 et seq.) Authority to take proof and acknowledgment of deeds and other instruments requiring proof or acknowledgment, to administer oaths, to demand acceptance or payment of foreign and inland bills of exchange and promissory notes, and protest same for non-acceptance or non-payment, and such other powers and duties as by law of nations and commercial usage may be performed by notaries public. Must keep fair record of official acts. On death, disqualification, or removal from county, his records and papers to be delivered to clerk of district court to be delivered to successor when qualified. Suit on notary's bond barred in three years after cause of action accrues. A notary appointed residing in an incorporated town or city located in two or more counties may exercise his authority in either county by filing his oath and bond in each county. In all other cases a notary is officially confined to the limits of his county. Notary interested as stockholder, officer, or employee of corporation not disqualified as to deeds or oaths of such corporation or its officers other than himself. The official character of a notary is certified by the clerk of the district court of the county to which the notary is appointed.

Notes and Bills of Exchange. — Negotiable Instrument Law, same as recently enacted by several other States, enacted by Laws 1905, ch. 310. An instrument payable to a fictitious or non-existing person is payable to bearer. Where the day for doing an act falls on Sunday or a holiday, the act may be done on the next succeeding secular or business day. In case of ambiguity as to whether an instrument is a bill or note, the holder may treat it as either. Indorsement by a corporation or infant passes title to the instrument, notwithstanding want of capacity. (6521 et seq.)

An antecedent or preëxisting debt is a sufficient consideration for a note or bill. Instruments drawn or indorsed to a person as cashier are prima facie payable to the bank or corporation. A transferee receiving notice of infirmity before paying full amount is a holder in due course only as to the amount already paid by him. One signing a paper otherwise than as maker, drawer, or acceptor is presumed to be an indorser. Where a bill or note is negotiated by delivery without indorsement, the warrant of the genuineness of good title, capacity of prior parties, goes to none but the immediate transferee. There is no warranty as to capacity on the delivery only of public or corporate securities.

All days of grace are abolished. When negotiable paper matures on Sunday or a legal holiday, presentment shall be made on the next secular or business day. Paper falling due on Saturday should be presented on the next business day, but demand paper may be presented before noon Saturday unless entire day should be holiday. Time of payment is to be computed by excluding day from which time is to begin to run and including date of payment. Making the instrument payable at the bank is equivalent to an order on the bank to pay the same on account of principal debtor.

Notice of dishonor may be given orally or in writing, but must be sufficiently clear to indicate the instrument and the dishonor. Acceptance of bill of exchange must be in writing signed by the drawee. Where acceptance or a promise to accept is written on paper other than a bill, it does not bind the acceptor except as against one who purchases for value on the faith of such acceptance or promise.

For the purpose of negotiable instruments, January 1, February 22, May 30, July 4, Labor Day, December 25, and any day designated by the governor or president as day of fast or thanksgiving shall be a holiday. Where such a day falls on Sunday, the next succeeding secular or business day shall be a holiday.

Practice. — The practice of the courts of this State is regulated by a Code of Civil Procedure very similar to the Code of the State of Ohio. (6891 et seq.) The common law, as modified by constitutional and statutory law, judicial decisions, and the condition and wants of the people, remains in full force in aid of the General Statutes of the State: but the rule of the common law, that statutes in derogation thereof shall be strictly construed, is not applicable to the Code of Practice of the State, but such Code must be liberally construed, in order to promote the object of the statute.

Proof of Claims. — There is no special provision for proof of claims except against decedents' estates. See Claims against the Estates of Deceased Persons. Demands are sued on and proved by deposition or other evidence as in other cases.

Accounts sent for collection should be verified (by an officer of a corporation) by affidavit before an officer authorized to take depositions, and then their correctness is admitted unless denied under oath. The verification is sufficient if made by one of several parties united in interest (partners) and suing together, and if made upon belief.

Records. — Every instrument in writing conveying or affecting any real estate, proved or acknowledged and certified as prescribed by law, may be recorded in the office of the register of deeds of the county in which the real estate lies, and from the time of filing the same for record imports notice to all persons of the contents thereof, and subsequent purchasers and mortgagees shall be deemed to purchase with notice. No such instrument is valid except between the parties thereto and such as have actual notice thereof, until deposited for record. See Chattel Mortgages; Deeds; Mortgages. (2068 et seq.)

Every deed, before being recorded, or filed for record in the office of the register of deeds, must be entered by the county clerk in a book denominated the "Transfer Record," and he must attach his certificate to the conveyance, that the proper transfers have been entered upon the records of his office; for which he is entitled to ten cents for each transfer of lands and five cents for each town lot.

Redemption. — See Executions; Tax Law.

Replevin. — The plaintiff, in an action to recover the possession of specific personal property, may, at the commencement of the suit, or at any time before answer, claim the immediate delivery of such property, by filing affidavit and giving bond as required by statute. Property replevied must be held by the officer taking it twenty-four hours, during which time the party from whom the property is taken may give bond to the plaintiff in not less than double the amount of the value of the property conditioned as required by law, and thereon have return of such property. (7068 et seq.)

In case of fraudulent purchase of goods, as sale may be rescinded, and the goods recovered in a replevin action, even in the hands of a party to whom they have been transferred by bill of sale, or chattel mortgage in payment of, or as security for, indebtedness, and whether in good faith or not, providing such indebtedness existed previous to the bill of sale or chattel mortgage; i. e., that a pre-existing debt does not make such purchaser or mortgagee one for a valuable consideration.

Reports, Judicial. — Kansas Reports (100 volumes), being all decisions of State supreme court. McCahon's Reports (1 volume) contains cases decided in the Territorial supreme court, and a few cases decided in the United States circuit and district courts for the District of Kansas. Dillon's Reports (5 volumes) contain cases decided in the United States courts in the Eighth Judicial District, of which the State of Kansas is a part. McCrary (5 volumes) follows Dillon. Also 10 volumes of Court of Appeals.

Revision. — The latest compilation of the General Statutes including the Code is General Statutes of Kansas, 1915. References herein are to that book.

The latest digests are Dassler's Digest, of 1902, with supplements of 1905 and 1909, and Kansas Digest by West Publishing Company, 1909 and 1915.

Sales in Bulk. — Ch. 369, L. 1915, requires that seven days' notice be given to the creditors of the seller of stock in bulk, or that a bond be furnished by the seller, to be approved by the clerk of the district court, conditioned for the payment of debts due the creditors of the seller.

Service of Summons. — The summons issued in a civil action must be served by the officer to whom it is directed, and must be served by delivering a copy of the same to the defendant personally, or by leaving a copy at the defendant's usual place of residence, at any time before the return day of the summons. (6956.) See, also, Corporations for provisions concerning service on foreign corporations transacting business in Kansas.

Service may also be made by publication in a very large class of cases, such as actions to quiet title, for the partition of real property, the recovery of real property, or of any estate or interest therein, or for the sale of real property under a mortgage lien or other incumbrance; in divorce suits when the defendant is a non-resident of the State; and in actions brought against non-residents or foreign corporations having property or debts owing to them in the State sought to be taken by any of the provisions, remedies, or to be appropriated in any way. In like instances, provision is made for suits against, and publication service upon, unknown heirs, executors, administrators, trustees, devisees, or assigns of natural persons, and unknown successors, trustees or assigns of corporations. (6970.)

The time of such publication notice must be for three consecutive weeks in some newspaper printed in the county where the petition is filed; if there is no newspaper printed in such county, then the publication must be made for the same length of time in some newspaper printed in the State, and of general circulation in the county where the petition is filed. Legal notices must be published in some newspaper which has been continuously published for fifty-two consecutive weeks prior to the first publication of notice. In all cases where service by publication may be made, personal service of a summons may be made out of the State by the sheriff of the county where the person to be served may be found, such service to be proved by the affidavit of the sheriff made before a commissioner of deeds for the State, or the clerk of a court of record having a seal, and such service so made shall have the same force and effect as service by publication, and no more.
